No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, County of Travis:

Leave of Court had, plaintiff files this its second amended original petition as follows:

No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, County of Travis:

To the Honorable the District Court of the 26th Judicial District of Texas:

Plaintiff is the State of Texas, represented herein by and through R. V. Davidson, her Attorney General, and John W. Brady, County Attorney of Travis County, who is acting herein under instructions from and by the authority of the said Attorney General.

The defendant is the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, acting as and purporting to be a corporation, and claiming, acting and purporting to be incorporated under and by virtue of a charter granted and issued by the State of Missouri on the 29th day of May, A. D. 1900, and doing business in Texas and claiming to have authority to do business in Texas by virtue of a permit issued by the Secretary of State of the State of Texas on the 31st day of May, A. D. 1900.

4 II.

That heretofore, to-wit: on or about January 1st, 1870, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, H. H. Rogers, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, and a number of other persons, the names of some of whom cannot be ascertained by plaintiff, and the names of others of whom are hereinafter set out, conceived the scheme of monopolizing and controlling the business of refining, transporting and selling petroleum and the products thereof throughout the United States, including the State of Texas; that to that end they entered into a conspiracy and a series of conspiracies by and among themselves and by and with other individuals and corporations, including the defendant corporation, from that time up to the date of filing of this amended petition; none of said conspiracies has been abandoned, and each has continued and the conspiracy and conspiracies are still in existence and are still being carried out and actively prosecuted.

That to the end named and in pursuance of said conspiracy on or about May 7th, 1878, the parties aforesaid and William H.

Waters and Henry C. Pierce and the Chess Carley Company and the Standard Oil Co. (of Ohio) and the officers and stockholders of each of said companies entered into a further conspiracy as hereinafter set out.

And on or about Jan. 2, 1882, and Jan. 4, 1882, the corporations hereinbefore named and all the persons signing the trust agreement of those dates hereinafter set forth and the firms, individuals and corporations in said trust agreements set forth entered into a conspiracy as hereinafter set forth.

And said persons and other persons entered into the other conspiracies hereinafter specifically set forth.

That among the persons and corporations who primarily entered into the conspiracy aforesaid, and who have since entered into the conspiracy and conspiracies having for their purpose the unlawful undertakings hereinbefore and hereinafter detailed are the following:

H. C. Pierce.
C. M. Adams.
Andrew M. Finlay.

The Standard Oil Company.
The Standard Oil Company of Indiana.
The Standard Oil Company of New York.
The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.
The Standard Oil Company of Ohio.
The Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Standard Oil Company of Iowa.
The Continental Oil Company.

The Republic Oil Company.
The Union Tank Line Company.
The Security Oil Company.
The Galena Signal Oil Company.

All of the companies forming, participating in the formation of, or acquired by the Standard Oil Trust, and all officers and agents of said companies, and all companies and individuals mentioned in the Standard Oil Trust agreement hereinafter set forth, and all companies formed by the Standard Oil Trust, or formed by the Standard Oil Company, or acquired or controlled by said company and the officers of said companies.

That said conspiracy was so widespread and participated in by so many companies and persons that it is impossible for plaintiff to name all of them. And all of said conspiracies are still in existence and are still being carried out and actively prosecuted.

(2) That the conspiracy and conspiracies aforesaid have included and do include the controlling and monopolization of the sale of refined oils and all the products of petroleum in the State of Texas; that the conspiracy as herewith detailed in, of and with reference to the State of Texas, had and has continuously had and has among its purposes:

7 (b) The manufacture and sale of all the products of petroleum.

(c) The suppression and prevention of all competition in said business.

(d) The creation of a monopoly in refining and sale and transportation of petroleum and its products.

(e) The fixing, maintaining, increasing and regulating of the price of all oil and the products of petroleum.

(f) The suppression and prevention of all competition in the control and production of crude oil and fixing and controlling the amount of oil produced and sold in the State of Texas.

(3) That the means adopted in the carrying out of the conspiracy and conspiracies aforesaid, and the means used and employed by the conspirators aforesaid, including defendant, have been and are calculated to carry out the purposes of said conspiracy and have been and do result in the practical monopolization of the business of selling refined oil and the products of petroleum and in controlling the price and output of oil in the State of Texas, and in destroying and preventing competition.

III.

That heretofore, to-wit: on or about May 7th, 1878, William H. Waters and Henry C. Pierce were engaged in the business of refining and selling petroleum and its products in the State of Missouri and in the State of Texas and elsewhere, and Chess-Carley Company and the Standard Oil Company (of Ohio) the last named company being controlled by the conspirators first herein named, were engaged in the sale of petroleum and its products in the States of Missouri and Texas and elsewhere; that upon said date, said named individuals and corporations, and the officers and agents of the latter, in further pursuance of the general conspiracy to monopo-

8 lize and control the oil business, and especially for the purpose of monopolization and controlling the oil business in a section of the United States, including the State of Texas, made and entered into a conspiracy to secure control and monopolize the oil business in said section, including the State of Texas, and to fix and control the price of oil in said territory and to eliminate and prevent all competition by and among themselves and between themselves and others in said business. This conspiracy and the acts thereunder have been adopted by the other conspirators, including defendant, and has not been abandoned, but is still being carried out.

(2) That in the accomplishment of the conspiracy and the unlawful purpose hereinbefore set out, said parties caused a corporation to be created under the name of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company (its charter being issued by the State of Missouri on said May 7th, 1878), the capital stock of which was placed at $100,000 divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each; that of said capital stock 400 shares were issued and assigned to W. H. Waters and H. C. Pierce, 400 shares to the Chess-Carley Company, and 200 shares to the Standard Oil Company.

That the company then organized is in fact the same company doing business under a reputed reorganization with a charter dated May 29th, 1900; that allegations of facts occurring prior to May 29, 1900, are with reference to said Company under its original charter, and occurring since then with reference to the company as acting under the charter of that date; the company as reorganized adopted all the acts, carried out and is carrying out all the contracts, schemes and conspiracies of the company as originally organized, and in every way has taken the place of the company as originally organized.

(3) That prior to this date, the conspirators first named herein had taken other steps to secure the control of the oil business in the United States, and to that end, had organized the Stand-9 ard Oil Company (of Ohio), and had bought the property of and had secured the control of a large number of corporations and firms (the names of all of which cannot be stated by plaintiff), and had apportioned the territory of the United States to such corporations as they chose or saw fit to use for the transaction of the oil business; that the conspirators aforesaid conceived that the acquisition of all the oil business in the territory which W. H. Waters and H. C. Pierce and Chess-Carley Company were operating could best and most easily be accomplished by the formation of a corporation in which said last named parties should have stock, and said parties acquiesced in the policy and became parties to the conspiracy, and said parties and their successors and assigns, and the corporation aforesaid and its assigns and its stockholders and directors and other officers have ever since then, and up to this time, been parties to the conspiracy and have acquiesced in and adopted and aided in carrying out the plans adopted for the consummation of the purposes of said conspiracy.

(4) That in pursuance of and as a part of the general plan and conspiracy for the monopolization of the oil business, when the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was formed, it was agreed and understood (and the agreement has continuously since been acted upon and has since its organization been acquiesced in and acted upon by defendant to this time) that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was to confine its business to the States of Texas, Arkansas, the Territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory and parts of the States of Missouri and Louisiana, and the Republic of Mexico, and was not to do or attempt to do any business in any other part of the United States or elsewhere, and it was agreed and understood that neither the Standard Oil Company (of Ohio) and none of its subsidiary or dependent companies and none of the Companies set forth in 10 the trust agreement dated Jany. 2, 1882, and none of the companies controlled by the conspirators herein named should sell any oil, products of petroleum, or do any business in the products of oil in any of the territory named as the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company (as above set out).

(5) That the understanding and agreement above referred to has been observed and carried out and insisted upon and been treated as effective by and between all corporations, trusts, quasi or reputed corporations and all concerns owning or claiming the property or the stock or business, or any part thereof, of any of the corporations primarily entering into the agreement or understanding and their successors and assigns, from the time of the creation of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company up to the time of the filing of this amended petition, and during all this period this agreement and understanding has been so observed by and between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company (of Ohio) and its successors, and the subsidiary companies and the other companies hereinafter named and all companies the control of which were in the Standard Oil Trustees and now controlled by the Standard Oil Company, in and with reference to the State of Texas, as to prevent all competition between said companies in said State, and to create a monopoly therein in the State of Texas, the officers, agents and employees of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company have, in the State of Texas, observed, abided by, and acted upon said understanding and agreement, and have during all of said time made same operative and effective, and said agreement and understanding has been observed and acted upon by defendant from the date of its incorporation to this time.

(6) That as a part of the contract, agreement, understanding and conspiracy at the times aforesaid, and as a consideration by which exclusive territory was set aside for the use, exploita-
11 tion and enjoyment of said Waters-Pierce Oil Company, it agreed and contracted to purchase all of its supplies of refined and unrefined oils, naval stores and other articles in which it was authorized to deal, from the Standard Oil Company and companies controlled by it, which said contract, agreement and understanding was enforced and observed by the defendant herein, and has at all times been observed by defendant since the date of its incorporation to the present time.

IV.

Plaintiff further avers that in pursuance of the conspiracy and conspiracies hereinbefore effected and entered into, as set out, and in order to make more effective and binding and complete the monopolization of the oil business throughout the United States, including the State of Texas, a trust agreement was entered into and formed by the persons, firms and corporations hereinafter mentioned, including the parties named in said agreement, and the parties signing same and including the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

(2) That in violation of the law and in abuse of its corporate powers and in the exercise of privileges, rights and franchises not conferred upon it, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company on or about the 2nd day of January, A. D. 1882, and on or about the 4th day of said month and year entered into and became a party to certain trust agreements, and ever since then has, and the defendant has, in the manner, and to the extent below stated, observed, performed and carried out said agreements, copies of which are as follows:

1. As soon as practicable a corporation shall be formed in each of the following States, under the laws thereof, to-wit: Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey; provided, however, that instead of organizing a new corporation any existing charter and organization may be used for the purpose when it can advantageously be done.

2. The purposes and powers of said corporations shall be to mine for, produce, manufacture, refine and deal in petroleum and all its products, and all the materials used in such business, and transact other business collateral thereto. But other purposes and powers shall be embraced in the several charters such as shall seem expedient to the parties procuring the charter, or, if necessary to comply with the law, the powers aforesaid may be restricted and reduced.

3. At any time hereafter, when it may seem advisable to the trustees herein provided for, similar corporations may be formed in other States and Territories.

4. Each of said corporations shall be known as the Standard Oil Company of (and here shall follow the name of the State or Territory by virtue of the laws of which said corporation is organized).

5. The capital stock of each of said corporations shall be fixed at such an amount as may seem necessary and advisable to the parties organizing the same, in view of the purpose to be accomplished.

15 6. The shares of stock of each of said corporations shall be issued only for money, property or assets equal at a fair valuation to the par value of the stock delivered therefor.

7. All the properties, real and personal, assets and business of each and all of the corporations and limited partnerships mentioned or embraced in class first shall be transferred to and vested in the said several Standard Oil Companies. All of the property, assets and business in, or of each particular State, shall be transferred to and vested in the Standard Oil Company of that particular State, and in order to accomplish such purpose the directors and managers of each and all of the several corporations and limited partnerships mentioned in class first are hereby authorized and directed by the stockholders and members thereof (all of them being parties to this agreement) to sell, assign, transfer, convey and make over, for the consideration hereinafter mentioned, to the Standard Oil Company or companies of the proper State or States, as soon as said corporations are organized and ready to receive the same, all the property, real and personal, assets and business of said corporations and limited partnerships. Correct schedules of such property, assets and business shall accompany each transfer.

8. The individuals embraced in class second of this agreement do, each for himself, agree, for the consideration hereinafter mentioned, to sell, assign, transfer, convey and set over, all the property, real and personal, assets and business mentioned and embraced in schedules accompanying such sale and transfer to the Standard Oil Company or companies of the proper State of States, as soon as the said corporations are organized and ready to receive the same.

16 Trustees in Control.

9. The parties embraced in class third of this agreement do covenant and agree to assign and transfer all of the stock held by them in the corporations or limited partnerships herein named, to the trustees herein provided for, for the consideration and upon the terms hereinafter set forth. It is understood and agreed that the said trustees and their successors may hereafter take the assignment of stocks in the same or similar companies upon the terms herein provided, and that when-ever and as often as all the stocks of any corporations or limited partnerships are vested in said trustees the proper steps may then be taken to have all the moneys, property, real and personal, of such corporation or partnership assigned and conveyed to the Standard Oil Company, of the proper State, on the terms and in the mode herein set forth, in which event the trustees shall receive stocks of the Standard Oil Companies, equal to the value of the money, property and business assigned to be held in the place of stocks of the company or companies assigning such property.

10. The consideration for the transfer and conveyance of the money, property and business aforesaid to each or any of the Standard Oil Companies shall be stock of the respective Standard Oil Company, to which said transfer or conveyance is made, equal at par value to the appraised value of the money, property and business so transferred. Said stock shall be delivered to the trustees hereinafter provided for, and their successors, and no stock of any of said companies shall ever be issued except for money, property or business, equal at least to the par value of the stock so issued for any purpose, except to the trustees herein provided for, to be held subject to the trustees hereinafter specified. It is understood, however, that this provision is not intended to restrict the purchase, 17 sale and exchange of property by said Standard Oil Companies as fully as they may be authorized to do by their respective charters; provided only that no stock be issued therefor except to said trustees.

11. The consideration for any stocks delivered to said trustees, as above provided for, as well as for stocks delivered to said trustees by persons mentioned or included in class third of this agreement, shall be the delivery by said trustees to the persons entitled thereto of trust certificates hereinafter provided for equal at par value to the par value of the stocks of the said several Standard Oil Companies so received by said trustees and equal to the appraised value of the stocks of other companies or partnerships delivered to said trustees.

The said appraised value shall be determined in a manner agreed upon by the parties in interest and said trustees.

It is understood and agreed, however, that the said trustees may with any trust funds in their hands, in addition to the mode above provided, purchase the bonds and stocks of other companies engaged in business similar or collateral to the business of said Standard Oil Companies on such terms and in such mode as they may deem advisable, and shall hold the same for the benefit of the owners of said trust certificates, and may sell, assign, transfer and pledge such bonds and stocks whenever they may deem it advantageous to said trust so to do.

III. Powers of Trustees.

The trusts upon which said stocks shall be held, and the number, powers and duties of said trustees, shall be as follows:

Every trustee shall hold his office until his successor is elected.

6. Trustees shall be elected by ballot by the owners of trust certificates or their proxies. At all meetings the owners of trust certificates who may be registered as such on the books of the trustees may vote in person or by proxy, and shall have one vote for each and every share of trust certificate standing in their names, but no such owner shall be entitled to vote upon any share which has not stood in his name thirty days prior to the day appointed for the election. 7. The annual meeting of the owners of said trust certificates for the election of trustees, and for other business, shall be held at the office of the trustees in the City of New York on the first

It shall also be the duty of the trustees to call a special meeting of holders of trust certificates whenever requested to do so by a petition signed by the holders of 10 per cent. in value of such certificates. The business of such special meetings shall be confined to the object specified in the notice given therefor. Notice of the time and place of all meetings of the owners of trust certificates shall be given in one of the principal newspapers of each State in which a Standard Oil Company exists at least ten days before such meeting. At any

By-laws may also be made, amended and repealed at any meeting by and with the consent of a majority in value of the holders of trust certificates, which alter this agreement relative to the number, powers, and duties of the trustees, and to other matters tending to the more efficient accomplishment of the objects for which the trust is created, provided only that the essential intents and purposes of this agreement be not thereby changed.

8. Whenever a vacancy occurs in the board of trustees more than sixty days prior to the annual meeting for the election of trustees, it shall be the duty of the remaining trustees to call a meeting of the owners of Standard Oil trust certificates for the purpose of electing a trustee or trustees to fill the vacancy or vacancies. If any 20 vacancy occurs in the board of trustees, from any cause, within sixty days of the dates of the annual meeting for the election of trustees, the vacancy may be filled by a majority of the remaining trustees, or at their option, may remain vacant until the annual election.

9. If, for any reason, at any time, a trustee or trustees shall be appointed by any court to fill any vacancy or vacancies in said board of trustees, the trustee or trustees so appointed shall hold him or their respective office or offices only until a successor shall be elected in the manner above provided for.

Title to Stock Passes.

10. Whenever any change shall occur in the board of trustees the legal title to the stock or other property held in trust shall pass to and vest in the successors of said trustees without any formal transfer thereof, but if at any time such formal transfer shall be deemed necessary or advisable it shall be the duty of the board of trustees to obtain the same, and it shall be the duty of any retiring trustee, or the administrator or executor of any deceased trustee to make said transfer.

11. The trustees shall prepare certificates which shall show the interest of each beneficiary in said trust and deliver them to the person properly entitled thereto. They shall be divided into shares of the par value of $100 each, and shall be known as the Standard Oil trust certificates, and shall be issued subject to all the terms and conditions of this agreement. The trustees shall have power to agree upon and direct the form and contents of said certificates, and the made in which they are signed, attested and transferred. The certificates shall contain an express stipulation that the holders thereof shall be bound by the terms of this agreement and by the by-laws herein provided for.

12. No certificate shall be issued except for stocks and bonds
21 held in trust as herein provided for, and the par value of certificates issued by said trustees shall be equal to the par value of the stocks of said Standard Oil Company and the appraised value of other bonds and stocks held in trust. The various bonds, stocks and money held under said trust shall be held for all parties in interest jointly, and the trust certificates so issued shall be the evidence of the interest held by the several parties in the trust. No duplicates certificates shall be issued by the trustees, except upon surrender of the original certificate or certificates for cancellation, or upon satisfactory proof of the loss thereof, and in the latter case they shall require a sufficient bond of indemnity.

13. The stocks of the various Standard Oil Companies held in trust by said trustees shall not be sold, assigned or transferred by said trustees, or by their beneficiaries, or both combined, so long as this trust indures. The stocks and bonds of other companies held by said trustees may be by them exchanged or sold and the proceeds thereof distributed pro rata to the holders of trust certificates, or said proceeds may be held and reinvested by said trustees for the purposes and uses of the trust, provided, however, that said trustees may, from time to time, assign such shares of stock of said Standard Oil Company as may be necessary to qualify any person or persons chosen or to be chosen as directors and officers of any of said Standard Oil Companies.

14. It shall be the duty of said trustees to receive and safely to keep all interest and dividends declared and paid upon any of the said bonds, stocks and moneys held by them in trust, and to distribute all moneys received from such sources, or from sales of trust property, or otherwise by declaring and paying dividends upon the Standard Trust certificates as finds accumulate, which in their judgment are not needed for the use and expenses of said trust.

The trustees, shall, however, keep separate accounts of receipts from interest and dividends, and of receipts from sales or transfers of trust property and, in making any distribution of trust funds, in which moneys derived from sales or transfers shall be included, shall render the holders of trust certificates a statement showing what amount of the finds distributed has been derived from such sales or transfers. The said trustees may be also authorized and empowered by a vote of a majority in value of holders of trust certificates, whenever stocks or bonds have accumulated in their hands from money purchases thereof, or the stocks or bonds held by them have increased in value, or stock dividends shall have been declared by any of the companies whose stocks are held by said trustees, or whenever from any such cause it is deemed advisable so to do, to increase the amount of trust certificates to the extent of such increase or accumulation of values, and to divide the same among the persons then owning trust certificates, pro rata.

15. It shall be the duty of said trustees to exercise general supervision over the affairs of said several Standard Oil Companies, and, as far as practicable, over the other companies or partnerships, any portion of whose stock is held in said trust. It shall be their duty, as stockholders of said company, to elect as directors any officers thereof, faithful and competent men. They may elect themselves to such positions when they see fit so to do, and shall endeavor to have the affairs of all of said companies managed and directed in the manner they may deem most conducive to the best interests of the holders of said trust certificates.

16. All the powers of the trustees may be exercised by a majority of their number. They may appoint from their own number an executive and other committees. A majority of each committee shall exercise all the powers which the trustees may confer upon such committee.

17. The trustees may employ and pay all such agents and attorneys as they may deem necessary in the management of said trust.

18. Each trustee shall be entitled to a salary for his services not exceeding $25,000 per annum, except the president of the board, who may be voted a salary not exceeding $30,000 per annum. Which salaries shall be fixed by said board of trustees. All salaries and expenses connected with or growing out of the trust shall be paid by the trustees from the trust fund.

19. The board of trustees shall have its principal office in the City of New York, unless changed by a vote of the trustees, at which office, or in some place of safe deposit in said city, the bonds and stock shall be kept. The trustees shall have power to adopt rules and regulations pertaining to the meetings of the board, the election of officers and the management of the trust.

20. The trustees shall render at each annual meeting a statement of the affairs of the trust. If a termination of the trust be agreed upon as hereinafter provided, or within a reasonable time prior to its termination by lapse of time, the trustees shall furnish to the holders of trust certificates a true and perfect inventory and appraisement of all stocks and other property held in trust, and a statement of the financial affairs of the various companies whose stocks are held in trust.

Life of the Trust.

21. This trust shall continue during the lives of the survivors and survivor of the trustee in this agreement named, and for twenty-one years thereafter; provided, however, that if at any time after the expiration of ten years two-thirds of all the holders in value, or if, after the expiration of one year 90 per cent. of all the holders in value of trust certificates shall, at a meeting of holders of trust certificates, called for that purpose, vote to terminate this trust at some time to be by them then and there fixed, the said trust shall terminate at the date so fixed. If the holders of trust certificates shall vote to terminate the trust as aforesaid, they may, at the regular meeting, or at a subsequent meeting called for that purpose, decide by a vote of two-thirds in value of their number, the mode in which the affairs of the trust shall be wound up, and whether the trust property shall be distributed, or whether it shall be sold, and the values thereof distributed; or whether part, and if so, what part shall be divided, and what part shall be sold and whether such sale shall be public or private. The trustees who shall continue to hold their offices for that purpose shall make the distribution in the mode directed; or, if no mode be agreed upon, by two-thirds in value, as aforesaid, the trustees shall make distribution of the trust property according to law. But said distribution, however made, and whether it be of property or values, or of both, shall be just and equitable, and such as to insure to each owner of a trust certificate his due proportion of the trust property, or the value thereof.

22. If the trust shall be terminated by expiration of the time for which it is created, the distribution of the trust property shall be directed and made in the mode above provided.

23. This agreement, together with the registry of certificates, books of accounts and other books and papers connected with the business of said trust shall be safely kept at the principal office of said trustees.

27 EXHIBIT B.

The Agreement.

Whereas, in and by an agreement dated Jan. 2, 1882, and known as the Standard Trust agreement, the parties thereto did mutually covenant and agree, inter alia as follows, to-wit: "That corporations to be known as Standard Oil Companies, of various States, should be formed, and that all the property, real and personal, assets and business of each and all of the corporations and limited partnerships mentioned or embraced in class I of said agreement should be transferred to and vested in the said several Standard Oil Companies; that all the property, assets and business in or of each particular State should be transferred to and vested in the Standard Oil Company of that particular State, and the directors and managers of each and all of the several corporations and associations mentioned in class I were authorized and directed to sell, assign, transfer and convey and make over to the Standard Oil Company or Companies of the proper State or States as soon as said corporations were organized and ready to receive the same, all the property, real and personal, assets and business of said corporations or associations; and,

Whereas, it is not deemed expedient that all of the companies and associations mentioned should transfer their property to the said Standard Oil Companies at the present time, and in case of some companies and associations it may never be deemed expedient that the said transfer should be made and said companies and associations go out of existence; and,

Whereas, it is deemed advisable that a discretionary power should be vested in the trustees as to when such transfer or transfers should take place, if at all. Now, it is hereby mutually agreed between the parties to the said trust agreement, and as supplementary 28 thereto that the trustees named in the said agreement and their successors shall have the power and authority to decide what companies shall convey their said property as in said agreement contemplated, and when the said sales and transfers shall take place, if at all, and until said trustees shall so decide, each of said companies shall remain in existence and retain its property and business, and the trustees shall hold the stocks thereof in trust as in said agreement provided. In the exercise of said discretion the trustees shall act by a majority of their number as provided in said trust agreement. All portions of said trust agreement relating to this subject shall be considered so changed as to be in harmony with this supplemental agreement.

In witness whereof, the said parties have subscribed this agreement, this 4th day of January, 1882.

30 (3) That said defendant so entered into and became a party to the conspiracy then formed and carried out and observed and performed the same up the the present time; that all of the parties entering into same observed and carried out said contracts in other sections of the United States and the State of Texas.

That each of the corporations mentioned in said trust agreement and each of the individuals mentioned therein or signing same entered into and became a party to the conspiracy and conspiracies hereinbefore detailed and described and said companies and persons have participated in and been parties to the schemes and devices that have since been used to carry out the purposes intended to be accomplished by said trust agreement, and have been parties to the conspiracies to accomplish such purposes, and defendant and all of its officers and stockholders have ever since its incorporation participated in such conspiracies and aided in carrying out the purposes and schemes set forth in said agreement and intended to be accomplished by it.

(4) That the stock owned and held in the names of Chess-Carley Company and the Standard Oil Company was transferred by defendant's transferring officer upon defendant's stock books to the certain nine trustees who were appointed and named in the first one of said trust agreements upon the request of the respective owners of said shares and in prusuance of the provisions of said trust agreements.

(5) That thereafter on or about the 13th day of June, A. D. 1882, said defendant, Waters-Pierce Oil Company increased its capital stock from $100,000 to the aggregate amount of $400,000 capital; that said increase- capital of $300,000 was divided into

3,000 shares of $100 each, the certificates of stock being issued as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 31 | Chess-Corley Company, 600 Shares | $60,000 |
| | William H. Waters, 1200 Shares | 120,000 |
| | Trustees of Standard Oil Trust, 1200 Shares | 120,000 |

That said corporation, through its proper officers, issued said 1200 additional shares of the capital stock to the trustees of the Standard Oil Trust as above stated, and that by virtue of so holding and controlling said shares, together with such shares as had been formerly acquired by it, said nine trustees were, after the signing of said agreements, able to choose, and did annually choose, such boards of directors of defendant company as they (the said nine trustees) saw fit, and were able to and did control the actions of the defendant in the conduct and management of its business up to the time of the dissolution of the Standard Oil Trust and the adoption of another scheme for the transaction of the business of the Standard Oil Trust, which was afterwards adopted and enforced as hereinafter set out.

(6) That Waters-Pierce Oil Co., has never taken any corporate action or made any complaint against its stockholders or its directors, and officers signing and entering into said trust agreement, or being controlled under said agreement, or either of them, nor against its said stock holders or officers surrendering their stock in the said company to said nine trustees, nor against its stockholders or officers or directors receiving the Standard Oil Trust Certificates which were issued and delivered to them as aforesaid, by said nine trustees, in exchange for its stock, nor against any of the acts herein recited, and that none of the officers, directors or stockholders of said company have at any time objected or made complaint against such surrender and exchange of stock or against any of said recited acts, but, on the contrary said company, in its corporate capacity, has, and 32 all of its officers and stockholders have, ever since the acts in question acquiesced in such transfer and exchange, and in the annual election of said nine trustees and the directors for said Waters-Pierce Oil Co., as well as in all of said recited acts; that the directors of said company, chosen in the manner aforesaid, either directly or through their employees, managed the business of that company so as to conform to the instructions issued from time to time by the said nine trustees aforesaid, and since the nominal change in the instructions of the managers of the Standard Oil Company.

(7) That the net earnings of the said Waters Pierce Oil Company were, after the signing of said agreement, declared and paid out as dividends upon its capital stock; that the nine trustees appointed under said trust agreements, as aforesaid, received up to the dissolution of the Standard Oil Trust the proportions of such dividends which were properly distributed and payable upon the stock held by said nine trustees in said company; that there were besides those set forth in the trust agreement, a large number of other corporations (plaintiff being unable to ascertain or state the number) in the United States whose organizations were made, stockholders and directors elected, and whose affairs and business and dividends were conducted and paid under and pursuant to the provisions of the Trust agreements hereinbefore set forth, in a manner similar to that herein described in respect to said Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and from the dividends so accumulated in the hands of said nine trustees, dividends were from time to time, as the interests of the trust justified, declared and paid out by said nine trustees to the holders of said Standard Oil Trust certificates which had been issued to them.

(8) That said board of trustees of said Standard Oil Trust controlled managed and directed the business affairs of said company without protest or resistance on the part of said Company, but, on the contrary, with its sanction and acquiescence and the 33 consent and co-operation of all its stockholders up until March 2nd, 1892, when said Standard Oil Trust and its subsidiary corporations were ousted from the State of Ohio by a judgment of the Supreme Court of Ohio at which time said Standard Oil Trust voted to go into voluntary dissolution.

(9) That at the time of said reputed dissolution the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, one of the subsidiary corporations owned and controlled by the Standard Oil Trust aforesaid, took over the entire holdings of stock, including that in the Waters Pierce Oil Company theretofore held by said nine trustees of the said Standard Oil Trust, and thereafter and up to this time the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey (name subsequently changed to Standard Oil Company) performed the functions in carrying the conspiracies, contracts, agreements and understandings aforesaid that had primarily been performed by the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, and later by the said Standard Oil Trust, into effect and execution, and have continually up to this time managed, controlled, directed and dominated the business affairs of all the persons, firms and corporations, including defendant, originally entering into said trust agreements aforesaid, and have since from time to time, created, formed and acquired new corporations in different sections of the United States to carry on its said business in conformity to said conspiracies and agreements as hereinbefore set out; that since 1892 contin-ously each and every day up to this time the Standard Oil Company has owned and controlled a majority of the capital stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, directed its affairs, limited its operations without protest of said corporation, or any corporate action on the part of defendant resisting said control, but, on the contrary, at all times with its sanction, acquiescence and hearty co-operation, and with the knowledge and consent of all its stockholders.

34 (10) That the affairs of the Waters Pierce Oil Company were thereafter controlled, managed and directed by the said Standard Oil Company; that said Standard Oil Company received the 2750 shares of the capital stock of said corporation theretofore held by the Standard Oil Trust as aforesaid; that all of the conspiracies, contracts, agreements and understandings made, entered into and effected between said defendant company and the Standard Oil Company of Ohio and the Standard Oil Trust and its allied interests and subsidiary corporations and the oil concerns and corporations named with trust agreement aforesaid, were continued in full force and effect and were observed each and every day thereafter between the Standard Oil Company and the corporations controlled by it and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and have been continuously so observed by all of said parties, including the defendant, from the date of its organization, down to the present time.

V.

That prior to the 6th day of July, A. D. 1889, and continuously thereafter up to and including May 31st, 1900, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, did business in the State of Texas, having filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Texas, in accordance with the requirements of law a certified copy of its articles of incorporation, and secured a permit to transact business in the State. By virtue of the permit granted by the State of Texas to said corporation it engaged in business in the State, established itself in every county through out the state and transacted business in the State of Texas, and while so engaged violated the statutes of the State of Texas against illegal combinations in restraint of competition in trade and thereby incurred a forfeiture of its permit to do business in the State. Suit was filed by the State of Texas in the District Court of Travis County, Texas, for the cancellation of said permit; upon trial a verdict was rendered against the company and judgment was duly en-
35 tered cancelling said permit. The judgment was affirmed by the Court of Civil Appeals of Texas, a writ of error denied by the Supreme Court of Texas, and a writ of error was granted by the Supreme Court of the United States to the Court of Civil Appeals of the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas, bringing the case before the Supreme Court, by which Court said judgments were affirmed March 19th, 1900, cancelling the permit of said defendant to transact any business except an interstate business in the State of Texas, and an injunction issued restraining said corporation from any further transaction of business within this State.

(2) That through an agreement with the Attorney General of the State of Texas, said corporation was granted until the 31st day of May, 1900, in which to wind up its business affairs and to withdraw from the State of Texas.

(3) That in further pursuance of the conspiracy aforesaid and for the purpose of maintaining the monopoly and control which had been acquired by the conspirators aforesaid through the operations of the Waters Pierce Oil Company in the State of Texas, and for the purpose of defrauding the State of Texas, and for the purpose of fraudulently rendering ineffective the judgments of the Courts of the State of Texas and of the United States, the manager, officers and agents of the Standard Oil Company, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and its officers, and H. C. Pierce and the other conspirators hereinbefore mentioned, determined to go through the form of dissolving the corporation known as the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and of creating a new corporation for the holding of property and the transaction of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and carrying out the plans and conspiracies aforesaid.

(4) That a paper was prepared certifying that the stockholders of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had voted to dissolve
36 said corporation, which papers was filed with the Secretary of State of Missouri, May 29th, 1900, and another charter was taken out by the old stockholders, giving the same name, the same capital stock, and the purposes, and being in fact the same corporation.

(5) Plaintiff alleges that the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. was not dissolved in accordance with the statutes and laws of the State of Missouri.

That said laws governing such corporations provide in effect that if the corporation be insolvent a majority of its stockholders, or the directors of the corporation, and if the corporation be not insolvent then the stockholders holding at least two-thirds of its shares may pass a resolution favoring dissolution; that after the passage of said resolution such corporation may be dissolved by a judgment of the Circuit Court of the County in which its principal office is located, and if such office be in the City of St. Louis, such judgment of dismissal may be rendered by either of the circuit courts of the Eighth Judicial Circuit; that before such dissolution by judgment of a Court can be had an application shall be filed by a petition, verified by the president and secretary, or by a majority of the directors of the corporation, setting forth a clear and concise statement of the reasons which induce the stockholders to desire a dissolution of the corporation; that among other things said petition shall contain a full and true inventory of all the estate, real and personal, in law and equity, of such corporation, and all books, vouchers and securities relating thereto, also a full and true account of the capital stock of such corporation, specifying the names of the stockholders, their residences, the number of shares belonging to each, the amount paid in upon said shares, and the amount due thereon; also all incumbrances on the property of such cor-
37 poration by judgment, mortgage, pledge or otherwise; a list of all creditors of such corporation, and all all engagements entered into by said corporation, not fully satisfied or cancelled. That upon filing of such petition an order shall be made by the Court, if filed in term time, or by the Clerk, if filed in vacation, requiring all persons interested in such corporation to show cause, if any they have, why such corporation should not be dissolved, on or before a day or term of said Court therein named; that the several officers and stockholders may enter their voluntary appearance and all stock holders and creditors and persons having unexecuted contracts with said corporation, who do not enter their voluntary appearance, shall be notified by by summon under the hand and seal of the clerk of the Court, reciting the filing of said petition, its general purport and nature, and citing them to appear in said Court on a day to be named in said writ to show cause, if any they have, against said dissolution; that such day shall be fixed at not less than twenty one days nor more than thirty days after the filing of said petition; that in addition to said summons a notice of a general nature and cause of said application shall be published in some newspapers of general circulation in the county in which said proceeding in commenced for three weeks consecutively, and proof of service and publication aforesaid shall be made before any order is made upon said petition; that the court shall have the power to continue such application for service upon all interested parties from time to time and to issue new writs, if necessary, according to the practice therein. That if, upon a hearing of such application the court shall be satisfied that the prayer of such petition can be granted without prejudice to the public welfare, or the interest of the corporation, the creditors or incorporators of such corporation, 38 if may enter a judgment or decree dissolving such corporation, and directing the president and directors to take charge of its assets and administer them as now provided by law; that whenever the Court shall grant a judgment of dissolution, the clerk thereof shall send a certified copy of the order of the Court to the Secretary of State and said copy shall be filed with the incorporation papers of said company. That the president or secretary of every domestic incorporated company in said State, when it shall dissolve, is required to file with the Secretary of State thereof an affidavit to that effect, and for any failure to comply with such provisions the said company or its officers are subject to a penalty of from fifty to five hundred dollars; that the mere retirement from business of a domestic corporation without dissolution shall not exempt it from the requirement to make said reports.

That the laws of the State of Missouri, governing the manner of dissolution of corporations such as defendant, the substance of which have been hereinbefore stated are contained in the Revised Statutes of Missouri, (1889) and that Sections 976, 977, 978, 979, 980, 981, and 1018 especially apply and control the dissolution of such corporations in this State. That said Statutes constitute the only way in which a corporation such as defendant company or the old Waters Pierce Oil Company as aforesaid could be dissolved in that State so as to affect the rights of others, and said Waters Pierce Oil Company did not comply with said laws in undertaking to dissolve, nor did its stockholders or officers do so, nor was said corporation otherwise legally dissolved under the laws of said State.

(5) At the time of the alleged dissolution the stock of the Waters Pierce Oil Company was owned as follows:

By H. C. Pierce, 1250 shares;

By the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, 2750 shares;

39 One of the shares of H. C. Pierce was held in the name of Andrew M. Finlay in order that he might be eligible for membership on the board of directors in said Pierce's behalf, and C. M. Adams and J. P. Gruet held each a certificate of the stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for one share that they might be representatives of the Standard Oil Company's interest on the board of directors. Prior to the reputed reorganization the following persons, named by the Standard Oil Company and H. C. Pierce, were members of the board of directors; H. C. Pierce, J. P. Gruet, H. M. Tilford, A. M. Finlay and C. M. Adams.

In the charter issued May 29th, 1900, said Standard Oil Company and H. C. Pierce substituted the name of J. D. Johnson, Attorney for the defendant for that of H. M. Tilford, leaving the directors otherwise the same. That of the new stock, as of the old, H. C. Pierce was to own 1250 shares and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was to own 2750 shares, all of which was effected.

That the actions taken by the Standard Oil Company and H. C. Pierce were subsequently, at their direction, confirmed by themselves and their employees and agents constituting the board of directors of the Waters Pierce Oil Company and by defendant herein. That the difference between the assets and liabilities of the Waters Pierce Oil Company was determined and a nominal liquidation was accomplished by giving to the stockholders (the said Pierce and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey) notes for the amounts thus determined in proportion to interests in the stock. That until said notes were discharged the profits were not paid in the form of dividends but were used to discharge the obligations nominally due the stockholders.

(8) That for the nominal capital stock of the Waters
40 Pierce Oil Company under the new charter the check of H. C. Pierce was given for $400,000; that at the time of the alleged dissolution the company had in cash more than $400,000 which sum was nominally paid to the stockholders as a dividend of the old company and afterwards returned to the new company for the discharge of said $400,000 capital stock of the new company; that said H. C. Pierce was reimbursed by the Standard Oil Company for the entire amount of money advanced by H. C. Pierce in his check of $400,000; that said check was given by H. C. Pierce in order to deceive the public and cover up the real transaction and fraud perpetrated upon the State of Texas as hereinbefore alleged.

That the said H. C. Pierce understood at the time of said reorganization, and acted upon the understanding with the Standard Oil Company that the 2750 shares theretofore owned by the Standard Oil Company should be by him transferred to said Standard Oil Company immediately after said fraudulent reorganization, and in pursuance of said agreement and understanding, the 2750 shares aforesaid, of the alleged new incorporation, were endorsed in blank by said H. C. Pierce and placed under the control of the Standard Oil Company; that said 2750 shares remained upon the Stock Books of said corporation in the name of H. C. Pierce until June 1904, with the exception of two shares which were held by C. M. Adams and J. P. Gruet as the representatives of the Standard Oil Company's interest in the directorate of the defendant company.

(9) That during the period of time between May 29th, 1900, and June 1904, the period in which the stock belonging to the Standard Oil Company stood in the name of H. C. Pierce, said H. C. Pierce in order to deceive the public and cover up the fraudulent character of said transactions, and in order to secrete the true ownership of said 2750 shares, collected from defendant corpo-
41 ration all dividends paid by said defendant corporation both on the 1250 shares owned by himself and 2748 shares owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey standing in the name of H. C. Pierce.

That upon receipt of dividend checks as aforesaid, the said H. C. Pierce with the knowledge and sanction of defendant corporation and its officers and all its stockholders, transmitted to the Standard Oil Company, through its proper representative, the dividends collected by H. C. Pierce, and owned by said Standard Oil Company (of New Jersey);

(10) That in June, 1904, the said 2748 shares of stock was transferred on the books of defendant from H. C. Pierce to M. M. Van Buren, a son-in-law of John D. Archbold, said Archbold being an officer of the Standard Oil Company; said Van Buren has since 1904 held said stock in his name without consideration for the benefit of the Standard Oil Company.

That all of the aforesaid acts and conspiracies and fraudulent transactions were effected and enforced with the full knowledge and sanction of the defendant corporation and all its stockholders and by said stockholders and for the purposes aforesaid.

(11) That the conduct of the business of defendant Waters Pierce Oil Company was in no sense changed by or after the nominal reorganization; that the same office, books and equipment were kept as they had been before kept and by the same persons; that the employees were the same; that no difference or changes were made in the employees or representatives; that the same property, appliances and methods were used as before; that the same accounts were kept with the same persons; that the same reports were made to the Standard Oil Company, and the same instructions were received from it, and the same control exercised by it as before the alleged reorganization; that the old contract and understanding and agreement about the division of territory was maintained and respected and enforced; the same salaries were paid to the same persons, and in no respect, in name or otherwise, was the Waters-Pierce Oil Company or its business different or changed after May 29th, 1900, from what it had been before that date, except as here now indicated:

(12) That the sole purpose of the reputed and nominal reorganization was to perpetrate a fraud upon the State of Texas and to enable the company to maintain its business and get the benefit of and maintain its monopoly in the State of Texas; that said purposes have been and are being accomplished.

(13) That after the judgment in the case aforesaid of State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Company and prior to the reorganization aforesaid, it was agreed and understood by and between the Standard Oil Co. and its officers and managers and H. C. Pierce that in pursuance of the conspiracies and the purpose herein stated the latter, who had theretofore been removed from the Presidency of the Waters Pierce Oil Co. by the said other parties, should be restored thereto, and it was agreed and understood that he would proceed to the State of Texas, and take such steps as might be necessary to obviate and defeat the effect of the judgment aforesaid and to dispose of a case then pending in the District Court of McLennan Co. wherein the State of Texas was Plaintiff and the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. was defendant, wherein the State was suing for penalties for a violation of the laws of Texas; that in pursuance of this agreement and understanding, H. C. Pierce, acting for said Waters Pierce Oil

Co. and all the stockholders, directors, and officers of the Waters Pierce Oil Co. arranged with and employed attorneys, and with them went into the State of Texas, made an effort to dispose of the case pending at Waco and expended money therein and consulted with officers of the State with reference to the readmission of the 43 Waters Pierce Oil Co. into the State; that a course of procedure was determined upon, which was carried out as hereinbefore stated; that all sums of money paid and contracted to be paid by said Pierce were paid by the Waters Pierce Oil Co. after the reputed reorganization and all the expenses incident to the said operations of Pierce and the attorneys aforesaid in Texas were so paid, and all of said expenses were thereafter audited and allowed by the Standard Oil Co.

(14) That all the expenses incurred in the case aforesaid, pending in the District Court of McLennan County until its final disposition were discharged by defendant.

VI.

That contemporaneously with the reputed reorganization aforesaid and as a part of the general plan and scheme determined upon to monopolize the oil business in the State of Texas, H. C. Pierce, as President of Waters-Pierce Oil Company filed an affidavit with the Secretary of State of Texas, as hereinafter set out; the affidavit aforesaid made by said H. C. Pierce, as aforesaid, is as follows:

Affidavit.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, County of Travis:

I, Henry Clay Pierce, do solemnly swear that I am the President (President, Secretary, Treasurer, or Director) of the corporation known and styled Waters-Pierce Oil Company, duly incorporated under the laws of Missouri on the 29th day of May, 1900, and now transacting or conducting business in the State of Texas, and that I am duly authorized to represent said corporation in making 44 this affidavit, and I do further solemnly swear that the said Waters-Pierce Oil Company, known and styled as aforesaid, has not since the 31st day of January, 1900, created, entered into or become a member of or a party to, and was not, on the 31st day of January, 1900, nor at any day since that date, and is not now a member of or any party to any pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation or understanding, with any other corporation, partnership, individual, or any other person, or association of persons, to regulate or fix the price of any article of manufacture, mechanism, merchandise, commodity, convenience, repair, any product of mining, or any article or thing whatsoever, or the price or premium to be paid for insuring property against loss or damage by fire, lightning, storm, cyclone, tornado, or any other kind of policy issued by the parties aforesaid; and that it has not entered into or become a member of, or a party to, any pool, trust, agreement, contract, combination or confederation, to fix or limit the amount of supply or quantity of any article of manufacture, mechanism, merchandise, commodity, convenience, repair, or any product of mining, or any article or thing whatsoever, or the price or premium to be paid for insuring property against loss or damage by fire, lightning storm, cyclone, tornado, or any other kind of policy issued by the parties aforesaid, and that it has not issued, and does not own any trust certificates for any corporation, agent, officer, or employee, or for the directors or stockholders or any corporation, has not entered into and is not now in any combination, contract, or agreement with any person or persons, corporation or corporations, or with any stockholders or directors thereof, the purpose and effect of which said combination, contract or agreement would be to place the management or control of such combination or combinations, or the manufactured 45 product thereof, in the hands of any trustee or trustees, with the intent to limit or fix the price, or lessen the production and sale of any article of commerce, use or consumption, or to prevent, restrict, or diminish the manufacture or output of any such article; that it has not entered into any conspiracy, defined in the preceding sections of this act, to form or secure a trust or monopoly in restraint of trade; that it has not been since January 31st, A. D. 1900, and is not now a monopoly by reason of any conduct on its part which would constitute it a monopoly under the provisions of sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, and 11 of this Act, and is not the owner or lessee of a patent to any machinery intended, used or designed for manufacturing any raw material or preparing the same for market by any wrapping, baling or other process, and while leasing, renting or operating the same refuses or fails to put the same on the market for sale; that it has not issued and does not own any trust certificates and has not, for any corporation or any agent, officer or employé thereof, or for the directors or stockholders thereof, entered into, and is not now in any combination, contract or agreement with any person or persons, corporation or corporations, or with the stockholders, directors or officers, agent or employee of any corporation, or corporations, the purpose and effect of which combination, contract or agreement, would be a conspiracy to defraud, as defined in Section 1 of this Act, or to create a monopoly, as defined in sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, and 11 of this Act.

HENRY CLAY PIERCE,
President, Secretary, Treasurer or Director.

(2) That the Secretary of State of the State of Texas granted the permit dated May 31st, 1900; that all of said representations made by said H. C. Pierce in said affidavit, were false and fradulent and known by him to be false and fraudulent at the time they 46 were made, and were made by him for the purpose of deceiving the officers of the State of avoiding the judgment aforesaid, and in pursuance and furtherance of the conspiracies hereinbefore alleged.

(3) That at the time of the making of the affidavit and the issuance of the permit above set forth 2750 of the 4,000 shares of the said defendant company were owned, held and controlled by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, a corporation doing the same character of business as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. The management and control of the defendant company was directed and has continued to be directed up to this time by persons and corporations controlling and directing the Standard Oil Company, and a large number of other corporations who, in violation of law, were controlling and monopolizing the oil business of the United States, including the State of Texas, and fixing and controlling the price of oil and the products of petroleum.

(4) That the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and said Standard Oil Company were maintaining a monopoly of the oil business in the State of Texas and maintaining and fixing and controlling the price of oil and products of petroleum in said State, and preventing competition therein; that all parts of said affidavit were false and untrue, and were made for the purpose of evading the laws of Texas and of committing a fraud upon said State and maintaining the monopoly herein alleged and the carrying out of the conspiracies entered into between defendant and the Standard Oil Company, and the other conspiracies herein named.

VII.

That by and through the machinery hereinbefore described and in pursuance of the conspiracy to monopolize the entire oil business the conspirators herein named have in addition to the cor-
47 porations, concerns and businesses herein specifically named and a large number of others the names of which cannot be ascertained, taken over and acquired the following companies and businesses:

The Consolidated Tank Line Company.
The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Tank Line.
The Chess-Carley Company.
Shurmer, Teagle & Co.
The Cleveland Refining Co.
The Scio Refining Co.
Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle.
The Republic Oil Company.
The Vacuum Oil Company.

That said businesses and companies were acquired for the purpose of destroying competition, and were especially acquired to prevent competition with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and has had that effect; and said companies have either been put entirely out of business, or are being so controlled as to aid in the scheme of monopoly; and the defendant was a party to said acquisition for said purpose, and now participates in and is a party to the arrangement, which prevents competition from said companies, and has been ever since its incorporation.

VIII.

That there is maintained at 26 Broadway, New York, an organization of which W. H. Tilford, L. D. Clarke, Silas G. Payne, John D. Rockefeller, C. M. Pratt, F. G. Barstow, Wade Hampton, R. H. McNall, H. M. Tilford, W. E. Bemis, S. C. T. Todd, H. C. Arnold, R. P. Tinsley, E. T. Bedford, M. F. Elliott, Henry M. Flagler, John D. Archbold, H. H. Rogers, Ealter C. Teagle, James A. Moffatt, W. P. Cowan, Geo. B. Wilson, Jas. R. Taylor, Charles L. Nichols, Walter Jennings, Howard Page, E. T. Wilson, L. J.

48 Drake, one O'Connor, and other persons whose names cannot be ascertained by plaintiff (all of said persons being parties to the conspiracies herein set out), who have succeeded in bringing under their direction and control, and are now controlling a large number of corporations engaged in the business of buying and selling oil and other products of petroleum, who but for this control would be competing companies for such business, and who could and would be competing companies for that business in the State of Texas. That some of the companies controlled by said organization and said persons are the following:

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana.
The Standard Oil Company of Ohio.
The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.
The Republic Oil Company.
The Continental Oil Company.
The Waters Pierce Oil Company.
The Standard Oil Company of Iowa.

And said organization has secured control of a large number of other oil buying and selling companies, the names of which plaintiff has been unable to ascertain. That said organization and said persons also control a number of oil refineries, among which are the refineries at Whiting, Indiana, Neodesha, Kansas, Corsicana, Texas, and Beaumont, Texas, and Franklin, Pa. They are also in control of the Union Tank Line Company. That all of said companies, including the defendant, are controlled by said organization, and persons with the acquiescence and consent of said companies, and with the consent of defendant company and all of its officer- and stockholders. That by this control all competition between said companies, is destroyed, and especially all competition between said companies in the State of Texas is destroyed; that certain sections and parts of the United States are assigned to said companies 49 for business; that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is permitted to do business in Texas, and with its knowledge and consent and upon its insistence and demand all other companies under said control are excluded from Texas. That by reason of said control said companies, including defendant, are required (and defendant acquiesces in and agrees to the arrangement) to secure all the oil used and sold by them from such refineries, and at such prices as are determined by that organization and said persons, whereby a monopoly in the selling of oil is accomplished, and defendant is excluded (with its consent) from buying oil from refineries not controlled by said organization, and thereby the price is is affected and increased; that by said control a number of corporations are brought under one management and said consolidation and affiliation is made for the purpose of and has the effect of monopolization, controlling and effecting the business in oil and the products of petroleum in Texas, and effecting the prices in said State of said products.

That since the reputed reorganization of the Waters Pierce Oil Company under the charter dated May 29th, 1900, said Company operating under said charter, has repeatedly and continuously violated the laws of the State of Texas in the following particulars and respects:

(2) That the organization primarily incorporated as the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, and which subsequently became merged in the Standard Oil Trust aforesaid, and the Standard Oil Company, another member of said trust, together with the corporations control-ed by it, is domiciled at 26 Broadway, in the City of New York; Through the several corporations is has acquired it controls substantially all the oil business of the United States, including the State of Texas. The United States is parceled out at its pleas-
50 ure to the several corporations under its control for the sale of refined oil, all competition between them being destroyed, and the other branches of the oil business, such as producing and refining oils are handled by the Standard Oil Company directly or through other corporations;

(3) That the connection between the Standard Oil Companies and the Waters Pierce Oil Company has been hereinbefore detailed; that the Standard Oil Company secured control of the company upon its organization, and has exercised control at all times, except when prudential or political reasons rendered it advisable for H. C. Pierce, the other stockholder, to actually or nominally control, and that all this was done with the sanction and acquiescence of defendant and all of its stockholders.

(4) That in carrying out the unlawful agreements hereinbefore detailed, H. C. Pierce, and the managers of the Standard Oil Company have frequently come in conflict; but in all things looking to the complete monopolization of the oil business and the fixing and maintaining prices destroying competition, all of said stockholders and each of said companies have acted in absolute harmony, and said Pierce has never taken any step to protect the company from the unlawful control of the other company, but the acquisition of that control was with the concurrence of said Pierce.

(5) That the division of territory previously agreed upon whereby the business operations of the Waters Pierce Oil Company should be confined to the territory hereinbefore named and whereby neither the Standard Oil Company nor any of the companies under its control (other than the Waters Pierce Oil Company) should sell refined oil and the products of petroleum therein has been insisted upon by the Waters Pierce Oil Company since May 31st, 1900, as before, and has been acquiesced in by said Standard Oil Company and its allied interests and subsidiary corporations 51 under its control and all the oil companies and concerns named in the trust agreement hereinbefore set out all of whom are engaged in the same business as defendant, and has been observed by said Standard Oil Company (except in so far as it may have secretly and surreptitiously operated in said territory); that during that period said Waters Pierce Oil Company has by and in the State of Texas, through its officers, agents and employees, and through all of its stockholders of said defendant company maintained and undertaken to enforce and has enforced an agreement, understanding and conspiracy which has precluded and prevented other corporations engaged in the sale of oil and its products, from selling oil in said territory, and has thereby maintained and controlled the price of oil and its products and established and maintained a monopoly, and said agreement and said monopoly so established from the time of the organization of the Waters Pierce Oil Company has been maintained by defendant from May 29, 1900.

(6) That the organization of the business at 26 Broadway, New York, of the Standard Oil Company, and its subsidiary companies, consists of a number of persons (all engaged in the conspiracy herein set up) constituting a committee of which one H. M. Tilford was a member; that each of said persons constituting such committee has imposed upon him the particular duty of looking after some one or more of the divisions of the territory of the United States, including the State of Texas, and of the corporations assigned or permitted to do business in that territory; that the general policy of the concern is determined by the members of this committee in conference; that the individual to whom the reports of the operations of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, were made prior to the putative reorganization was H. M. Tilford, and that instructions as to prices, expenses and the conduct of the business were signed by him or under his direction.

52 That after May 31st, 1900, the Standard Oil Company placed upon the pay roll of Waters Pierce Oil Company one R. H. McNall under the designation of "Commercial Agent," and named his place of business as 75 New Street (which is the back door of the building known as 26 Broadway); that said McNall had been and thereafter continued to be a clerk in the office and under the control of H. M. Tilford. The duty performed by him with reference to the business of defendant was to permit the reports required by the Standard Oil Company of defendant to be addressed to him and to sign the letters of instructions as prepared by the officers of the Standard Oil Company and forward them to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and the nominal change thus made in the business of the corporation was made for the purpose of rendering more difficult a discovery of the falsity of the affidavit of said H. C. Pierce, and of more efficiently hiding the unlawful character of the business carried on by the defendant and the Standard Oil Company and its allied interests, and carrying out the objects of the conspiracy herein set out.

(7) That in addition to other methods of control and supervision, as herein detailed, the Standard Oil Company has continuously since May 31st, 1900, sent auditors in its own employ to the general officers of the defendant Waters Pierce Oil Company and checked up the books and accounts of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and made reports thereof to the Standard Oil Company showing every detail of the business of the defendant company; that all of this was done with the knowledge, sanction and acquiescence of the defendant corporation, and that in order and for the purpose of rendering more difficult the discovery of the falsity of said affidavit of said H. C. Pierce and of concealing the unlawful combination and conspiracy between the defendant and other parties, the auditors sent to 53 St. Louis by the Standard Oil Company were upon its order placed upon the pay roll of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as employees of the defendant Waters Pierce Oil Company; that these auditors were sent to St. Louis at the will and pleasure of the Standard Oil Company in which said action the defendant Waters Pierce Oil Company and all its stockholders had at all times acquiesced.

(8) That since May 29th, 1900, by reason of the ownership and control of 2750 shares of the capital stock of the Waters Pierce Oil Company by the Standard Oil Company, fraudulently and ficticiously held in the name of H. C. Pierce and M. M. Van Beuren, as hereinbefore alleged, the said Standard Oil Company has at all times since that date controlled the said defendant with its sanction and acquiescence and the consent of all its stockholders, as it did prior to that time.

(9) That since May 28th, 1900, as before, the agreement which had theretofore been entered into by and between the Standard Oil Company and H. C. Pierce and the Waters Pierce Oil Company, that the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, should not buy refined oil or other products of petroleum except from the Standard Oil Company, or corporations designated by said company, has been carried out and acted upon by said companies in the State of Texas, and said Waters Pierce Oil Company has thereby been prevented from buying oil and the products of petroleum from refineries in Texas other than those owned and controlled by the Standard Oil Company; that the agreements and conspiracies herein alleged have been enforced and observed by the defendant company and the Standard Oil Company and all the corporations engaged in producing and refining petroleum in the State of Texas controlled by said Standard Oil Company.

That the Standard Oil Company owns and controls the Corsicana Refinery located at Corsicana, Texas, and the Security 54 Oil Company located at Beaumont, Texas, and other refineries in Texas, the names of which are unknown to plaintiff. That said Corsicana Refinery and Security Oil Company are refiners in this State of crude petroleum. That under the terms of the agreement and understanding hereinbefore referred to and is being acted upon and carried out by defendant the Standard Oil Company and its allied and subsidiary corporations said refineries have not been permitted and have not sold their products in the State of Texas to any company operating in said State and engaged in the sale of oil and the products of petroleum other than the defendant company and the agreement and understanding aforesaid has in this respect been acted upon and carried out since the establishment of said refineries and up to the present time.

That under the terms of said agreement and understanding acted upon by said defendant and the Standard Oil Company and its allied and subsidiary corporations the price at which said defendant buys oil and the products of petroleum is fixed and controlled by the Standard Oil Company, and has been so fixed and controlled at all times since the making of said agreement, and thereby defendant is prevented from buying at a lower or different price than that fixed by the Standard Oil Company and the price of petroleum is thereby effected and controlled.

That since May 31st, 1900, as before, the Waters Pierce Oil Company has observed and operated under an agreement or understanding with the Standard Oil Company and the corporations controlled by it that it would not sell any oil to ships at any port of Texas upon its own account.

That since May 31st, 1900, as before, and continuously and each day since the Waters Pierce Oil Company, for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the conspiracies aforesaid and of securing a monopoly of the oil business in Texas and of destroying 55 all competition therein and of exacting from the people of Texas unreasonable and unconscionable prices for oil and the products of petroleum, has, as set forth in the succeeding paragraphs, bought out competing businesses, has maintained at a number of points oil selling concerns apparently in opposition to it, has made exclusive contracts with merchants by which they were prevented from handling the products of other companies, have cut prices below the costs of oil until competition was destroyed and then recouped by extraordinary increase of prices, has given rebates, gratuities and bribes, has, in connection with the Standard Oil Company, maintained a system of spies, has corrupted the employees of railroads and other concerns; that the methods here i-dicated have and do constitute the course of business of defendant.

That in pursuance and furtherance of the conspiracies hereinbefore alleged, and for the purpose of creating and maintaining a monopoly in the business of refining and selling of refined oils and all the products of petroleum, and for the purpose of destroying all competition between the Waters Pierce Oil Company and all other persons, firms and corporations doing business in the State of Texas in competition with said Waters Pierce Oil Company, plaintiff says that the Waters Pierce Oil Company hereinbefore referred to, bought out competing businesses, doing business in the State of Texas in competition with said Waters Pierce Oil Company, and did maintain at a number of points oil selling concerns apparently in opposition to it, in this, to-wit:

That it entered into the contracts and agreements attached hereto and marked Exhibit "C" for identification, and made a part of this petition, with the persons and corporations named in said contracts and agreements, and for the accomplishment of the purposes
56 therein set forth; and all of said contracts and agreements were enforced and carried out by said Waters Pierce Oil Company and the other persons, firms and corporations parties thereto; that it entered into exclusive contracts with the Eagle Refining Company, W. M. K. Rose, W. A. Smith, C. A. Carpenter, and A. W. Clem, binding the company and each of said individuals not to engage in business in Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana west of the Mississippi, Oklahoma and Indian Territory, or Mexico, for a period of fifteen years; that upon the reputed reorganization of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, on May 29, 1900, it assumed, ratified and carried out, and in all things enforced said contracts and agreements up to the present time.

That the Waters Pierce Oil Company for the purposes aforesaid, in the year 1896 bought out the business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and of one Roy Campbell, doing business in the City of San Antonio and elsewhere in the State of Texas, and entered into contracts and agreements with the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and said Roy Campbell whereby said Texas Oil and Gasoline Company was thereafter operated under said name as a competing concern of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, by the Waters Pierce Oil Company, aforesaid; that it was so operated by said Waters Pierce Oil Company until May 29th, 1900; that upon the reorganization and incorporation of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, on May 29th, 1900, it acquired the said business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and continued to operate it under that name, and for the purposes aforesaid, from that time down until the present time, and in all things ratified and enforced said contracts and agreements and maintained them in full force and effect as aforesaid.

That the Waters Pierce Oil Company entered into many other contracts of this character (the making of such contracts constituting its manner and course of business), all of which contracts 57 have been by defendant, ratified, confirmed and in all things carried out.

That among the other purposes for which the Eagle Refining Company and the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company have been used and utilized by the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, has been to cause said companies to solicit and secure the business of merchants and dealers in oil in the State of Texas who would not patronize the defendant Waters Pierce Oil Company and who were buying oil and petroleum supplies from independent concerns, that is, concerns not dominated and controlled by the Standard Oil Company.

Plaintiff further says that the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, upon its reputed reorganization, entered into and maintained exclusive contracts and agreements with the Eagle Refining Company and the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company, aforesaid, whereby it was agreed that the said Eagle Refining Company and the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company would not for a period of 15 years enter into the business of refining and selling refined oil and gasoline and other products of petroleum in competition with said Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant, and that said contracts and agreements were in all things carried out and enforced.

That in further pursuance of the unlawful purposes hereinbefore set forth, said Waters Pierce Oil Company, has made exclusive contracts by which it has prevented the handling of the products of other companies, has given rebates secretly, and has unfairly and secretly reduced prices at certain points when competition appeared at such points, these acts constituting the ordinary course of business of defendant. That course of business is indicated by the following specific instances in the State of Texas: On Jan. 13, 1904, reduced the price of brilliant oil at Rusk, Texas, and at 58 Overton, Texas; Jan. 14, 1904, reduced the price of brilliant oil to less than schedule price at Henderson, Texas; On January 26th, 1904, on account of Gulf Refining Co. competition reduced the price to less than the schedule price at Carthage, Crockett, Gilmer, Nacogdoches, and Winnsboro, Texas, and on account of competition by Richardson-Gay Oil Co., at Mt. Pleasant, Texas; on Jan. 27th, 1904, reduced the price of oil at less than schedule price at Garrison, Texas, on account of Lone Star Oil Co. competition and at Marshall, Texas, on account of Richardson-Gay Oil Co. competition; on Feb'y 1, 1904, reduced the price of refined oil at less than schedule price on account of Richardson-Gay Oil Co. competition; on Feb'y 1, 1904, allowed a secret rebate tc W. E. Crosby on account of Richardson-Gay Oil Co. competition; on Feb'y 9, 1904, allowed a secret rebate to the Nacogdoches Grocery Co.; that on Jan. 14, 1904, said company authorized sales below the schedule price to the larger merchants of Weatherford, Texas, to prevent Richardson-Gay Oil Company from making up a car load; on Jan. 14, 1904, J. M. Radford Grocery Co., at Cisco and other points was allowed by defendant a discount of 12½% on their purchases of refined oil on account of competition; that on Jan. 20, 1904, the Roby Mercantile Grocery Co., of Roby, Texas, was allowed a discount on account of competition of the Lone Star Oil Company; that on Jan. 21, 1904, J. P. Darby of Lampasas, Texas, was allowed a rebate on account of Richardson-Gay Oil Company competition; on Feb'y 21, 1904, Beaumont white-water an inferior oil was put in and sold at Stamford, Texas, under the Eupion Brand on account of Lone Star Oil Company competition; on Feb'y 5, 1904, the schedule prices at Dallas, Texas, were reduced on account of use of inferior oil and on account of the competition of Richardson-Gay Oil Company. That all of the rebates and discounts above set forth were secretly made and in the conduct of unfair competition for 59 the purpose of making more complete the monopoly accomplished and otherwise herein set forth, and for the purpose and destroying unfairly the business of the competing concerns here set forth. That in many hundred cases defendant has pursued a like course, this constituting the ordinary method for the conduct of its business; among the person- to whom rebates were given for the purposes named being W. E. Crosby, J. P. Darby, D. J. Brown and J. F. Younger. That in further pursuance of the unlawful purposes hereinbefore set forth and as a part of its general course and scheme of business and in the further monopolizing of the business in petroleum as a product and in the further unfair destruction of competition, secret and questionable means were used in obtaining information concerning the business of competitors; that one, E. M. Talliafero, of Houston, Texas, was employed by the said Waters Pierce Oil Co. to ascertain from the employees of the railroads of Texas information concerning all shipments of oil by competing concerns including amount of such shipment, the car number and initial, and was also employed to ascertain from the Clerks in the employe of the United States Custom Service at Sabine Pass and Port Arthur, Texas, the amount of all shipments of oil and the consignors and consignees thereof destined for Standard Oil territory; that the information thus obtained was furnished by the Waters Pierce Oil Co. to the Standard Oil Co. in exchange for like information secured by the Standard Oil Co. with reference to shipments in to the Waters Pierce Oil Co. territory.

Plaintiff says that on February 2, 1904, defendant entered into a contract with Paul W. Joplin, whereby the said Joplin bound and obligated himself to make no purchases of oil from anyone except defendant; that on January 25, 1905, said company entered into a contract with the Austin Electric Street Railway Company, whereby said Company agreed to make no purchases of oil 60 except from defendant; that the making of such contracts constitutes the ordinary course of business of defendant, and a large number of such contracts have been made by defendant; said contracts are made for the purpose of monopolizing the oil business and are calculated to effect that end.

That by virtue of the facts hereinbefore set out the following, among other unlawful results, have been accomplished:

(1) The Waters Pierce Oil Company, which alone has been granted a permit to do business, is dominated and controlled and its business dictated by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which has not been granted a permit to do business in Texas.

(2) A large number of individuals and corporations doing business in the sale of oil and petroleum products are excluded from doing business in the State and competition is lessened.

(3) The price of oil has been maintained at an exorbitant figure, being from ten to twenty-five per cent. higher than that of oil sold in the territory not claimed by defendant.

(4) Competition has been suppressed and business destroyed in the State by unconscionable and unfair means.

(5) A substantially complete monopoly in petroleum products has been established, the defendant having sold during the period of ten years past at least ninety five per cent. of all petroleum products sold.

Plaintiff says that refined oil and the other products of petroleum are articles of prime necessity to all the people of Texas.

Plaintiff further avers:

That as hereinbefore alleged the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a corporation created under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, and was, as hereinbefore alleged, granted a per-61 mit to transact business in the State of Texas.

That in granting said permit the State of Texas conferred upon said corporation the right to exercise in Texas only such powers as are granted by law to such corporations created for the purposes set forth in its said permit.

That said corporation in pursuance of its business immediately established stations and officers in the counties, cities, towns and villages of Texas for the transaction of its business and supplying to the people of Texas oils and the products of petroleum; that in abuse of its corporate rights, franchise and powers, it forthwith began and has since maintained a war of extermination of all competitors within this State as hereinbefore set forth; that if formed alliances and conspiracies with divers other corporations within and without this State as hereinbefore set forth whereby it was enabled to establish and has established, a monopoly of said oil business in this State; that it has by a system of unfair competition and by various devices hereinbefore set forth, destroyed the business of its competitors; that at points where no competition existed said Waters Pierce Oil Company arbitrarily and for the purpose of recouping its losses at competitive points sold oils and the products at extraordinary and exorbitant prices far above the true market value thereof, and by reason of its monopoly of said business wrought great oppression upon the people of this State; that by reason of all the acts and conspiracies herein alleged it has succeeded in establishing a monopoly of the business of dealing in and selling oil within this State in violation of the Constitution of this State and the common law in force in this State.

That all the unlawful acts, combinations, agreements, conspiracies and monopolies hereinbefore recited are acts committed in 62 abuse and violation of the corporate rights and powers granted to said defendant by the State of Texas and is at the common law in force in this state such an abuse of its power, rights and franchises as a corporation, and the rights of the people of the State under its constitution and laws as to amount to a misuser of its corporate rights and powers and by reason thereof it has forfeited its rights to do any further business in this State.

Plaintiff says that by the acts, doings and undertakings hereinbefore set out the Waters Pierce Oil Company has violated the Constitution, the Statutes and the common law of the State of Texas, and has become liable to the penalties provided by law and to a cancellation of its permit to do business in this State.

Plaintiff says that defendant has especially violated the provisions of the law approved May 28, 1899, Chapter 146 of the Acts of 1899, and plaintiff says that defendant, a corporation transacting and conducting a business in this State, created, entered into and became a member of and party to a pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation, and understanding with another and other corporations and with individuals and persons to regulate and fix the price of an article of manufacture, merchandise, and commodity, and said defendant entered into and became a member of and a party to a pool, trust, agreement combination, confederation and understanding with the Standard Oil Company and its officers and agents and many other corporations, the names of which plaintiff is unable to state, to regulate and fix the price of refined oil and the products of petroleum; and plaintiff says that defendant became and was continuously from the 31st day of May, 1900, a monopoly and was a party to a union, combination and consolidation and affiliation of capital, credit, property, assets, skill and acts by and 63 between persons and corporations, to-wit: the Standard Oil Company and its agents and employees and other corporations, as aforesaid, and the defendant and its agents and officers, to regulate and fix the price of an article of manufacture, merchandise, commodity and product of mining, to-wit: the price of oil and the products of petroleum and to fix and limit the amount and quantity of such article, and to prevent competition in the sale and mining of said article, and said corporation affiliated, amalgamated and consolidated for the accomplishment of said illegal purpose and for said purposes the said Standard Oil Company acquired and after the 31st day of May, 1900, retained with the consent of defendant company and its stockholders the stock of said defendant; and said defendant was thereby guilty of a conspiracy to defraud and of a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monopoly in restraint of trade; and said defendant being engaged in the buying and selling of the products of petroleum entered into a pool, and trust, agreement and combination, confederation, association and understanding by and with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the corporation controlled by it to control and limit the trade in the products of petroleum and to limit competition in such trade; and said unlawful acts were done and performed by defendant upon each and every day from the 31st day of May, 1900, to the 31st day of March, 1903, and thereby said defendant became liable to pay the State of Texas Five Thousand Dollars ($5000) per day for each of such days, and became liable to have its permit to do business in this State cancelled.

That by said acts, hereinbefore set out, continued and carried out continuously since the 31st day of March, 1903, up to this time the said defendant has especially violated the act of March 31st, 1903, and became liable to the penalties thereof; that defendant has thereby became a party to a trust and to a combination of 64 capital, skill and acts by and between itself and the Standard Oil Company and the corporations controlled by it to create and which tends to create and carry out restrictions in trade and commerce, to-wit: the trade and commerce in petroleum and its products, and in the preparation of said products for market, and which created and tended to create and carry out restrictions in the free pursuit of a business authorized and permitted by the laws of this State, to-wit: the business of buying and selling the products of petroleum and to fix, maintain, increase and reduce the price of merchandise, produce and commodities, and to prevent and lessen competition in the manufacture, sale and purchase of mrechandise and commodities and to lessen competition, and to fix and maintain a standard and figure by which the price of an article is affected and controlled, and to make, enter into, execute and carry out or maintain a contract and agreement by which the parties bound themselves not to sell a certain article, to-wit: the products of petroleum, and by which they affect and maintain the price of such articles and preclude free and unrestricted competition among themselves and others in this State in the sale of said products and pooled, combined and united their interests in connection with the sale and purchase of such commodities, and by which some of said parties agreed to abstain from continuing in business and from the sale or purchase of certain commodities in the State of Texas, and said defendant and said Standard Oil Company and the companies controlled by it entered into a combination and consolidation by which the directors of the affairs of two and more corporations were brought under the same management and control for the purpose of producing a trust, and said Standard Oil Company acquired a controlling interest in the stock of defendant corporation for the purpose and with the effect of preventing competition, and said defendant and said 65 Standard Oil Company entered into a conspiracy in restraint of trade. That all of said illegal acts were committed and performed by defendant upon each of the days from the 31st day of March, 1903, to this time, whereby it has become liable to pay the State of Texas penalties to the amount of $50.00 per day for each of said days, and has become liable to have its permit to do business in this State cancelled.

Plaintiff prays that it have judgment cancelling the permit issued to defendant on the 31st day of May, 1900, and for an injunction restraining it from doing any business other than an interstate business within this State, and that it have judgment for the sum of $5,239,000.00, penalties, and it prays for costs and for general relief.

72 (Endorsed:) No. 24,551. The State of Texas vs. Waters Pierce Oil Co. Plaintiff's Second Amended Original Petition. Filed April 29, 1907. D. J. Pickle, Clerk.

Defendant's Third Amended Original Answer.

Filed May 8, 1907.

In the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District.

No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

In the above entitled and numbered cause, now comes the Waters Pierce Oil Company, which was granted a charter and became duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri on the 29th day of May, 1900, and which was, in due form of law, granted a permit to do business in the State of Texas on the 31st day of May, A. D. 1900, and whose local agent, W. T. Quillan, was served with the writ of citation in this suit, and, leave of the court having been first obtained, files this, its Third Amended Original Answer herein, in lieu of its Second Amended Original Answer filed herein on the 28th day of November, A. D. 1906, and for answer herein says:

I.

By way of pleas in abatement of this action on account of matters appearing upon the face of plaintiff's petition this defendant says:

1. This defendant excepts to plaintiff's petition, and says that there is a misjoinder of causes of action therein, in that 73 the State attempts to set up certain alleged frauds growing out of the dissolution of another corporation of the same name as this defendant, and certain other alleged frauds charged to have been committed in connection with the procurement by this defendant of the permit to do business in Texas issued to this defendant by the Secretary of State of the State of Texas on May 31st, 1900, all of which allegations appear to be pleaded in the form of an equitable action to set aside and rescind defendant's said permit to do business in Texas, and in the same partition, and in one continuous or common count, the State sets up certain alleged acts and offenses alleged to have been committed by this defendant in alleged violation of the anti-trust act of 1899, and certain other alleged acts and offenses alleged to have been committed by this defendant in alleged violation of the anti-trust act of 1903, and upon which the State seeks to recover penatlies and to cancel defendant's permit to do business in Texas, and in the same common or continuous count the State alleges certain acts of defendant alleged by it to constitute a misuser of its said corporate franchise and permit to do business in this State, such as, it is claimed by the plaintiff, entitled plaintiff to cancel its said permit to do business in this State independently of the penal statutes of this State under which such penalties and cancellation of permit are sought, as above set forth, thus presenting several and wholly distinct causes of action, not depending upon the same state of facts, and which, if tried together will produce a great confusion of issues to the prejudice of this defendant, and this defendant says that the State should be put to an election as to which of said several causes of action it will prosecute in this suit, and that it be required to replead and omit from the petition all matters not pertinent to the particular cause of action upon which it shall rely, and defendant prays that this be done.

2. This defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition,
74 and says that the same is duplicitous and insufficient in law, in that it fails by any positive allegation to set out or show whether it sues this defendant as a corporation duly chartered, or whether it proposes to sue defendant as a partnership or association of persons and to attack its charter as issued by the State of Missouri as void, and thus seek to set aside its permit to do business in Texas on the ground that its said charter was illegally issued; and, therefore, there is a failure by the State to designate and identify the party or parties sued herein with sufficient certainty to enable this defendant to properly plead or answer herein, and of this exception defendant prays judgment and moves the Court to strike out the plaintiff's petition.

3. This defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that the same is duplicitous and contradictory in all allegations with reference to all acts and doings by or with respect to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and charged to have been committed prior to the 29th day of May, A. D. 1900, when, according to the petition, this defendant first became incorporated on that date, for the reason that in all such allegations the said acts and doings are alleged to have been performed by or with respect to this defendant notwithstanding this defendant was not in existence, and there is, therefore, such confusion and contradiction upon the face of plaintiff's petition as to require that it be stricken out, and defendant prays the court that this be done.

4. This defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition on account of the allegation contained in the third paragraph of subdivision five thereof, wherein it is charged "That in further pursuance of the conspiracy aforesaid, etc., the manager, officers and agents of the Standard Oil Company, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and its officers, and H. C. Pierce and the other con-
75 spirators hereinbefore mentioned determined to go through the form of dissolving the corporation known as the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and of creating a new corporation for the holding of property and the transaction of the business of the Waters Pierce Oil Company and carrying out the plans and conspiracies aforesaid," and on account of the allegations contained in the fourth and fifth paragraphs of said subdivision of the petition and says that the petition is insufficient and that this suit should be abated for the reason that none of the parties engaged in the said alleged conspiracy and in the organization of the defendant are made parties to this suit, and hence, this court has no jurisdiction to adjudicate with respect to their acts, doings or rights in the premises, and this defendant further says that if it did not become a corporation de jure by reason of the incorporation sought to be attacked by plaintiff in said portion of the petition, then the only persons who could be made responsible and liable for the said alleged frauds and conspiracies are not made parties to this action, and defendant further says that it appears from the petition that it could not have participated in a fraud precedent to its creation as a legal corporation, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

76 II.

And for further answer herein, if the Court shall refuse to strike out the plaintiff's petition and dismiss this suit, then defendant excepts to plaintiff's petition as a whole and says that the same is insufficient in law to require it to answer herein and shows no cause of action against defendant, and of this defendant prays judgment of the court.

And by way of special exception to plaintiff's petition this defendant says:

1. This defendant excepts to the plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to rescind defendant's permit to do business in this State on account of alleged fraud in the procurement of such permit, and says that the same shows no cause of action for such rescision, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

2. Defendant excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel defendant's permit to do business, in this State, independently of the provisions of the Acts of May 25th, 1899, and March 31st, 1903, on account of the alleged misuser of its corporate franchise, and says that the same shows no cause of action for such cancellation, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

3. Defendant especially excepts to all allegations in plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought to rescind this defendant's permit to transact business within this State on account of alleged illegality in the dissolution of the first Waters Pierce Oil Company and on account of the alleged illegality in the incorporation of this defendant on May 29th, 1900, and says that the same are insufficient to show any cause of action for such rescision for the reason that it

77 appears from plaintiff's petition that the dissolution of said old or first Waters Pierce Oil Company and the incorporation of this defendant, by the issuance of a proper certificate of incorporation by the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri were evidenced by properly certified copies under the hands and seal of the proper public officers of the State of Missouri, and under the great seal of said State, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Texas, and by him accepted as such, when said permit was issued, and defendant says that the same became, were, and are conclusive upon the State of Texas and all of its officers and courts, under the provisions of Section 1, Article IV of the Constitution of the United States, which declares that "full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other State," and this defendant further says that until its said articles of incorporation and the charter granted to it by the State of Missouri are set aside and cancelled in some proper proceedings in said State, its proper legal existence cannot be drawn in question as is here attempted, and it here invokes the above provision of the Constitution of the United States as a defense herein, and prays the Court to strike out all allegations in said petition with respect to the dissolution of said old or first Waters Pierce Oil Company, and as to the manner of organization and incorporation of the present or new Waters Pierce Oil Company, and particularly to strike from said petition all of subdivision five thereof, and, if the Court should refuse to strike out all of such allegations or refuse to strike out all of said subdivision five of plaintiff's petition, then to strike out all the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition, and all the allegations contained in said subdivision five of plaintiff's petition whereby plaintiff attempts to question or deny the validity of the dissolution of said old or first 78 Waters Pierce Oil Company or to question or deny the legality or validity of the organization and incorporation of this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

4. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition with reference to the affidavit of the President of this defendant alleged to have been made and filed with the Secretary of State of this State at the time of the application of this defendant for a permit to do business in this State on May 31st, 1900, and all allegations contained in the petition with reference to representations alleged to have been made by the President of this defendant to the Secretary of State of this State at the time of such application for such permit, and says that the same are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, for the reason that it affirmatively appears from plaintiff's petition that defendant was duly chartered as a corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and authorized by its charter to transact business in this State, and was such a corporation as was permitted by the laws of this State to transact business in this State, and that it further appears from plaintiff's petition that defendant, at the time of filing its said application for such permit, filed with the Secretary of State of this State a duly certified copy of its articles of incorporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and defendant says that under the provisions of Article 745, Revised Statutes of this State, and in force at said time, it thereupon became and was the duty of the Secretary of State of this State to issue to this defendant a permit to do business in this State, and that the Secretary of State had no discretion with reference to the issuance of such permit, and had no warrant or authority in law to make any inquiry of any character relative to this defendant as a condition precedent to the issuance of such permit, but that, upon the presentation 79 of said certified copy of its charter, defendant was entitled to a permit to do business in this State as a matter of right, and that, therefore, any inquiry as to the said alleged affidavit or any of the representations alleged to have been made by the president of this defendant to the Secretary of State becomes immaterial and irrelevant, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the court and moves the court to strike out all allegations contained in plaintiff's petition with reference to the said alleged affidavit and the said alleged representations and the alleged falsity thereof.

5. In the event that the immediately preceding special exception should be overruled, then defendant excepts to all allegations contained in plaintiff's petition with reference to the representations alleged to have been made by the President of this defendant to the Secretary of State of this State at the time of the application of defendant for a permit to do business in this State, other than the representations contained in said affidavit set out in plaintiff's petition, and defendant says that all such allegations are, for the reasons stated in the immediately preceding special exception, immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action in favor of plaintiff, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

6. This defendant specially excepts to plaintiff's petition, and to all parts and paragraphs thereof, alleging acts and doings by this defendant, or other persons or corporations in alleged violation of the provisions of the Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved May 25th, 1899, Chapter 146, of the General Laws of the State of Texas, passed at the regular session of the Twenty-sixth Legislature, for the reason that said Act was and is void and of no force as a law, because by its terms it was enacted as, and 80 made cumulative, of, and in continuance of the then existing Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas upon the same subject, approved April 30th, 1895, Chapter 83, of the General Laws of the State of Texas, passed at the regular session of the Twenty-fourth Legislature, in which said last named Act it was provided that said Act should not be held to apply to live stock and agricultural products in the hands of the producer or raiser, nor to be understood or construed to prevent the organization of laborers for the purpose of maintaining any standard of wages, and defendant says that because of the said exceptions contained in said last named enactment and because said act of May 25th, 1899, was made cumulative of said then existing statute upon the same subject, the said exempted classes so exempted from the provisions of said Act of April 30th, 1895, were excepted from the provisions of said Act of May 25th, 1899, and for this reason said Act of May 25th, 1899, was and is violative of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, in that it seeks to deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law and seeks to deny to this defendant the equal protection of the laws, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the court.

7. This defendant further specially excepts to all parts and paragraphs of plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought to recover penalties or to forfeit defendant's permit to do business in this State, because of anything alleged to have been done by it in violation of said Act of May 25th, 1899, because said Act of May 25th, 1899, was and is void for the reason that at the same session of the Legislature of the State of Texas, at which said Act was passed, and by an Act approved May 27th, 1899, Chapter 153 of the General Laws of the State of Texas, passed at the said regular session of the Twenty-sixth Legislature, another act was passed upon the same subject, which provides that it shall be lawful for any and all
81 persons engaged in any kind of work, or labor, manual or mental, or both, to associate themselves together and form trade unions and other organizations for the purpose of protecting themselves in their personal work, personal labor, and personal service in their respective pursuits and employments, and this defendant says that by said last mentioned Act the exceptions of said Act of April 30th, 1895, if not carried forward as part of said Act of May 25th, 1899, in terms, were enlarged and increased, and it thereby became lawful for all classes of persons including manufacturers, merchants, and dealers in coal oil and the products of petroleum and other commodities, who should in conducting their said businesses, give personal attention thereto and labor with hands or brain in the conduct of their said businesses, and for all persons engaged in the raising of agricultural products or live stock, and who, in conducting their said businesses, should give their personal attention thereto and labor with hands or brain in the conduct of such businesses, to enter into any kind of combination, association, pool of agreement with reference to their said businesses, and, wherefore, defendant says that said act of May 25th, 1899, because of the said act of May 27th, 1899, was and is a violation of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of the Fourteenth Amendment thereto, in that it seeks to deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law and denies to this defendant the equal protection of the laws, and of this special exception this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

8. This defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition and to all parts and paragraphs thereof setting up alleged acts and doings by this defendant and others in alleged violation of the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the State of Texas approved March 31st, 1903, because said Act was and is unconstitutional and void, for the reason that said prior act of May 27th, 1899, exempting 82 all persons, who may labor with their hands or brain in conducting their businesses, from the operation of all laws upon the same subject, was not repealed by the said Act of March 31st, 1903, and must therefore, be taken as a part of said Act of March 31st, 1903, and because of such exemptions created by said Act of May 27th, 1899, said Act of March 31st, 1903, is violative of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, in that it seeks to deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law, and seeks to deny to defendant the equal protection of the laws, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

9. This defendant further excepts to plaintiff's said petition and to all parts and paragraphs thereof by which it is sought to hold this defendant subject to the provisions of the said act of March 31, 1903, and to cancel its permit to do business in this State and to recover penalties against it, on account of the alleged holding or ownership by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey of a majority of its stock, because, according to the allegations in plaintiff's petition, said stock was so held and owned by said Standard Oil Company at and long prior to the passage of said Act of March 31, 1903, and its ownership of said stock, being a vested right, and not in violation of the laws of the State of Texas when defendant's permit to transact business in Texas was granted to it on May 31st, 1900, it was not competent or within the constitutional power of the Legislature of the State of Texas to interfere with such ownership, or divest said Standard Oil Company of its said property in said stock, or to make it an offense by this defendant subjecting it to penalties and to a forfeiture of its said permit, for such vested and prior ownership to continue, and that said Act of March 31st, 1903, is violative
83 of the Constitution of the United States, for the reason that it is both ex post facto and retroactive in its operation and for the additional reason that if given the effect of prohibiting the continuance of such ownership of said stock by said Standard Oil Company and of making it an offense on the part of this defendant for such holding to continue, it would deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to this defendant the equal protection of the laws and impair the obligations of a contract, contrary to paragraph 1, Section 10, Article I, of the Constitution of the United States, and contrary to the provisions of Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment thereto, and for these reasons this defendant says that it is apparent that all allegations in said petition with respect to the alleged ownership of defendant's stock by the Standard Oil Company should be stricken out, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

10. This defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition, and to all parts and paragraphs thereof, which seek to hold this defendant liable to penalties and a forfeiture of its permit to do business in this State because of the alleged agreement or understanding by which, it is alleged, that, in consideration of defendant purchasing all of its supplies from said Standard Oil Company, said Standard Oil Company agreed that defendant should be permitted to sell its products in Texas, without competition or interference by said Standard Oil Company, because it affirmatively appears from the petition that said Standard Oil Company was and is a citizen of the State of New Jersey, and that it has never obtained a permit to do business in the State of Texas, and it is not alleged that it ever contemplated entering the State of Texas to do business therein in competition with defendant, or that it could have obtained a permit so to do, 84 and therefore, it appears that an agreement such as alleged, if made, could not be construed as violating any laws of the State of Texas, without giving to such laws an extra-territorial effect and operation, binding upon the citizens of other States, and with respect to inter-state commerce, and in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court and moves the Court to strike out all allegations in the petition with respect to said alleged agreement and understanding with said Standard Oil Company.

11. This defendant specially excepts to plaintiff's petition, and to all parts and paragraphs thereof, which seek to charge this defendant with having violated any law of the State of Texas, because of any or all of the alleged acts, agreements and understandings with said Standard Oil Company, or because of the alleged ownership of its stock by said Standard Oil Company, because it affirmatively appears from the petition that said Standard Oil Company was not such a corporation as could qualify and lawfully receive a permit to do business in this State, and, therefore, any such act, agreement or understanding so alleged to have been made by defendant with said Standard Oil Company could not, if made, affect trade or commerce in Texas or be held to be in restraint thereof or in any manner violative of the laws of the State of Texas, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the court, and moves the court to strike out all such allegations.

12. This defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition, and to all parts and paragraphs thereof which seek to charge it to have been a violation of any of the anti-trust laws of the State of Texas for defendant, as a dealer in manufactured articles, to demand of the manufacturer of such articles, as a condition to the purchase thereof by defendant, that if, the manufacturer, should not engage in business in competition with defendant, as a dealer, and defendant
85 says that, if the statutes of the State of Texas are susceptible of the construction contended for by the State in this respect, that such statutes violate the fundamental and universal rules of commerce between two distinct classes of persons, viz: manufacturers and those who deal in the products of such manufacturers, and to so construe said statute would be to cause the same to contravene the Constitution of the United States and to deprive the citizen of his liberty and property without due process of law and would be an attempt upon the part of the State of Texas to deprive this defendant of its liberty and property without due process of law, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

13. Defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition and to all parts and paragraphs thereof wherein and whereby the plaintiff seeks to charge an offense or offenses against its laws against this defendant by reason of the alleged agreement on the part of defendant to buy all of its supplies from said Standard Oil Company and corporations controlled by it, and defendant says that all such allegations are insufficient, because it is not alleged where such contract or agreement was made, nor where nor how it was to be performed, and it does not sufficiently appear from the allegations of the petition that the said alleged contract and agreement was not made by this defendant in the State of Missouri with said Standard Oil Company in the State of New Jersey, and to be performed by delivery of the commodities from some other state in the unbroken packages in which they were to be shipped to defendant in Texas, and it does not appear but that said entire transaction and alleged series of transactions involved wholly and in every detail matters of inter-state commerce, to which the local statute of this state can have no application, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment
86 of the court and moves the court to strike out all allegations the petition with reference to the alleged purchase by defendant of its supplies and with respect to the said alleged agreement with said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

14. Defendant further excepts to so much of plaintiff's petition as prays for the recovery of penalties against this defendant on account of the alleged acts of fraud in obtaining its permit to do business in this State, and says that such acts, if committed, would give to plaintiff no right of recovery of penalties against this defendant, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

15. Defendant specially excepts to so much of plaintiff's petition as prays for the recovery of penalties against this defendant on account of alleged violations of the common law of this state, and the Constitution of this State, and says that said alleged violations of the common law of this State and of the Constitution of this State, if committed, would give to plaintiff no right of recovery of penalties against this defendant, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

16. Defendant specially excepts to all of the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought to recover penalties of this defendant, because of the alleged holding of its stock by any other person or corporation in alleged violation of the statutes of this state, and says that the same are insufficient for the reason that it is not made to appear that defendant, by the law of its domicile, had any control over its stock or right to prevent anyone from holding its stock, or that by any means it could have prevented any other person or corporation from holding such stock, and to hold this defendant liable for penalties on account of such alleged holdings by other corporations of its stock, and without showing that defendant had in its power the means of preventing such holding would be violative of the Constitution of the United States in that it

87 would deprive defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to defendant the equal protection of the laws, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

17. This defendant specially excepts to all portions of plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought to recover penalties of this defendant on account of the alleged ownership by the said Standard Oil Company of shares of its stock, and says that the same are insufficient for the reason that it affirmatively appears from plaintiff's petition that the defendant is a corporation organized and incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, and that the matter of who shall own stock of this defendant, and who shall control the operations and business of this defendant, is one over which the State of Missouri has exclusive jurisdiction and control, and that it is not competent or within the constitutional powers of the State of Texas to inflict penalties upon this defendant because of the alleged ownership by said Standard Oil Company of its business as incidental to the alleged ownership of such stock, without showing that such ownership, and such control incidental to such ownership, was forbidden by the laws of the State of Missouri, and to so hold would be violative of the Constitution of the United States in that it would deprive defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to defendant the equal protection of the laws, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

18. Defendant specially excepts to so much of plaintiff's petition as seeks to recover of defendant penalties on account of alleged violations of the said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved May 25th, 1899, or to cancel its permit to do business in this 88 state, on account of alleged violations of said act, and says that the same are insufficient and show no cause of action against this defendant for the recovery of such penalties or for the cancellation of such permit for the reason that the said Act of May 25th, 1899, was repealed by the Act of March 31st, 1903, by the express terms thereof, and that the provisions contained in Section 17, of said Act of March 31st, 1903, whereby it was provided that "nothing in this Act shall be held or construed to affect or destroy any rights of the State of Texas to recover penalties or forfeit charters of domestic corporations, or prohibit foreign corporations from doing business in this State, for acts committed before this Act takes effect," is unconstitutional and void, for the reason that the subject of such provisions was not embraced in the title of said Act, but, on the contrary, such provision was excluded by the title of said Act, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

19. If the immediately foregoing special exception should be overruled, then defendant specially expects to so much of plaintiff's petition as seeks to recover penalties of this defendant on account of alleged violations of the said Act of May 25th, 1899, and says that the same give rise to no cause of action against this defendant for the recovery of such penalties, for the reason that the said Act of

May 25th, 1899, was repealed by the said Act of March 31st, 1903, by the express terms thereof, and that no right in the State of Texas to recover penalties against this defendant, or any other foreign corporation doing business in this State, on account of violations of said Act of May 25th, 1899, was reserved to the State by said Act of March 31st, 1903, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

20. If the Court should construe plaintiff's petition as alleging that this defendant is the same corporation—the same entity as the first Waters Pierce Oil Company, then defendant excepts to
89 all the allegations in plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought to recover penalties of this defendant under the provisions of said Act of May 25th, 1899, on account of the alleged ownership by said Standard Oil Company of the Stock of this defendant, or on account of the alleged agreement between this defendant and said Standard Oil Company, or on account of the alleged agreements between this defendant and the said Standard Oil Company and the other corporations and persons mentioned in plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are insufficient for the reason that, if the petition be so construed, it then affirmatively appears from plaintiff's petition that said alleged ownership of the stock of this defendant by said Standard Oil Company existed at the time of and prior to the taking effect of said Act of May 25th, 1899, and that all of said alleged agreements and understandings were made and entered into prior to the passage of said Act, and for the reason that said act was intended to act prospectively only, and if intended to apply to ownerships by one corporation of the stock of another corporation, or to apply to agreements of the character of said alleged agreement so set forth in plaintiff's petition, it was only intended to apply to such ownerships of stock as should be acquired after the taking effect of said Act and to such agreements as should be made or entered into after the taking effect of said Act; and, if said Act should be construed as having been intended by the Legislature to authorize the recovery against this defendant of the penalties provided for in said Act, on account of the continuation of said alleged ownership of its stock by the said Standard Oil Company, or on account of the performance by this defendant of any of the alleged agreements so alleged to have been made prior to the taking effect of said Act, such Act, so construed, would be violative of the Constitution
90 of the United States in that it would be retroactive in its effect and impair the obligations of contracts and deny to this defendant the equal protection of the laws and would take the property of this defendant without due process of law, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

21. Defendant excepts to all the allegations in plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought to recover penalties of this defendant under the provisions of said Act of March 31st, 1903, on account of the alleged ownership by the said Standard Oil Company of the stock of this defendant, or on account of the alleged agreements between this defendant and the said Standard Oil Company, or on account of the alleged agreements between this defendant and the said Standard Oil Company and the other corporations and persons mentioned in plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are insufficient for the reason that it affirmatively appears from plaintiff's petition that said alleged ownership of the stock of this defendant by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey existed at the time of and prior to the passage of the said Act of March 31st, 1903, and that all of said alleged agreements and understandings were made and entered into prior to the passage of said Act of March 31st, 1903, and for the reason that said Act was intended to act prospectively only, and if intended to apply to ownerships by one corporation of the stock of another corporation, or to apply to agreements of the character set forth in plaintiff's petition, it was only intended to apply to such ownership of stock as should be acquired after the taking effect of said Act and to such agreements as should be made or entered into after the taking effect of said Act, and if said Act should be construed as having been intended by the Legislature to authorize the recovery against this defendant or the penalties provided for in said Act on account of the continuance of said alleged ownership of the stock by the said Standard Oil Company or on account of the 91 performance by this defendant or any of the alleged agreements so alleged to have been made prior to the taking effect of said Act, such Act so construed, would be violative of the Constitution of the United States, in that it would be retroactive in its effect and impair the obligations of contracts and deny to this defendant the equal protection of the laws and would take the property of this defendant without due process of law, and this it prays judgment of the Court.

22. If the Court should construe plaintiff's petition as properly alleging this defendant to be the same corporation—the same entity—as the first Waters Pierce Oil Company, then this defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought, under the provisions of said Act of May 25th, 1899, to cancel its permit to do business in this State on account of the alleged ownership of its stock by the said Standard Oil Company or on account of the alleged agreements between this defendant and the said Standard Oil Company and other corporations, for the reason that if the petition be so construed, then it affirmatively appears from the petition that the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey acquired the said stock and acquired a vested right therein prior to the taking effect of said Act of May 25th, 1899, and if said petition be so construed it further affirmatively appears therefrom that all the alleged agreements so charged to have been made by this defendant with the said Standard Oil Company and said other persons and corporations were made and entered into prior to the taking effect of said Act, and, if the said Act of May 25th, 1899, was intended to apply to ownerships by one crrporations of the stock of another, such as it is alleged in plaintiff's petition, or to agreements of the character alleged in plaintiff's petition, said Act was intended to act prospectively only and could act prospectively only and applies only to such ownerships as have been acquired subsequent to the 92 taking effect of said act and to such agreements as have been entered into since the taking effect of said act, and the petition, therefore, shows no cause of action against this defendant, under said Act of May 25th, 1899, to cancel its said permit to do business in this State, and of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

23. Defendant specially excepts to all the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition whereby it is sought, under the provisions of said Act of March 31, 1903, to cancel defendant's permit to do business in this State on account of the said alleged ownership of its stock by the said Standard Oil Company, or on account of the said alleged agreements between this defendant and the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and other persons and corporations, for the reason that, if the petition be so construed, then it affirmatively appears from the petition that the said Standard Oil Company acquired the said stock and acquired a vested right therein prior to the taking effect of said Act of March 31st, 1903, and if said petition be so construed it further affirmatively appears therefrom that all the alleged agreements so charged to have been made by this defendant with the said Standard Oil Company and said other persons and corporations were made and entered into prior to the taking effect of said Act, and, if the said Act of March 31, 1903, was intended to apply to ownerships by one corporation of the stock of another, such as is alleged in plaintiff's petition said Act was intended to act prospectively only and could act prospectively only, and applies only to such ownerships as have been acquired subsequent to the taking effect of said Act and to such agreements as have been entered into since the taking effect of said Act, and the petition, therefore, shows no cause of action against this defendant, under said Act of March 31, 1903, to cancel its said permit to do business in this State, and 93 of this special exception defendant prays judgment of the Court.

24. Defendant specially excepts to all the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition whereby plaintiff seeks, under the provisions of said Act of May 25th, 1899, to recover penalties of this defendant or to cancel its permit to do business in this State, for the reason that said Act of May 25th, 1899, was repealed by the said Act of March 31st, 1903, and if the proviso contained in the last section of said Act of March 31st, 1903, could be held to preserve to the State any right of action against any person or corporation on account of violations of said Act of May 25th, 1899, it could have the effect only of preserving such right in cases where suits were actually pending at the time of the passage of said Act of March 31st, 1903, and this suit was not filed until September 22nd, 1906, long after the taking effect of said Act of March 31st, 1903, and of this special exception defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

25. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says the same is insufficient in law to entitle plaintiff to recover herein and for grounds of exception defendant says, that the Act of the Legislature approved May 25th, 1899, and the Act of the Legislature approved March 31st, 1903, under which the State seeks to recover herein, are each null and void and of no force as a law, because each of said Acts is so indefinite, vague and uncertain in its terms that it cannot be ascertained by the language used what particular acts fall with the prohibitions of said statutes and constitute an offense subjecting the offender to punishment as therein prescribed, and for that reason a person cannot know in advance of committing the act whether he is violating the law, and therefore to subject this defendant to heavy penalties and to a forfeiture of its permit to transact business in the State of Texas for an alleged 94 violation of either of said Acts of the Legislature will result in the taking of this defendant's property without due process of law and will deny to it the equal protection of the law in contravention of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly in violation of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, and this defendant here claims the protection of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly the said Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, as a defense to this suit, and of this defendant prays judgment of the court.

26. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it seeks to recover penalties for each and every day since the 31st day of May, A. D. 1900, up to the filing of this suit, a period of more than six years, and amounting in the aggregate to Five Million, Two Hundred and Twenty-eight Thousand and Four Hundred Dollars, because to so construe the law and enable the officers of the State charged with the enforcement thereof to delay bringing suit and challenge the right of the defendant to conduct its business in the manner it did, is to convert the law into an engine of oppression and make of a statute intended to prevent wrong-doings, a means of revenue to the State, and as against the right of State to claim and recover cumulative penalties, or any sum beyond a penalty for one day, this defendant says that to so construe the law and recover accumulated penalties will result in taking this defendant's property without due process of law and will deny to defendant the equal protection of the law, in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, and this defendant here claims the protection of the said constitution, and particularly the said Section One of the 95 Fourteenth Amendment thereof, as a defense against the right of the State of Texas to recover any sum beyond the penalty of a single day, and of this exception this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

27. Defendant for further special exception says that the plaintiff's said petition is defective in substance and in form in so far as it seeks to recover penalties in a single count for alleged violations of law charged to have been committed by defendant on each and every day from the 31st day of May, A. D. 1900, to the day of the filing of this suit, a period of six years, three months and twenty-one days, and by reason of said defective and insufficient pleading the State should not be permitted to recover penalties for more than one day, and of this special exception defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

28. Defendant specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to recover fines or penalties of this defendant by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that since the plaintiff's original petition was not filed herein until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had as to such fines or penalties, accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit, and is therefore barred by the Statute of limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat a recovery of such fines and penalties, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

29. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel the permit of this defend-
96 ant to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that since this suit was not filed until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, to cancel defendant's permit to do business in Texas is barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant here now invokes by way of exception to defeat the cancellation of the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

30. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitations of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal procedure of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 28 and 29, is not available to this defendant, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if a natural person charged with the violation of said Anti-Trust Act of May 25th, 1899, should be prosecuted by proceedings criminal in form for violating said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, or any of its provisions, which would be a proper form of proceeding, the prosecution against him would be barred by said Article 219, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

97 31. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 28 and 29, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties or suits to forfeit permits under said Act of May 25, 1899, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust

Act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States that provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since every cause of action or offense below the grade of felony, arising from the violation of every other penal or criminal statute of this State would be barred by said Article 219 as to all natural persons and corporations, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

32. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it thereby sought to recover fines or penalties by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that since plaintiff's original petition was not filed herein until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, as to such fines or penalties accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 2354, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, which this defendant now here invokes by way of 98 exception to defeat a recovery of such fines or penalties, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

33. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25th, 1899, for the reason that since this suit was not filed until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, to cancel this defendant's permit to do business in Texas is barred by the Statute of Limitations of two years as prescribed in Article 3354 Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat the cancellation of the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

34. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 3354 Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 32 and 33, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits under said Act of May 25, 1899, this defendant, if plaintiff's cause of action is — a civil nature, will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature,
99 the only class of actions of a civil nature for the recovery of a personal judgment except those governed by Articles

3353, 3356 and 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, in which the benefit of said Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, is denied to a defendant, is that class arising under said anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

35. Defendant further excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to recover fines or penalties of this defendant by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1902, in alleged violation of the anti-trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that since the plaintiff's original petition was not filed herein until the 22nd day of September, 1903, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, as to such fines or penalties accrued more than four years before the filing of this suit, and is therefore barred by the statute of limitation of four years as prescribed in Article 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which this defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat a recovery of such fines or penalties, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the court.

36. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1902, in alleged violation of the Anti-trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that since this suit was not filed until the 22nd day of Septeber, 1903, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, to cancel defendant's permit to do business in Texas is barred by 100 the Statute of Limitation of four years prescribed in Article 3358 Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which this defendant here now invokes by way exception to defeat the concellation of the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

37. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of four years as prescribed in Article 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 35 and 36, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bar suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits under said Act of May 25, 1899, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, the only class of actions of a civil nature for the recovery of a personal judgment, except those governed by Articles 3353, 3354, and 3356 Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, in which the benefit of said Articles 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, is denied to a defendant, is that class arising under said anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

38. Defendant specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to recover fines or penalties of this defendant by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the anti-trust act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that since the plaintiff's original petition was not filed herein until the 101 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had as to such fines or penalties, accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit, and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat a recovery of such fines and penalties, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

39. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that since this suit was not filed until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, to cancel defendant's permit to do business in Texas is barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat the cancellation of the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

40. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 38 and 39, is not available to this defendant,
102 this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no State shall deny to any persons within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if a natural person charged with the violation of said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903 should be prosecuted by proceedings, criminal in form, for violating said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, or any of its provisions, which would be a proper form of proceeding, the prosecution against him would be barred by said Article 219 and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

41. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 38 and 39, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties or suits to forfeit permits under said Act of March 31, 1903, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States that provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since every cause of action or offense below the grade of felony arising from the violation of every other penal or criminal statute of this State would be barred by said Article 219 as to all natural persons and corporations, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

43. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that since this suit was not filed until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, to cancel this defendant's permit to do business in Texas is barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 3354 Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat the cancellation of the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

44. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of two years as prescribed in Article 3354, Revised Civil Statute of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 42 and 43, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bears suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits under said Act of March 31, 1903, this defendant, if this suit is of a civil nature, will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, the only class of actions of a civil nature, for the recovery of a personal judgment except those governed by Articles 3353, 3356, and 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, in which the benefit of said Srticle 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, is denied to a defendant, is that class arising under said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

45. Defendant specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to recover fines or penalties of this defendant by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1903, in alleged violation of said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that since plaintiff's original petition was not filed herein until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, as to suche fines or penalties accrued more than three years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of three years as prescribed in Article 218 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which defendant now here invokes by way of 105 exception to defeat a recovery of such fines and penalties, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

46. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it thereby sought to cancel the permit of this defendant to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed prior to the 22nd day of September, 1903, in alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that since this suit was not filed until the 22nd day of September, 1906, it appears from the face of the plaintiff's pleadings that plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, to cancel defendant's permit to do business in this State is barred by the Statute of Limitation of three years as prescribed in Article 218 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant now here invokes by way of exception to defeat the cancellation of the permit of this defendant to do business in th*at* State of Texas, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

47. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition and says that if the Statute of Limitation of three years as prescribed in Article 218 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in special exceptions numbered 45 and 46, is not available to this defendant, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and the said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no State shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if a natural person charged with the violation of said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, should be prosecuted foor a felony for violat-
106 ing said act as is authorized by Section 13 thereof, the prosecution against him would be barred in three years by said Article 218, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

48. Further specially excepting to plaintiff's petition, this defendant says that so much thereof as seeks to recover penalties for an alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Law of the State of Texas, approved May 25, 1899, of the Acts of 1899, is insufficient in law, because:

a. The said act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the first section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said first section of said act, would be in viloation of Article 3, of the General Provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which declares that no person shall be punished for any act or omission unless the same is made a penal offense and a penalty is affixed thereto by the written law of this State.

b. The said act of May 25, 1899, does not by the first section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that it is so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful meaning that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from any other written law of the State, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said first section of said act, would be in violation of Article 6 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the 107 State of Texas, which prescribes that whenever it appears that a provision of the Penal Law is so indefinitely framed or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, such penal law shall be regarded as wholly in-operative.

c. The said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the first section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, in that no offense is designated by the plain import of the words of said first section, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said first section of said act, would be in violation of that part of Article 9, of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that no person shall be punished for an offense not made penal by the plain import of the words of the law.

d. The said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the second section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a monopoly and to render the same unlawful and against public policy, and to make persons and corporations engaged therein guilty of a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the second section of said act, would be in violation of Article 3 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which declares that no person shall be punished for any act or omission unless the same is made a penal offense and a penalty affixed thereto by the written law of this State.

e. The said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the second section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to 108 define a monopoly and to render the same unlawful and against public policy, and to make persons and corporations engaged therein guilty of a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that it is so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful meaning that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from any other written law of the State, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said second section of said act, would be in violation of Article 6 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that whenever it appears that a provision of the Penal Law is so indefinitely framed or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, such penal law shall be regarded as wholly inoperative.

f. The said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the second section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a monopoly and to render the same unlawful and against public policy, and to make persons and corporations engaged therein guilty of a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that no offense is designated by the plain import of the words of said second section, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said second section of said act, would be in violation of that part of Article 9 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas which prescribes that no person shall be punished for an offense nor made penal by the plain import of the words of the law.

g. The said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the third section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to 109 define a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monopoly in restraint of trade, nor by the fourth section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monopoly in restraint of trade, nor by the sixth section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said third, fourth and sixth sections of said acts or any of them, would be in violation of Article 3 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas which declares that no person shall be punished for any act or omission unless the same is made a penal offense and a penalty is affixed thereto by the written law of this State.

h. The said act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the third section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monopoly in restraint of trade, nor by the fourth section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monopoly in restraint of trade, nor by the sixth section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that it is so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful meaning that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from any other written law of the State, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said third, fourth and sixth sections of said act, would be in violation of Article 6 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of 110 Texas, which prescribes that whenever it appears that a provision of the Penal Law is so indefinitely framed or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, such penal law shall be regarded as wholly inoperative.

i. The said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, by the third section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monop-ly in restraint of trade, nor by the fourth section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to form or secure a trust or monop-ly in restraint of trade, nor by the sixth section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy to defraud, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that no offense is designated by the plain import of the words of said third, fourth and sixth sections, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said third, fourth and sixth sections of said act, would be in violation of that part of Article 9 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that no person shall be punished for an offense not made penal by the plain import of the words of the law.

And of all this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

49. Further specially excepting to plaintiff's petition, this defendant says that so much thereof as seeks to recover penalties for an alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Law of the State of Texas, approved March 31, 1903, is insufficient in law, because:

a. The said Act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the first section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to 111 define a trust, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of the first section of said act, would be in violation of Article 3 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which declares that no person shall be punished for any act or omission unless the same is made a penal offense and a penalty is affixed thereto by the written law of this State.

b. The said act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the first section thereof, wherein it purports to define a trust, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that it is so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful meaning that it can not be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from any other written law of the State, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon an alleged infraction of the provisions of said first section of said act, would be in violation of Article 6 of the General provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that whenever it appears that a provision of the Penal Law is so indefinitely framed or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, such penal law shall be regarded as wholly inoperative.

c. The said Act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the first section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a trust, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that no offense is designated by the plain import of its words, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions 112 of said first section of said act, would be in violation of that part of Article 9 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that no person shall be punished for an offense not made penal by the plain import of the words of the law.

d. The said act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the second section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a monopoly define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said second section of said act, would be in violation of Article 3 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which declares that no person shall be punished for any act or omission unless the same is made a penal offense and a penalty is affixed thereto by the written law of this State.

e. The said Act of March 31, 1903, does not by the second section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a monopoly, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that it is so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful meaning that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from any other written law of the State, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said second section of said act, would be in violation of Article 6 of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that whenever it appears that a provision of the Penal Law is so indefinitely framed, or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, such penal law shall be regarded as wholly inoperative.

113 f. The said Act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the second section thereof, or any part of said section, wherein it purports to define a monopoly, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that no offense is designated by the plain import of its words, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said second section of said act, would be in violation of that part of Article 9 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that no person shall be punished for an offense not made penal by the plain import of the words of the law.

g. The said Act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the third section of said act, or any part thereof, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy in restraint of trade, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said third section of said act, would be in violation of Article 3 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas and a penalty is affixed thereto by the written law of this State.

h. The said act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the third section of said act, or any part thereof, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy in restraint of trade, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that it is so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful meaning that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from any other written law of the State, and to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said third section of said act, would be in violation of Article 6 114 of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribes that whenever it appears that a provision of the Penal Law is so indefinitely framed, or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, such penal law shall be regarded as wholly inoperative.

i. The said act of March 31, 1903, does not, by the third section of said act, or any part thereof, wherein it purports to define a conspiracy in restraint of trade, define any offense against the laws of the State of Texas in that no offense is designated by the plain import of its words, and therefore to permit and sanction the prosecution of this suit, in so far as it is based upon the alleged infraction of the provisions of said third section of said act, would be in violation of that part of Article 9 of the general provisions of the Penal Code of the State of Texas, which prescribed that no person shall be punished for an offense not made penal by the plain import of the words of the law.

And of all this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

50. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel defendant's permit to do business in Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed in alleged violation of the Anti-trust Act of May 25, 1899, since, under Section 7 of said act, the forfeiture of the right of a corporation, created and organized under the laws of any other State, to do business in Texas is made dependent upon its violation of some one or more of the preceding sections of said act, and since, for the reasons set forth in the foregoing special exception, Nos. 48 and 49, said Act of May 25, 1899, does not, in the provisions thereof invoked by the plaintiff in this case, sufficiently define any offense against the laws of Texas to render 115 this defendant guilty of violating any of its provisions, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

51. Defendant further specially excepts to plaintiff's petition in so far as it is thereby sought to cancel defendant's permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing alleged to have been done or committed in alleged violation of the Anti-trust act of March 31, 1903, since, under Sections 8 and 10 of said Act, the forfeiture of the right of a corporation, created and organized under the laws of any other state, to do business in Texas is made dependent upon its violation of some one or more the the provisions of the preceding sections of said act, and since, for the reasons set forth in the foregoing special exceptions, Nos. 48 and 49, said act of March 31, 1903, does not, in the provisions thereof invoked by the plaintiff in this case, sufficiently define any offense against the laws of Texas to render this defendant guilty of violating any of its provisions, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

52. Further specially excepting to plaintiff's petition, this defendant says that the same is insufficient in law, in so far as it seeks to recover penalties for a violation of the provisions of the Anti-Trust Act of May 28, 1899, since by reason of the same's being so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, and by reason of its failure to designate an offense by the plain import of its words, the infliction of the penalties prescribed by said act would be the taking of property without due process of law in contravention of Section 19, Article 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, which prescribes that no citizen of this State shall be de-
116 prived of property except by due course of the law of the land, and also in contravention of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no state shall deprive any person of property without due process of law, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court

53. Further specially excepting to plaintiff's petition, this defendant says that the same is insufficient in law, in so far as it seeks to recover penalties for a violation of the provisions of the Anti-trust Act of March 31, 1903, since by reason of the same's being so indefinitely framed and of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood, either from the language in which it is expressed, or from some other written law of the State, and by reason of its failure to designate an offense by the plain import of its words, the infliction of the penalties prescribed by said act would be the taking of property without due process of law in contravention of Section 19, Article 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, which prescribes that no citizen of this State shall be deprived of property except by the due course of the law of the land, and also in contravention of that part of Section 1, of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no state shall deprive any person of property without due process of law, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

54. Further specially excepting to plaintiff's petition, this defendant says that same is insufficient in law, in so far as it seeks to recover penalties for an alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that said act is a criminal law and under its terms any person violating any one of its provisions may, for a single violation thereof, be twice tried and twice put in 117 jeopardy for the same act and be subject to two different and distinct penalties for the same act, in violation of Section 14 of Article 1 of the Constitution of Texas, which provides that no person, for the same offense shall be twice put in jeopardy of life or liberty, nor shall any person be again put upon trial for the same offense after a verdict of not guilty in a court of competent jurisdiction, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

55. Further specially excepting to plaintiff's petition, this defendant says that the same is insufficient in law, in so far as it seeks to recover penalties by reason of the alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that said Act confers upon the Attorney General, or the District or County Attorney of Travis County, under his direction, power to discriminate between persons in the enforcement of its provisions, since they may, by their election, prevent the inflicting upon one person of a greater punishment for the violation of its provisions that a fine of $50.00 per day, while they may elect to have another person violating its provisions indicted and convicted of a felony and confined in the penitentiary in any term from one to ten years; therefore, said act does not guarantee to all persons within the State the equal protection of the law, nor does it secure the inflicting of the same character of punishment upon all persons within the jurisdiction of the State who are guilty of violating its provisions, but leaves it to the aforesaid officers to determine arbitrarily and capriciously the kind of offense, of which any person violating its provisions, is guilty, and the punishment that may be inflicted for such violation, is violation of Section 3, of Article 1 of the Constitution of Texas, which provides that all free men when they form a social compact have equal rights, and no man or set of men is entitled to exclusive separate public emoluments or privileges but in consideration of public services,
118 and of Section 19 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, which provides that no citizen of this State shall be deprived of life, liberty, property, privileges or immunities except by the due course of the law of the land, and of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, and of this the defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

56. Defendant excepts to Sub-division II of plaintiff's petition and all the allegations therein contained, for the reason that all such allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and of this special exception defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

57. Defendant excepts to Sub-division III of plaintiff's petition and all the allegations therein contained, for the reason that all such allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and of this special exception defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

58. Defendant excepts to Sub-division IV of plaintiff's petition and all the allegations therein contained, for the reason that all such allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and of this special exception defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

59. Defendant excepts to the said alleged trust agreements marked Exhibit "A" and Exhibit "B," and set out in plaintiff's petition on pages 9 to 23, inclusive, thereof, for the reason that said alleged trust agreements are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and for the additional reason that it appears from said alleged trust agreements that this defendant was not a party to said alleged agreements and did not join in the execution thereof,
119 and the allegations in plaintiff's petition to the effect that this defendant did join in the execution of said alleged trust agreements are contradicted by said alleged trust agreements so set up in plaintiff's petition, which show upon their face that this defendant did not join in said alleged trust agreements and was not a party to the execution thereof, and for the additional reason that it appears from plaintiff's petition that said alleged trust agreements were made and entered into more than eighteen years before the organization of this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

60. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth paragraphs of Sub-division III of plaintiff's petition, and says that all of such allegations are irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this cause and show no cause of action against this defendant, and that if such allegations, or any of them, have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

61. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in Sub-division V. of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

62. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in paragraph 9 of said Sub-division V of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this cause and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the said matters so alleged have any relation to this case, they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the 120 Court.

63. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in

Pierce, acting for said Waters Pierce Oil Company and all the stockholders, directors and officers of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, arranged with and employed attorneys, and with them went into the State of Texas, made an effort to dispose of the case 121 pending at Waco, and expended money therein and consulted with officers of the State with reference to the readmission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into the State; that a course of procedure was determined upon which was carried out, as hereinbefore recited; that all sums of money paid and contracted to be paid by said Pierce were paid by the Waters Pierce Oil Company after the reputed reorganization and all the expenses incident to the said operations of Pierce and the attorneys aforesaid in Texas were so paid, and all of said expenses were thereafter audited and allowed by the Standard Oil Company," and says that the same are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the said matters so alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the said matters so alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

122 69. Defendant specially excepts to all the allegations contained in Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the said matters so alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

70. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained in paragraph 2 of said Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition to the effect: "That this concern, to-wit, the Standard Oil Company, and its allied interests and subsidiary corporations, including defendant, in carrying out the conspiracies aforesaid, uses secret schemes and devious devices, conducting its business by codes unintelligible to ordinary persons, using stationery containing no information concerning its business other than "26 Broadway," sending out letters without address or signature to its component corporations," for the reason that said allegation is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and shows no cause of action against this defendant, and if the matters therein alleged have any relation to this cause they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

71. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in paragraph 3 of said Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are irrelevant and immaterial to this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the matters therein alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence only and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, 123 and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

72. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in paragraph 4 of said Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the matters therein alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

73. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in paragraph 5 of said Subdivision VIII of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the matters therein alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence only and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

74. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in paragraph 6 of said Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition, and says that the same are irrelevant and immaterial to any issues in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if the matters therein alleged have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

124 75. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained in plaintiff's petition to the effect: "That after May 31st, 1900, the Standard Oil Company placed upon the pay roll of Waters Pierce Oil Company one R. H. McNall under the designation of "Commercial Agent", and named his place of business as 75 New Street (which is the back door of the building known as 26 Broadway); that said McNall had been and thereafter continued to be a clerk in the office and under the control of H. M. Tilford. The duty performed by him with reference to the business of defendant was to permit the reports required by the Standard Oil Company of defendant to be addressed to him and to sign the letters of instructions as prepared by the officers of the Standard Oil Company and forward them to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and the nominal change thus made in the business of the corporation was made for the purpose of rendereing more difficult a discovery of the falsity of the affidavit of said H. C. Pierce, and of more efficiently hiding the unlawful character of the business carried on by defendant and the Standard Oil Company and its allied interests, and carrying out the objects of the conspiracy herein set out," and says that all such allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defendant, and if such matters have any relation to this cause they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

76. Defendant excepts to all the allegations contained in paragraph 7 of said Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition, and says that all such allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and show no cause of action against this defend-

125 ant, and if such matters have any relation to this case they are matters of evidence merely and should not be incorporated in plaintiff's petition, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

77. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained in paragraph 9 of Sub-division VIII of plaintiff's petition to the effect: "That since May 31st, 1900, as before, and continuously and each day since the Waters Pierce Oil Company, for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the conspiracies aforesaid and of securing a monopoly of the Oil business in Texas and of destroying all competition therein and of exacting from the people of Texas unreasonable and unconscionable prices for oil and the products of petroleum, has, as set forth in the succeeding paragraphs, bought out competing businesses, has maintained at a number of points oil selling concerns apparently in opposition to it, has made exclusive contracts with merchants by which they were prevented from handling the products of other companies, have cut prices below the costs of oil until competition was destroyed and then recouped by extraordinary increase of prices, has given rebates, gratuities and bribes, has in connection with the Standard Oil Company, maintained a system of spies, has corrupted the employés of railroads and other concerns," for the reason that the said allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this casee and are impertinent and scandalous in their nature and calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

78. Defendant specially excepts to all the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition, beginning on page 49, and beginning with the words, "That in further pursuance of the unlawful purposes 126 hereinbefore set forth, said Waters Pierce Oil Company," and ending with the words, "with reference to shipments into the Waters Pierce Oil Company territory," and says that all such allegations are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and are scandalous and impertinent in their nature and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

79. Defendant excepts to the allegations contained in plaintiff's petition on pages 51 and 52 thereof, to the effect: "That by virtue of the facts hereinbefore set out, the following, among other unlawful results have been accomplished:

"1. The Waters Pierce Oil Company, which alone has been granted a permit to do business, is dominated and controlled and its business dictated by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which has not been granted a permit to do business in Texas.

"2. A large number of individuals and corporations doing business in the sale of oil and petroleum products are excluded from doing business in the state, and competition is lessened.

"3. The price of oil has been maintained at an ex*h*orbitant figure, being from ten to twenty-five per cent. higher than that of oil sold in the territory not claimed by defendant.

"4. Competition has been suppressed and business destroyed in the state by unconscionable and unfair means.

"5. A substantially complete monopoly in petroleum products has been established, the defendant having sold during during the period of ten years at least ninety-five per cent. of all petroleum products sold," and says that said allegations are statements of legal conclusions and arguments only, and are inflammatory in their nature and calculated to prejudice the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

127 80. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained in plaintiff's petition, on pages 52 and 53, to the effect: "That said corporation in pursuance of its business immediately established stations and officers in the counties, cities, towns and villages of Texas for the transaction of its business and supplying to the people of Texas oils and the products of petroleum, this in abuse of its corporate rights, franchises and powers, it forthwith began and has since maintained a war of extermination of all competition within this State as hereinbefore set forth; that it formed alliances and conspiracies with divers other corporations within and without this State as hereinbefore set forth whereby it was enabled to establish and has established a monopoly of said oil business in this State; that it has by a system of unfair competition and by various devices hereinbefore set forth, destroyed the business of its competitors; that at points where no competition existed said Waters Pierce Oil Company arbitrarily and for the purpose of recouping its losses at competitive points sold oils and the products at extraordinary and exhorbitant prices far above the true market value thereof, and by reason of its monopoly of said business wrought great oppression upon the people of this State," and says that said allegations are but legal conclusions and arguments, and are impertinent, scandalous and inflammatory in their nature, and are calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

81. Defendant excepts to the allegation contained on page 38 of plaintiff's petition to the effectL "That all of said representations made by H. C. Pierce in said affidavit were false and fraudulent and known by him to be fraudulent at the time they were made, and were made by him for the purpos of deceiving the officers of 128 the State, and avoiding the judgment aforesaid and in pursuance and furtherance of the conspiracy hereinbefore alleged," for the reason that said allegation is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case and is calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

82. Defendant excepts to plaintiff's petition as a whole, and says that by reason of the matters complained of in the preceding special exceptions, Nos. 56 to 81, inclusive, plaintiff's petition, in its entirety, is in violation of Article 1183 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Texas, and is not a statement in logical and legal form of the facts constituting plaintiff's cause of action as required by said article, and is in violation of Rule 2 of the rules for District and County Courts of this state as prescribed by the Supreme Court of this State, and is not a statement of facts in contradistinction to a statement of legal conclusions and arguments as prescribed by said Rule, but, on the contrary, the petition is a statement of alleged facts so intermingled with irrelevant, impertinent, scandalous, and inflammatory matter, arguments and inconsistent averments as to produce confusion, uncertainty and unnecessary length in the petition, and on account of the arguments, legal conclusions, impertinent, scandalous and inflammatory matter therein set forth and excepted to in said special exceptions above named, is calculated to inflame the minds of the jury trying this case against this defendant and to prevent justice being attained upon the trial of this case, and defendant says that said petition as a whole should be stricken out and plaintiff required to replead and to omit from its petition all such irrelevant, impertinent, scandalous and inflammatory matter and all such statements of evidence and legal conclusions and arguments, and of this defendant prays judgment of the court.

129 83. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained in page 54 of plaintiff's petition, and near the top of said page, to the effect: "And plaintiff says that defendant, a corporation transacting and conducting a business in this State, created, entered into and became a member of and a party to a pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation, and understanding with another and other corporations and with individuals and persons to regulate and fix the price of an article of manufacture, merchandise and commodity," for the reason that said allegation is but a conclusion and is too general and uncertain to apprise this defendant of the facts thereby sought to be charged, and is further insufficient for the reason that it does not state when or with whom defendant so created, entered into and became a party to and a member of such pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation and understanding, nor does it state with whom the same is charged to have been made, nor the article of manufacture, merchandise, or commodity the price of which is is alleged that it was thereby sought to regulate and fix, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

84. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained on page 54 of plaintiff's petition, to the effect: "And said defendant entered into and became a member of and a party to a pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation and understanding with the Standard Oil Company, and its officers and agents, and many other corporations, the names of which plaintiff is unable to state, to regulate and fix the price of refined oils and the products of petroleum," for the reason that said allegation is but a conclusion and is too general and uncertain to apprise defendant of the facts thereby sought to be charged, and it does not state the facts constituting such alleged pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation, or under-

130 standing, nor the time when the same is alleged to have been entered into, nor the agreement or understanding whereby it is alleged that it was sought to regulate the price of refined oil and the products of petroleum, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

85. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation on page 54 of plaintiff's petition, to the effect: "That defendant became, and was continuously from the 31st day of May, 1900, a monopoly," for the reason that such allegation is but a conclusion and the facts alleged to constitute defendant such a monopoly are not stated, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

86. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained on page 54 of plaintiff's petition, to the effect: "That defendant * * * was a party to a union, combination, consolidation, and affiliation of capital, property, assets, skill and acts by and between persons and corporations, to-wit: the Standard Oil Company, and its agents and employees, and other corporations aforesaid, and the defendant, and its agents and officers, to regulate and fix the price of an article of manufacture, merchandise, commodity and product of mining, to-wit, the price and the products of petroleum and to fix and limit the amount and quantity of such article, and to prevent competition in the sale and mining of said article," for the reason that said allegation is but a conclusion and is too general and uncertain to apprise defendant of the facts thereby sought to be charged, or of the facts which plaintiff will attempt to prove in support thereof, and for the further reason that the facts constituting such alleged union, combination, consolidation and affiliation of capital, credit, property, skill and acts are not stated, and of this defendant prays the judgment of the Court.

131 87. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation contained in plaintiff's petition and on page 54 thereof, to the effect: "The Standard Oil Company acquired and after the 31st day of May, 1900, retained with the consent of defendant company and its stockholders, the stock of said defendant," for the reason that said allegation is immaterial and irrelevant and shows no cause of action against this defendant, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

88. Defendant specially excepts to the allegation in plaintiff's petition on pages 54 and 55 thereof: "And said defendant, being engaged in the buying and selling of the products of petroleum, entered into a pool, and trust, agreement, and combination, confederation, association and understanding by and with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the corporations controlled by it to control and limit the trade in the products of petroleum and to limit competition in such trade," for the reason that said allegation is but a conclusion and is too general and uncertain to apprise defendant of the facts intended to be charged thereby, or of the facts which plaintiff will attempt to prove in support thereof, and for the further reason that the facts constituting such alleged pool trust, agreement and combination, confederation, association and understanding are not stated, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

89. Defendant specially excepts to all the allegations in plaintiff's petition in the last paragraph thereof preceding the prayer for relief, wherein and whereby it is sought to charge this defendant with violations of the Act of March 31st, 1903, for the reason that said allegations are too vague, uncertain and indefinite in their nature to apprise this defendant of the facts sought to be charged as constituting such violations, in this, that the preceding portions

132 of plaintiff's petition are therein referred to as showing the acts constituting such alleged violations, and the preceding portions of plaintiff's petition so referred to are so confused, duplicitious, contradictory and voluminous that it is impossible to determine therefrom just what allegations contained therein, are, in said portion of the petition here excepted to, claimed by plaintiff to allege such violations, and of this defendant prays judgment of the Court.

This defendant denies all and singular the allegations in plaintiff's petition contained, and says that defendant is not guilty of the acts and wrong-doings in said petition charged against it or of any of them, and of this answer and plea it puts itself on the country.

1. Specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover any fines or penalties herein against this defendant because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had,
133 for the recovery of such fines or penalties accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit, and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to recover such fines or penalties that accrued two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

2. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover judgment against this defendant cancelling its permit to do business in the State of Texas because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the cancellation of said permit to do business in the State of Texas accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit, and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to cancel said permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing occurring two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

3. Further specially answering herein, this defendant says that plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas, under the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason if the statute of limitation of two years, as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 134 of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this special answer, is not available to this defendant, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any persons within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if a natural person charged with the violation of said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, should be prosecuted by proceedings, criminal in form, for violating the said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, or any of its provisions, which would be a proper form of proceeding, the prosecution against him would be barred by said Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

4. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas under said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of two years, as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this answer, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits under said Act of May 25, 1899, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since every 135 cause of action or offense below the grade of felony, arising from every other penal or criminal statute of this State would be barred by said Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of Texas as to all persons and corporations, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

5. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover any fines or penalties herein against this defendant because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the recovery of such fines or penalties accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to recover such fines or penalties that accrued two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

6. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover judgment against this defendant cancelling its permit to do business in the State of Texas because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1804, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the cancellation of said permit to do business in the State of Texas accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit, and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, which this de-133 fendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to cancel said permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing occurring two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

7. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas, under the Anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of two years, as prescribed in Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in Paragraphs 5 and 6 of this answer is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits under said anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, this defendant, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, the only class of actions of a civil nature for the recovery of a personal judgment, except those governed by Articles 3353, 3356 and 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas in which the benefit of said Article 3354, Revised Civil Stat-es of Texas, is denied to a defendant, is that class arising under the said Anti-trust act of May 25, 1899, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

8. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover any fines or penalties herein against this defendant because of any act or thing done
137 or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1902, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the recovery of such fines or penalties accrued more than four years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of *Mi*nitation of four years prescribed in Article 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to recover such fines or penalties that accrued four years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

9. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover judgment against this defendant cancelling its permit to do business in the State of Texas, because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1902, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the cancellation of said permit to do business in the State of Texas accrued more than four years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of four years prescribed in Article 4458, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to cancel said permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing occurring two years before the institution of this suit, and this defendant is ready to verify.

10. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas under the Anti-Trust
138 Act of May 25, 1899, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of four years, as prescribed in Article 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in paragraphs 8 and 9 of this answer, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits, under said Act of May 25, 1899, this defendant, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, the only class of actions of a civil nature for the recovery of a personal judgment, except those governed by Article- 3353, 3354, and 3356, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, in which the benefit of said Article 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, is denied to a defendant, is that class arising under said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

11. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover any fines or penalties herein against this defendant because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the recovery of such fines or penalties accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which 139 this defendant specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's rights to recover such fines or penalties that accrued more than two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

12. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover judgment against this defendant cancelling its permit to do business in the State of Texas because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the cancellation of such permit to do business in the State of Texas, accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to cancel said permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing occurring two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

13. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas, under the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of two years, as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in Paragraphs 11 and 12 of this answer, is not available to this defendant, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is
140 void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if a natural person charged with the violation of said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, should be prosecuted by proceedings, criminal in form, for violating the said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, or any of its provisions, which would be a proper form of proceeding, the prosecution against him would be barred by said Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

14. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas, under the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of two years, as prescribed in Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in paragraphs 11 and 12 of this answer, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits, under the said Act of March 31, 1903, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since every cause of action or offense below the grade of felony, arising from the violation of every other penal or criminal statute of this State would be barred by said Article 219 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of Texas as to all natural persons and corpo-
141 rations, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

15. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover any fines or penalties herein against this defendant because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the recovery of such fines or penalties accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 3354,

Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to recover such fines or penalties that accrued two years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

16. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover judgment against this defendant cancelling its permit to do business in the State of Texas because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1904, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the cancellation of said permit to do business in the State of Texas accrued more than two years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of two years prescribed in Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to cancel said permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing occurring two years before the institution of this suit, and 142 this the defendant is ready to verify.

17. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the plaintiff ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas, under the Anti-Trust act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of two years, as prescribed in Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in Paragraphs 15 and 16 of this answer, is not available to this defendant, and if no period of limitation bars suits to recover fines or penalties, or suits to forfeit permits, under said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, this defendant, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if plaintiff's cause of action is of a civil nature, the only class of actions of a civil nature for the recovery of a personal judgment, except those governed by Article 3353, 3356, and 3358, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, in which the benefit of said Article 3354, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas is denied to a defendant, is that class arising under the said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

18. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover any fines or penalties against this defendant because of any act or thing done or 143 committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1903, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the recovery of such fines or penalties accrued more than three years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of three years prescribed in Article 218 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to recover such fines or penalties that accrued three years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

19. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant cancelling its permit to do business in the State of Texas because of any act or thing done or committed by this defendant prior to the 22nd day of September, 1903, by reason of its alleged violation of the Anti-trust Act of March 31, 1903, in that the plaintiff's cause of action, if any it ever had, for the cancellation of said permit to do business in the State of Texas accrued more than three years before the filing of this suit and is therefore barred by the Statute of Limitation of three years prescribed in Article 218 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas which this defendant here specially pleads in bar of the plaintiff's right to cancel said permit to do business in the State of Texas by reason of any act or thing occurring three years before the institution of this suit, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

20. Further specially answering said petition, this defendant says that plaintiffs ought not to recover judgment herein against this defendant, either for fines or penalties, or the cancellation of its permit to do business in the State of Texas, under the Anti-Trust
144 Act of March 31, 1903, for the reason that if the Statute of Limitation of three years, as prescribed in Article 218 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the State of Texas, the benefit of which this defendant invokes in Paragraphs 18 and 19 of this answer, is not available to this defendant, this defendant will be denied the equal protection of the laws, and the said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, is void as a whole, in violation of that part of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which provides that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, since, if a natural person charged with the violation of said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, should be prosecuted for a felony for violating said act as is authorized by Section 13 thereof, the prosecution against him would be barred in three years by said Article 218, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

21. And further specially answering herein, and for the purpose of supplementing its foregoing special pleas of limitation, Nos. 1 to 20, inclusive, and each of them, defendant says that though it is a foreign corporation, it has at all times since the 31st day of May A. D. 1900, maintained offices and local agents in this state, and particularly has at all times since said date maintained an office and local agent at Austin, Travis County, Texas, upon whom service of citation could have been had by plaintiff as to any of the various alleged causes of action set up in plaintiff's petition, at any time since said May 31st, 1900, and this the defendant stands ready to verify.

22. For further special answer herein this defendant says that the plaintiff herein, in so far as it seeks to question or review the action by which the Waters Pierce Oil Company, chartered May 7th, 1878, was dissolved, is barred and precluded by the judgment ren-

145 dered on the 5th day of November, A. D. 1900, in the District Court of McLennan County, State of Texas, in a suit duly instituted in said Court on April 1st, 1895, and therein pending on said 5th day of November, A. D. 1900, wherein the plaintiff herein, the State of Texas, was plaintiff and wherein said old Waters Pierce Oil Company, so chartered on May 7th, 1878, was defendant, and wherein said State, by its proper petition and information filed in said Court against said defendant sought to recover against it a large sum of money, greatly in excess of Five Hundred Dollars and within the jurisdiction of said District Court, as penalties or fines, for acts done and committed by said defendant in violation of what is known as the "Anti-Trust Laws," of the State of Texas, being the acts of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved March 30th, 1889, and in which suit at the trial after said act of dissolution had occurred, the issue was duly and legally presented to said District Court, that because of said dissolution, the said old Waters Pierce Oil Company was no longer in existence, and at said trial and at a hearing therein upon the merits by said Court after taking evidence as to the manner in which said Company had been dissolved, it was thereupon and by said Court duly adjudged and determined that said Waters Pierce Oil Company so chartered on May 7th, 1878, had been duly and legally dissolved, and judgment was in said suit duly entered of record so adjudicating and determining and because of said dissolution said District Court thereupon and in said cause duly adjudged that said suit should abate and be dismissed, and it thereupon entered its judgment so adjudicating and determining, and this defendant attached hereto a copy of said judgment and makes the same part of this plea, marked Exhibit A, and prays that the same be taken and considered as part hereof.

146 This defendant says that the plaintiff herein duly prosecuted an appeal from said judgment to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of the State of Texas, and caused a transcript of the record in said cause to be duly filed in said appellate court in the manner and within the time required by law and that said appellate court by its proper judgment rendered of record on the 2nd day of April A. D. 1902, in said cause affirmed the said judgment of the District Court of McLennan County, and thereby caused the same to become final and conclusive in all respects, and this defendant here pleads and alleges that the said judgment of the District Court of McLennan County rendered in said cause against the plaintiff herein is now in full force and effect and has not been in any manner qualified, reversed or set aside and that by reason of said judgment so fixing the status of said old Waters Pierce Oil Company and adjudging that it had been theretofore dissolved and did not then have any legal existence, the State of Texas, the plaintiff herein, is barred and precluded from further denying or questioning the validity of the dissolution of said former Waters Pierce Oil Company, so chartered on the 7th day of May, A. D. 1878, and this defendant further avers that the said District Court of McLennan County, Texas, was a court of competent jurisdiction and had full power to hear and determine the said suit and render the judgment therein which it did render as above set forth, and defendant here pleads its said judgment as res adjudicata finally settling as against the State of Texas, the fact that said old Waters Pierce Oil Company was dissolved in accordance with law, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

23. For further special answer herein, this defendant says that if it has incurred any penalty, or is liable to any fine, to the 147 State of Texas by reason of anything done or committed, or permitted or suffered to be done or committed, prior to the 31st day of March, A. D. 1903, which is not admitted but expressly denied, then it is not liable to the State of Texas in the penalties as prescribed in the Act of the Legislature of May 25, A. D. 1899, as claimed by the State in its petition or information herein filed, but is liable, if at all, to the penalties prescribed in said Act of March 31, 1903, under the provisions of Article Fifteen of the Penal Code of the State of Texas and under the general rules of law which prescribes that in cases where by subsequest law the penalty for the same offense is ameliorated, the offender shall upon conviction receive the punishment prescribed in the later law, and while this defendant denies that it is liable to the State of Texas in any sum as a fine or penalty for anything occurring prior to March 31st, 1903, or after that time, it here specially pleads its election to claim the benefit of the provisions of said later act, approved March 31, 1903, reducing the amount of penalties recoverable by the State for an infraction of said statute, and avers that both acts are upon the same subject, and if valid, undertake and seek to define the same offense and to impose punishment for the same kind of offense and for the same kind of acts and conduct on the part of persons and classes of persons therein specified, and this defendant further avers that unless the lower grade of punishment prescribed in said Act of March 31, 1903, is imposed and held applicable to said former Act of May 25, 1899, and as an amendment thereto, and this defendant shall be held liable under said former statute and to the punishment therein prescribed, that such holding will deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law, and will deny to it the equal protection of the law, in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of Section 1 of the 148 Fourteenth Amendment thereof, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

24. For further special answer herein, this defendant says that if this defendant ever created, entered into and became a member of and a party to any pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation, conspiracy, or understanding with another and other corporations, and with individuals and persons, or ever became a monopoly and was a party to a union, combination, consolidation and affiliation of capital, credit, property, assets, skill and acts by and between persons and corporations, and ever affiliated, amalgamated and consolidated with other persons and corporations for the purposes, or any of the purposes, denounced as illegal by said Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, as alleged in plaintiff's petition, which is not admitted, but denied, and if this defendant ever became a party to a trust and to a combination of capital, skill and acts by and between itself and other corporations and persons, and entered into a combination and consolidation and combined and united its interests with other corporations and persons for the purposes, or any of the purposes, denounced as illegal by the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, as alleged in plaintiff's petition, which is not admitted, but denied, this defendant avers that all such pools, trusts, agreements, combinations, confederations, conspiracies, understandings, unions, consolidations, affiliations and amalgamations, if made, which is not admitted, but denied, were made outside of the State of Texas and with reference to commerce in oils and the products of petroleum between states other than the State of Texas, and if the same contemplated or have affected such commodities in Texas in any respect, it has been in respect to commerce therein between the State of Texas and some other state, and defendant here specially pleads and avers that the laws of Texas relied upon as the basis of recovery herein, to-149 wit, the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, and the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, have no application thereto, and that this Court is without jurisdiction of the subject matter of all such alleged pools, trusts, agreements, combinations, confederations, conspiracies, understandings, unions, affiliations and amalgamations, which, if made at all, were made outside of the State of Texas, for the reason that the laws of Texas have no extra territorial operation and effect; and this defendant avers that if said Acts of May 25, 1899, and March 31, 1903, or either of them apply to said pools, trusts, agreements, combinations, confederations, understandings, unions, consolidations, conspiracies, affiliations and amalgamations alleged in said petition, the same are in violation of Subdivision 3 of Section 8 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the United States, conferring upon Congress the power to regulate commerce among the several states, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

25. For further answer herein, this defendant says it is a corporation duly chartered in the State of Missouri and under the laws of that State and under its charter has power to transact business in said State of Missouri, and in other States, including the State of Texas, and is and has at all times since its incorporation on the 29th day of May, A. D. 1900, been engaged in conducting an interstate business, and that being so incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, full faith and credit attached to the Act of Missouri in granting its charter to it, under the provisions of Section 1 of Article Four of the Constitution of the United States, which will be violated if the validity of said charter is not recognized by the courts of Texas in this case, and defendant says that it is not within the constitutional powers of the State of Texas to make it an offense against its laws by reason of ownership of stock in defendant corporation by 150 persons or corporations prohibited by the laws of Texas, and that to so construe the Acts of the Legislature of the State of Texas upon which the State relies as basis of recovery herein, will deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to it the equal protection of the laws, contrary to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States and particularly of Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

26. For further special answer herein this defendant says that the subject of who shall be qualified to subscribe for, or after issuance to purchase and own stock in defendant corporation under its charter as a corporation created and duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, is a matter subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the State of Missouri, and if it be a fact that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey became at any time or is now the owner of stock of this defendant, which is not admitted, then this defendant avers that when such stock was so acquired it was under a contract valid in the State of Missouri, where it was made and where this defendant had its principal office and where said stock had its situs, and that it is not competent or within the constitutional powers of the State of Texas, by its laws, to make it an offense for said Standard Oil Company to so own stock in this defendant corporation, and that if either of the Acts of the Legislature of the State of Texas, to-wit, the Anti-Trust Act of May 25, 1899, and the Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, relied upon by the State as basis of recovery in this suit are held to give the State the right to recover penalties against this defendant because of such holding of stock by said Standard Oil Company, then each of said Acts is unconstitutional, null and void because in violation of paragraph one of section ten of Article One of the Constitution of the United States which declares that 151 no state shall pass any law impairing the obligations of a contract and are further violative of section one of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, in that said Acts would deprive this defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to this defendant the equal protection of the law, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

27. For further answer herein this defendant says that if it shall be held that the Waters Pierce Oil Company, chartered May 7th, 1878, was not legally dissolved and that this defendant is in legal effect the same corporation and required to answer for the doings of said old company, which is not admitted, but expressly denied, then this defendant says that said former corporation was also created under the laws of the State of Missouri and received its charter from said State long prior to the passage of each of the acts of the Legislature of the State of Texas upon which said State relies as basis of recovery herein, and that the ownership of stock in said company by the Standard Oil Company as alleged in plaintiff's petition, was based upon the acquisition of such stock by said Company upon contracts ante-dating the passage of either of said Acts of the Texas Legislature of May 25, 1899, and March 31, 1903, which contracts under which said stock was held, were valid when made and where said stock had its situs, and that both of said Acts of the Legislature of the State of Texas in so far as the same can be held as making this defendant liable to penalties in this suit for said reason, are violative of the Constitution of the United States and of the particular provisions set out in the preceding special answer and of the further provision in said paragraph one of Section Ten of Article 1 which forbids any state to pass ex post facto law, and while denying its liability for anything connected with said former Waters Pierce Oil

152 Company, this defendant, if held thereto, here pleads the invalidity of both of said Acts of the Legislature of the State of Texas relied on as the basis of recovery herein because of their contravention of the Constitution of the United States in the particulars herein set forth, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

28. For further special answer herein, defendant says that if it be true that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, held, owned or controlled any of its stock on March 31, 1903, which it not admitted, but expressly denied, and it be further held that the Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas approved on that day, and which is relied upon by the State as basis of recovery herein, can have legal application to such holding and render this defendant liable to penalties by reason thereof, then this defendant says that said Act is unconstitutional, null and void and cannot be held to include or in any manner affect such holding of stock in this defendant by said Standard Oil Company on or prior to that day, or the continued holding thereof after that date, because if said stock was so held, it was under contracts made prior thereto which were valid when made and with respect to said stock the said Standard Oil Company owned the same under valid contracts and under vested rights, and to attempt to hold this defendant liable to penalties because of such holding of its stock, would deprive defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to it the equal protection of the law in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment thereof, and would impair the obligations of the contract under which said stock was so acquired and held, and would likewise render this defendant, liable because of something occurring prior to the passage of said Act, in violation of paragraph one of Section 10 of Article One of the Constitution of the United States, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

153 29. For further special answer herein, defendants says that the Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved May 25, 1899, and which is relied upon as the sum of recovery against this defendant of penalties in the sum of Five Thousand Dollars for each and every day from the 31st day of May, A. D. 1900, to the 31st day of March A. D. 1903, was and is unconstitutional, null and void, because of its terms and in the construction of its language as applied to the facts alleged in plaintiff's petition, it is so vague, indefinite and uncertain of meaning, that it was and is impossible for defendant in advance of its construction and application to any state of facts by the verdict of a jury and the ruling of the court, to understand its meaning and legal effect, or to know what was lawful and permissible to be done and what was unlawful — prohibited, and therefore said Act is in violation of the Constitution of the United States in that it would, if defendant is convicted of violating it, deprive defendant of its property without due process of law and deny to it the equal protection of the law in contravention of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. And this the defendant is ready to verify.

30. For further special answer herein, defendant says that the said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved May 25, 1899, was and is unconstitutional, null and void, and violative of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of said Section 1 of the 14th Amendment thereof, because at the same session of said Legislature by another Act, approved May 27, 1899, it was provided that it should be lawful for any and all persons engaged in any kind of work of labor, manual, mental, or both, to associate themselves together and form trade unions and other organizations for the purpose of protecting themselves in their personal work, personal
154 labor and personal service in their respective employments, which said last enactment this defendant avers was in legal effect an amendment of said Act of May 25, 1899, and entitled the persons and classes of persons therein designated to form pools, trusts and combinations and thereby created and caused such persons so designated in said later Act an exempt class not bound by the terms of said first Act under which the State seeks to punish defendant in this case, and defendant therefore says because of said exemptions and discriminations, the said Act of the Legislature approved May 25, 1899, if otherwise valid, became null and void and that to hold this defendant amenable to its provisions and subject it to the penalties therein denounced and herein sought to be recovered, would deprive it of its property without due process of law and deny to it the equal protection of the law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

31. For further special answer herein, defendant says that said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved May 25, 1899, was and is unconstitutional, null and void because by its terms it was enacted as cumulative of and in continuation of the prior Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, upon the same subject, approved April 30, 1895, in which said former act it was expressly provided that the terms of said Act should not apply to live stock and agricultural products, in the hands of the producer or raiser, nor to be held or construed to prevent the organization of laborers for the purpose of maintaining any standard of wages, and defendant therefore says by reason of said exemptions and discriminations so made in said Act of April 30, 1895, and continued in force by said Act of May 25, 1899, said last mentioned Act was unconstitutional, null and void and the State of Texas cannot recover penalties
155 against defendant herein, because to so hold and subject this defendant to penalties by reason of said Act, would result in the taking of this defendant's property without due process of law and deny to it the equal protection of the law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

32. For further special answer herein, defendant says that the Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved March 31, 1903, and which is relied upon as the basis of recovery against this defendant, of penalties in the sum of Fifty Dollars for each and every day from the 31st day of March, A. D. 1903, up to the filing of this suit, was and is unconstitutional, null and void, because by its terms and in the construction of its language as applied to the facts alleged in plaintiff's petition it is so vague, indefinite and uncertain of meaning that it was and is impossible for defendant, in advance of its construction and application to any state of facts by the verdict of a jury and the ruling of a court, to understand its meaning and legal effect, or to know what was lawful and permissible to be done, and what was unlawful and prohibited, and therefore said Act is in violation of the Constitution of the United States, in that it would, if defendant is convicted of violating it, deprive defendant of its property without due process of law, and deny to it the equal protection of the law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

33. For further special answer herein, this defendant says that the said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved March 31, 1903, was and is unconstitutional, null and void and violative of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of said Section 1 of said 14th Amendment thereof, because by the terms
156 of said Act all other laws theretofore passed by the Legislature of the State of Texas, upon the same subject were particularly and specifically repealed, except the Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved May 27, 1899, in which said last mentioned Act it was provided that it should be lawful for any and all persons engaged in any kind of work or labor, manual, mental, or both, to associate themselves together and form trades unions and other organizations for the purpose of protecting themselves in their personal work, personal labor and personal service in their respective employments. Defendant here avers that said Act, approved May 27, 1899, was not repealed by said Act of March 31, 1903, and was not intended by the Legislature passing the same, or by the Governor, approving the same, to be so repealed.

34. For further answer herein this defendant says with respect to said Act approved May 27, 1899, that continuously since the passage of said Act approved March 31, 1903, it has been uniformly held and construed by the governor of the State of Texas charged with the enforcement of the laws, and by the Attorney General of said State, charged particularly in said Act of March 31, 1903, with the enforcement thereof, that said Act of May 27, 1899, was not repealed or in any manner affected by said Act of March 31, 1903, and that it was lawful for the persons and classes of persons mentioned in said Act to form pools, trusts, combinations and associations for the purpose of protecting themselves in their personal work, personal labor and personal service, by which contemporaneous and continuous construction it has been held lawful for all classes of persons in the State of Texas, engaged in any kind of employment wherein they perform labor, manual, mental, or both, to form associations and to unite and agree among themselves upon a standard

157 price for the sale of their commodities, wherefore, defendant says that such contemporaneous, uniform and continuous construction of said Act, approved March 31, 1903, must be taken and held as conclusive upon the State of Texas as the true construction and meaning of said Act.

Defendant therefore says that the said Act approved May 27, 1899, is in full force and effect in the State of Texas, and that by its terms and meaning, as above construed and held, it creates an exemption of a large class of persons in the State of Texas, in fact, as defendant here avers, constitutes the great majority of the people of the State of Texas into a class exempt from the provisions of said Act of March 31, 1903 and that by reason thereof said Act of March 31, 1903, is violative of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment thereof, and that to hold defendant liable for the penalties denounced in said Act would deprive it of its property without due process of law, and deny to it the equal protection of the law, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

35. For further special plea, defendant says that the State of Texas ought not to recover against it in this cause because of anything done in alleged violation of either the act approved May 25, 1899, or the act approved March 31, 1903, because of the attempt in each of said Acts to make the penalty for the violation thereof cumulative with a separate penalty for each and every violation thereof on each and every day, because the enforcement of these statutes against this defendant for the things charged in plaintiff's petition would be confiscatory and would result in the infliction of unusual and excessive punishment for the violation of statutes of doubtful meaning, the validity, import and scope of which had not been the subject of judicial construction, and could not be as-158 certained by this defendant or any other person without being subjected to the practical confiscation of its property, while the meaning and scope of such statutes is being judicially ascertained, and defendant therefore says that to uphold said Acts and subject it to penalties as claimed by the State in this cause will result in the infliction upon it of unusual and excessive fines and penalties in violation of Section 13 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas, and deprive it of its property without due process of law, and deny to it the equal protection of the law, in violation of the Constitution of the United States, and particularly of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment thereof, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

36. For further special answer herein defendant says that it is true as alleged in plaintiff's petition that on the 31st day of May, A. D. 1900, the State of Texas, acting by its Secretary of State who had full authority so to do, issued and granted to defendant a permit to transact its business in said State of Texas for the period of ten years from that date, which said permit was then and there so issued in consideration of the sum of One Hundred and Eighty Dollars then paid to the State of Texas by this defendant, the same being the amount of the fees and the amount of the franchise tax properly chargeable against defendant under the laws of said State and due to be paid at the time of the issuance of said permit.

Defendant avers that under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Texas in force at the time that it paid its money to said State as the consideration for said permit, it was provided that defendant should be entitled to conduct its business within the State of Texas for the period of ten years from that date, that is to say, until the 30th day of May, A. D. 1910, the only condition attached and forming part of said permit was that defendant should annually 159 thereafter pay the sum fixed by the laws of said State as an annual franchise tax, and defendant here avers that it has so paid annually and within the time allowed by the laws of the State of Texas for payment, the full sum charged and fixed in said laws as the annual franchise tax due by this defendant upon its said permit. Defendant therefore pleads that by the issuance of said permit and in consideration of the sum then paid to it by this defendant, as above set out, and since paid to it by this defendant as an annual franchise tax, as above alleged, the State of Texas entered into a valid contract with this defendant entitling defendant to conduct its said business within said State of Texas for a period of ten years and until the 30th day of May, A. D. 1910, which said contract is now in full force and effect and obligatory upon the part of the State according to its terms, as herein pleaded.

Defendant further avers that the Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved March 31, 1903, and relied upon by the State as a basis of recovery against this defendant in this cause was passed after the State of Texas entered into said contract and issued its said permit to defendant, and that said act was and is unconstitutional, null and void in all respects wherein it undertakes to limit or restrict the holding and ownership of stock in this defendant, and wherein it undertakes to make the existence and performance of contracts theretofore legal a violation of its terms, and defendant says that the said act has no force as a law in so far as it may be held as affording to the State grounds for the cancellation of its said contract with this defendant, as evidenced by its said permit so issued to defendant, and to allow the State of Texas to cancel said permit upon the grounds or any of the grounds alleged in plaintiff's petition and arising under said Anti-Trust Act of March 31, 1903, would violate the obligation of the contract between the State
160 of Texas and this defendant created by said permit in contravention of paragraph 1, Section 10 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the United States, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

of May, 1900, the common law prevailed and was the rule of action and decision when not repugnant to or inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, the Constitution of the State of Missouri, or the statute law in force in that state for the time being, by virtue of the adoption of the common law by the State of Missouri by Section 4151 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1899, the same being a reproduction and continuation of Section 6161a of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1889; that there was nothing on said 28th day of May, 1900, in the Constitution of the United States, the Constitution of the State of Missouri, or the Statute laws of Missouri, then in force, to which the common law rule permitting the dissolution of private trading corporations by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders was repugnant or with which it was inconsistent, but that on the contrary, by Section 1018 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, in force on said 28th day of May, 1900, there was a distinct recognition and adoption of the common law rule on the subject by prescribing that the president or secretary of every incorporated company in that State, when it shall dis-
161 solve, is required to file with the Secretary of State an affidavit to that effect, and by prescribing certain consequences for the failure to comply with the provisions of said section; that on said 28th day of May, 1900, the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., created and organized on May 7th, 1878, under the laws of the State of Missouri, was a private trading domestic corporation corporation of the State of Missouri, and on that day all of its stockholders, by unanimous vote, determined to dissolve and did dissolve that corporation; that on the 29th day of May, 1900, Andrew M. Finlay, who, until said dissolution, was the president of said Waters Pierce Oil Company of May 7, 1878, filed an affidavit, in compliance with Section 1018 showing in due form the dissolution of said Waters Pierce Oil Company of May 7, 1878, pursuant to the action of all of its stockholders taken on said 28th day of May, 1900, with the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri, and that said affidavit was then and there accepted by that officer, who, by the laws of Missouri, was authorized in the exercise of discretion vested in him to accept said affidavit, and that thereby such dissolution was accepted and ratified by the State of Missouri, as a valid dissolution of said Waters Pierce Oil Company of May 7, 1878; that under the common law rule in force in Missouri such acceptance was not necessary when the dissolution was accomplished by the unanimous vote of all the stockholders, but if defendant is mistaken and such acceptance was necessary, the State of Missouri did accept such dissolution as aforesaid; that having accepted said dissolution of the Waters Pierce Oil Company of May 7, 1878, the State of Missouri, by and through its Secretary of State vested with discretion in respect thereto, issued to this defendant a proper certificate of incorporation under the great seal of that state, showing the incorporation of this defendant by virtue of its 162 charter filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri on May 29, 1900; that the name of this defendant being the same as that of the Waters Pierce Oil Co. of May 7, 1878, the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri was prohibited, by Section 959 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, from issuing to it a certificate of incorporation under the same name and style as that already assumed by the Waters Pierce Oil Co. of May 7, 1878, it is was still an existing corporation, and that the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri was clothed with the discretion to determine whether the proposed new corporation was within the prohibition of said Section 959, and he decided that it was not.

That on said 28th day of May, 1900, there existed another statute of the State of Missouri whereby the common law mode of dissolving a private trading corporation by the unanimous consent of its stockholders was recognized and adopted, to-wit: Section 976 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1899 which was a reproduction and continuation in force of Section 2513g of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1889, whereby it was provided that upon the dissolution of a corporation its president and directors or managers of its affairs should be trustees with power to settle its affairs, collect its outstanding debts and divide its moneys and other property among its stockholders after paying its debts, and as such trustees they were authorized to sue and be sued; that said Article 976 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1899 existed for ten years before the revision of 1899 as Section 2513g of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1889 and for ten years before the incorporation in said Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1899 of Sections 977, 978, 979, 980, and 981, relied upon in plaintiff's petition and existed when the only method of dissolving a corporation in Missouri was the common law 163 mode, and that said Section 976 applied prior to the enactment of said Sections 977, 978, 979, 980 and 981 to the dissolutions accomplished under the common law said Section 1018, and since the enactment of said Sections 977, 978, 979, 980 and 981 it applies to dissolutions accomplished by the one method as well as the other, authorized under the laws of Missouri, and this the defendant is ready to verify.

Wherefore, relying upon each and all of the defenses presented in this answer, this defendant prays that plaintiff take nothing by this suit and that this defendant go hence without day.

164 EXHIBIT A.

vs.
WATERS-PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

NOVEMBER 5TH, 1900.

This day this cause was called for trial; and thereupon came the plaintiff, the State of Texas, by her County Attorney, and also came Andrew M. Finlaw, the intervenor, but the defendant, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, came not; and it appearing to the Court that on, to-wit, the 30th day of October, 1900, Andrew M. Finlay, as intervenor, did file his plea of intervention in this cause, wherein as former president of the defendant company he did advise the Court of the dissolution of said defendant corporation and did attach to his plea of intervention certain exhibits, which plea of intervention is supported by the affidavit of said Andrew M. Finlay; and thereupon the plaintiff, through her County Attorney, did file its application for a continuance of said cause, same being a first application, which application was resisted by the intervenor for insufficiency upon its face; and it appearing to the Court after hearing objections to said application for continuance and being duly advised in the premises, that said application was insufficient in law, the same was overruled; to which action of the Court the plaintiff then and there excepted.

Thereupon came on to be heard the plea of intervenor suggesting the dissolution of defendant company, together with the plaintiff's first supplemental petition in reply thereto, and the exceptions of said intervenor to said first supplemental petition, and the Court after hearing the pleadings, evidence and argument of counsel, is of opinion that the law is with the intervenor.

165 It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed by the Court that plaintiff's exceptions contained in its first supplemental petition to intervenor's plea of intervention, as well as intervenor's exceptions to plaintiff's first supplemental petition, be and the same are hereby overruled; and the Court having heard testimony and being advised in the premises, does consider, order, adjudge and decree that the plea of intervention, filed herein by Andrew M. Finlay be and the same is hereby sustained. And by reason of the dissolution of defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, duly shown in the premises, it is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that this suit be and the same is hereby abated and dismissed; to which ruling of the Court the plaintiff, by its County Attorney, did then and there except, and at the same time gave notice of appeal in open Court to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas.

(Endorsed:) No. 24,551. State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. Defendant's 3rd Amended Original Answer. Filed May 8th, 1907, D. J. Pickle, Clerk.

166 Order of Exceptions.

24551.

WATERS PIERCE OIL CO.

And now on this the 10th day of May, A. D. 1907, came the parties by their respective attorneys, and thereupon came on to be heard the defendant's exceptions to plaintiff's amended original petition, and same having been argued and submitted and being fully understood the court is of the opinion that same should all be overruled except special exception number 70, which should be sustained;

It is therefore ordered that all of said defendant's exceptions be and are overruled except special exception number 70 which is by the Court sustained.

To which action and ruling of the Court the said defendant except in so far as such ruling is against it.

167 Application for Change of Venue.

Filed May 13th, 1907.

In the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District.

No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
v.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Now comes the Waters Pierce Oil Company, the defendant in the above entitled and numbered cause, by its attorneys, and moves the court to grant to it a change of venue in this case, and for reason therefor shows to the court:

That there exists in Travis County, where this suit is pending, so great a prejudice against this defendant that it cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial in this county.

As a part of this motion and in support thereof defendant attaches hereto, and asks to be considered as a part hereof the affidavit of Sam Harlan, an agent of the defendant residing in Travis County, and the affidavits of C. H. Allen, Gus Felder, Jas. E. Lucy and J. C. Adrian, four credible persons residing in Travis County, and each showing that there exists in this county so great a prejudice against this defendant that it cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial of this cause in this county.

Defendant further shows to the court that the venue of this cause should not be changed to Williamson County, the court house of which is nearest to the court house of Travis County, for the reason that said Williamson County is subject to an objection sufficient to authorize a change of venue of this cause from said county in the first instance, in this: That there exists in Williamson County so great a prejudice against this defendant that it could not 168 obtain a fair and impartial trial in said county; defendant attaches hereto, and in support hereof the affidavit of R. E. Lauck, its local agent at Taylor, in Williamson County, Texas, and the affidavits of James A. Thompson, Howard Bland and S. G. Yakey, three credible persons and residents of Williamson County, each showing that there exists in said Williamson County so great a prejudice against this defendant that it could not obtain a fair and impartial trial of this cause in said county.

Wherefore, this defendant moves the court to change the venue of this cause from this county to some county other than Williamson County.

It is therefore ordered by the Court that the said application of the defendant for a change of venue of this cause be and is hereby now overruled and a change of venue is refused.

WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Be it remembered that on the hearing of the defendant's application for a change of venue in this case, on to-wit: the 14th day of May, A. D. 1907, C. J. Johnson, being sworn as a witness on the hearing of said application for change of venue, testified that he was the foreman of the grand jury of the District Court of Travis County, Texas, at the September Term, A. D. 1906, in and for the Fifty-third Judicial District, being the grand jury which returned the indictment against H. C. Pierce charging him with the offense of false swearing;

And be it further remembered that thereupon the defendant offered to prove by said witness, C. J. Johnson, that said grand jury which returned said indictment had no evidence before it before returning said indictment other than the original affidavit upon which the said indictment was predicated, and heard no testimony showing or tending to show that the statement contained in said affidavit, or any of them, were false.

And be it further remembered that to the introduction of said evidence the State objected on the ground that to permit the said witness to so testify would violate the secrecy of the proceedings of the grand jury, and would violate the oath of said witness as 179 a grand juror and which objections were sustained by the Court and the Court refused to permit defendant to prove said facts by said witness, and to which action and ruling of the Court the defendant then and there excepted, and here now tenders this its bill of exception to said action of the Court, and asks that the same be allowed and ordered filed and made a part of the record of this cause.

Examined and allowed this 29th day of June, 1907, with the following explanation, the evidence mentioned in the bill was excluded because the undersigned thought it contrary to public policy to go into an inquiry involving a disclosure of the proceedings by which the Grand Jury had found an indictment. I do not know whether, if the ruling had been otherwise, the defendant could have shown what it offered to show or not. But in passing upon the motion for a change of venue I assumed that it could have done so and that what it offered to prove concerning the matter mentioned in the bill was a fact.

Be it remembered that on the hearing of the defendant's application for a change of venue in this case, on, to-wit: the 14th day of May, A. D. 1907, H. M. And be it further remembered that to the introduction of said evidence the State objected on the ground that to permit the said witness to so testify would violate the secrecy of the proceed-
181 ings of the grand jury, and would violate the oath of said witness as a grand juror, and which objections were sustained by the Court and the Court refused to permit defendant to prove said facts by said witness ,and to which action and ruling of the Court the defendant then and there excepted, and here now tenders this its bill of exception to said action of the Court, and asks that the same be allowed and ordered filed and made a part of the record of this cause.

(Endorsed:) No. 24551. The State of Texas vs. Waters Pierce Oil Co. Defendant's Bill of Exceptions No. 6. Filed June 29, 1907. D. J. Pickle, Clerk.

182 Defendant's Bill of Exceptions No. 7.

Filed June 29, 1907.

In the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District.

No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Be it remembered that on May 13th, A. D. 1907, and before either party to the above entitled and numbered cause had announced ready for trial, the defendant, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, filed in said cause and duly presented to the Court its application for a change of venue in said cause, which said application for change of venue, together with the endorsements thereon, is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

In the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District.

No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
WATERS-PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Now comes, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the defendant in the above entitled and numbered cause, by its attorneys, and moves the Court to grant to it a change of venue in this case, and for reason therefor shows to the Court:

That there exists in Travis County, where this suit is pending, so great a prejudice against this defendant that it cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial in this county.

As a part of this motion and in support thereof defendant attaches hereto, and asks to be considered as a part hereof the affi-

183 davit of Sam Harlan, an agent of the defendant residing in Travis County, and the affidavits of C. H. Allen, Gus Felder, Jas. E. Lucy and J. C. Adrian, four credible persons residing in Travis County, and each showing that there exists in this County so great a prejudice against this defendant that it cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial of this cause in this County.

Defendant further shows to the Court that the venue of this cause should not be changed to Williamson County, the Court House of which is nearest to the Court House of Travis County, for the reason that said Williamson County is subject to an objection sufficient to authorize a change of venue of this cause from said county in the first instance, in this: That there exists in Williamson County so great a prejudice against this defendant that it could not obtain a fair and impartial trial in said county; defendant attaches hereto, and in support hereof the affidavit of R. E. Lauck, its local agent at Taylor, in Williamson County, Texas, and the affidavits of James A. Thompson, Howard Bland and S. G. Yakey, three credible persons, and residents of Williamson County, each showing that there exists in said Williamson County so great a prejudice against this defendant that it could not obtain a fair and impartial trial of this cause in said County.

Wherefore, this defendant moves the Court to change the venue of this cause from this County to some County other than Williamson County.

(Endorsed:) "No. 24,551. The State of Texas vs. Waters Pierce Oil Co. Plaintiff's Answer to Application for Change of Venue. Filed May 13th, 1907. D. J. Pickle, Clerk."

195 And be it further remembered that said application for change of venue thereupon came on to be heard by the Court, upon the issues joined by said application and plaintiff's said answer thereto, and that upon the hearing of said application, beginning May 13th, 1907, and concluding May 17th, 1907, evidence was introduced and heard by the Court, and that the following is a true and correct statement of all of the material evidence introduced and heard by the Court upon the hearing of said application for change of venue, to-wit:—

JOHN E. SHELTON, a witness for the Defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is John E. Shelton. I have lived in Travis County, about twenty-five years, and am now engaged in the practice of law, and am also Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Travis County, having occupied this position now for a little more than three years. I attended the meeting of the last Democratic Convention of the State of Texas, and was present when nominations were made by that convention for United States Senator, which resulted in the nomination of Mr. Bailey. Opposition arose to Mr. Bailey which resulted in the holding of primary elections in Travis County to instruct our Representatives to vote for or against Mr. Bailey; but how much of this opposition arose subsequent to the State Democratic Convention and the nomination of Mr. Bailey by that convention, I do not know. Personally, I was opposed to Mr. Bailey all the time. The result of the primary elections held in Travis County was that our Representatives were instructed to vote against Mr. Bailey. I do not know by what majority, but it was a substantial majority, and I did all in my power to get a majority against Mr. Bailey. I do not know the number of votes polled in the primary elections, and could not at this time even approximate the number. I do not know the basis of the 196 opposition to Mr. Bailey, generally, but I was opposed to him because I didn't think he was an honest man. The principal public objection to Mailey, in my opinion, was what cropped out as to his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and among the people I have heard express themselves, this objection involved the opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust or a monopoly, and that it was re-admitted to the State by fraud. The campaign prior to the elections held in this County for the purpose of instructing our Representatives, became rather warm, and the opponents of Mr. Bailey were vigorous in their opposition to him; and it developed that the substantial portion of the opposition to Mr. Bailey was due to his alleged connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the belief that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust or a monopoly and was re-admitted into the State by fraud; some of the opposition, however, was on account of the fact that he was not thought to be honest. I do not know for certain the relative strength of the Democratic party in Texas, with reference to the total voting population, but since the Terrell Election Law has gone into effect I think the average is about three to one; before that it was sometimes the other way. In the campaign that took place prior to the election held early in January last I heard a good many persons express themselves with reference to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust or monopoly and that its re-admission into the State was a fraud, but I must admit that most of my discussions were either Bailey or anti-Bailey. As to the concensus of opinion among the people I talked to about that matter at that time, it was generally believed that it was a trust; I can't call to mind any who didn't think it was a trust. Since last Monday or possibly Friday a week ago, I have discussed the question with possibly three hundred and twenty people; 197 they were people from all over the county, we having had a special venire here and I talked with as many as I could from different portions of the County. With almost every man I talked I asked the direct question with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and the great majority thought it was a trust. In a general way, from what I read in the local newspapers, which published daily reports of the testimony and other proceedings in the Bailey Investigation, I was familiar with the Investigation which was had in the Legislature concerning Mr. Bailey. The greater portion of the excitement over the matter, terminated with the Primary Election, that is the people quit talking about it so much. I quit talking about it myself, and people quit coming to me to talk about it.

The way I came to talk about the matter with a number of people a week or ten days ago, was at the request of Judge Penn. He came to see me, I think it was a week ago Wednesday, and asked me for a list of the members of the Anti-Bailey Club and also a poll list. He then wanted to know if I could take the time to talk to some of the people and see what I could find out, but I said I couldn't, as I would be busy in the Richards case. He said that that would be about the best opportunity I could get, and asked me to interview as many people as I could, which I did. I also spent one day in Manor for the special purpose of finding out what opinion the people in that section held on the question. There was no agreement entered into between us as to the compensation I was to get for this work, but I expected then, and now expect, to get paid for the work.

I do not remember the length of time the campaign was on, but we cut it as short as we could. I number of speeches were made here in Austin. Judge Terrell spoke against Mr. Bailey, as did Mr. Taylor Moore, and I also made a speech one night at the Court House. I heard part of Mr. Moore's speech, but didn't 198 lis en closely and do not remember the arguments he advanced. Mr. Moore at one time was District Attorney for this District, and also represented Travis County in the Legislature for a number of years; he is the father-in-law of Mr. Cullen Thomas, of Waco. I did not hear Judge Terrell's speech. I advanced the argument in my speech, that Senator Bailey was dishonest, and that I thought he was connected with the re-admission of the trust. We divided our argument, and I presume that Mr. Moore took the part that the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into the Texas was a fraud. We had a good crowd at the Court House that night, the speeches were well received and with much applause. I believe that speech at the Court House was the only one I made, and I attended no speaking at any other portion of the county. Mr. Cocke, the gentleman who later preferred charges against Mr. Bailey in the Legislature, was sent by us to Pflugerville and Dessau to make speeches, and Mr. Cocke also spoke here in Austin. I am not certain whether or not Mr. Cocke spoke at Manor; there were so many appointments, I didn't keep them all in mind.

The call for a Primary Election in Travis County to instruct the Representatives to vote for or against Mr. Bailey was brought about by the sending of a postal card, which was printed at my suggestion, to each of the 46 or 47 members of the Executive Committee of Travis County. The Postal card stated that if the members of the Committee wanted the Primary Election to sign the card and return it. I do not remember now how many joined in the request, but a large majority of them did so. I have the cards, but am not sure.

In my investigation made during the last week or ten days I heard about two hundred or two hundred and fifty men express themselves with reference to the question as to whether or not such prejudice existed in Travis County against the Waters Pierce
199 Oil Company that it could not get a fair trial, to the effect that individually they had their minds made up; at least this was the expression of a great majority of them. I went to the best men I knew because I wanted to find out just what the sentiment was, and these men were from all over the county. My advice was that it was not necessary to make this investigation but that the desired information could be had by taking the poll list and selecting a number of men indiscriminately and examining them in regard to the matter.

From my knowledge of conditions in this county during the campaign, and from what I have heard since and from my general knowledge, I believe it would be possible to secure a jury of unprejudiced men in Travis County for the trial of this case, but I don't see how it could be done in the way juries are ordinarily selected. Now, I found this, that among the Swedish people, a number of them said in their discussions with me, that they hadn't read enough on the question to form an opinion; but they were about the only people I spoke to who hadn't read about it and discussed it, and had made up their minds.

I was not present in the House of Representatives and did not hear Representative Duncan make a speech in the Legislature against Mr. Bailey.

Cross-examination:

I consider myself in the employ of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I think there are about six thousand voters in Travis County, counting all who have paid their poll taxes and all who are exempt from the payment of a poll tax. As to whether or not they are qualified voters, I can not say, but I suppose there isn't much difference, that is, that there are about as many qualified voters as there are qualified jurors. Out of the 6,000 I think at least 5,900 are honest men, but I don't see how you could get twelve jurors 200 who hadn't made up their minds and formed opinions on the subject. I talked to about three hundred people within the last week or ten days, that is, about five per cent. of the whole number.

From my discussions with parties at Manor, I do not think you could find twelve men there who hadn't made up their minds. I spoke to about forty or fifty men, among them being Mr. Wolf, Justice of the Peace, Mr. W. B. Raney, Mr. J. H. Allison, I am not sure, but I think I talked the question over with Mr. A. K. Anderson; also Dr. Hill, Mr. Wentland, and the other young man in the drug store; I talked to a young doctor who has recently come there from Bell County,—I can't think of his name; I talked to Mr. Jack Follmer and Mr. Victor Anderson, and many others whose names I can't recall at this time. I estimate that there — about 200 voters at the Manor box; possibly a few more. I now recall talking also to Mr. C. C. Kuempel, Mr. Nelson Houser, Theodore Westbrook, C. C. Baker and Mr. Shuberg, but I don't remember whether I mentioned this question to Mr. Shuberg or not. It is too hard to recall any other names, unless some one should suggest them to me; there were about fifty in all. I do not remember the substance of my conversation with Mr. Wolf; just remember that I asked him the general question. I would bring it up in this way: I asked him if the matter had been discussed, and he said it had; and I asked then if from his discussions he didn't think practically the whole community had its mind made up as to whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust or not, and he said he was of the opinion that such was the case. He said he didn't think there could be a trial without a change of venue. I had practically the same conversation with Mr. Follmer, Mr. Raney, Dr. Hill, and all of the others I spoke to about it. I overlooked one other person I talked to, namely, Buck 201 Christian. To a certain extent my questions were leading, but I didn't ask them direct if they thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I just asked their general opinion from what they read and heard, whether they thought it was a trust, and nearly every one said it was not only a trust, but frankly stated that they would not believe Mr. Pierce and his associates on oath.

In my conversation with these men I would ask if in their opinion it wouldn't be a little difficult to get a fair trial or in this county, and some said it would be, while a few said it would not be,—Mr. Christian and Mr. Allison being of the latter opinion. Mr. Baker said he thought it was a trust, and that he didn't think a jury could be gotten. Mr. Houser's conversation I can only recall generally, and I think he said that they could not secure a jury. I am not quite sure as to what every one said, but most of them I can remember. I kept a memorandum of the names of all the persons I spoke to about this matter, but indicated in this memorandum no more than whether they were favorable or unfavorable. This memorandum I turned over to Judge Penn.

Mr. Kuempel stated that in his community at Germania Hall, he had heard the question discussed a good deal, and in substance said he didn't think they could get a jury that would not be prejudiced one way or the other, that is, if a man had been a rank Bailey man, he would be in his favor, and if he were an anti-Bailey man he would be unfavorable.

I do not know how many people voted in the Bailey election. It was a comparatively small vote; nothing like the full strength of the county. I do not think there was fifty per cent. of the Democratic vote of the county polled, in spite of a rather warm campaign; and I was surprised that the Bailey people turned out so strong, and that the anti-Bailey people did not. At the Manor box, which was carried by Mr. Bailey by a large majority, the vote was less than 202 fifty per cent. of the total vote. The vote in the county at large was smaller than the vote in town, and at some of the boxes, three or four, for instance, Carl, Garfield, and Bee Cave, no election at all was held.

From Bee Cave, I talked to two people,—Mr. Bohls and Mr. Eugene Harrison. At Del Valle I talked to J. B. Norwood, George Ecklund, J. B. Smith and Dr. Shapard. All except Dr. Shapard told me they didn't thing a fair trial could be had in this county; Dr. Shapard would not express an opinion because his brother-in-law was in the case.

At Webberville I remember talking only to Mr. Manor; I think I spoke to Mr. Ingram at Garfield, but am not sure. If I did his name is on the list which I prepared for the purpose of issuing subpœnas.

Taking the other part of the county—at Pflugerville I spoke to Mr. Henry Bohls, Mr. Crowley, Mr. Blackman, and I believe to Mr. Ernest Pfluger, but as to the latter I am not certain. Mr. Crowley said positively he didn't think they could get a fair trial. I don't remember what Mr. Blackman said.

At Merrilltown I talked to Mr. C. S. True; and he said the people's minds were made up, to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and that a jury could not be secured. He said they based their opinion on what they heard and read. I do not believe there is a man in the county who has read the papers and has discussed the matter, who doesn't think the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, just as it is generally believed that the Standard Oil Company is a trust. I would ask this question: Now if in the trial of this case you were taken on the jury, do you believe that you could give as much credence to the people testifying in favor of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as to the others, and almost all inhesitatingly they would not. I do not believe from the way I look at the 203 matter, that substantially all the intelligent people of Travis County believe that the Standard Oil Company and the Waters Pierce Oil Company are a trust, but I believe a good many people think that, and I think a similar belief exists in every other county in the State. Any number of the people I talked to said that if they came here and took the oath as jurors, they would refuse to give justice to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and many said they would not believe the bunch on oath.

In my own box, I think we vote about seventy-five, and I do not thing you could get twelve jurors from my box who would not come with the expectation of a conviction and intending to convict, unless there was strong proof to the contrary. This belief I predicate on the conversations I had with those people during the Bailey controversy and since. I will give the names of the following of my neighbors who I have no doubt are disqualified as jurors: W. D. Miller, W. C. Redd, E. P. Albrecht, H. Maud, Mr. Huebsch, I have forgotten his first name; he runs a confectionery store in South Austin; Bob Weyerman; John Wende, J. W. Templar, Will Paggi, and J. W. Blattner. My opinion that these men are disqualified as jurors is based on the idea that every intelligent person who has read the papers and discussed this matter, believes that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and has his mind made up and could not be fair towards the company in a trial, even if he should try to be. I am of the opinion that if you took the poll list of the county and examined men indiscriminately, you would arrive at the same conclusion with regard to the whole county. Taking this view of the matter, I admit I haven't any idea as to how the State is going to get a trial in this case, as practically the same condition exists in other parts of the State. In some, take Hays County, for instant, it is even worse then in Travis County.

204 I do not believe there are two hundred jurors in this county who have never heard of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I do not know that I have qualified as an expert witness in this case, but I do not think that out of the witnesses who have been summoned in this matter, that there are at least twelve who would qualify as jurors in this case, although there are a number of those witnesses I have never seen about the matter or spoken to about it. I did not hear the controverting affidavit read in this matter. I do not believe that it is possible that I came to a wrong conclusion about what Mr. Houser, Mr. Bob Wolf, Mr. Baker and the other parties from Manor said about this matter; and if they should swear here in court that they could give the defendant a fair trial, I would believe they had changed their minds since they spoke to me. I am not mistaken as to what Mr. Wolf and Mr. Baker said, because I talked to them too long, and remember it all very well.

My purpose in making the investigation was to find out if there was a prejudgment in this case. My questions were not so shaped that it would be easy for them to acquiesce in what I asked; I wanted to honestly find a man who, if he made a statement to me, would make the same statement to any one else. I asked the people from both sides, Bailey and anti-Bailey, and not only those who I thought were going to be favorable to us. I wanted to talk to as many as I could find who would say the Waters Pierce Oil Company couldn't get a fair trial, but not as many as three or four hundred, and if I saw a man across the street whom I did not think would make a reply favorable to my client, I would let him alone and not ask him his opinion; I also wanted to know this for my own satisfaction, as well as to give service to my client. I was not interested in the least in their getting the case continued indefinitely.

I do not say that the campaign was a campaign against the 205 Waters Pierce Oil Company, but against Mr. Bailey. His connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company was the cause of part of the opposition to him; but with me, I was opposed to him because I didn't think he was honest in general. I do not know that a great many other people voted against him for the same reason, and without reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. The only one I am certain about in this regard is myself.

From the Summit community I think I talked to Mr. Peyton and I remember talking to a man by the name of Parmer, and my conclusion as to that community is based on my conversation with those two men. I think there are about 24 votes at Summit.

From Dessau I spoke to Will Nehring. He said he was chairman of the box in the Bailey campaign, and he thought the people had their minds made up. My conclusions as to Dessau are based on what he told me.

I do not remember seeing anybody from Sprinkle. I spoke to Judge Penn about who lived there, and mentioned some he could have summoned. If one of those people were to say that they could get twelve good men for the case from there, I should think he had better knowledge of his community than I have, or he ought to have. Taking it generally, Mr. Houser at Manor ought to have better information about that than I have, but if he hasn't talked to any more there than I have, he couldn't have a better opinion than I have. This same statement applies to Mr. Kuempel and Mr. Baker.

From Manchaca, I spoke to Mr. Carpenter, who runs a gin out there, and is well known in that section, and is an intelligent man.

I don't remember talking to any body from Carl, but I don't think there are twelve men there who could qualify as jurors in this 206 case. I know Bob Lee, and if he said he could qualify, I believe he could. Knowing him as well as I do, if he said you could get a certain number of honest jurors at Carl, I would be inclined to think that you could.

From Oakhill I saw the two Pattons and Mr. Dave Beckett. The substance of my conversation with them was that they didn't think there was any chance to get a fair and impartial trial.

From Pecan Springs, I talked to Mr. Cagle. I thought Mr. Cloud was from there, but he told me afterwards he lived in the city.

I don't remember talking to anybody from the Fourth Ward here in the City. It is an extra large ward, having something like 600 voters. I will state that I made it a point to speak to people from the country, and talked to very few of the city people. I remember talking to Mr. R. C. Burleson of the third ward. I don't remember talking to anybody from the second ward. Mr. Burleson didn't attempt to express any opinion about his ward. I live in the First Ward, but outside of Mr. Capron, I don't remember talking to any one about this matter lately. I don't know if I talked to anybody in the 5th ward. I didn't talk to any one in the Sixth Ward. Abe Frank talked to me. From the seventh ward, the old tenth ward, I spoke to Mr. John Durst. I remember he and I were discussing the matter, probably he brought it up, but outside of him I don't remember any other person, that is, since I have been making this investigation.

There are more than three thousand voters here in the city, nearly four thousand according to the last poll list. I have talked to about 300 people, not only since I have started making this investigation, but during the Bailey campaign. I talked to them with reference to the Bailey opposition and taking the whole thing in connection.

I do not remember haw many of the people in the city voted 207 in the Bailey election, but there was a greater per cent. than in the county. The campaign was more hotly contested in the city than in the country. The Bailey people were more active than I wanted to see them. Senator Bailey himself was here and made several speeches. Senator Barret spoke for him in the county. I don't remember whether any local people spoke for Mr. Bailey, except that Mr. Francis spoke for him; I had forgot-en about that. Mr. Wynne of Fort Worth, spoke for Mr. Bailey at the Court House. But notwithstanding all that, less than 50% of all the voters in the county turned out at the election.

Redirect examination:

The opinion already expressed by me to the Court that a jury of fair and impartial men could not be gotten in this county, was entertained by me before I made this recent investigation, but this investigation has strengthened that opinion considerably.

I was not present in other counties of the State, but I read some of the press reports last fall and winter with reference to the Bailey matter. I remember that Comanche County held an election to instruct its representatives to vote for or against Mr. Bailey. Outside of Travis and Comanche Counties, no other counties in the State held such elections. There was some talk of one at Waco, but no election was held there.

I think it would be possible to get honest men to sit on the jury in this case, as I told Mr. Batts, who would try to give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair and impartial trial, but from my conversations with the people and what I know of my own knowledge, I believe they would be so prejudiced that they could not in fact give the company a fair trial.

208 Recross examination:

Personally I could not and would not take the oath as a juror in this case, because my convctions are so firm they could not be changed; and it would be impossible for me to attempt to decide the case on the facts. I am of the idea that most of the people of the county are so shaped up mentally as to take the same attitude I do; that when they once set their heads, they are set. It is my opinion that from the many people in this Court room now, it would be impossible to get a fair and impartial jury for this case. I do not think they would be able to do that which the law requires them to do, that is, to disregard any previous notions and decide the case on the evidence adduced before them.

D. J. PICKLE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I am District Clerk of Travis County. I have with me an indictment returned by the Grand Jury of the 53rd Judicial District at the September Term, 1906, against H. C. Pierce, charging him with false swearing.

(The defendant here introduced in evidence the said indictment, being an indictment charging H. C. Pierce with false swearing for making the affidavit set out in the plaintiff's petition in this case, alleged to have been made at the time the Waters Pierce Oil Company obtained its permit to do business in Texas, on May 31, 1900.

The State objected to the introduction in evidence of said indictment, as immaterial. The Court overruled said objection, and admitted said indictment in evidence, but stated that it could not permit the indictment to be filed in this case).

209 JEFFERSON JOHNSON, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is Jefferson Johnson. I live in Austin. Have lived in the town about seventeen years. I was foreman of the Grand Jury of the 53rd Judicial District at the September Term, 1906, which returned an indictment against H. C. Pierce, charging him with false swearing. I do not remember the names of the other Grand Jurors. I remember the finding of that indictment against H. C. Pierce.

J. B. NORWOOD, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is J. B. Norwood. I live at Del Valle, in this County, about six miles from Austin, on the south side of the river. I have lived there twenty years. I am pretty well acquainted with the people in that community. I have always heard the Waters Pierce Oil Company spoken of as a trust by the people in my community; but I don't know that I have heard it spoken of as operating in the State in violation of the law. I mean that the people generally regard it as being a trust. I can't say how often I have heard the people in that community express themselves with reference to it; I don't think I ever heard it spoken of in any other way but as a trust.

I am acquainted in other portions of the county. I can't be positive that I have heard people in other portions of the county discuss the matter as to how they regard it. I may have done so, but don't remember now. I have never heard anybody anywhere say that it was not a trust.

210 Cross-examination:

I can't say that the matter has excited a great deal of attention in my neighborhood recently. I can't tell how many people I have heard discuss it within the last few weeks. I can't say that I heard any. At the time of the Bailey trial it was discussed often. I cannot be positive that there has been no discussion since that time. I cannot mention any persons I have heard speak of it as a trust. I don't recall any particular individual I have heard speak of it as a trust. I don't think I have heard anybody in my neighborhood say that the defendant cannot get a fair trial in this county. I don't think I have. I don't know that there is any such feeling in my neighborhood as would prevent them from getting a fair and impartial trial. I don't know how the people feel about it. So far as I know, the defendant could get a fair and impartial trial. I have heard them speak of it as a trust, and expressing their opinion. As to whether or not they could get a fair trial, being spoken of by them, I can't say. I have heard them speak of it this morning as a trust. I don't recall any instances where I heard any one in my neighborhood say anything about their not getting a fair and impartial trial. I can't say that in my judgment they can get a fair and impartial trial. I can't say that I know of anything to indicate that they could not get a fair and impartial trial in this county.

Redirect examination:

I understand that jurors are selected first by a Jury Commission. I understand that the parties to the case have the right to examine them with reference to this qualification; that each party to a civil case is entitled to six challenges, peremptory, without assigning any cause; that if a jury is not selected out of a regular panel, 211 then the sheriff is sent out to summon talesmen to complete the jury; that each party is entitled to have on the jury men who have no bias in their favor or prejudice against them. With the preliminary statements made to me that the word prejudice, as defined by our courts, means a prejudgment of a case or of the issues of a case; and that one of the issues in this case is as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, taking into consideration the way juries are impaneled, and what the parties are entitled to, together with the statement I have made that the people have expressed themselves that it is a trust, I think it would be difficult to get a jury for this case, if the question of the Waters Pierce Oil Company's being a trust is involved as one of the issues. As to whether the people generally have prejudged this question as to its being a trust, I believe most of them in my community have the opinion that it is a trust. I say most of them; there is quite a number.

I believe my box voted anti-Bailey in the Primary election held about the first of January. The basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey was his connection with this oil business; I mean the Waters Pierce Oil Company matter.

Recross examination:

I don't know how many people vote at my box. I think there are from 150 to 200. I cannot indicate the number of persons I have heard speak of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust. I can't say positively that I have heard ten. It is just the impression left on my mind. We have frequently talked it over at the mail box and other places, but I can't say definitely how many have spoken to me about it. I can't say whether it was more or less than 212 fifty. I could not call a single name.

I think the people in my community, or a majority of them, assume the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust; that is their opinion. I do not recall hearing any one suggest or say that he could not return an impartial verdict in this case. I do not think that in my conversation with these people, any one has undertaken to define what a trust is; they just speak of it in a general was as the Oil Trust, just as they speak of the Sugar Trust or Steel Trust, and without undertaking to pass on the specific facts in this matter. As to whether or not they regard the Waters Pierce Oil Company as operating in violation of law, they generally regard it as violating the law. They think any trust is in violation of law, especially the Oil Trust, because they do business with that. Hardly a week passes that they don't buy oil. They do not differentiate between a trust that violates the laws of Texas and a trust that violates the laws of some other State or of the United States.

Redirect examination:

The general impression with reference to any trust is that it is in violation of law. That is the impression and my recollection.

D. B. MATTHEWS, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I am living here in the city. I have lived in Travis County 47 years; I was born here. I am well acquainted in the eastern portion of the county, from here going down the river, through Hornsby and Webberville. I am somewhat acquainted through the Del Valle and Garfield communities. Among my associates the general sentiment is that the Waters Pierce Oil Co. is a trust and operating 213 in Texas in violation of law. Some of my associates are here in town and some are up and down the river, that is between here and Webberville. The general concensus of opinion is that is is a trust; they recognize it in their minds as being a trust. I do not believe I have ever heard any one express a contrary opinion. I have, in a general way, heard the matter discussed frequently.

I was in the county during the campaign preliminary to the primary election held about the first of January of this year, to instruct the Representatives from this county to vote for or against Mr. Bailey for United States Senator. Judging from the result of the primary, the sentiment was against Mr. Bailey. So far as I know, the basis of the opposition against Mr. Bailey was that he had been instrumental in the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into the State of Texas.

I have acted on Jury Commissions. Taking into consideration the way juries are selcted, that is, that a jury is primarily summoned by a jury commission; the men are selected for a week; that usually a number are excused, and others are disqualified; that the parties to the suit are entitled to examine them with reference to their bias or prejudice, one way or another; that the parties to a civil suit are entitled to six peremptory challenges each; and taking into consideration that prejudice within the meaning of the law means prejudgment of a case, or prejudgment of any of the material issues in a case—I say, taking all this into consideration, so far as my judgment is concerned, I think it would be a rather hard matter to get a jury that would give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair and impartial trial. I mean by that a jury that would not have prejudiced the case.

I have lived in Travis County 47 years, with the exception of two years, namely, 1891 and 1892. I cannot recall a single case 214 during my residence in Travis County, pending in the courts here, which had been the subject of as much general discussion as this case. I cannot recall any case that approached it with reference to the amount of general discussion.

Cross-examination:

I have talked to and heard the conversations of a few men living on the other side of the river. Where I heard the discussions was probably in public gatherings, and heard the matter discussed generally, and arrived at an opinion from what I heard the people say. I do not recall anything in particular.

I don't think that most of the people took much stock in the election held with reference to Mr. Bailey; at least, a good many people did not. I suppose the principal objection to Mr. Bailey was that many people considered him dishonest in his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I never heard any one say he was dishonest outside of that. It might have been that a good many of the laboring people voted against him because of his opposition to the eight-hour law; it might have been that a good man- voted against him in an ignorant way. I consider it a very hard task to get a jury. I would not like to consider it as an improbability to secure a jury. It would be probale that a court could get a jury out of the jurors of Travis County.

Redirect examination:

I could not say for certain whether I read in the Austin Statesman, about December 1st, an open letter addressed by Attorney General Davidson to Senator Bailey, beginning about as follows: "For more than six years the people of Texas have lived under the shadow of the wrongs perpetrated," etc.

215 ED. TAYLOR, a witness for the defendant, testified as follows:

I live near Webberville. I have lived in Travis County about thirty-nine years. I have lived from Austin down to Webberville, on this side of the river, that is, by way of Hornsby's Bend. I have lived half way between here and Webberville, and back at Webberville, and I am pretty well acquainted between Webberville and Austin.

I think I have heard within the last six months some discussions of this Waters Pierce case, or of the Waters Pierce Oil Company in connection with Senator's Bailey's race for the United States Senate. A good many people have the opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I don't know that I have ever heard any one express a contrary opinion. During the Bailey investigation I heard a good deal said about its operating in Texas in violation of law. I believe it was generally believed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company got back into Texas six years ago under false pretenses. I think that is the opinion of the people generally. I mean of the people between Austin and Webberville that I have heard express themselves. I have not heard people from other portions of the county express themselves. I hardly ever cross the river, and from here to Webberville is about the only portion of the county in which I have discussed the matter. I have no interest whatever in this case.

Cross-examination:

As to whether or not the defendant could get a fair trial in this county ,would depend a good deal on the jury. There are plenty of men in the county that could try the case fairly, if you got the right men. And there are a good many that wouldn't. It would 216 be a hard matter to get a jury where there is such a great prejudice. I think there is a very strong prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I don't pretend to say there are not plenty of honest men in the county that wouldn't try any case fairly, but I must say there is a very strong prejudice in the county against the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

I can't say how many of the six thousand jurors in the County I have talked with about this matter. I am right smart of a politician when I get out. I was a Bailey man and consequently I had a good deal to say about it in Austin and down the river, and I have heard a good many expressions. I couldn't begin to say how many people I talked to about it. I couldn't say whether or not it was a hundred. For a good while it was a general talk here. While the Bailey investigation was going on, there was a great deal said by different parties. I could recall a good many parties with whom I talked. I heard several at Webberville who voted for Mr. Bailey because they thought Mr. Bailey was the candidate of the Democratic party, and had been endorsed by the convention. I don't know that I could recall very many names. I don't care to mention any names. I could give the defendant a fair trial myself. The prejudice which exists is not with the Bailey people as much as with the anti-Bailey people. The Bailey people are freer from prejudice than the other side. I could fairly try the case, and I could select twelve men I could try this case or any other case with. Even among those I have heard express themselves, I could find twelve men who could fairly try this case.

VICTOR ANDERSON, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

I live in Manor; I have lived there twenty-six years. I am engaged in farming. I live a little piece from Manor, about 217 two miles, and during the past six months I have been in Manor almost every week. I live northwest of Manor. Occasionally I have heard the people in my community discuss this Waters Pierce Oil Case and Mr. Bailey's connection with it, but not much. Occasionally some of the people expressed themselves as believing the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, but not that it is violating the law. I understand a trust to be a combination in violation of law, but I never heard the people in my section use that expression. They just refer to it as a trust. I have never heard any one say it is not a trust.

Cross-examination:

I should think the defendant could get a fair and impartial trial in this county.

Redirect examination:

I cannot tell how the people think about this matter in any other community than my own. I believe they are a trust. I couldn't tell whether a fair and impartial trial would mean a conviction of them, until I heard the evidence. There is very little said about this matter among the Swedish people. They don't think much of Mr. Bailey himself. I have no particular reason for opposing Mr. Bailey. I expect the reason for opposing him is because they charge him with working for the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

J. W. RUTLEDGE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

I live in Hyde Park. I have lived in Travis County for forty years. I am best acquainted in the western, northwestern 218 part of the county. I lived in that portion of the county before coming to Austin. I have been living in the city about fifteen years. Within the last six months I have heard discussions of the Waters Pierce Oil Company with reference to this case and to Senator Bailey's race for the United States Senate. I have heard expressions of opinion among the people of this county with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company's being a trust. I think it is generally understood with most every one that it is a trust. I have never heard any one deny it. I see people from all over the county; in fact, I see them from all over the State. I have heard people in the city express that opinion; also people from the Northwestern portion of the county, as well as from the Southern portion. My business is that of running a woodyard, and I also have a hotel at the Insane Asylum, that is, at Hyde Park. The people who stay at my hotel are mostly those Pasteur patients from all over the State; some country people, but mostly people from all over the State. At my woodyard I see people from all over the county; I am in town every day. From what I have read in the papers, I suppose the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. Other people seem to think the same thing.

I know how juries are impaneled. I have served on juries, but never on a jury commission. Having in mind the way juries are impaneled, namely, that a jury commission is appointed by the Court to select so many jurors for each week, and is instructed with reference to the qualifications, and is directed to secure jurors scattered all over the county, thirty-six for each week of the term, out of which number a few are usually excused and some disqualify themselves; also that each party to a case has six challenges; and having in mind that if a jury is not selected from this panel of thirty-six men that is originally summoned, that the sheriff 219 is sent out to summon additional talesmen; and that each party to the case is entitled to a jury that has no bias in favor of or prejudice against either side; and that the word prejudice as used in this connection means to prejudge the case or the merits of the case or any issue in the case, I say, having all this in mind, I do not believe I would want to be tried by a jury in this county if I were the Waters Pierce Oil Company. My reason for saying this is because it is generally supposed they are guilty with what they are charged, and I would not want to be tried by a jury that believed I was guilty before I went into the trial.

Cross-examination:

I do not know whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is guilty, and therefore cannot say whether or not I would want to be tried at all, if I were they. I have spoken of it as a trust, but if I were taken on the jury I would pay attention to the evidence and bring in a verdict in accordance with the facts, notwithstanding the fact that from what I have heard and read my present notion is that it is a trust. This is the state of mind of most of the people, that is, they believe it is a trust. It would take better evidence to convince me and the people generally of the fact that they are not a trust, than if it were just brought up and I didn't know anything about them.

I would decide the case according to the evidence. None of the persons with whom I have talked and with reference to whom I have been testifying, has made a statement to me that they would not decide the case in accordance with the evidence. So far as I know, I couldn't say that every person I know would not decide this case according to the evidence. So far as I know, they would decide it according to the evidence.

220 Redirect examination:

If you connect Senator Bailey with this case, there is no case whatever in my recollection which has during my residence in Travis County been pending in the courts here, about which there has been as much general discussion as about this case. The opposition to Senator Bailey arose simply on account of his re-establishing the Waters Pierce Oil Company in the State of Texas to do business. This is what the people believe generally.

Recross examination:

That was not the only charge against Senator Bailey, but it was the main charge; the one everybody harped on. I am not able to say that a good many laboring people were opposed to Senator Bailey on account of his attitude against labor. There were lots of charges against him. I have seen lots of them. The charge I heard most discussed was the Waters Pierce Oil Company matter. That was what they used generally as argument against Bailey, that is, his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

W. K. BECKETT, a witness for the defendant, testified as follows:

My name is W. K. Beckett. I reside over across here about four or five miles, in Travis County. I have lived here nearly forty years. My acquaintance in Travis County is about like that of any other farmer; only I am close to town. I come to town pretty often. In my visits to town I occasionally meet people from various parts of Travis County. I know people all over the county pretty 221 well. I don't know that within the last six months I have heard the Waters Pierce Oil Company particularly discussed. We hear it talked about We, as just used by me, of course, includes myself. I could scarcely approximate to what extent I have heard the Waters Pierce Oil Company discussed within the last few months. I should say a small number on that subject. I could not say how many, but not a great many. I heard discussions of Senate- Bailey during the contest in this county just antecedent to the primaries. I read some of his speeches, but I do not remember my hearing him discussed. I was anti-Bailey and talked about the matter occasionally. I think the people generally look upon the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust. As to whether it was a lawful or unlawful trust, I will say that it was expelled or whatever you call it, and then re-introduced; when it was re-introduced in the State I don't know whether it would be lawful or not. I think I would regard it as unlawful when it was expelled. There was considerable discussion as to Senator Bailey's connection or instrumentality in the re-admission into the State. The attitude of the people was that he was instrumental in re-introducing the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas. We have regarded it as coming back into the State under false pretenses, a false affidavit having been made to get it back into the State. Senator Bailey has been connected with that matter in the discussions had, and to my mind it was discussed a good deal. The opinion prevailed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company got back into Texas under false pretenses.

Cross examination:

I am of the opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company could get a fair trial in this county.

222 DAVE BECKETT, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live out about eight miles northwest of town. My voting box is Oak Hill. I voted there at the last primary election when Senator Bailey was being voted on. I don't remember the vote at that box. I remember he got one vote. The basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey in that box was his general rascality and his being connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. A majority of the people in that section of the county with whom I have talked about the matter, express themselves as regarding the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust. I do not know what the one man who voted for Bailey thought about it. I do not think he was ostrasized. I think we let him live. A majority of the people regard as a fraud the re-admission that happened about six years ago, when Mr. Pierce made the affidavit. I have heard a few people from other sections of the State express themselves in regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and they think it is a trust. I do not believe I ever heard any many express a contrary opinion. I didn't ask that Bailey man as to whether or not he thought it was a trust. I didn't know who it was that voted for Bailey in that box.

Cross-examination:

Perhaps the Waters Oil Company could get a fair trial in this county, but it would be a little hard to get a jury. As to whether or not I could serve on the jury, I will say that they would have to bring right smart evidence. I have made up my mind and a good deal of evidence would have to be there to change it. I have never served on a jury, and don't know exactly what constitutes the duties of a juror. It is probable that my judgment of the conditions in the whole country are based on my box, 223 but I am not sure as to this. In saying that I would find difficulty in giving the defendant a fair trial, I don't mean that I would not try to decide the case according to the evidence, because I would; but it would take a great deal of evidence to convince me. I do not say that I know the state of mind outside of my own box. My box is rather a small box, having something like eighteen or twenty votes. I was rather an unusually strong anti-Bailey man, and took a big interest in the election.

Redirect examination:

As to my sympathies in this case, with regard to being for or against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, are that I believe them guilty. I rather think it would be hard to get a jury from my neighborhood who could fairly try this case. A majority have expressed themselves as its being a trust. Some of them express themselves rather violently in regard to this matter.

R. L. PATTON, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Oak Hill. I was mighty near raised there; have been there thirty odd years. Within the last six months I have heard some little talk among the people of my community with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and its being engaged in business in violation of the laws of Texas. All that talk about it say it is a trust, and is in business in violation of law. I did not vote in the last primary election. I think there were nineteen votes polled there in the Bailey election. I consider that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. That is my opinion, of course. I am pretty well acquainted all over the county. I have not been around Manchaca, and therefore have not heard any expres-224 sions from the people in that neighborhood. I have heard people between Oak Hill and Austin express themselves, as I met them coming to town, and they were all of the opinion that it is a trust. I have never heard any one express a contrary opinion.

Cross-examination:

If I were on the jury and should take the oath according to law, I could give the defendant a fair trial and decide the case on the law and evidence. I suppose a fair trial could be had in this county.

Redirect examination:

If I were on the jury I doubt if I could give the same degree of credence to the testimony of Mr. Pearce and other witnesses for the defendant, as I would give to others. What I meant was that I would try to give them a fair trial, but I would probably find some difficulty in weighing their testimony the same as I would weigh the testimony of other witnesses; it is just like always when a man has his mind made up, that is, it takes more evidence than otherwise. I would want them to prove themselves innocent.

Recross-examination:

I could go and qualify as a juror and decide the case according to the evidence, and if they proved themselves not a trust, I could give such a verdict. If there were no evidence of a trust, my verdict would be to that effect.

JAKE SMITH, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Del Valle. I am Justice of the Peace of that precinct. I am pretty well acquainted in the city; through to Del 225 Valle and on the south side of the river. It seems to me that until the Prohibition election came up, all I heard in the way of discussions among my people was this case and Senator Bailey's connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I mean by that that I have heard many expressions with reference to the matter. It was very generally talked about. It seems to me that they all believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust; all that I heard express an opinion, thought so. I have heard these discussions in Austin, at Del Valle, and other portions of the county, including Creedmoor, Elroy and Garfield. I have never heard a single person express a contrary opinion. I believe that the Bailey people themselves, that is a majority of them, believe that the re-admission into Texas of the Waters Pierce Oil Company after its expulsion in 1900, was fraudulent. While they side with Bailey, they believe that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, and that it was so generally considered. I think the people all believed that Bailey re-instated the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I could not say as to whether or not they believed Bailey had been imposed on by the Waters Pierce Oil Company at the time they got back into Texas. I know how juries are impaneled in a case; and having in mind the preliminary statement that each party to a case is entitled to a jury of unprejudiced men, that is, men who have not prejudged the case, and go into the box and decide the case according to law and the testimony introduced, I say, having all this in mind, I doubt if it would be possible to secure a jury of fair and impartial and unprejudiced men in this county to try this case, that is from among the people that have read and kept up with this matter. From among the people I have heard express themselves, I do not think such a jury could be secured.

If I remember right, the vote in my box was in favor of Senator Bailey. My idea as to the basis of the opposition of those 226 who were against Senator Bailey was the same as that I have stated before, namely, that he re-instated the Waters Pierce Oil Company here, and that it is a trust.

Cross-examination:

I have not talked to all the people in my precinct. I don't think I could point to a single man that has taken some interest in the matter. I couldn't tell you how many votes were cast either at Del Valle or in my precinct. I know the vote was more than twenty-five; it was as many as forty. I could not give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair trial, for the reason that I believe it is a trust. As to whether or not I would decide the case according to the evidence brought before me, I have to say that I would be biased; I don't think I would be a good juryman. I have tried to keep up with everything connected with the case since the investigation started, but I have read a good deal about the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have heard none of the evidence in this case. If the proper people were to testify that it is not a trust, I might change my mind, but it would have to be people I knew something about. I could not name all the people I have heard state that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I might be able to name a few. I do not know that I could name two hundred in my box. I believe I can point out a couple of men right here in the court room that said they believe it is a trust. They didn't say they couldn't give them a fair trial but said they would like to send him to the penitentiary. I could not say how many other people I have heard say that, and would not attempt to name them; but I have heard a great many hard expressions about the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I could name others beside the two here in the court room, who 227 said the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, but not that they couldn't give them a fair trial. I think we have just as honest men in my precinct as there are any where else in Travis County, but from what I have heard among my people, they would be biased, because they believe it is a trust; I- is my opinion that they couldn't qualify as jurors.

T. J. ROWZEE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Sprinkle; have lived there about thirty years. I am pretty well acquainted in that community, and also know quite a number of people in Austin. I have a general acquaintance scattered around all over the county. I have not heard discussions to any extent within the last six months with reference to the merits of this case, that is, as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company should be convicted in this case. I have heard discussions with reference to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company was fraudulently admitted to do business in Texas. These discussions I have heard generally around the stores and at gatherings of different people. I have heard the matter discussed at Sprinkle and at Austin. I have been to Manor, but I don't reme-ber whether I heard it discussed there. I have not heard a great many people discuss this matter—more of them while the Bailey Investigation was going on. It was discussed most particularly during December, January and February last—I have not heard much lately. Those who discussed that question believed it was a trust. I don't think I heard a single man express himself otherwise. By trust, I mean an unlawful combination. The matter of the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company was discussed in connection with Senator Bailey,—the two matters were always discussed together. The 228 people believed the re-admission of the company into Texas was a fraud. As to that being the unanimous sentiment of those I heard discuss the matter, I will say that I never heard anybody express themselves otherwise. That is what I believed about it myself. I know how jurors are summoned, and know how a jury is impaneled, and taking those facts into consideration and having in mind the further facts that each party to a case is entitled on the trial to a jury of impartial men, a jury who are not prejudiced against, him, that is, a jury, who have not prejudged his case or its case, or any of the issues in it, I say, considering all these matters, I do not believe that a fair and impartial trial could be had in this county. I might be mistaken in that. It is a hard matter to answer just that question, because a man's knowledge of those things is limited, but that is my opinion. I believe if a vote were taken, nine-tenths would vote them guilty. Now that is what I think about it from the general conversations heard over the county.

Cross-examination:

I don't believe I have read any of the evidence which shows that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. It seems to be an admitted fact that it is a trust. The people discuss it just as if it were a fact. If I would be taken on the jury in this case and the evidence failed to show that it is a trust, I don't think I would hold it to be a trust. I am not sure that I could decide the case without being influenced by preconceived notions I have. I might be able to do so, but I would not make a really good juror. I would not want to be put to a test in this matter. I would prefer not to have the matter placed upon me. I have never seen any testimony to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust; it is just an admitted fact; something assumed to be true. If I were 229 taken as a juror and the evidence failed to show that it is a trust, I think I could say so by my verdict. I don't think I have heard anybody say they would not decide the question according to the law and the evidence. I can't say that everybody is like I am on the matter. I think it is, in a general way, a mere admission that the thing is true. The Bailey matter has a good deal to do with the matter in this County. I do not think there would be so much prejudice if the Bailey matter were eliminated. Even if the Bailey matter should be eliminated from this case, I don't believe a fair trial could be had. I don't believe you could change the people at all, because I base my judgment on the Investigation. The Investigation never has changed a single mind in this County. I think the anti-Bailey people are still anti-Bailey. I don't know whether or not the question of this company's being a trust was brought up in the Investigation. As to what I have heard about the people having made up their minds, I will say that I haven't heard but very little. I think we have something like sixty voters in our box. I don't think more than fifteen or twenty per cent. of the people up there voted on this issue. The balance didn't go to the polls or didn't know there was an election. They thought the calling of the election was a farce. I don't think the matter was discussed with reference to this company being a trust. I couldn't say how many of the people in my voting box I have heard state this company is a trust. I think I have heard as many express such an opinion as voted in the election. They were gather- around the store, and I never charged my memory. I would not undertake to name any I have heard give an expression to this matter. I couldn't take up any particular individual, because I never thought of it as ever being wanted in this way. I could not take up a single man who said he ...ld not qualify as a jury, but of the sixty men at 230 my box, ...me are not qualified jurors. There may be forty there. Out of that forty I couldn't name any who said they couldn't qualify as jurors, because I never heard them express themselves on that question. I would not undertake to say that I think they could qualify, and I am not in a position to say that any of them are disqualified.

E. D. CAMPBELL, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is E. D. Campbell. I live at Hornsby's Bend. I have lived there about thirty-eight or forty years. I am well acquainted around Hornsby's Bend, Webberville and up the river to Austin.

During the last few months, particularly December, January, and February I have heard discussions among the people of my community with reference to this case. I have heard expressions that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is guilty, that is, is operating in Texas in violation of law. I couldn't say to what extent I have heard people in my community express themselves in this matter; I have heard a few. I don't know that I have heard it discussed at Webberville. Here in Austin I have heard it discussed. At Hornsby's Bend I think a majority of the people think the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust.

Cross-examination:

I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company could get a fair trial in Travis County.

J. A. McWILLIAMS, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Sprinkle; have lived there about seven years. I am engaged in merchandising and farming. I keep a general store. I have been engaged in the store something like twelve or four-231 teen months. During the last three or four months I have heard discussions with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company in connection with the Bailey matters, and the readmission of the company into Texas, but I haven't heard any opinions. I have never heard any opinion as to whether it is guilty or innocent.

Cross-examination:

I have heard nothing there to indicate that the Waters Pierce Oil Company could not secure a fair trial in this county.

J. A. HEWETT, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is J. A. Hewett. I live at Manchaca; have lived there about twenty years. I am tolerably well acquainted in that community, and also in Austin. I can't say that I am well acquainted at Oak Hill. During the last three or four months I have to some extent heard this Waters Pierce suit discussed. It is generally believed to be a combination, that is, that the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company are one and the same. I don't know to what extent I have heard this matter discussed. I can't say that I have heard it discussed sufficiently to be able to say what the general opinion in my community is with reference to it. A majority of those I have heard discuss the matter, believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I hardly know what the people believe with reference to its re-admission or admission into Texas the last time. I will state that I have had a great deal of sickness in my family and some deaths, and I have paid little attention to the matter.

I believe I have have heard one or two probably, who thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company is not a trust.

Our box went anti-Bailey in the primary election. I do 232 not know what was the basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey among those who opposed him.

Cross-examination:

I should think the Waters Pierce Oil Company could get a fair trial in this county. I would hate to think we didn't have men enough in Travis County to give them a fair trial, but I don't know anything about that. I don't know whether or not almost a jury could be secured at Manchaca to give the defendant a fair trial; the box went against Bailey; by what vote I don't remember, but I think it was tolerably close. I can't say that half a dozen men could be secured at that box that would make good jurors in this case. I might think I could give them a fair trial, but the other side might not think so. I don't know about that; I am like the nigger,—"if a man bites me, I will bite him." I don't believe I have heard anything to indicate that the defendant could not get a fair and impartial trial in this county.

Redirect examination:

I have heard the matter discussed only in my community; that's all. I am doubtful if a full jury could be secured in that community. I don't think it could.

Recross examination:

I don't know that you could get half a jury in my precinct. I will say that there are a good many antis there, and if I were on trial myself I wouldn't want a man on the jury that had the least thing against me. There are quite a number of Bailey men there, too, I was one myself. The question as to how many men could be gotten at Manchaca that would be fair and impartial 233 jurors in this case, is an unfair question. I don't know how many.

Redirect examination:

As to getting any jurors from Manchaca who had not formed an opinion in regard to the merits of this case, I will say that two or three might be gotten.

W. H. PRICE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is W. H. Price. I live out between Creedmoor and Carl; have lived there between thirty-five and thirty-seven years. I believe I am generally acquainted in that community. I have heard some discussions within the last three or four months in regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I can't say that I have heard the matter discussed enough to know what the general opinion in that community is. I haven't heard it discussed very much; I have been out but very little. The opinion expressed is that they believe it is a trust, and is wrong and in violation of law.

Cross-examination:

I have not heard anything to indicate that the defendant could not get a fair and impartial trial in this county. I think it could get a fair trial.

Redirect examination:

I do not know anything about the sentiment, except in my own community. I have not heard any one express any other opinion except that it is a trust and operating in violation of law. As to my being in a position to say whether or not they could get a fair trial, it is my opinion that they could; but I don't know the sentiment in other communities.

234 ERNEST PFLUGER, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Pflugerville. I was born in that neighborhood. I am forty-six years old. At the time of the Bailey election there was right smart talk about the connection of the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey. I think that was about the first of January. I think my box went anti-Bailey by two majority. Among the people I heard express themselves as being against Senator Bailey, the reason assigned was his connection with this oil business, this trust business. I mean the Standard Oil Company or whatever it is called. Some call it the Standard Oil and others the Waters Pierce. The people in my community talked like it is a trust, but I am not convinced that it is a trust. I don't know exactly what a trust is. I never heard anybody say it is not a trust. I think it is violating the trust law. I couldn't speak for the majority, and don't know how they think about that. I never heard anybody say it was not a trust.

Cross-examination:

I have not heard anything to indicate that the defendant could not get a fair trial in this county. I think it could get a fair trial. We have about 160 poll tax receipts at our box. I don't know how many took part in that election. I believe there were 32 votes cast. 32 votes out of 160.

F. G. REYNOLDS, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live three miles east of Austin. I have lived there for twenty-five years. I am engaged in the business of market gard-ner. I am tolerably well acquainted in the Govalle community and have quite an extensive acquaintance in Austin. During the last three 235 or four months I have heard this case and the Waters Pierce Oil Company discussed. At the time of the Investigation in the Legislature there was considerable discussion in our neighborhood; that was during January and February. There was some expression in my community to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is operating in Texas in violation of law. That was the general opinion in my neighborhood. I have not heard it discussed much lately. In February that is January and February, the discussion in Austin just about the same as out there, wherever the matter would come up. That's about all we had to talk about. The same opinion would be expressed here in Austin as out in my neighborhood. On the day of the election I believe I heard three men express a contrary opinion. Those were the only ones I heard express a contrary opinion.

Cross-examination:

Neither in my discussions at that time, nor since, have I heard anything to indicate that the defendant could not get a fair trial in this county. From what I have heard, it is my opinion that the defendant could get a fair trial here. The vote at my box this year is only sixty-five. I don't recollect the vote at my box, but I don't think more than 25% voted. I know the Bailey vote; only three men voted for Bailey. They were the three I spoke of a while ago as expressing the contrary opinion. So far as I know they have not changed their opinion on the subject.

Redirect examination:

I was anti-Bailey in the primary election. My reason for opposing him was on account of the fact I didn't think he 236 was honest. I believe that he was the cause of the Waters Pierce Oil Company coming back into Texas, which was a dishonest transaction. I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust at this time and was before. Even supposing that the rest of the county the sentiment is an unanimous as in my community, that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, I believe they could get a fair trial, for the reason that many men are indifferent; they don't read the papers; don't read the magazines; don't do anything, and the might be in a position to be qualified jurors. As to whether or not they are the men ordinarily selected for jury service, I think it is the custom to summon men indiscriminately, and you are liable to get them and liable not to get them. I don't know anything about whether or not a trial of the defendant would necessarily result in a conviction. Most of the people in Texas think so; particularly most of them in Travis County.

Gus Cezeaux, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Cedar Valley. This last time I have lived there about four months. I lived there about twenty years and then I moved up on the river to Teck, and lived there five years, and moved back to Cedar Valley. I was Justice of the Peace up there, but didn't do anything but work for the people; there was no money in it. Cedar Valley is about sixteen miles from Teck. Within the last few months I have heard people in my community express themselves with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in regard to its being a trust and having been fraudulently admitted to do business in Texas after the old company was excluded. I have heard it discussed for six years; I was on the jury before that convicted it, and I have heard it ever since. The general sentiment is to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust.

237 That is the general opinion in my present neighborhood, and also at Teck. In the last few months I have also heard people from other portions of the county express themselves on this matter. People from all over the county, I mean. I have a pretty extensive acquaintance in the county. From those I have heard express themselves, the general opinion is that it is a trust, and that it is here in violation of law; that it has always violated the law; that it is the same old concern, only with another coat of paint on. I have not heard any public speeches on the subject. I got enough of that six years ago. They punched law points into us until I thought all of the jury was dead. Judge Clark and Mr. Johnson were here then and are here now. I have heard the people who are residents of Austin express the same opinion—that it is a trust. I won't say that I have heard a considerable number, but a good number. I have not heard them express themselves otherwise, but that it is a trust and should not have been re-admitted.

Cross-examination:

I could not decide this case on the evidence; I wouldn't qualify as a jury. I couldn't even if I hadn't been on the former jury. If a man would come up and say they are thieves and rascals and ought to be run out, I don't think he could qualify as a juror. I have heard a great many make that kind of a remark. Have heard it for five or six years; ever since the other trial. These expressions not only cover an earlier period; I have heard such expressions recently. I couldn't give the names of the people I have heard speak of the matter here in town; but I heard Francis Fischer, and I heard Jake Schneider and Al Schneider talking about it. I heard that since this case was instituted they couldn't get gasoline 238 that would burn; that something was the matter. The man that minds the saw at the lumber company said the gasoline won't burn. Those people I have just named are not the only people I have heard express themselves. I have heard others, but I don't remember their names. I have not heard any say they couldn't qualify as jurors. The people I have heard talk about it constitute a very small number, compared to the six or seven thousand voters. I have, however, heard more than twenty or thirty. Three or four hundred people come up on the river fishing and I heard a good many talk. People from away down at Elgin and around. They express themselves pretty freely. I go around a good deal and take interest in politics. I haven't heard anybody suggest that they couldn't serve on the jury. I haven't spoken to anybody about that.

Redirect examination:

Not to be misunderstood, I will say that I have heard those discussions to a great extent within the last three or four months. I didn't go to our box on election day; I had enough of it. I know how a jury is impaneled; I have been on a jury and on a jury commission. I know that a man is entitled to a jury of unprejudiced men; men who have not made up their minds in advance. As to whether or not a fair and impartial jury could be secured in this county, taking all these matters into consideration, I will say if you could pick out from all the men in the county you could; but where you take just a few each week, you could not. I do not think you could get a jury in the ordinary way.

239 Recross-examination:

They had an election in my community, but I didn't go. I live within two hundred yards, but didn't go. I think they had an election at Cedar Valley and at Teck. The people get disgusted about such things; politics are so dirty, they don't take any interest. I know that people who have the same kind of feeling about this matter that I have, would be disqualified and would be put off entirely, but you would have to get five or six thousand people in order to get a jury. I don't think you could get them out of what the court would allow. I have been here to-day, and I have heard some of the testimony. I have heard some of the people say they could be fair jurors. I know some of those men, and they are good men. As to whether or not they could tell the truth, that is a matter with their conscience. I believe ten or twelve men have already said that they could fairly and impartially try the case.

CALVIN HUGHES, a witness for defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live out south of here about six miles; at St. Elmo. I have lived there about five months. Before that I lived at Creedmoor. I am pretty well acquainted in Travis County. I am very well acquainted in the southern part of the county. I am not very well acquainted in Austin. Within the last few months I have heard discussions with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company at Creedmoor, but not at St. Elmo. I think I have heard it sufficiently discussed to be able to state the general opinion of the people in that community with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Almost everybody thinks it is a trust and was fraudulently admitted into the State. That is the sentiment around Creedmoor. Creedmoor is about sixteen miles south of here.

240 Cross-examination:

Judging from my own opinion and from what I have heard, I do not think the defendant could get a fair trial. I have not seen any evidence against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. The information I have is the result of general talk and newspaper reports and articles. I don't think I could qualify as a juror and fairly and impartially try the case. I don't think I could hear the evidence on the defense's side sufficiently fairly to make a juror. I have never heard anybody express himself to the extent of being able to lay aside any prejudice he had and decide the matter on the evidence introduced. All the people I have talked to are of the opinion that it is a trust, without knowing what the evidence is against the company. As to whether or not a jury could be secured from the Creedmoor community, I will say I think not; if I were in the other man's place I wouldn't want to risk it. I have heard men at Creedmoor say they should be sent to Huntsville. I know it is a corporation that is being tried, and nobody can be put into the penitentiary in connection with this case, but these remarks have been made against Pierce. It might be that there are people in the Creedmoor community who really don't know anything about this case and haven't discussed it. I haven't talked with all of them. I have discussed it with more than ten, as far as that is concerned. A good many people didn't go to vote. Something like fifty per cent. didn't vote. I don't know the voting strength of the box there since the Terrell Election Law has gone into effect. I suppose there are a hundred qualified voters out there, but not over that. I don't know about there being any qualified to sit as jurors over and above those who are qualified to vote. I don't know that it is a fact that less then twenty-five per cent. took interest enough to come to the polls and vote. I don't know that a number 241 indicated by their vote that they had not prejudice; all I heard discuss the matter were prejudiced. The box went for Bailey; I am a strong Bailey man, but I am prejudiced against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I couldn't give them a fair and impartial trial, and was as strong a Bailey man as anybody. From the way I heard some men talk I don't think they could make good jurors. I don't want to call any names, but there are a great many around there who have expressed themselves as strongly as I have. I have heard as many as ten persons express themselves in that way. I have heard more than that. I was around the store and we hurrahed about going in-to the Republican party. It was something like half the voters that participated. The other half I don't know about; don't know how they felt or what sort of jurors they would make in this case.

Redirect examination:

With reference to the question of evidence, I will say I read only a part of the evidence adduced in the investigation here in Austin, as reported in the newspapers. I think it was read a good deal in the community around Creedmoor. I don't recollect reading anything in the papers about valuable evidence secured by Mr. Lightfoot in New York and up there. I read something purporting to come from Attorney General Davidson, denunciatory of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but I don't recollect; the papers were full. I just read it and passed it on by. The people generally believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, yes, sir. Some of the Bailey men, as well as the anti-Bailey men believe that: I, for one, do, and there are others beside me. The denunciation of the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not confined to the anti-Bailey men, but was indulged in by both; they were pretty much mixed 242 up. I had never heard any argument to the effect that Mr. Pierce had taken advantage of Mr. Bailey, and secured his assistance by misrepresentation.

GEORGE E. EKLUND, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live at Montopolis, and am engaged there in the ginning business. I am of the Swedish nationality. I have lived at Montopolis for eight years. Within the last three or four months I have to some extent heard the people in my neighborhood discuss the Waters Pierce case and Senator's Bailey's connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but I have not heard it sufficiently discussed to be able to state what the opinion of the people generally is with reference to this matter. Those that I have heard express an opinion, believe it is acting in violation of law. I have also heard some people here in town discuss the matter, and they seem to be of about the same opinion. I have never heard anybody express a contrary opinion. Montopolis is about three miles east of here.

Cross-examination:

I have not heard anybody express himself to the effect that the defendant could not get a fair trial in this county. I have heard nothing that would lead me to believe the defendant could not get a fair trial, except that those who took a great deal of interest would be prejudiced to some extent. A good many people haven't taken any interest; in fact, a very limited number, compared with all I come in contact with. I am of Swedish extraction, and in talking with people of — nationality, I have heard only one that said he could give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair trial in this 243 case. There are something like 1500 Swedish people in the county, that is, 1500 poll tax receipts have been issued to Swedish people. I do not come in contact very much with the Swedes, as only a few live in my neighborhood. The greater portion of the Swedes live out around Manor. I don't remember hearing such an expression from any other nationality. I wouldn't care to say, from what I know, whether or not the defendant could get a fair trial. I only know as regards myself.

J. W. PEYTON, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is J. W. Peyton. I live eight miles north of town. My voting box is Summit. I have lived there about thirty years. Am engaged in the business of farming.

Within the last three or four months I have heard some little discussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in my community, both in connection with the Bailey matter and aside from it. We held the primary election at Summit, but I don't remember how many votes were polled. I voted in that election, and voted against Senator Bailey. Our box voted against Senator Bailey, but I do not remember to what extent. The basis of the objection to Senator Bailey, in my community, was because the people thought that he was in with this Waters Pierce Oil Company. The objection to the Waters Pierce Oil Company was because they consider that it is a trust. I couldn't say that I have heard enough expressions in my community to now what is the general concensus of opinion as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I myself think it is a trust. Those that I have heard express themselves think it is a trust, but I have heard only a few express themselves. I have never heard anybody express a contrary opinion I have heard the matter discussed several times here in Austin, in passing up and down the street. The majority of these also thought it was a trust.

244 Cross-examination:

I have not heard anything up there to indicate that the defendant couldn't get a fair trial in this county. I should think the defendant could get a fair trial in this county; I don't see why it shouldn't.

Redirect examination:

I think there are enough people who could set aside this prejudice in regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company being a trust, to give them a fair trial. There are a great many people who do not read and do not know about the matter, and therefore, are probably not prejudiced against the company. Whether or not they are the kind of people that are put on juries, but you get them once in a while.

LEON PUCKETT, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

My name is Leon Puckett. I live down at Hornsby's Bend. I have lived there about thirty-two years; I was raised there. I have heard some duscussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company in Hornsby's Bend during the last few months. The discussion was in connection with the Bailey Investigation. Well, in the general opinion of the people in that community, it is a trust. I have heard opinion expressed while here in Austin, by people from other portions of the county. I come to Austin most the times once a week. The people I have heard here in Austin seem to think it is a trust.

Cross-examination:

I have not heard anything to indicate that the defendant
245 could not get a fair trial in this county. From what I have heard in my own precinct, as well as here in town, I believe the defendant could get a fair trial.

Redirect examination:

I understand that the defendant in this case is entitled to a jury of unprejudiced men. All we know is newspaper talk. Some of the people read the testimony in the Bailey Investigation, and some argued it; some didn't care about it at all. I hardly know whether the defendant could get a fair and impartial trial in this county, but I believe though you could get a jury.

I don't know of any other case that was as generally discussed as this one has been. None to which as many references have been made.

Recross examination:

I said I didn't recall any case as generally talked about as this one. Calling to mind the Warren Moore case, I suppose they talked more about it. The same is true about the Burt case tried here a few years ago. Most of the discussion of this case has been with reference to Mr. Bailey, and at the time they were trying him. I don't think there has been any general discussion of the facts of this case.

HAM METZ, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is H. M. Metz. I now live in the city, and have lived here for sixty-three years. I have held several official positions, the last being County Assessor of Travis County. I held that position twenty-two years. Among other official positions I have held, are Alderman, School Trustee, and various other little offices.
246 I was a member of the Grand Jury at the September Term, 1906, of the 53rd Judicial District. I was a member of the Grand Jury that returned an indictment against H. Clay Pierce, charging him with false swearing.

ELI MILLER, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is Eli Miller. I live at Creedmoor, in this county. Creedmoor is fifteen miles south of Austin. I have lived there about fourteen years. I know almost every one in the community; in fact, every one. Within the last few months I have not heard much discussion in my community about the Waters Pierce Oil Company; I might have heard it discussed some. I heard it discussed some during the Bailey campaign about the first of January, but not extensively. I heard it discussed as the Waters Pierce Oil Company being a trust. I heard only a few persons discuss it in that way; the people I heard speak of it, were representative citizens. From the way I heard the matter discussed, I judge that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was re-admitted into the State fraudulently. That was the opinion I heard discussed. I never heard any one say anything to the contrary. The expression was all one way. I have never know- a civil case in Travis County to excite as much attention as this case has.

Cross-examination:

I don't believe I have known of any criminal case to excite as much attention. In saying this, I am talking about the Bailey controversy and this case connected together. I couldn't say that whatever of interest there has been in reference to this matter has been in regard to Senator Bailey, rather than this defendant. I have not heard any discussion recently. I couldn't say positively that it has been two months since this matter came up for 247 trial, but it has not been discussed since the Bailey controversy. From what I understood of the conversations at that time, the only discussion was with reference to Senator Bailey. I have never heard anybody discuss the facts of this case. I suppose any notion I may have about this defendant being a trust or people talking about its being a trust, was based on newspaper reports, etc. I can't say that I have ever heard the facts of this case discussed. I have never heard the issues involved in this case discussed, but I think I have heard what I supposed to be some of the facts in it. The facts from what I judge of the case is whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company was brought back into Texas through fraud, and through the efforts of Bailey, and whether Mr. H. C. Pierce perjured himself in his statement. Since the admission of the concern into the State in 1900, the charges I have heard in connection with it are the indictment by the Grand Jury. I know Mr. Pierce is not being tried in this case, but that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is. I know that the State in this case is asserting against the Waters Pierce Oil Company the violation by it of the anti-trust laws. I couldn't say just in what respect, but in several respects, I think. I have not read the petition in this case, and don't know anybody who has. I do not know the character of evidence that the case bears on, and do not know anybody who does. I can't say I have heard the facts of the case now on trial before the court discussed in my community. I think that any facts I might have heard were based simply on general rumors, newspaper reports, and that sort of thing. I do not think there was any showing of prejudice or feeling against the Waters Pierce Oil Company itself as distinguished from the action of Mr. Pierce or the position of Mr. Bailey, in the discussions I have heard. I think I talked 248 to some three or four people about this matter. I hardly know whether or not, judging from my knowledge of the conditions as they exist in my community, the defendant could get a fair trial in this county. Of course, from what I gathered from those I talked to, I should think not. The three or four I talked to are of the same opinion I am. I do not think I would make a good juror in this case. I am a qualified juror. I have never read any of the evidence in this case, except what was in the papers. I am not always in the habit of relying on what I read in the newspapers. I do not think the newspapers have undertaken to give the evidence that is to be given in this case. I hardly think I could go into the jury box and say to the Court that I could decide the case on the evidence introduced before me. I have my mind made up. I hardly think I would be able to decide the case on the evidence introduced before me and the charge of the court. Two of the men I mentioned as having talked with, are the same as I am about this matter; they have expressed themselves as being prejudiced, and disqualified as jurors. I don't know about the other one or two; I heard no expressions from them. I did not go into as full a discussion with them about the matter as you have about the qualifications of a juror. Those two I have mentioned are Mr. Hughes, who was on the stand here yesterday, and Mr. Evans. Those are the only people I know at Creedmoor who I have reason to believe are disqualified as jurors. There are one hundred and fifty voters in the Creedmoor box. I suppose there are several people in that box who have never heard of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, because there are lots of people that don't take newspapers, and I think therefore that there are more than two that have never heard of the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

249 Redirect examination:

I hardly think that people who never read newspapers get on juries often. The matter I heard discussed was with reference to Senator Bailey's connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company after its expulsion from Texas, and its re-entry into Texas by fraud. The objection to the Waters Pierce Oil Company was the general opinion that it is a trust, and we had anti-trust laws; and he tried ta get back into the State the trust, and people look with holy horror upon trusts. In my opinion a man who has his mind made up about a case is not a fit juror. I have looked upon the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust ever since it has been here. Nobody seems to think anything else about it. When a general opinion prevails that way, a majority of the people would be of the same opinion.

Recross examination:

I have not just merely assumed that it is a trust, and have not assumed that everybody else thinks the same thing. I have heard it talked af a great deal and have heard people discussing it among themselves. To some extent I judge that notion is predicated on the fact that it was once convicted here as being a trust and run out of the State. I do not know of anything since that time which would be accepted as an indication that it was a trust. I guess my notion must be based upon this former action of the court here in holding it a trust. I think I would say the defendant is not a trust if I were on the jury and it was shown that the defendant on trial is a different concern from that which was adjudged to be a trust and if the evidence failed to show that since that time the defendant had done anything that would make it a trust. I could 250 not say that the opinions of the people I have talked with are predicated upon the fact that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was once adjudged to be a trust here in this county, and not upon something that has occurred since that time. I have formed no opinion based on facts that have arisen since the time that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was excluded from the State, and I have never heard any such facts discussed by the people I have talked to about this matter.

Redirect examination:

I think this is the same concern that was convicted here before, and that it has just played with the law and got back under false pretenses. That is what I blame Bailey for. I can't say whether the people I have talked with are of the same opinion; I would judge so, however.

Recross-examination:

I have not heard discussed any facts arising since 1900, that would show that this is the same concern that was in here before. I know of no facts myself. I will say as I did before, that if the evidence were to show that this was not the same concern and should further fail to show that this concern had done nothing since 1900 to make it a trust, I could, if I were on the jury, be able to say that a case had not been made out against the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

Redirect examination:

I would go into the jury box prejudiced.

Recross-examination:

I would have a prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company if I were to go into the jury box. I would go into the box with a prejudice against them, not a conclusion. I base my preju-251 dice on several reasons; the judgment of the court in 1900 was one reason.

W. L. DODGEN, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My home is five miles north of town. My voting box is at Summit. I have lived at the present place about two years; and I have lived in Travis County about seventeen years. Prior to that I lived south of town. My acquaintance in the community in which I now live is not very great. I have only lived there a little over two years. I am acquainted with most of the people by sight. My occupation is that of farmer. I do not belong to any church or lodge out there. I am Superintendent of the County Farm of this County. I meet a good many people out there. I have heard some discussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company within the last few months, that is to say, since the first of last January. There was considerable discussion about the Waters Pierce Oil Company about the time we held an election to say whether or not we should instruct our Representatives to vote for Bailey or not. The general opinion among the people, expressed by the people of my community during that time, was to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and that it was re-admitted into the State by fraud. There is some prejudice in my community on account of this belief. I think there are some that would make good jurors in this case, but I believe the majority would be against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. They have not all made up their minds, but the majority are against the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

Cross-examination:

I think may be four, five or six jurors could be secured there; I couldn't say exactly. I do not know exactly how many 252 people vote at that box; I think forty or fifty. I think five or six good jurors could be secured from out there; that is my opinion. But a majority believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust; a majority are against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. It is my judgment that five or six qualified jurors could be secured from out there. I suppose there are some people out there who have never taken any interest in this matter; perhaps there are some that hardly know there is a Waters Pierce Oil Company. In my judgment, twelve good jurors could be secured in this county to try this case. It is my opinion that several hundred could be gotten. I have taken some interest in the matter myself, and I think I could qualify as a juror.

Redirect examination:

I am familiar with the method of summoning and impaneling a jury in this country. I think there would be some trouble to secure a jury, considering the method of securing a jury, and considering that every person is entitled to a fair jury. It might be possible that a good many people with a violent prejudice think they could qualify as jurors when in fact they can't. It is pretty hard, I think, for them to law aside their opinions.

GEO. S. WALTON, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I have resided in Travis County since the 12th of November, 1883, nearly twenty-four years. I have a pretty general acquaintance throughout the county—both in the city and outside the city. For quite a while I have heard hardly anything else but discussions of the Waters Pierce Oil Company among the people of this county. Judging from the expressions that I have heard all over the county, I think it is all but universally considered that the Waters 253 Pierce Oil Company is a trust and that it was fraudulently re-admitted into Texas; that is the general impression throughout the county, as far as I have heard. As to the Waters Pierce Oil Company's securing unprejudiced jurors in this county, from a pretty general talk among the citizenship as a body, that is, the intelligent citizenship, of Travis County, my idea is that the matter has been prejudged, and the people have made up their minds that the Company is guilty, and that it ought to have its permit to do business in Texas revoked, and that penalties ought also to be assessed. They disagree as to the amount of those penalties. I have heard some of them say they ought to stick them to the limit. I think a jury might be secured in this county, that is, a jury that would come in here and qualify; but I don't think that the class of men that would do that would be capable of analyzing and understanding a case of this magnitude. I am familiar with the method of organizing and selecting juries.

Cross-examination:

I was not one of Mr. Bailey's managers in the recent campaign. I took a great deal of interest in behalf of Senator Bailey. I think Senator Bailey is all right in every way. I never made any speeches for Mr. Bailey. My name was signed to some campaign documents and literature. I didn't sign it myself, but I acquiesced in the signing. Since the Bailey business is off, I still hear this case discussed nearly all the time. I have heard it frequently discussed within the last two months. I have never heard the facts of this case discussed in detail. Further than hearing simply an acquiescence, by the people with whom I have talked, in the idea that the Company is a trust—I have heard the testimony of Mr. Gruet and the various witnesses connected with the case, discussed
254 by quite a number of people. I don't know to what extent they are familiar with it, but they pretend to be quite cognizant of quite a number of things. They talked about the contract between the State and Mr. Gruet, and they have talked about the new law that was passed by the Legislature, authorizing the State to get this testimony, and I have heard it discussed from every standpoint. In regard to indicating some of the matters I have heard discussed which have a bearing on the issues in this case, I will say that I have heard them say that the affidavit of Mr. Pearce, to the effect that the Standard Oil Company, I mean the Waters Pierce Oil Company, is not a part of the trust, was perjury, and they discussed about the number of shares that the Standard Oil Company owned in this company from the time of its inception down to the present day, and they discussed it largely with Mr. Bailey's connection with the matter. Bailey's connection with this matter was very largely discussed. I can't say that I can say positively that any particular man has discussed this matter with me; it has been discussed in my presence, and in that way I have heard Mr. John W. Brady, Mr. Henry Faulk, Judge Cochran, Judge Penn, Ed Anderson, Mr. Haigler, and Mr. Batts discuss it; I have also heard parties from the Attorney General's Department discussing it. I have heard Ben Marshall; Major Walton, Gregg Hill, Mr. Luedeck, at Manor; Mr. Taylor, at Webberville; Mr. George Gilbert; Mr. Francis. I could name a great many, but the names have slipped me right now. Those people are not the only ones I have discussed this matter with, and I do not predicate my statements upon the discussions I have had with them. I made a political campaign in this county, in my race for Representative in the Legislature, and I have talked with people all over this county, from one end to the other. I made that campaign last summer, before 255 the institution of this suit, but it was generally understood around and talked about, and Mr. Bailey's connection with it was discussed even at that time. I heard it frequently mentioned then, and since that time they had a political campaign in this county, involving the instruction of the members of the Legislature from this county to vote for or against Mr. Bailey on the matter, and I took an active interest in that. I went among the people of Manor, Webberville, Del Valle, at Fiskville, and here in Austin;

I did everything I could to get the people to instruct our representatives to vote in favor of Mr. Bailey, and I discussed the matter with hundreds of them, but I don't recall the names. I know their faces but I can't recall their names. I do not base my opinion on what the few men whose names I have mentioned, some of whom are practicing attorneys and disqualified to act as jurors, have said. In regard to my statement that it is almost universally believed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, I will say that even among Mr. Bailey's friends a large number think it is a trust—a part of the Standard Oil Company. I have never heard any one say he believed the contrary—that it is not a trust. I have never discussed the case with Judge Penn or Judge Cochran. I have heard them discuss it but not to me. I have been permitted in giving this testimony to name those that I heard discuss the matter in my presence and while I can't remember, for instance, you (Mr. Batts), or Judge Cochran or Judge Penn, talking to me, I have heard you in conversation with other people discuss it. I have not heard anybody go into any detailed discussion of facts that have arisen since 1900 with reference to this present defendant, but I have heard them make certain expressions. For instance, a great many said that they thought the affidavit which was the basis of the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a lie.
256 Taking up the different parts of the County, with regard to naming the people I have heard discuss any facts of this case, I can't recall any particular person at Summit. From Merrillton I have heard Mr. Parker and Mr. Kemp, the latter was at one time Commissioner here. I have heard Mr. Edgar, and an Irishman at McNeil, by the name of Cahill. As I said before very few discussed the real facts of the case, but nearly everybody gave some particular reason why they thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust and had been fraudulently re-admitted. It is not my opinion that except for the four men I have just mentioned everybody else at Merrillton is a qualified voter. My opinion is based on the fact that those people are well posted as a rule, and I believe they all voted in this last election, and they all expressed an opinion by means of their ballots. I don't remember the number of votes cast at that box. I don't think more than half voted. I don't think there are twelve men at McNeil that are qualified voters that don't know anything about this case. My opinion as to who is a qualified voter is this: I don't think simply because a man can say that he don't know anything about a case, and simply beca-se he has paid his poll tax or that he is a property-holder or house-holder, and has not been to the penitentiary, that he is a qualified juror. The Court might hold such a man a qualified juror, but still we have a right to set him aside. We have the right to set six aside in a civil case. It was indicated to me only in a general way that any number of jurors at McNeil would be unable to give the defendant a fair and impartial trial. The people that discussed it with me, seemed to think that everybody else was largely of the same opinion.

At Pflugerville I remember discussing the matter with George

Pfluger and Gus Bohles, but there were at the time quite a 257 number of people present. I know their names and know them to speak to, but I can't recall the names just now. They were talking about this matter in a general way, that is, that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. They gave no particular reason why they thought it is a trust. That discussion was in connection with the Bailey matter. As to whether or not it had any reference to the facts in this particular case, I will say that it did have such reference, because it was going on the proposition that the company had been fraudulently re-admitted into the State. I don't know whether that particular crowd was Bailey or anti-Bailey. I heard a considerable number of the people in that section express themselves one way or another about the matter. I cannot approximate just how many; I wouldn't attempt to do so. I don't know positively that there are not a hundred men at Pflugerville, out of the one hundred and sixty out there, that have no views about this matter, but would be qualified jurors in this case. As far as I have heard the matter discussed in this county, including Pflugerville, I don't think that twelve could be found at Pflugerville who are qualified jurors. My opinion is that if you were to have every one of the men at Pflugerville brought in and tested, that you would not get three jurors. There are neither one hundred nor fifty men at Pflugerville I do not know; I suppose there may be twenty-five I do not know. I do not know personally how any of them stand in this matter. I suppose there are a hundred men at Pflugerville I have heard no expression from. As far as personal contact with those people is contact with those people is concerned, I suppose there are a hundred out there about whose attitude in this matter I know nothing. As far as any character of information is concerned, I believe that all of the people have concluded one way or the other 258 in this matter and are disqualified; have prejudged the matter one way or the other, that is, basing my idea on the people of Travis County, believing that they are intelligent enough to post themselves on any such issue as that to be submitted to them, and judging from the manner in which this case has been discussed; not this particular case, based on the identical facts involved in this case, but taking the other anti-trust suit in which the Waters Pierce Oil Company was prohibited from doing business in Texas, and its re-admission, and Mr. Bailey's connection with this matter, and the tremendous effort that was made both for and against Mr. Bailey in this county. I do not know what the vote was at Pflugerville. As to the number of people out there, I will say that it has been a good while since I looked at the list but I think that they generally cast eighty-five or ninety votes. I suppose there are more than one hundred qualified voters. There are more qualified jurors than there are voters. It is a fact that I and all the other people who were managing for Senator Bailey, and Mr. Shelton and the other people against him did all they could to get an expressions from the people on the Bailey business. I think it is also true that more interest with reference to Mr. Bailey, than with reference to this Waters Pierce Oil Company case, was taken. In their discussions of the matter, the people never separated Mr. Bailey from this case. They did not discuss this particular case, but they talked about the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and whether or not it is a trust, and whether or not it was properly re-admitted into the State of Texas. They didn't go into the facts of this case, just as I stated before.

Dessau and Pflugerville are right together and I don't know where the line is between the citizenship out there. The five or six persons I have already mentioned, I would consider as belonging to Dessau and Pflugerville together. I have heard a number of people 259 from that section of the county, but I can't remember their names, they discussed this Bailey matter and Mr. Bailey's connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and the fact that they thought that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a part of the Standard Oil Company; but who they are I can't recall. It was not in my mind at the time, as to whether or not they constituted ten per cent. of the population out there; I don't say that they constituted two per cent. or what per cent. I do not say that as far as I know ninety-eight per cent. of the people at Dessau are qualified jurors. I know that quite a number of people out there voted on the matter, but I don't remember now what the vote was. I do not remember who the particular individuals were who discussed this matter, but I heard a great many.

At Fishville I don't remember hearing anybody discuss this matter, except one, who spoke of it in a very casual way, and that was Mr. E. W. Holler, whom I overheard talking to some one on the street.

I didn't go to New Sweden in my campaign. I don't remember what the vote was at New Sweden; I can't recall the vote in my own ward on the proposition. The vote was light out there. From the vote cast out there, I have not come to any conclusion on this case. I remember hearing a many by the name of Bustin, who runs a store right by the church, discussing this case, that is the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in a general way, as I have stated before; he was talking as if he had made up his mind on the matter, and was trying to convince a man he was talking to. I have heard a great many of those people out there discussing the Bailey matter. I don't remember their names now; they are foreign names, but they are people I have known for years. I can't tell just how many I heard, but I have heard more than ten. They were discussing the Bailey matter and the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but not 260 this particular case, as it hadn't been brought at that time. This was during last summer.

I don't remember how many people I talked with at Lund. I may be mistaken, but I think I talked with Mr. Olle at Lund. I don't know the dividing line there; I suppose it is Onion Creek. I have got Lund confused with Dutch Water Hole. Mr. Olle doesn't live at Lund at all. I do not recall any particular person I have spoken to at Lund; I know I have heard a number of people from there discuss the matter. Do not recall any particular person, and do not remember what was said, except in a most general way. Besides Mr. Olle, I do not recall talking to anybody in person from the Dutch Water Hole neighborhood; but I have heard a number of people discuss it, that I knew were from that neighborhood. I cannot tell how many, because I wasn't taking note of that fact; I think probably six or seven. Outside of the six or seven I spoke to from that neighborhood, I know nothing personally as to the attitude of the jurors there. I do not say that as far as I can give testimony here the balance of the people in that neighborhood are qualified voters; I say as far as I know from personal contact.

I do not know just where Kimbrough is located, but if it is in the neighborhood of Manda, I don't think I have talked to anybody in there personally, except one man by the name of Palmquist, I think. I am not certain just what his voting box is, but he is from that section. Outside of this man, I don't remember talking to anybody else from there in person; that is, talking to any one individually. All I can tell about the attitude of the people in that neighborhood I gathered from what he said, and he wasn't talking to me at the time; he was at Elgin talking to somebody there at the depot. I can't tell how many people from that box are disqualified, 261 except from what he said. He said everybody out there thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust; is a part of the Standard Oil Company. That is all I know about that neighborhood. This man Palmquist, I think lives out about six miles from Elgin on the road running nearly parallel with the M. K. & T. Railroad; at least, that is where he lived the last time I knew him. I didn't make any inquiry of him to ascertain the extent of his information or anything of that sort; in fact; I never spoke to him personally. He was discussing this case with a number of people, and I was just a listener. They were discussing the Bailey matter there at the depot.

At Manor I a pretty well acquainted. I talked with a good number of people down there to try to get them to vote for Mr. Bailey. I have heard a good many discuss it one way or another. I have heard Mr. Burleson; I have heard Mr. Raney, Mr. Jones, Mr. Pittuck, Mr. Allison, Mr. Palm, Mr. Giles, and Mr. Leudeck. Those are not all I heard, but I can't recall any more by name. I don't know how many; nearly everybody in Manor I have heard discuss it one way or another. Those I have mentioned were not discussing the qualifications of a juror; in fact, I never have heard the matter as to the qualifications of jurors discussed at all. None of those I have mentioned, nor any one else I heard down there, discussed the facts of this case in detail any more than I have heretofore stated. Goodness knows how many I have heard discuss this matter. Mr. Bailey made a speech down there and the whole community came to hear him, and lots of them come here to Austin all the time, and I have heard them time and time again discuss the fact that they believe that there wasn't any question on the proposition at all but what the Standard Oil Company owned the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and there was great divergence of opinion as to whether or not Mr. Bailey knew that fact. I 262 suppose I have heard more people from Manor discuss this matter than any other place outside of Austin. When it comes to fixing a number, I don't know whether they all voted at the Manor box, but I have heard something like two hundred people from that section discuss the matter. I can mention only a few now, as I don't remember the names of most of them. If I were given a list of the voters down there I could more readily point out whom I heard. I was not down there at the time Mr. Bailey made his speech; I never made a visit to Manor on that question at all. I believe less than half the people there voted but I don't know why.

At Decker, I have heard Mr. Swenson, and right at the end of Decker where it strikes the Webberville Road, I have heard Mr. Ed. Rogers, and the others, his sons; I have heard the storekeeper right on the road there at the south end of Decker. That was not all. Two other men whose names I cannot recall; I know they live on that road, not far from the Decker Church; I heard them talking about the matter. Outside of those I have just mentioned, I don't remember anybody else I have heard discuss the matter in that neighborhood. Of the balance of the population there I know nothing.

I have heard a good many from the Garfield neighborhood, but just exactly whether they were from on the other side of Onion Creek, or Del Valle, I can't say; but I have heard Mr. Givens; Mr. Washington, Mr. Sneed, Dr. Maxwell; Mr. Fowler, Mr. Jones; the Swede that bought Judge Terrell's place—I can't remember his name. I heard a bunch of men down there on the day of the election—the Bailey primary, I mean. I was there from early in the morning until one o'clock, and I heard every man that came there to vote discuss the matter one way or another. That was the Del Valle Box. There were twenty-seven votes cast there, and one hundred and fifty people got out and discussed it one way 263 or another, but passed on, some going to town, and some coming out. I don't now how many people did pass there. I stayed out there and talked with the judges of the election and everybody that came around. I don't know whether they lived at Garfield, or whether or not they were legal voters, but they were passing backwards and forwards. They came from three directions—from down the river, from Garfield, and from Moore's Crossing, and congregated there at the Del Valle Store. What their names were or where they were from I can't tell. I think there are something like two hundred and fifty voters at Garfield and Del Valle. Not from what the people told me, is it a fact that they didn't feel enough interest in this matter at Garfield to go and vote. I was not at Garfield, and don't know whether it is a fact or not that the poll at Garfield was not opened for this election. I know this, as one of the Bailey men. There were twenty-seven votes at Del Valle; twenty-seven for, and fourteen against. A great many people passed there going to and coming from Austin. My recollection is that Mr. Bailey got twenty-eight votes; I don't remember the exact vote against him.

I have heard quite a number of people from the Carl and Bluff Springs neighborhood. I have heard Mr. Thaxton; J. Woods

Smith, I think I have heard Mr. Ab Jones; I have heard Mr. Milo Nuckols, and his brother who died the other day; I have heard the young man in the store there; he is kin to Mr. Caldwell—Tom Caldwell, I have heard him discuss it; I have heard Mr. Wamsley; I have heard the man who used to keep a store at Creedmoor, Mr. Miller, and many others. I have heard a great many from out there, but can't recall their names. Everyone I heard discuss it, seemed to be discussing it as though his mind had been made up. I don't think they held an election at Carl; I don't know why they didn't. I didn't talk to as many people as I heard discuss 264 it in crowds here on the Avenue, but including those I think I heard something like thirty or forty from the Carl, Bluff Springs and Creedmoor neighborhood. That is as many as I can recall of the jurors out of that neighborhood; I cannot undertake to say how the balance stand.

From the Mountain boxes I have talked with and heard Emmet White, just beyond Oatmanville; I heard the storekeeper at Cedar Valley—I have forgotten his name; at Bee Cave I heard Mr. Beck, and I heard one of the Heffingtons, and I heard Mr. Eck; a man who lives on the other side of the creek, Mr. Bray, I believe is his name, and a man by the name of Williams. That is all I can recall of those I heard from that side of the river, outside of perhaps some that I think live at Oatmanville. I don't know exactly where they live. Including Oatmanville, I heard Mr. Patton, Mr. Trautwein, Mr. Nolan, the druggist out there, I can't call his name. Then there is a man just below the drug-store, by the name of Johnson. I heard others whose names I can't recall, but I know they live in that neighborhood. I can think of three or four more, but don't remember their names. I can't recall any more because I made no note of the fact of who they were. I can't remember what all of them said; the matter of whether or not they could try this case fairly was not discussed. From around Fairview and Mud I heard Mr. Lohman and I also heard the Constable of that precinct. I have forgotten his name. That is all whose names I can remember out of the six or eight boxes who have expressed an opinion to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, or who discussed the matter in general. I did not hear the facts in this case discussed by those people. Only from what I heard those people say am I able to speak of the attitude of the people in that section of the county.

265 Redirect examination:

As to how prejudice often arises is a question about as wide as the world. As to how mobs are formed, I have no knowledge whatever except from reading. I never lived in a community where there was a mob.

The Bailey matter and Mr. Bailey's alleged connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company became practically a public question in this county. Mr. Bailey himself is a public man. People usually derive their information as to public questions from the public press; from public utterances of public men, and general conversations by the various citizens throughout the community, pretending to know, whether they do or not, the facts. In Austin there are only two daily papers published—the Statesman and Tribune. Those papers have a fair circulation throughout the county, as well as in the city. One of those papers was on one side and one on the other in the Bailey matter, and there wasn't an issue of either one when they didn't have something about it. I don't read the Statesman, but I take the Tribune and Galveston News. I haven't taken the Statesman, except on Sundays, for some time. Sometimes I borrow Mr. Shelton's copy at the office, otherwise I don't read the Statesman. I never say anything in either of those papers defending the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Mr. Bailey was defendant, but it was always claimed he had nothing to do with the Waters Pierce Oil Company in a criminal way, but that he represented Mr. Pierce. During the Bailey campaign before the primaries, Mr. Francis, Mr. Cocke, Mr. Bailey, Judge Terrell, and Col. Wynne made speeches. I believe I heard that Mr. Moore made a speech, but I didn't hear him. I heard Mr. Bailey and those others that I have mentioned, except Mr. Cocke. I never heard him. In addition to the speeches, there was personal activity on the part of individuals in town here. There was a Bailey and an anti-266 Bailey headquarters, and each one had its active partisans in control and management. They had their headquarters and their literature and worked night and day, and buttonholed everybody—strangers and all. If there is a man in Travis County that didn't get fully posted on the subject, I don't see what was the matter with him. I have no doubt but that every man of any intelligence in Travis County was fully advised on that subject; if Travis County couldn't be advised on a matter between the papers and the friends and enemies of Mr. Bailey and people who were not his enemies, but were opposed to him on the facts, and everything of that kind, I don't see how it is possible to say that he lives in a civilized community without having made up his mind on that proposition. I never heard a single man in all this agitation and association of Mr. Bailey's name with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, defend the Waters Pierce Oil Company. If there is a man in Travis County that ever said that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a part of the trust, I haven't heard it, whether he be Bailey or anti-Bailey. I haven't any information as to the amount of literature distributed by the Bailey and anti-Bailey headquarters. I never went to the headquarters of either party.

Recross-examination:

I never heard Mr. Bailey say the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a trust. He didn't make that statement in his speech at the Opera House. I was on the stage and introduced him. If he stated it I didn't hear him, and I think I heard everything he said. It is true I heard him speak of its not being convicted as a trust. Mr. Bailey said that it was the judgment of the court in the case tried six years ago, that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a trust.

He read the report of the case—read of their making only 267 one exclusive contract, and that Judge Brooks withdrew the charge of conspiracy, the contract relating to the Standard Oil Company as not being supported by sufficient evidence. He did not, I think make the proposition here that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a trust. If he did, he failed to make that impression on me, because I thought he was standing strictly on the case as tried and on the judgment as rendered, and had nothing to do with the question of this State having ousted the Waters Pierce Oil Company by reason of its being a trust, but it was because of its making the exclusive contract, when everybody was stating throughout the country, and everything of that kind, that it had been a trust, when that was not so. He undertook to correct the impression that existed in this county with reference to that judgment. I stated and he stated and everybody state in order to state the truth about the matter, that that was a fact, because it was not convicted. I do not think that the conclusion or judgment of the people was predicated on that judgment of the Court of Travis County. A large number made out like Mr. Bailey was trying to get behind a subterfuge. Other facts that have been developed, besides the judgment rendered here six or seven years ago, were the facts stated in the press and every place else that the Standard Oil Company owned a majority of the stock of this company, and they claimed that Mr. Bailey knew it. I don't know whether that got into the Statesman; I didn't read the Statesman. Mr. Bailey was supported by the Statesman. I do not know as to whether or not the Tribune's circulation is confined to the town here; I have seen a number of copies in the country. With reference to the balance of the press, that part of the press that goes to the country, I didn't see any paper that went to the country, unless it was the Statesman, or Tribune, 268 and don't know whether any effort was made to develop the facts concerning the Waters Pierce Oil Company's being a trust. My conclusions as to the extent to which the press developed these facts is not based on an inadequate stock of facts. It was developed during the Bailey contest that the Standard Oil Company owned a majority of the stock in the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and Mr. Pierce's testimony taken in St. Louis was published in the Galveston News, Dallas News, Houston Post and San Antonio Express, which went all through this county, as well as those other papers, except the Statesman. I don't know that this has ever been denied; if so, I am not cognizant of it. I don't know to what extent the Galveston News or any of the other papers, go through the county. As to whether or not the other daily papers have been defending the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I cannot say. I don't know about the Fort Worth Record. I don't know about the Houston Post; I do not take the Post, and if it was in there, I did not see it. I understood that the Houston Post defended Mr. Bailey. I did not know it defended the Waters Pierce Oil Company; my understanding was that it defended Mr. Bailey.

Redirect examination:

It is my recollection that Mr. Bailey stated in his speech at the Opera House that he didn't know anything about the Waters Pierce Oil Company's being a trust; that he had been deceived by Mr. Pierce. In that connection he produced the judgment of the court, and stated that the Waters Pierce Oil Company had never been convicted of being a trust in Texas, but that it had been convicted of making one exclusive contract, and he took the Southwestern Reporter and read from it that portion of the case which shows those facts, and the withdrawal of the trust feature of the case from 269 the jury by Judge Brooks. That was with reference to what he knew about its being a trust. He also discussed the Henry & Stribling matter.

GEORGE W. LITTLEFIELD, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live in Austin; have lived here twenty-four years. I have been in the banking business here most of the time, that is for seventeen years, and know a good many people in the county. I know a great many people in Travis County, as well as in the city. I have frequently heard discussions with reference to the Waters Pierce trial, and with reference to the candidacy of Mr. Bailey and the Investigation in the Legislature. Just in a casual way I would hear men express their opinions about the matter. I think the concensus of opinion among those I have heard express themselves is that they consider it a trust, and that it is in connection with the Standard Oil Company. I couldn't call to memory with whom I talked about the matter, but in a general way the re-admission of the company into Texas is looked upon as a fraud. I don't know that I have heard so many discussions in regard to the matter; it has been the general impressions. With reference to the question as to whether or not the defendant could in the ordinary way of securing juries, get a jury of impartial unprejudiced men to try this case, I am of the opinion that there is a general prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. It might be possible to get a jury, but I think great prejudice would be found. I don't know whether it is probable or improbable that a jury of unprejudiced men could be secured in this county. I say there is a general prejudice in the county against the defendant, as a trust dealing unfairly and so on, and I know how those prejudices are with all of us. I do not know of any defenders of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Don't remember hearing anybody talk in their defense.

270 Cross-examination:

They seem to be prejudiced on account of the concentrating of the business, and the controlling of their line of trade. There is a prejudice against trusts generally; more particularly against that because it affects every householder in the country, I suppose. As to whether or not I could fairly try this case on the evidence introduced, I will say that I wouldn't like to get on the jury. There has been a great deal said about the Waters Pierce Oil Company here; more especially since the trial of Mr. Bailey. I have not heard the facts in this particular case discussed at all. The discussion I have heard is of men expressing themselves as opposed to the company, and that it ought to be gotten rid of. I don't know whether those people I have heard discuss this case, if they said they could fairly try this case, could in fact do so. I don't know how they feel about it. I only judge them by the way I feel about it myself in that respect; I don't want to get on such a case. I have no particular men in mind. I am a busy man in the bank and haven't interest- myself in this matter. I am not willing to come here and sit all day and give in my testimony in a way that will probably be beneficial to the defendant. I just know I was summoned, was not told what for. I know Mr. W. R. Davis, of Creedmoor. Mr. Davis might be able to try the case fairly if he indicates that notwithstanding any notions that he might have on the subject, that he could do so. I don't know how he feels about it. I know Mr. Davis very well. I know Mr. Reynolds of Govalle, but am not intimately acquainted with him. As to whether or not twelve men of the kind Mr. Davis is could fairly try this case, if they said they could, I can't say. I have have known Bill Davis for forty years and regard him as an honorable, upright man, and have great confi-271 dence in him, but don't know what he has learned in this case; what he knows about the evidence; he might know things I don't know, and he might not feel as I do towards it, and it might be with other men the same way. I would not like to get on the jury, because the country generally is prejudiced against this company; every man nearly will admit that it is a trust, I mean. They are nearly all prejudiced against trusts, but especially against this one, I think. I do not know how many qualified jurors there are who don't know anything about this matter. I am speaking about how I feel; how other men feel I can't say. My whole testimony is predicated on my own feeling in the matter and what men have said in my presence. I don't say a great number have discussed the matter with me, but it is the general impression that has been left with me from my conversations with men in general. I wouldn't undertake to say how many people have spoken to me about this matter; not a great many, I say. My knowledge of the matter of opinion of the people is gained from conversations had with town people mostly. Probably Mr. Davis would be better able to speak of the sentiment in his neighborhood than I am. I think he knows his neighborhood better than I do, and I think he could better speak for his neighborhood than I could. I live in the Fourth Ward. I don't know whether or not you could secure twelve men out of that ward who could fairly try this case. I wouldn't undertake to say that you could, or that you could not.

Redirect examination:

I did not know what I was being summoned for when I was summoned to appear here as a witness. I had not talked with any one connected with this case about the matter. I had no idea what I was wanted for. When they 'phoned for me I told them 272 I knew nothing of the facts. I have in my testimony undertaken to tell the court the facts as I understand them; nothing more.

Recross-examination:

Notwithstanding the fact that I believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and notwithstanding the fact that I haven't been talked to by any one of the parties and have no interest in the matter, I am willing to come up and be fair in the matter of giving in my testimony.

Redirect examination:

I do not think, considering the fact that I have read the papers with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company being a trust, and with reference to the re-admission of the present company into the State after the old company was ousted, that I could weigh the testimony of H. C. Pierce as impartially as if I had not read these things, if I were taken on the jury in this case.

W. E. CARPENTER, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is W. E. Carpenter. I live in the city, and have lived here about twenty-five years. I have lived still longer in Travis County. I lived at Webberville before moving to Austin. I am engaged in the general merchandising business on Pecan Street. My trade hails from down the river, south and north, from Hornsby's Bend, Webberville, Govalle, Del Valle, Creedmoor, Carl, Sprinkle and Manor. I haven't very much trade from out at Fiskville. I do not recollect what the extent of my trade is with the people of that portion of the county; I suppose it is about medium.

I have heard the people discuss the Waters Pierce Oil Company both with reference to their connection with the Bailey con-273 troversy, and in regard to this suit, during the last few months. I haven't heard the matter discussed to any great extent. I am busy and hear a little and then am called away and afterwards hear a little more. It has been discussed very frequently at the store, by people from different parts of the county. The general opinion expressed by the people I have heard is that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. They seem also to think that the admission of the present company into Texas, after the old Company was excluded, was fraudulent. I am not able to state whether or not it would be possible to secure in this county a fair and impartial jury for this case. I don't think I ever heard anybody say a good word for the Waters Pierce Oil Company during all of this discussion.

Cross-examination:

I have not heard the particular facts of this case discussed. I heard the matter discussed in connection with the Bailey controversy. I do not now much about the controversy in this case.

Neither do I know whether any of the people I have heard talk about the matter, know what the controversy is in this case. I have heard people speak of this present case a little; I have heard them discuss the facts just in general*ly*. I don't know much about this particular case, but I have an idea, of course. I have not discussed the issues of any one today, in regard to this case. I have not read the petition in this case. I have seen a little of the evidence as published in the papers. I haven't any real knowledge of what the issues are in this case. What I know about the case and the Waters Pierce Oil Company has come to me in that way—statements in the papers and general talk; that is about the size of it. I would not want to be on the jury in this case. I reckon I could fairly try this case, if I had to. I would try to be as fair in the 274 final disposition of this case, as I am in giving this testimony in the change of venue matter, and under the instructions of the court, I would decide this case upon what the witnesses said and the evidence introduced. I really don't think I could be a qualified juror in this case. I reckon I could fairly decide it on the evidence introduced. I don't recall anybody I have talked with who intimated that he would be able to qualify as a juror in this case. I don't recollect anyone who I don't think would be a fair and impartial juror in this case. I believe there — at least twelve men among the people I have talked to in my store, who could be as fair is this matter as myself. I guess there are that number that are as good as I am, but I believe they are prejudiced against the company. They may and may not be be prejudiced — than I am; I can't say. I don't know how many people I talked to about this matter, whether it was forty or a hundred. I just don't know. I don't recollect whom I talked to. I don't know what per cent. they constituted of the total number of qualified jurors, and don't know whether they could qualify in this case or not, as jurors. I can't say what per cent. of my customers I have talked this matter over with; I can't say whether it was more or less than ten per cent. I have talked to them indiscriminately, and have not gone to the bottom of it with any of them. I wasn't busying myself about whether or not they were qualified jurors. Took no special interest in the matter; just heard them talking to me and other people standing around. I made no effort to find out which one was qualified as a juror. I don't know what per cent., whether one or ten per cent., could qualify as jurors.

Redirect examination:

I am prejudiced against the Waters Pierce Oil Company;
275 believe it is a trust. I believe that its re-admission into the State was a fraud. If I were taken under the conditions I have stated—that I have discussed this matter; have read about it, and am prejudiced, I would try to make a fair juror. Of course, I could not weigh the testimony of H. C. Pierce and other officers of the company, or its, witnesses, as impartially as if I had not read and heard what I have. I think all other men would be like myself in this respect.

Recross-examination:

I think my previous knowledge would have something to do with whether or not I believed a person's testimony, if I were on any other jury, and I think it would be one of my functions to tell whether or not they were telling the truth.

ARTHUR FONVILLE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

I live at Webberville, Travis County, Texas; I am well acquainted both at Webberville and at Austin. I have lived in Travis County all my life.

I have during the last three or four months heard the Waters Pierce Oil Company discussed among the people of this county, with reference to whether or not it is a trust. I have also heard them discuss the matter as to whether or not the admission of the present company into Texas was a fraud. I have heard these discussions and conversations out at Webberville and here in town mostly. The discussions were among the citizens generally. The general opinion seemed to be that they thought the company is a trust. I think the general opinion also was that the admission of the present company into Texas was a fraud. I never heard any one say he did not think it was a trust; neither did I 276 ever hear any one say that the admission of the present company into Texas was not a fraud.

Cross-examination:

There are a great many people I have not heard express themselves at all on the matter. I was on the jury when they had the case up before, and I heard it talked of as a general matter then. I haven't seen or heard anything, except from general hearsay, to indicate whether or not they could get a fair trial in this county; nothing of my own knowledge. I believe they could get a fair trial in the county, but I don't think they could get a fair and impartial trial the way we have of selecting our juries, but I do think they could get it in the county. I say there are plenty of qualified jurors in the county to give them a fair and impartial trial. I could serve on the jury and give them a fair and impartial trial if I heard the evidence, notwithstanding any prior notion I may have on the subject. I think I know plenty of men in my own neighborhood who would do the same thing; I know enough in Austin who would. I couldn't say that I know at least twelve men in my own neighborhood that would do as I would, but I believe they would give a fair trial. I think they could fairly and impartially try it on the evidence.

Redirect examination:

I said I believe it would be possible to get twelve men in this county who would fairly and impartially try this case, but they could not be gotten in the ordinary way of securing juries. I don't think they could be gotten in the ordinary way of securing juries. In speaking of this case being up before and my being on the jury, I meant last November. I don't think I heard any discussions among the jurors at that time about the merits of this case. I think I could give the defendant a fair and impartial trial 277 and could weigh the testimony of H. Clay Pierce and other officers of this company as impartially as I could have done if I had not read and heard what I have. If I didn't see the man, but got the testimony by deposition, I think I could weigh the testimony just as impartially, that is, if it had to be sworn to. If it were sworn to it would be the same with me. I might be difficult for me to do it impartially.

Recross-examination:

In saying that I do not think a jury could be selected in the ordinary way, I mean in the general way of selecting thirty or forty men and trying to pick the jury from among that number. I understand the matter of securing a jury to continue until all were secured, and that those who had views on the subject or were prejudiced in the matter would be excused, and others gotten in their place. I think with that process, that is, of getting a special venire, a jury could be secured for this case.

JAMES BYRNE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

My name is James Byrne. I live in Austin, having lived here permanently since 1882. I think I have a fairly large acquaintance in the city. I have been in Austin during the past six months. During that time I have not heard much discussion with reference to this suit, but with reference to the Bailey controversy I have. I heard a good deal of talk about it. I heard all kinds of people talking about it; people from the country as well as from the city. Among those I heard discuss the matter, those who were 278 against Mr. Bailey said the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, and accused Mr. Bailey of knowing it at the time the company came back into the State. I have heard it expressed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company should not be allowed here under the law.

I think Mr. Bailey lost the city in the primary election. I do not remember by what amount he lost the city; I think the whole county went a hundred or a fraction over against him. Now I am not sure whether the city went against him, but I know the county was a fraction over a hundred against him.

Taking into consideration what I have heard stated in the discussions I have mentioned, I can't answer as to whether it would be probable or improbable to secure a fair and impartial jury for the trial of this case. As compared with an ordinary case, I think it would be necessary to have more citizens to draw from. I think it would be more difficult to secure a fair and impartial jury, than in an ordinary case.

J. B. MANOR, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is J. B. Manor. I reside at Webberville, which is about eighteen or twenty miles from Austin. I am a farmer and merchant. Have resided in this county all my life; was born in the county, and am now thirty-nine years old. I am a member of the Grand Jury at this term.

I can't state as to whether or not I am very well acquainted with public sentiment in the community where I reside. I come in contact with a good many people in that community. My business is of a public nature. I have heard the Bailey matter discussed among the people, and in that connection the Waters Pierce Oil Company was discussed. I remember the holding of a primary election in this county about the first of this year, and know it was called for the purpose of giving the Democrats of the county an oppor-
279 tunity to express their views on the Senatorial succession. Bailey's connection with the trusts was what brought on that election. In connection with those discussions it was assumed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. I think it was generally believed that it is a trust. I remember that during that discussion it was charged and discussed among the people that the Waters Pierce Oil Company had once been put out of business in Texas and its permit to do business here forfeited in one of the courts of Travis County. I didn't hear the matter of their getting back into the State under fraudulent pretenses discussed at all after this controversy, but up to the first of the year that seemed to be the general impression we got from the newspapers at that time. I think it was generally believed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company came back into the State as a fraud on the laws and the judgment of the courts of this State. As to whether or not these facts I have stated with reference to public opinion in the vicinity where I live were general at that time, I will say I don't believe I ever heard any one take the other side of the question. I do not take any of the Travis County papers. I take the Manor paper, a weekly publication, called the Progressive Age, I believe. I do not recall how that paper stood in the discussion; I hardly ever read that paper. The general news I get — some of some of the daily papers. In regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in regard to people discussing it there in my presence, it didn't seem that they have any enmity against the Waters Pierce Oil Company; it seems the discussion has been in regard to it and Bailey; the people think it is all right for them to employ any counsel, except an officer. I have stated that I believed the people generally assumed that it is a trust, and their opposition to the employment of an officer as their counsel was based on that assumption. I do not think that the issue of its being a 280 trust has been so prejudiced against the company that it would be difficult for them to get a fair and impartial trial.

My opinion as to the difficulty of getting a juror who has not so prejudged that issue to such an extent that he could not qualify as a juror is this: In almost every case of any prominence we have in the Courts the issues are published and discussed through the newspapers, and that every man who reads the papers forms some opinion for or against it. Now, that is only from the newspaper reports. It doesn't seem that if a man were an honest man that that would affect his decision as a juror in the case, as I think he would have to decide according to the evidence brought in before him. My supposition is that the honest man would lay aside any opinion he had already formed. Because of the fact that the issue as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust has been so prejudged in this county, I think it would be more difficult to get a fair and impartial jury to try this case, than it would for any ordinary case. I don't recall any civil case during my residence in the county, that has excited the same public discussion that this case has. At present I don't think of any other civil transaction which got to be a law suit which ever brought on a political campaign in this county.

Cross-examination:

At the present time I see here in the court room listening to the trial of this motion thirty-five or thirty-six people, including the newspaper men reporting the trial, the attorneys on both sides, the officers of the court, and the witnesses subpœnæd, that have been subpœnæd in this issue. I think I have in a great many civil cases seen twice as many people in the Court House watching the 281 proceedings. I think I have seen twice that many in a Justice Court in this county in a civil case.

It is a fact that what I know about the Waters Pierce Oil Company is from newspaper statements, general rumors, and matters of that character. I have never undertaken to find out what the facts are. My opinion is predicated on such statements, newspaper reports and matters of that sort. I think the information possessed by the people in my community is gathered almost exclusively from the press and from discussions. I think if I were called here and tested as to my qualifications as a juror, that I could fairly and impartially try this case. I could disregard anything I had heard up to this time and try it on the evidence and the law before the court. I do believe at this time that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I believe I am of the opinion that it was re-admitted into this State through fraud.

R. C. Burleson, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is R. C. Burleson; I live in Austin, Texas. I have lived in the city a little over a year. Before coming to the city I lived at Webberville. I am tolerably well acquainted in the city of Austin. I know nearly everybody down the river towards Webberville. Across the river towards Creedmoor and in fact all over the county I know a good many people.

During the last six months I have heard some discussion in the city of Austin with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company trial and also in connection with the Bailey controversy. The matter was pretty well discussed during the primary we had here. In the discussions I heard, I think most of the people thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I gathered that from what they said.

I think most of the people thought it got back into Texas, 282 after the old Company was ousted by fraud. I think these expressions were general among the people who discussed these matters. I do not remember that I ever heard a contrary opinion expressed. I have not heard very many expressions from people living in different parts of the County; I have been living in town since last January. I have heard the matter discussed some by people from my old neighborhood. They expressed themselves about the same was as the other people I have mentioned. From the discussions I have heard, I think the general concensus of opinion among the people is that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. From the way the people talk, I would take it that they think it is a trust. I don't know what they think as to whether or not the re-admission of the company into Texas was fraudulent.

A political controversy in this county arose over this matter with reference to Senator Bailey, and a primary was called to instruct the Representatives. There was considerable talk and discussion about this matter just before the primary election was held. I suppose I read the published accounts of the testimony taken before the Investigating Committee, but I don't remember anything about it. I just glanced through the papers. I don't remember whether or not I heard that testimony discussed among the people here in the city.

Cross-examination:

I have heard the facts of this case discussed since the application for change of venue was made. Prior to that time I only heard it discussed in connection with Senator Bailey—his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I don't know how many people I have heard discuss the case of the State of Texas vs. Waters Pierce Oil Company, prior to the time the application for change of venue was made, and since the Bailey campaign closed. Only since 283 Monday have I heard the facts of this case discussed. I heard discussions as to whether or not the defendant could get a fair trial, in this county. Some seemed to think they could, and some seemed to think they could not. It looks to me like they ought to be able to get a fair trial. I don't know of any reason why they should not. If I were called as a juror, I would have to admit that I was prejudiced, but I believe I could qualify as a juror. I mean by that that from newspaper reports and general talk outside of the particular facts in the case, I have come to the conclusion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is part of a trust. I say I am prejudiced, but I have no feeling about the matter. I think if I were brought here as a juror I could honestly state to the Court that I could go into the jury box and decide the case on the evidence introduced before me. That is the way I feel about it.

Redirect examination:

I think I could, as an honest man although I believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and the people generally so believe, take the oath as a juror is this case and disregard any formed opinion I had about the matter and try the case on the law and the evidence. That would apply to any honest man who went on the jury. I said I thought I could go on the jury and give them a fair trial, even though I am prejudiced against them. I am prejudiced against them.

Redirect examination:

I don't know whether or not there are a great many people between here and Webberville that have not taken any interest in the matter and don't now anything about the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I couldn't say whether there are any who have 284 not expressed themselves on the matter. It is true that I have talked to a great many people since this matter has come up, who didn't discuss the matter with me. A great many people didn't go to the polls. A great many around Webberville didn't go to the polls. There are a good many men in that community who don't or didn't used to take the daily papers. I suppose there are a good many men in that community whom I could meet with and treat with in a business way and who could hold their own in a business way, who have not kept posted with reference to these matters.

Redirect examination:

I do not know that it — a fact that a good many people who didn't vote in the primary because they regarded Mr. Bailey as the Democratic nominee and regarded the matter as settled by the Dallas Convention. I do not know as to that.

H. F. MURRAY, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is H. F. Murray. I live about three miles north of the city. I am engaged in the business of farming and dealing in mules and horses. I have been engaged in the business of dealing in mules and horses for about thirty years. I was engaged in that business here in the city of Austin during the past fall and winter. My customers in that business were mostly farmers, but I sold some to people in town. My customers mostly came from the prairie country to the southeast. I am fairly well acquainted in the city.

During the last six months, particularly during the months of December, January and February, I have heard discussions of the Waters Pierce Oil Company in connection with Senator Bailey's race. I heard the matter discussed right often, not so much among the farmers, as in the city. I think I heard some discussions 285 among the farmers. My recollection is that it was generally conceded among those I heard discuss the matter, that it was a trust; they looked on it as a trust. I can't call to mind hearing much discussion as to whether or not the re-admission of the company was fraudulent, but the discussions I did hear on that point were to the effect that the re-admission was fraudulent. There was considerable excitement over the question in this city and county during the month of December, that is from the time the primary election was called until the time it was held; at least, that is the view I took of it. I don't believe that I ever heard any one say a good word for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, or undertake to defend*ant* it. It is generally looked upon as a trust; as being a part of the Standard Oil Company.

Cross-examination:

I think I might have heard the facts of this case discussed; but very little, if any. I have heard that it might be termed an ouster case; that they want to oust the company from the State. I have not heard any one who pretended to be able to state what was involved in the case. The view I have with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company is based on statements or suggestions seen by me in the papers, and what I have heard in conversations and discussions. I have no knowledge of the particular facts. As to the matters charged in the plaintiff's petition, I have been of the opinion that they are true. I am of the opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and my opinion is based on what I have read and heard. It is not such a fixed opinion as would influence me if I were a juror. I have not heard the evidence. It appears to me that I could decide the case on the evidence if I were taken as a juror. I have not heard any one suggest that 286 he could not do the same thing. I have no ill-feeling whatever against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I don't think I have ever heard anyone express any ill-will or bad feeling against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. It appears to me as if the defendant could get a fair and impartial trial in this county. There might be some that would be biased, but I think there would be plenty of men that would not be.

Redirect examination:

I do not know exactly what challenges would be allowed in a case of this sort, but it might be that out of a hundred men you could get a jury. I am satisfied in my own mind that there are plenty of impartial men that would render a just verdict. I think that any honest conscientious man would lay aside any previously formed opinion and decide the case exclusively on the law and the evidence. With reference to my being able to look upon the testimony of H. Clay Pierce and other officers of this company as impartially as I could have done if I had never heard any discussions or read anything of this matter, I will say that I don't know about that. It might be so that from what I have read of them and heard of them, I might not weigh the evidence correctly, or, as you might say, not believe everything those men would say on the stand. I believe I would be inclined from the start to look upon their testimony with suspicion; I have never heard anything about their being untruthful on this proposition. I would have to be convinced that they had been wrongfully charged before I would believe everything that they should say on the stand. I haven't any doubt in my mind that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, not from what I have read; I haven't any doubt. Having in mind the way jurors are selected, and that the defendant in the trial, of a case is entitled to a jury of unprejudiced men, and under-287 standing that prejudice does not mean hostility or animosity, but that the case has been prejudged against the defendant; and further that the defendant is entitled to a jury of men who have not formed such opinions that they cannot lay them absolutely aside and look with impartiality upon the testimony of each witness, and decide the case impartiality and without considering what they have read or heard before, I say, considering all these things I don't hardly think it would be easy to get a jury in this county. But I am confident in my mind, not knowing the dispositions of the men that there are plenty of men in the county that would act impartially in a case like this. I still think, after considering all the matters just stated, that I could sit as a juror in this case. Considering the fact that I would look with suspicion upon the testimony of Mr. Pierce, puts the matter in another light. Now, after hearing Mr. Pierce's testimony I might change my mind. It is generally understood that Mr. Pierce did swear falsely in regard to getting the company back into Texas, and I would have to have that rather removed from my mind, that is, that I thought that he did was was calculated to swear falsely, before I would believe what he would say. I couldn't tell whether the majority of other men would feel as I do about this. I believe that men who have taken any notice of the case and read the newspapers would be of the opinion that Mr. Pierce had sworn falsely in regard to this case. I think he would have to satisfy them with his presence and his evidence that he had not sworn falsely.

Recross-examination:

If I were taken as a juror in this case and took the oath to fairly and impartially try this case, I think I would try to give to the testimony of each witness that degree of credence that I think it was entitled to under the law, and I am of the opinion that 288 I could do it, but as I said before, in regard to Mr. Pierce, I would have to be satisfied from his evidence that he was not swearing falsely, although I might by his presence and his manner of giving his evidence, be led to think that he was swearing correctly. Assuming the case that the State was depending upon the testimony of Mr. Pierce, under those circumstances I don't think I would be so prejudiced against the defendant as not to give them the benefit of any question that they might be entitled to.

I come in contact with a good many people all over the county.

I rarely ever hear the Waters Pierce Oil Company or the Bailey matter spoken of except by men in the city. I don't know about the people in the country taking the papers, but I guess there are some who do not and who don't take any interest in public affairs. It is because they are very busy from early until dark and don't read much afterwards. I have heard the case talked of very little, outside of meeting men here in town, I have heard very little said about it. I am of the opinion that any views there might be with reference to this matter in the county, so far as my observation goes, are based on newspaper reports, discussions, general rumors and things of that sort.

C. E. GILBERT, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

My name is C. E. Gilbert. I live in Austin, Texas; have lived hereabout ten years and a half, I believe. I am engaged in the newspaper business. I am the editor of the Tribune, an afternoon paper published here in the city of Austin. Since living in this county I have held the official positions of State Expert Printer and Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds. I was 289 State Expert Printer for four years, and Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds for the same number of years. The Tribune has been published continuously from September 1st, of last year, up to this time. During that time the Tribune has had a circulation of about two thousand; sometimes a little over, and sometimes a little less. During September, October, November and December I had nothing to do with the Tribune and cannot state as to its circulation during that time. Since I became connected with the Tribune the circulation somewhat over what it was two months ago, but there hasn't been any marked increase. I have been connected with the Tribune about two months, since about March 1st. When I went in it had a subscription in the city of between sixteen and seventeen hundred. I am not positive as to what it was outside of the city, but I think it was between two and three hundred. I recognize this as the file of the Austin Tribune (pointing to files on table) for the months of January, February and March, 1907. I recognize that (pointing to other file) as the the file of the Tribune for the months of November and December, 1906. I had them brought up here from the office. And this is the file (pointing to third file) for the months July to October 31, 1906.

Cross-examination:

I don't know whether I could say that I have been fairly in touch with public sentiment in this county with reference to the Bailey matter and the Waters Pierce Oil Company since the first of January. I reckon I have. I come in contact with and speak to a great number of people all the time. I discuss matters of interest and matters of public interest with different people, but I have been pretty 290 busy the last few weeks. I also keep up with what is said in the newspapers. From what I have seen and heard and know, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can get a fair and impartial trial in this county. I think I could fairly and impartially try any issue with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I think any fair-minded man could do that. I think I understand the issues in this case, but I don't know that I have read anything that might be called strictly evidence. I have read newspaper reports and I have heard a good deal said about it. If I were to be chosen as a juror in this case I could certainly try the case on the law as given by the Court, and the evidence as adduced here on the trial of the case.

I said I went with the Tribune about the first of March. I had nothing to do with the paper up to that time. Prior to that time I was not responsible for the editorial expressions of that paper.

Redirect examination:

I said I could act as a juror in this case, but I would not want to do so. From what I have heard and read and understand, I believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. With reference to the readmission of the company into Texas in 1900 by fraud, as to the character of fraud I do not know; I think it was procured by misrepresentation or deception. I have only a general impression concerning the affidavit made by Mr. Pierce, from what I have seen and heard. I have never read the affidavit itself. My impression is that the affidavit was not correct, but as I said I have not read the affidavit. While I was Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds I did refuse to buy oils for the State from the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but I don't think that it was a matter of prejudice with me. I did not think the State ought to patronize trusts.
291 I think the policy of the State is against trusts and it declares against them, and I told them I would not buy from them. From a sense of duty I looked upon it as a trust and from that sense I refused to buy from them.

I think it is the general sentiment among the people of this city and county that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. So far as I know and have heard, the general sentiment is that the affidavit which Mr. Pierce made at the time the company was re-admitted into the State was false. I have never heard a contrary opinion expressed. I know that the people generally believe that the permit of this company was obtained by deception and misrepresentation. I believe the people of the city and county generally think that the Waters Pierce Oil Company ought to be ousted from the State. From what I have heard, I think the people of this city and county generally want to see the State succeed in this case and want to put the Waters Pierce Oil Company out of business in Texas.

Recross-examination:

Any views of that kind entertained by me are based on general newspaper statements and irresponsible talk. I don't think that anybody has really undertaken to get at the facts of this matter. I don't think that anybody has undertaken to publish the actual evidence in the case. The same view is general over the State as in the county; I am pretty sure of that.

Redirect examination:

I saw copies of the Chicago American that were distributed here free about the first of January containing what purported to be photographs of vouchers and drafts and so on of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and what purported to be an interview with 292 Mr. Gruet, the chief witness in this case. I understood at the time that a large number of those papers were sent here and distributed free. I remember it contained articles that were very bitter against Bailey, but don't remember that it had any denunciation of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I remember it purported to contain a statement by Mr. Gruet of the facts relative to the readmission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas.

M. J. KNAPE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is M. J. Knape; I live in Austin, Texas, and have lived here since 1894. I am engaged in the newspaper business. I publish a political newspaper in the Swedish language. It is circulated all over the State of Texas among the Swedish people. Its largest circulation is in Travis and Williamson County; it has about the same circulation in those two counties. We figure that there are about three thousand Swedes in Travis and Williamson Counties, that is counting men, women and children. In Travis County the circulation of my paper is about eighteen hundred; in Williamson it is fourteen or fifteen hundred. It is hard to tell where the largest Swedish settlement in Travis County is located. The Swedish people mostly live in the portions of the county adjoining Williamson and Bastrop Counties.

We didn't take any political sides in our paper during the campaign preceding the election in January. We only asked the people to investigate the facts and find out for themselves. We didn't give the people any advice at all in regard to the matter. Personally I was against Mr. Bailey; my reason for being against him was I thought he had done a thing he ought not to have done, in that he was the people's representative and was also representing the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I thought the Waters Pierce Oil Com-
293 pany was a trust. I heard so much I could not keep from thinking that, but I couldn't say whether it is or not. I have an opinion, however. Some of the people I heard express themselves were for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and some against it. I do not know how the majority expressed themselves. One day I would meet one or two that were for them, and another day one or two against them. Out in the Swedish settlements I didn't speak to more than half a dozen, and about half of those stood one way and half the other. Those that were against Mr. Bailey gave as their reason that they thought he was representing the Waters Pierce Oil Company and that he was not fit to represent both the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the State of Texas. They are very religious and don't believe in a man serving two masters. The Swedish people are supposed to be very religious, and are people of firm convictions.

No editorials that I know of with reference to Mr. Bailey or the Waters Pierce Oil Company were published in my paper; nor was any of the evidence taken before the Bailey Investigating Committee, published. None of the witness Gruet's testimony was published, and none of Senator Bailey's.

Cross-examination:

I know of no Swedish paper that took any special interest in the matter. I don't think there was any Swedish paper circulated in this county that took any special interest in the matter. There were a few copies of papers from the north, from Chicago and Minneapolis, but I don't think I saw a word about that in those papers. The only Swedish paper published in Texas had nothing to amount to about it, and I don't remember seeing anything about it in the papers coming from outside of the State. Most of the Swedish 294 people read only the Swedish papers, a majority of them don't read the American papers at all.

In the boxes in which the Swedish people are in the majority, I think the vote was very light, that is, during the Bailey election. A lot of the Swedish people didn't care enough about it to go and vote; didn't take any interest at all. There are lots of them, although quite intelligent that don't know anything about the Waters Pierce Oil Company; don't pay any attention to it. I suppose there are a great many who don't know anything about this suit, but I don't know for certain as to that. I know the Swedish people pretty well. I don't know of any prejudice or feeling against the Waters Pierce Oil Company on the part of the Swedish people of the County. Most of them are intelligent people and are qualified jurors. Most of them, also, are conscientious people. A majority of them are educated; some of the old ones are not. I suppose they are among the best people of the county, and make good conscientious and capable jurors.

A. G. Smoot, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is A. G. Smoot. I have lived in Travis County for thirty years. During the last eight or ten years I have been in the newspaper business; I am connected with the Austin Statesman. For the last year or so I have been in the active management of that paper.

During the year 1901, and during the session of the Legislature of 1901, I was living in Austin. During that session of the Legislature we handled the proceedings of the Legislature very fully. I remember an investigation that was held during that session of the Legislature, concerning Senator Bailey. I remember the reso-
295 lution introduced in that session of the Legislature by Hon. D. A. McFall, now deceased, and then a member of the Legislature from Travis County. I do not remember the details, but I remember the resolution. My recollection is that there was an investigation held by the Legislature as the result of the offering of that resolution and the controversy growing out of it. I think the sessions of that committee were open, and lasted two or three weeks: They probably had one or two executive sessions, but most of it was open.

At that time they were investigating Senator Bailey on the charge that he was connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and it was charged that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. My recollection is that the newspapers then published in the county gave general publicity to that investigation and the political controversy growing out of it. I don't remember as to the dates about this matter, whether it was after the new company secured a permit or not. I would have to refresh my memory. I think the ouster of the old company and the admission of the new company into the State was the basis of the agitation. The agitation and discussion growing out of that controversy at that time was general in this county as a political question and subject of discussion; as well as the whole state.

I was here in Austin during the last session of the Legislature, and I was here and in the newspaper business at the time of the filing of this present suit against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. With reference to the time of the holding of the Democratic State Convention in August last, this new agitation over the Waters Pierce Oil Company, as I remember it, commenced soon after the publication of Mr. Pierce's testimony taken in St. Louis. I could not state positively as to whether or not there had been any public discussion of what is claimed to be new discoveries in this matter until 296 after the State Convention. I don't remember whether it was prior to or after the State Convention. I think the time of the publication of certain correspondence between Attorney General Davidson and Senator Bailey was last November or December; it was in December. My recollection is that Senator Bailey was here during part of that time, and was away during part of it. The publication of that correspondence commenced here*in* in the city of Austin and was sent out from this city. As a result of that correspondence and as the result of the filing of this suit, and the publication of what is claimed to be disclosures with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, a political campaign was stirred up. The campaign was in the nature of primaries, held to decide whether this county should instruct its Representatives to vote for or against Senator Bailey. To state what the general discussion was and the extent of it, before the primaries would be quite an extensive proposition. It caused a great deal of discussion pro and con. The executive Committee finally decided it by ordering the election. To the best of my knowledge, the question as to whether the Primary was first to be ordered was quite a question of discussion. As a result of this agitation there was about the usual amount of partisan strife, such as ordinarily arises in a political question of that kind. The primary was finally ordered. I couldn't remember the exact number of days from the day of ordering the election to the day it was held, but it was a very short time. I suppose about twelve or fifteen days, probably not so long as that. It was a very short campaign and was fierce while it lasted. Senator Bailey was here and made speeches, and others made speeches against him. Local citizens didn't participate in the campaign in this county as extensively as might be thought they would, but there were some who participated in it.

There was some literature circulated and distributed through-297 out the county, but to what extent I do not know. It is my recollection that the election was held the 5th day of January. That was, I think, about five days before the convening of the Legislature. After the holding of the primary and in anticipation of the meeting of the Legislature, there was some discussion in the county over the Waters Pierce Oil Company, its method of doing business, and its getting back into the State, but the discussion was principally with regard to Mr. Bailey and not so much concerning the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company in that campaign was spoken of as a trust. I don't know whether there were any defenders of the Waters Pierce Oil Company or not. It was not exactly the issue; it was more Bailey than the Waters Pierce Case. I didn't hear enough discussion to base my judgment on the question as to whether or not the real issue was that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, and in second place, concerning Mr. Bailey's association with it. The discussion immediately after the holding of the primary election and upon the convening of the Legislature, was very lurid for a good part of the time there. I remember that Judge Duncan made a speech in the House of Representatives. I think he opened the campaign, and his speech was very lengthy. There was a very large crowd present in the House of Representatives when Judge Duncan made his speech. Others participated in the discussion, and it excited a great deal of comment, and a very large attendance was there most of the time. My recollection is that Judge Jas. H. Robertson participated in the discussion. The discussion I have just spoken of was preliminary to the investigation proper. The discussion as to whether an investigation would be ordered continued for several days. The Investigation was finally ordered and was held and it seemed to me like it never 298 stopped. I- lasted something like a month and a half. In one way or another during the investigation proper, there was a continual agitation of the matter on the floor of the House of Representatives. We handled the testimony that was heard by the Investigating Committee, pretty fully in the Statesman. I- took up about one-third of our local news space. It was such an item of public news that the substance of the proceedings was reported. I don't know whether the discussion kept up throughout the Investigation; didn't have time to find out about that, but I think everybody was reading the reports. The scope of the Investigation was pretty wide. I heard the name of the Waters Pierce Oil Company mentioned a good deal in connection with the Investigation. I recall the fact that the witness J. P. Gruet was here and testified. He was on the witness stand for some time; I don't remember how long. I do not remember how many pages his testimony covered, but it took up a good many. I remember the fact of his son, J. P. Gruet, Jr., being here and testifying also the fact of John D. Johnson, the General Attorney of the Waters Pierce Oil Company's being here and testifying. I also recall the fact that H. Nordain, an auditor of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, being here and testifying. I think A. J. Hutchings was here also. I believe A. J. Cole, of Dallas, who once worked for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, was also here and testified. Senator Bailey also testified. Two counties in the State of Texas held primary elections to instruct their representatives how to vote in the election of United States Senator. Travis County was one and Comanche County the other. There was some agitation in Waco, but no election was ordered. They held a general election as the result of a State senatorial resignation in the West, but that was not a partisan primary. I know as a matter of fact that Travis County is the only county in the State in which they have ever had an investigation of this matter. The old suit against the company on which they were ousted from the State several years ago originated in Travis County. The new suit is now pending in Travis County. I could not answer offhand whether or not during my thirty years of residence in Travis County any other controversy that resulted in a lawsuit has precipitated or provoked a political campaign. I would have to refresh my memory on that point. I have no present recollection of any such having arisen in the county before.

(It was here agreed by Counsel on both sides that certain files of the Austin Daily Statesman which were in their possession, should be considered as properly identified.)

The circulation of the Daily Statesman for the last twelve months in the city can be conservatively placed at five thousand. It has been greater on Sundays than week days. The circulation in the county extends over the Daily and the Semi-Weekly. I suppose the circulation could be safely placed at eight thousand five hundred in all. We do not publish a Weekly Statesman; we publish only a Semi-Weekly and Daily. The Daily includes Sunday.

Cross-examination:

We have always endorsed Mr. Bailey's views on all matters connected with this agitation. I don't know that it could be said that Senator Bailey and his friends have dictated the policy of the paper; we have been supporting him entirely, though. Nothing that was regarded as detrimental to him was put into the paper. Unless a matter had a news feature to it, the editor has tried to keep out everything that was detrimental to Mr. Bailey. The matter before the Investigation Committee was somewhat carefully edited, but not at all times. To my recollection there was not during all this time any discussion of the merits of this case of the State of Texas vs. Waters Pierce Oil Company. Nothing except in the line of evidence before the Committee has been said about this case in my paper. I don't remember of anything having been published indicating that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. My recollection is that the editorial utterances were with regard to Mr. Bailey more than with regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. We have never attempted to establish the fact that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is associated with the Standard Oil Company, or that it is a trust. We might have stated it as a news item, but have not gone into it as a logical deduction of the matter. We have not intentionally said anything in the editorial or other parts of the paper calculated to stir up ill-feeling or ill-will toward the Waters Pierce Oil Company or the Standard Oil Company. Our paper gave currency to all utterances of Mr. Bailey upon every matter connected with his campaign. We published everything that he gave out for publication. I do not recall as to whether we published his contention that the Waters Pierce Oil Company had not been convicted as a trust in the former suit. I rather think we did. We published full reports of his speeches at the Opera House and at the Skating Rink, and if he made that contention in those speeches, it was no doubt published in our paper. Our subscription list for this section of the country, that is, Travis County, has about 8500 subscribers on it. I don't recall that the Statesman has at any time published anything calculated to stir up antagonism to 301 the Waters Pierce Oil Company or to the Standard Oil Company. I don't remember that it has been making any fierce attacks on the trusts or anything of that sort.

I did not compare the reports of the proceedings before the Investigating Committee as published in the other papers of the State and as published in the Statesman, and cannot state whether they handled the matter as fully as the Statesman did. I know that all the daily papers handled it very extensively. The Dallas and Galveston News, San Antonio Express, Fort Worth Record, and the Houston Chronicle all handled it very extensively. I have never discussed the matter of a fair trial to any extent, and therefore don't know whether there is much prejudice or not. I have not heard anything to indicate that the Waters Pierce Oil Company couldn't get a fair trial. The truth is I have heard very little discussion of this particular case. It is part of my business to know what is going on, and as far as I know there has been very little discussion of this case, that is with me. If there is any sentiment in this community to prevent the Waters Pierce Oil Company from getting a fair trial, it has not been expressed to me.

Recross-examination:

So far as the news feature was concerned, I think we handled both sides of the matter. The editorial columns of our paper were friendly to Senator Bailey. I don't recall any editorial utterances for or against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. There were no utterances on that matter, except perhaps in an indirect way. I said if we handled the speeches made by Senator Bailey at the Opera House and Skating Rink in which he spoke of what the Waters Pierce Oil Company was convicted some six years ago, the 302 files will show what he said in his speeches. I do not remember what he said. I think the contention in this county was not as to the Waters Pierce Oil Company's not being a trust, but as to Senator Bailey's knowledge or any connection there might have been between the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company at the time of its re-admission into the State. I think that had a good deal to do with the proposition. In as much as it was not an issue, I do not think it was necessary for anybody to defend*ant* the Waters Pierce Oil Company, unless they wanted to.

As I said before, the matter as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, and had come back into Texas through fraud and misrepresentation, was not discussed sufficiently in my presence, for me to form an opinion on what the general public thought.

M. L. JOHNSON, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is M. L. Johnson. I live in Austin, and have been living here about five years. I am now engaged in the printing business. Up to about the first of last December I was engaged in the newspaper business. I was publishing the Austin Sifter. The Sifter was a political paper. The Austin Forum is the labor paper. Up to the time I sold the Sifter I was strictly against Mr. Bailey, and did all I could against him. That was the attitude of the paper. During last fall the circulation of the paper ranged from one to two thousand; never less than a thousand. Editorials against Senator Bailey appeared in that paper. The basis of my opposition to Mr. Bailey was that I thought he was guilty of what he had been charged with, namely, of assisting the Waters Pierce Oil Company or the Standard Oil Company, or whatever you might term it, of assisting them in getting back into the State after they had 303 been driven out. I stated in that paper that the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company in 1900 was a fraud. I don't know that I urged in that paper that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, further than they were robbing the people as a trust. I have never said anything good for the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

I am pretty well acquainted in the city. I think I sold that paper in November. I am not sure of that, but I think I did. I did not write any editorial on the affidavit made by Mr. Pierce on which the present company was brought back into the State. So far as I could see the discussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey's connection with it, seemed to overshadow everything else. As to what the concensus of opinion of the people is on the question of whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, I can best answer that question this way: So far as I can see, and I try to observe everything that comes along in that line, and I talk to all my friends and to strangers, and I think the people generally are against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. A majority of the people I have talked to on this matter, have so expressed themselves. For what the people said in regard to the admission into the State in 1900 of the new company, they seemed to think it was illegally done. I don't say by fraud, but illegally done. I have heard some few people that would stand right up for the Waters Pierce Oil Company and for Mr. Bailey. I have heard very few stand up for the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have not discussed the affidavit made by Mr. Pierce, with very many people, but those I discussed it with thought it was false. As to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company could secure a fair and impartial trial in this county, I will say that I believe there are as good people in

Austin and Travis County as there are in the State, but as to 304 whether they could secure a fair and impartial trial I could not say, because that would be charging my neighbors and fellow men in a way that I should not do, but it looks to me like they are in a pretty hard row of stumps, if they undertake it here. I believe a majority of the people in this county are prejudiced against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I am acquainted with a great many of the laboring people in this city. The laboring people, the mechanics, artisans, etc., think it is a rotten thing all the way through. I mean that Senator Bailey and the Waters Pierce Oil Company are rotten things all the way through. All the people I talked to seemed to have a firm conviction in regard to these matters. My conviction with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company is that they are just as rotten as can be, and that Pierce Perjured himself, but that is merely my opinion. I couldn't try this case impartially. I- wouldn't do at all for me to go on the jury.

I am the publisher of this pamphlet just shown me. This edition here was published last week. This is a new edition of an old one. The old edition was published about a month ago. That circular was pretty well circulated in Travis County, but it went to several counties. In Travis County something like two thousand copies were put out of the first edition, and perhaps two thousand of the second. I think the second edition was put out Thursday or Friday of last week. The circular was sent to people in the country, as well as in the town.

Cross-examination:

I am enthused over this matter more than the average citizen. I have studied the question more than most of the people I come in contact with. I get every paper I can on it, and give it some 305 thought every day. Most of the people in this county, especially the laboring people are not so intensely interested as I am. It is my intention to work up such intense feeling on the part of the people. My reason is that they are not educated up to the facts, a recognition on my part that they do not know the facts and haven't the proper feeling on the matter. That is the reason I am issuing these circulars. I have come in contact with a few people in town here who don't know anything about this matter, but those that don't know something are very scattering. There are very few that know the facts in the case, and -ome that won't discuss it at all. There is no intense feeling in the matter, further than the few deeply interested in the matter. There were very few that wouldn't talk about the matter at all. They haven't any feeling against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I suppose. As to whether or not many of the laboring people are too busy to take time to acquaint themselves with these matters of public moment, I can't say, but I believe that there are some laboring people so sick of politics they don't care whether they are informed or not. There are some few of that kind, I think. I can't say that I have discussed the matter with a great many of the people in town; I don't know many. My discussions were with people of all classes and all walks. I have discussed it with more than a hundred people; just to make a rough guess I would say that I have discussed it with two hundred. I don't know whether it would be safe to limit it to three hundred. I don't know whether I have discussed the matter with more than ten per cent. of the voters of the town. I don't suppose I have a personal acquaintance with more than three or four hundred voters in town. Outside of the city to the north and west and some few east I am well acquainted. I am acquainted with nearly every single man to the county line north. I know them personally. I did busi-306 ness out at Watters Station, nine miles north of town, and at Merrilltown, which is north of here, and I am well acquainted out there. In the eastern and southern part of the county I haven't any great acquaintance. I have seen at least twenty per cent. of these people during the discussion of this question. There are a great many people in the county I have not discussed the matter with. I did not say the defendant could not get a fair trial in this county; I said I thought it would be rather hard to get a jury, but we have good people here. I think there are a good many people who have not studied the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company business and J. W. Bailey as much as they ought to have. There may be a great many people who are not informed about these issues. I believe that if the county were gone over that a jury could be had, but it would be troublesome. I don't want the job of getting a jury.

I sold the Sifter just after the beginning of the Bailey campaign. I fought Bailey in one or two issues, and then sold the paper. The character of the paper changed at once; it wheeled right around. Lots of remarks about the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but they were pleasant and nice. The last expressions from the paper are entirely opposite to what my policy was. My idea in publishing the paper was that the people of this county had no sufficient or proper appreciation of the fact that the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company were trusts and were violating the laws of this state. When I sold the paper a new policy altogether was taken up, counteracting the very effect of my efforts to get these facts before the people, and, incidentally, I would not have sold it if I had known it. I don't think the interest in this matter will die out until Mr. Bailey is retired altogether—put on the shelf. There has not been as general discussion of the matter since the Bailey 307 campaign. There has been no further active interest than just to talk about it. There is not as much talk as there was during the campaign. I have discussed the merits of this particular case with a good many people. I- would be a limited number in comparison with the whole population of the county, but if I talk to a man he would talk to several of his neighbors and they would talk about it to others and so it would go on. There has been some discussion as to whether they got back into Texas legally or illegally but most of them seemed to think it was done illegally. I know one or two in this county that have a more intense feeling in this matter than I have. A stranger came from a long distance and called for M. L. Johnson and said "I have come all the way, twelve miles, to shake hands and get acquainted with you," and said, "You are my man and you discuss that Bailey matter to suit me exactly,". Hardly a day passes but what a str*na*ger comes and asks me if I am M. L. Johnson, and says he wants to look me in the eye. I think there are some few who appreciate the matter as I do, but a very small per cent. are as much enthused as I am. I am willing to come here and testify in behalf of the defendant, because I always try to do what is right, but I would not go beyond what I thought was right. I believe there are men in the county who do not know as many facts about this matter as I do, who could come here and make competent jurors.

Redirect examination:

The expressions of the twenty or thirty per cent. of the people living in the northern portion of the county with whom I have discussed the matter, their expressions were the same as those others I have told about. They expressed themselves with the same practical unanimity. Only one man in the northern portion of 308 the county expressed himself otherwise, and that was Mr. Dink Parker. Having in mind the way a jury is ordinarily selected, I am of the opinion that it would be very hard to get a jury to try this case, but it might be done. I would hate to ride enough to get a jury. I do not know to what extent I can keep my previously conceived ideas from controlling my judgment.

Recross-examination:

I know very few of the Swedish people who live in the Eastern part of the county. I am acquainted with the sentiments of some of of the Swedish people, but very few. I formerly lived at Merrillton; lived there about two years. That was seven years ago. There was only one man out there that I talked with who differed with me about this matter. Those I didn't talk with I don't know anything about further than what their neighbors told me. I didn't keep up with the Bailey election out there. I hadn't got interested in the same way at that time. It may be a fact that not more than half of the people voted in the Bailey Election, and that of those who did vote more than half voted for Bailey; I don't know as to that. There has been a change in sentiment at Merrillton since the primaries. If the thing was to be done over again, it would be done like it was at that place.

Redirect examination:

My acquaintance among the Swedes is limited, and I have not heard many Swedes express themselves. Those that I have talked to about the matter, seemed to think as I do.

Recross-examination:

I can recall some particular individuals among the Swedes
309 that have expressed themselves to me on this matter. It would be a hard matter to state just how many. If I had time to study I might recall several. My acquaintance with the Swedes is limited. At this moment I cannot perhaps recall more than three or four.

Redirect examination:

As far as I can see and learn the sentiment in this county against Mr. Bailey has become more bitter since the first of January. This also applies to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, so far as I can learn.

J. S. BONNER, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is J. S. Bonner. I live in Austin. I am engaged in the business of publishing a paper, called the Harpoon. It is known as Kalamity's Harpoon. I have been publishing that paper about four years. Its circulation in Travis County is somewhere between three thousand and thirty-five hundred. I don't know exactly what its circulation is here in the city of Austin; it is probably a third of it here. During the last six months its circulation has been practically the same in Travis County; it has been increasing slowly. I presume its circulates among all classes of people. I have here a copy of the issue published the first of February; in fact, I have copies for the last six months. It is a monthly publication.

Cross-examination:

My paper is one of general circulation. I come in contact with the people of the town and county and have been coming in contact with them for the last six months, but I don't see as many as a good many people would think. I have discussed the merits of this 310 particular case in my paper. I have not gone into a discussion of the particular facts. My discussions have been mainly of Mr. Bailey and his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have commented considerably on the pending case, but I didn't go into the facts because I didn't know what they were. In a general way I have gone into what I understood to be the salient facts. I don't think I am in a position to judge as to the minds of the people of this county with reference to this case. I don't have much conversation with citizens generally. In my discussions with people in regard to this case, I have not heard anything to indicate that the Waters Pierce Oil Company could not get a fair trial in this county. Parties directly interested on the other side indicated that a fair trial could not be had. Personally I don't see why they shouldn't get a fair trial in this county.

Redirect examination:

I have not talked generally with the people in this county with reference to this case. I have tried to mould sentiment against Mr. Bailey through the columns of my paper. I know that the Tribune did the same thing. I don't know that Judge Terrell, Taylor Moore and W. A. Cocke abused Mr. Bailey or not; I know they tried to beat him. They charged that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was operating in violation of law. I know that a majority of the people in Travis County voted against Mr. Bailey in the primary election. I know that the basis of the opposition was the charge that he had been working for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and that it was a trust, and a part of the Standard Oil Company. I know that 311 it has been charged that the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, or the admission of the present company into Texas was a fraud perpetrated on the State. I have argued that in my paper, and it has been argued in the Austin Tribune and the Houston Chronicle. After these things, I don't see why they couldn't get a fair trial. If they had been lied on, it would change the minds of men. Fair-minded men would give them a fair trial. I say even after considering the matters I have just enumerated as to what has been charged against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, there doesn't anything occur to me that it might not be possible for the defendant to secure a fair trial. I would not like to sit on the jury in this case. There would have to be some powerful evidence to change my mind. From the people I have talked to I have heard very little in regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I suppose because I was on the other side I heard more about Bailey. Being against Bailey our side would talk more. The basis of their opposition to Bailey was his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and because he got the company back into the State fraudulently, and also because the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I have not heard anybody say anything good for the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

The local circulation of the Harpoon is 3,500. I am sorry to say that my paper is peculiar in this respect, that if only one copy gets into a neighborhood, everybody reads it.

JOHN L. MARTIN, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

My name is John L. Martin. I am engaged in the plumbing and electric supply business here in the city. I have been in that business for something over three years; have lived in this city 312 about twenty-five years. I am pretty well acquainted with the public; was not raised here, but have been in the city for twenty-five years. Within the last few months I have heard discussions among the citizens with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and with reference to Senator Bailey. I have heard that generally among the laboring class and contractors. It has been a subject of general discussion with them, during the months of January and February and up until now. The opinion among the people I have heard discuss the matter, is to the effect that it is a trust. That is the general opinion among the people I have heard discuss the matter. I do not think I have ever heard a contrary opinion expressed. The people I heard express themselves seemed to be convinced that it was a trust; they did not seem merely to be of that impression.

Cross-examination:

All I have heard about the case now in court is what I read in the papers. I have not heard any views about the merits of the case.

The people I have heard talk about this matter seemed to think they are going to try the Waters Pierce Oil Company as being a trust; but I haven't heard any one discuss the merits of this case. I don't say the Waters Pierce Oil Company could not get a fair trial in this County. For the last four or five months it is all we have heard in the papers, and I really believe seven-eighths of the people have read the papers in regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Bailey, and have made up their minds that it is a trust and got into the State fraudulently. I have views on this subject myself. They are not based on newspaper reports, general talk and things of that sort, but on my own intelligence. I haven't heard what the evidence is, and wouldn't say that I would not decide the case fairly, if 313 I were on the jury. I haven't any such decided opinion as to prevent my doing right in the case. I have it in my head that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is not a trust. I would entertain some doubt as to my ability to treat the State fairly. I have no prejudice whatever against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Very few people I come in contact with are like myself. The percentage is very small, perhaps one man out of a hundred is on the side I am on. There being about three thousand voters in the city, and assuming that I would associate with a thousand people, at that rate ten men could be found who have no prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, that is here in the city. It would be a hard matter out of the few men that would be brought here to get a fair and impartial jury of men that would have the view that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a trust. I don't say they are not to be found in the county. Not only for the last month or two but for the last six months it seems like every time you get into a crowd that this matter of Bailey and the Waters Pierce Oil Company is brought up.

Without counting them, I should guess there are fifty people in the court room at this time. Counting them, I see thirty five or forty, including the newspaper men, lawyers and officers of the Court. There have been times when I have seen ten times as many people here for the trial of a case. I can't say that I have seen as many in a Justice Court; I have never been in a Justice of the Peace Court but once in my life. I don't visit the courts at all.

I don't know whom I have talked with before I was summoned as a witness. I didn't know why I was summoned. Really don't know who secured my views with reference to this matter. I don't think I talked with Sam Harlan any on this subject. He might have talked to me, but I don't know. I was talking to a confection-314 ery man down here the other day. I have talked to a great many people about this matter and have read the newspapers, and I have no prejudice whatever against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I try to be an average good citizen. I don't say that I read all the newspapers published here; I read part of them. I read the Statesman and Tribune some; also K. Lamity's Harpoon, and the new one out now, the Prohibition paper. I try to read them all.

J. E. Lucy, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

My name is James E. Lucy. I live in Austin; I have lived here nearly thirty years. I was Chief of Police here twelve or fourteen years. Since then I have been engaged in the Surety business. It has been seven or eight years since I was Chief of Police the last time. During the last six months I have heard discussions among the citizens of Austin with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey's connection with it. I think this has been a matter of frequent discussion. There were speakers in the county who discussed the matter. I heard portions of the speeches that were made. I heard a portion of the speech made here one night by Judge Terrell. I didn't hear Taylor Moore's speeches, but I read them. I did not hear Mr. Cocke speak. The extent to which the people in this city have expressed themselves on this matter is large. Every paper that is published here in the city has denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust, and nearly every speaker in the last campaign, that is, the Bailey campaign, denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust. In fact, literature to that effect was 315 sent all over the county. As to expressions from individual citizens, I will say that I have only talked to intimate friends about the matter. I have not discussed it generally myself, but I just got the impression that the people think the re-admi- Pierce Oil Company is a trust. With reference to the re-admission of the company into the State six years ago, the general impression among the people in the city and county is to the effect that it was fraudulent. I know what the result was of the election held early in January for the purpose of instructing our Representatives whether or not to vote for Senator Bailey. I think the sole question submitted in that primary was just "For Bailey" or "Against Bailey." There was no one running against Senator Bailey. I don't remember the vote that was cast in that election. I think Senator Bailey was defeated by a couple hundred. I think the vote cast against him in the city was something like a hundred and fifty. The basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey was the fact of his aiding the Waters Pierce Oil Company to get back into Texas. The objection urged against the Waters Pierce Oil Company was that they were considered a trust. I believe it was based on Mr. Pierce's testimony in St. Louis, or some acknowledgment that he may have made there. I have had considerable experience with courts. Taking into consideration what I have heard; the public speeches, the individual expressions; what I have seen in the newspapers, my knowledge of the basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey, and the result of the primary election in this county—I do not believe that the Waters Pierce Oil Company can secure a fair and impartial trial in this county, that is, secure a jury of unprejudiced men in the ordinary way of securing 316 juries.

Cross-examination:

I have no individual prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. With reference to giving the Waters Pierce Oil Company, the defendant, here, a fair trial, I will say that I think I could give any question a fair trial if I were a juror. I have heard just about what everybody else has heard about it being a trust and so on. I think I might be qualified to go into the jury box and give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair and impartial trial. I would rather believe it would be a difficult thing to get twelve men who had not made up their minds one way or the other, in this county. As to whether or not I could go into the jury box without any feeling that would prevent me from giving the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair trial, it would depend upon circumstances. I was not very friendly with the Waters Pierce Oil Company in the beginning of the campaign. As to my present attitude in the matter, I believe, as I said before, that I could give any person or corporation or individual a fair trial. I don't make any exception of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, as far as that is concerned. With regard to the reason for my being willing to assume that the effect of what has gone on in the county would be different on the ordinary man of intelligence and character that the effect it has had on me, I will say that I feel this way about it,—that the Waters Pierce Oil Company has been denounced generally in this county, and the ordinary jury that would be secured in a panel I don't think might be qualified to pass upon a matter of that sort probably as well as I would. It would not be fair for me to assume that persons who would be examined here as to their qualifications as jurors, that they would not answer the questions as fairly as I would. It would not be fair for me to 317 assume special intelligence and virtue that does not come to other men of intelligence and virtue in the county, but at the same time I am of the opinion that there is a great and widespread prejudice in this county. I took quite an interest in the Bailey Election, and was an active Bailey supporter. I did what I could to get a full and proper vote, but did it late in the campaign. We were led to believe that no election would be called in this county, that is, the Bailey people were led to believe that, and finally when it was called we thought that we would ignore it, and until four or five days before the election came off we were quiet and did nothing. We did what we could in the last week or so before the election. I think it is true that a very large per cent. of the people of the county failed to vote in the election, notwithstanding that which was done in the campaign. Quite a number of the people right here in town did not vote. I am not prepared to say it is true that there are a great number of people in this town who have read just about what I have read and heard what I have heard and know just about what I know about the Waters Pierce Oil Company and who now entertain the same views that I do. I think it would be very difficult indeed to get a jury in this town that would fairly and impartially dispose of this case on the facts which would be submitted to them. There may be many people in town who have had the same opportunities for information I have had, but I doubt exceedingly whether a jury could be found in Travis County that would give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair and impartial trial; I think the case has been prejudged by the press in every issue almost that has been printed here for the last four months. I have no special interest in this matter, and am not an employé of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I do not feel certain that there are a great number of people in this county who have no prejudice in the matter. I don't think I 318 have been just in the same position every body else has with reference to information and reading the papers. I thought that I knew something more about it than the general run of people in this county. I acknowledge that there are many people in the city of Austin who are not substantially different from me in the matter of intellect; I have no doubt there are five hundred men of that kind. I don't doubt that there are perhaps five or six hundred men that would be classed along with me in regard to moral character. In regard to there being four or five hundred people who have had the same advantages or facilities to study the Waters Pierce Oil Company or Mr. Bailey, I will say that I think I have given it a closer consideration and study than the ordinary five hundred men in this city. I am not certain as to whether it is a matter of a little more investigation, and that if they gave it the same investigation they would reach the same conclusion. Assuming the same opportunities and all, I don't assume that any ordinary man would not be fair, but I do assume that this case has been prejudged here beyond any question. It has been hammered into the people daily. I don't think there has been a single issue of the newspapers that haven't denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust. I don't know as to whether or not it has not had any effect on me. I don't know that it hasn't put me to the point where I am not prejudiced. I don't know the real facts of the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas. I don't know hardly anybody that does. I have not heard the facts discussed. I think the ordinary man brought here to be examined as a juror would have the idea that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a part of the Standard Oil Company and is a trust. I had that kind of an opinion my-

319 self before I made an investigation, and I don't know whether or not it is true now. I can't say that I have any prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company; and I don't know that I can say that I have no prejudice against it. I have had prejudice against it. I was very much prejudiced against the Waters Pierce Oil Company when it appeared that certain statements had been sworn to by Mr. Pierce which indicated that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a part of or was owned by the Standard Oil Company, and I thought that Mr. Bailey was deceived. I had no reason especially to change my mind about that, but notwithstanding that, as I said before, I think I have given the matter such personal investigation that I believe I would be able to give them a fair trial, and I don't beileve that every man in this county would. It might be true that there are plenty of unprejudiced men here and that they could be secured for a jury. I would not undertake to say there are not plenty of fair-minded men; my opinion is absolutely that this county and this community has been poisoned against the Waters Pierce Oil Company and it is being continued. I think I have seen such poisonous matter in the Statesman. I think I have seen suggestions in there that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I think such will be found in an examination of the files, and I think it will be found further that the Statesman printed strong articles, not recently perhaps, but they have been printed, about that matter. I may say I know that every single paper and every single newspaper correspondent in this town, without a single exception was an anti-Bailey man and wrote stuff for his papers about that.

Redirect examination:

I think I stated before what the basis was for my feeling
320 considerable resentment with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but I am not positive that I did. The basis of resentment was that I thought Senator Bailey had been imposed upon by the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I don't doubt it at all that that opinion was shared in by other Bailey men in this city and county. I don't recall any particular men who expressed themselves to that effect, among the Bailey supporters, but I believe that was the general feeling among Bailey men. I was positive and am positive that so far as Mr. Bailey was concerned, he acted perfectly candid, and I made investigation enough to satisfy myself on that question, and I believe that he was deceived. I don't think I could or any other man could determine in advance just to what extent a previously conceived opinion would affect him in rendering a fair and impartial trial in this case. In stating that I do not think the defendant could secure in this county a fair and impartial trial, I certainly took into consideration that the law considers that at times a change of venue would be warranted although it might be possible to get twelve honest and conscientious men who would come up and admit that they had prejudged the case, but still say that they would go into the jury box and render a fair and impartial verdict.

Redirect examination:

I can't say that I am entirely without prejudice in this case. I made some investigations and made some inquiries directly concerning this Bailey incident, of the attorneys of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, Judge Priest and Mr. Johnson, when they were down here, and I think that I have information that the public generally has not in regard to that matter. I made the investigation into this matter as a friend of Mr. Bailey. These matters might have a bearing on this case. I started out with some degree of feeling 321 against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Now in regard to a development of the facts pertinent to this case having left me without prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and my being willing to go into the jury box and give them a fair trial, and being able in this particular hearing to give them help, I say this, that I have had greater opportunities to ascertain what I believe to be the situation in regard to the Waters Pierce Oil Company than the majority of people, than probably anybody else outside of the lawyers who are interested in the case here. That was done on my motion for my own benefit and for the benefit of Mr. Bailey. I had no interest in the Waters Pierce Oil Company; cared nothing about them. I thought Mr. Bailey had been wronged and had been deceived, and I believe so still. In regard to indicating the facts which I have acquired that have not been acquired by the public, appertaining to whether this company is a trust, I will say I don't think that I ought to detail private conversations between myself and the attorneys; but I can do it, if you desire it. The only additional facts I might know I got directly from the attorneys and their statements, and I don't think that would be proper for me to detail at this time. The attorneys have not been employed by me, and there is no relation of client and attorney between me and those attorneys. I have absolutely no connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company; our relations are in no sense confidential. I was simply trying to satisfy myself in the matter as a citizen of this town and as a friend of Mr. Bailey. In regard to my stating the additional facts, not stating how I got them, that I have which the other citizens have not, I will say that I don't think I ought to tell the private conversations between the attorneys in this case and myself. I don't think I ought to be asked to do it. Unless the Court demands that I detail 322 the conversation between the attorneys and myself, I will not do it. I cannot undertake to detail any facts I know without detailing a private conversation. I can't answer that I know any facts which would convince me that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a trust, I can't say that I have any information bearing upon the issue as to whether or not it is a trust, that is not publicly known. I don't know whether the information I have is the same which the ordinary citizen has. I said that most of the people in Travis County, judging from the conditions, would not be likely to give the Waters Pierce Oil Company a fair trial. I say this in regard to the selection of Jurors, that I have been about the court house all my life and seen a great many trials, and I believe that I would not be affected as the ordinary juror that would be picked up. I don't mean to say that I am better qualified intellectually, but say that I am more familiar with court procedure. I think that a man who is familiar with such procedure would be better equipped than an ordinary man to decide. I think a lawyer would be better able to decide the justice of a case than a layman. My relations with Mr. Pierce and Mr. Johnson are neither close or confidential. When the petition in this case was filed here they were in town and I went to see them in regard to this matter and to get such facts as I could from them in regard to the transaction. I don't know whether it was at the time this case was filed; it was about the time of the Bailey controversy. That is the only relation I have with them.

J. P. LIGHTFOOT, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination:

My name is Jewell P. Lightfoot. I am one of the assistants 323 to the Attorney General in this case. I have just heard the reading to the Court of the notice filed November 27th last, demanding that the defendant in this case produce certain books, papers, vouchers and so on. It is not a fact that contemporaneously with the preparation of this notice I had carbon copies prepared and furnished to the Representatives of the Press here in Austin for immediate publication. There were only three copies prepared. I don't think one was immediately furnished to a representative of one of the newspapers here for publication by me. One copy was prepared for the office, another was filed in the Court, and the third was served on Judge Clark. Since the matter has been called to my attention, my recollection is that Mr. Thornton phoned me and said that some representatives of the press had the copy that was filed in the Court, and that he was anxious to get it on the wire for his paper, and wanted to know if I had another copy in the office. I did not know as a matter of fact that this notice was going over the wires within a few minutes after it was filed. Mr. Brady, Mr. Batts and myself after the notice was prepared came down to the court room and Mr. Hart was in his office. I left him a copy and told him I wanted to file a copy in the court, but before I would have the filemarks put on it I would go and serve a copy on Judge Clark. Mr. Batts took a car and went on towards home, and Mr. Brady and I went to Judge Clark's room at the Driskill, but he was not there. Some one informed us he was probably at Cochran & Penn's office, and then Mr. Brady and myself started to that office and met Judge Clark right in the middle of the street where East Sixth Street crosses Congress Avenue. We served the copy there and Mr. Brady and I turned and left—Mr. Brady went home, and I came by the office and informed the Clerk that I had served the copy, and he filed the copy at 7:05 P. M. I then went to my home and I never 324 saw a newspaper reporter during the whole round, but an hour or two afterwards that Mr. Thornton called me up and we had the conversation I have already detailed. It is not a fact that I showed the notice to the newspapers reporters before it was filed. I showed it to no one except Mr. Thornton, and he saw it an hour or two after the papers were filed in the Court.

EDWARD SCHUTZE, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is Ed Schutze. I live in Austin, and have lived here all my life. I am engaged in the business of publishing a newspaper—the Texas Vorwaerts. I have been with the paper for twenty-three years. I am not the editor of the paper. I was connected with that paper as its publisher during the months of October, November and December, 1906, and also during the months of the present year down to this date. That paper is published in the German language and circulates mainly among the German citizens. The circulation in this county is four or five hundred; I have never counted the subscribers. In Austin the circulation is something like two hundred and fifty. During the latter part of last year that paper had editorial utterances regarding Senator Bailey and regarding the Oil Trust, but it didn't specially mention the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I couldn't say how often Senator Bailey was referred to, but not frequently; may be, two or three times. I don't exactly remember what was said in substance respecting Senator Bailey's connection with the Oil Trust, as I didn't read the articles. I have the papers here with me and could turn to those articles, but it would be a hard job, and would take some time to translate them. The attitude of the paper was anti-Bailey, basing its attitude on the agitation 325 that was started that he represented the trust, and the paper didn't think he was fit to be the Senator of Texas. I don't remember exactly whether it said trust, but I think it said the Oil Trust. I think that was the only trust he was charged to have any connection with. The connection on his part as a lawyer, I believe is what was objected to. I don't remember whether anything was said in regard to the instrumentality of Senator Bailey in securing the admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas by fraud after it had been ousted by this Court. Whatever was said on that subject in my paper was adverse to Mr. Bailey. It had nothing to say in his favor. Nothing was said in favor of the Oil Trust that I know of. I think a few of the German boxes on the outside went anti-Bailey in the primary election held in this county. I don't know for certain; the returns will show.

Cross-examination:

I don't think there was any discussion at all in my paper of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Made no statement that it was or was not a trust. As far as I remember, it just spoke of the Oil Trust. I have no personal knowledge of the Waters Pierce Oil Company; do not know whether it is a trust, or not. I read the papers about as much as most German citizens do. I have no prejudice at all against the defendant in this case. I claim to be a fairly representative German citizen. I do not know of any prejudice or ill-feeling against the Waters Pierce Oil Company in this county among the German citizens. It is my recollection that some of the German boxes went against Bailey. I think Pflugerville went against him. I can't remember how much; I think something like sixteen. It might have been fifteen to seventeen; I don't remember. According to the last votes I think they claimed seventy-five votes at Pflugerville. I do not know whether they are all German 326 votes or not; I think not.

I know of no reason, if I were summoned here as a juror, why I could not serve as a juror and fairly and impartially try this case. I never heard any German citizens express themselves to the effect that by reason of prejudice they could not fairly and impartially try this case. I have never heard any expressions of prejudice from any of the Germans. I associate with them intimately and most of the time; meet them in a social way whenever I have an opportunity. I meet some one or more of them and talk with them every day. I think there are a considerable number of Germans out at Bee Cave. As well as I can remember, I don't believe any election was held at that place in the Bailey matter. I do not know of any reason why the Waters Pierce Oil Company could not get a fair and impartial trial of this case in Travis County.

Redirect examination:

I don't know whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust or not. As to what my opinion on the mater is, well I don't know whether it is a trust or not a trust. As far as the agitation is concerned, I might believe it is, but I don't know. I don't remember that I have ever called it so in my conversations with people. I do not know whether its introduction into Texas after the ouster was fraudulent or not. My only view is that our Senator took them in hand and represented them, but whether it was fraudulent or not, I don't know. My objections to Senator Bailey's helping them was that he was representing a trust which our laws prohibited from entering our State. I thought it was on Oil Trust he was helping, but didn't know whether it was the Waters Pierce Oil Company or not. I do not know that the only oil company in Texas against which there has been much said was the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

I think that is the one the people always talk about, and say 327 that it belongs to the Standard Oil Company. I do not say that that was my idea; it might have been my idea. I do not remember in my associations with my German fellow-citizens that they sometimes refer to this as a trust. I think not; they don't bother about it. Some of them are pretty well informed, and my paper told them something about it—it spoke of Bailey and the Oil Trust. I cannot say that it said that to influence my people against Bailey. The object of the paper was not to have Senator Bailey re-elected, because he represented the trusts, whether the Oil Trust or not.

Recross-examination:

I have no definite notion at this time whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I know no German citizens that have, notwithstanding I am running a German newspaper and come in contact with a great number. It is a fact that the criticism in my paper of Senator Bailey was predicated on the general idea that he was representing an Oil Trust, without any specific idea on notion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was itself a trust. I don't know that I have heard it said that it was the Southwestern Oil Company he was representing, but that it was a Trust. I did not hear of his drawing the charter of the Security Oil Company of Beaumont, or of voting the stock of the Security Oil Company at Houston.

Redirect examination:

I read the communications addressed by Attorney General Davidson to Mr. Bailey, the open letters published in the newspapers, in which the Attorney General charged Bailey with being connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and in which he asserted that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. I didn't write the editorial utterances in my paper and do not know when they 328 were published. I think it was previous to the primaries.

I don't remember the dates when the Attorney General's letters were published. I think my paper spoke on that after the letter was written and published on October 9th. My editor may have had in mind that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. He wrote the articles in my paper. The fact that Attorney General Davidson's letters came from the head of a Department of the State made an impression on me; I believed what he said was true; and most people did.

E. SEELIG, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is E. Seelig. I live in Austin, Texas, and am engaged in the cigar and news business. I have been engaged in that business for fourteen years. My place of business is located on Congress Avenue, on the East side, between Sixth and Seventh Streets. About the 20th to 23rd of January of this past year I received at my newsstand for free distribution copies of a paper called the Chicago American. It was an issue of the paper containing what purported to be photographic copies of vouchers and other papers relating to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey. It also contained what purported to be an interview with John P. Gruet. I think I received in the neighborhood of 2500 copies of that paper. My instructions with reference to them were to distribute them free of charge; that if there were any extra charges from me, why just to send my bill in to them. Those papers were sent to me from the Chicago American Office. I got a telegram from them notifying me that they were going to send that many copies down here for free distribution. I think all they sent me were distributed by me.

329 I did not have to send out and distribute them; people came and got them. There was quite a demand for them after the people found out they were in town, and I believe they were at some other newsstands. I wasn't the only one; they were sent to three or four in the city, but I don't know whether they were all put on for distribution. The people who called for them were citizens of Austin and Travis County, and some were strangers. It was during the time of the Legislature and so a great many strangers got them. There were generally distributed among the people of Austin and Travis County.

I think the Waters Pierce people got some of them. Mr. McNulty came and got some of them. I really don't know how many copies he got. There was some trouble about the papers. A darky bootblack happened to sit on the outside and had a lot of papers on his lap and handed them out to the people. The people came and got them; they knew he had them there. And it seems like Mr. Lucy found out that those papers were to be given away, and he came by and took the whole bunch away, as I understand it. I didn't see it myself. I didn't know anything about the negro having these papers, and I told him not to take any more and sit on the outside, when I learned about this, and told him to let the people come on the inside, and so I had them on the showcase, and Mr. McNulty came in and asked if he could take one or two, and my young man said, "Help yourself," and I believe he took six or seven; and I found out they were trying to get them away from me and burn them up, and I understood that they sent a lot of boys from the Driskill who got them for that purpose. So I took the papers and stuck them behind the counter, and if anybody asked for them I just gave them a copy, because I wasn't interest- one way or another, in the Waters Pierce Oil Company or the Chicago Examiner.

330 They sent them to me for distribution, and I wanted to give them to the proper people, and didn't want them destroyed. I understood that a boy at the Driskill said he got a lot of them from me and burned them up. The boy was sent around by some of the Bailey people or the Waters Pierce people. The way I found out about the effect that was being made to destroy the papers was Captain Lucy's taking the papers from the negro boy. That was James E. Lucy. The next thing I knew about it was when Mr. McNulty got copies. I don't know him personally. I have been told that he works for the Waters Pierce Oil Company. When the boy from the Driskill came and got the papers for the purpose of burning them up, I stopped that.

I have no views on the subject of whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust; I do not know. All I know about this case is what I have read in the papers. I have no prejudice whatever against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. All I know about the question of whether or not it was readmitted into the State by fraud, I read in the papers. I have no outside views on the matter, and don't know whether it was re-admitted by fraud. I have no character of prejudice whatever against the defendant. If I were called as a juror I could say that I could decide the case fairly and impartially upon the evidence. I do not come in contact with a great many people. I am engaged in a public business and have been for fourteen years. I know a great many people in town, but don't know many country people; don't get out much. My acquaintance is largely in town. From what I know of the people in town, and what I have heard from them and read in the papers, I don't see any reason why they shouldn't get a fair and impartial trial in this county. I never heard anybody say they couldn't, and I don't see why they couldn't get as fair a trial here as any-331 where in the State. I don't see any reason why they couldn't get an absolutely fair trial here.

Redirect examination:

I am pretty busy at my place of business all the time. I do not stay there every night, but every other night only. I do not talk to my customers much; just wait on them. Don't talk any politics. I don't talk a great deal, and do not take much interest in public affairs in the way of discussions. I have heard some people express themselves with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company. You hear that of course just when two or three people are standing there discussing it. From what I have heard I could say that the readmission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas six years ago was a fraud. I don't know whether it is or not; I wouldn't say.

positively. From general newspaper talk, my impression is that it is a fraud. I don't say what the people seem to think about the matter, from what I have heard discussed and the few I have heard discuss it. The people that come into my place of business are not much interested in such affairs. They are nearly all young people and don't talk much about such things. Not all the people who get the papers were young people. I really don't know anything about the affidavit alleged to have been made by Mr. Pierce. I don't read but very little of such affairs as that.

Recross-examination:

There are a great many other very busy men in town besides myself. There are a great many who don't take any special interest in these affairs. I have discussed this matter very little with my intimate acquaintances. They know I don't take much stock in it. I haven't heard them talking among themselves and show any 332 great interest. I don't know of any excitement in this town or special interest in this case. In my capacity as a dealer in newspapers and cigars I come in contact with a good many people, and if there is any matter of public inter-st going on in which they take a great deal of interest they make remarks about it but don't stop very long. There may be considerable inter-st taken in this case, but not around my place.

G. W. MENDELL, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is George Mendell. I live in Austin; have lived here about eighteen years. I am local correspondent for the Houston Chronicle. I have been local correspondent from Austin for the Houston Chronicle for about four years. The circulation of the Houston Chronicle in Travis County for the past six or eight months has been about 400 daily and six to eight hundred on Sunday. I do not know anything about its circulation at Manor. I am familiar with the contents of the paper now before me. The photographs, articles and interviews published in that paper relating to the Waters Pierce Oil Company case and to Senator Bailey are reproductions of the same things as they appeared in the Chicago Examiner, the issue that Mr. Seelig testified about this morning. Photographs and all are the same. The paper shown the witness and the parts referred to by him was pages 1, 2 and 3 of the Houston Chronicle of January 27th, 1907, and hereinafter set out.

Cross-examination:

I have during the time I have indicated, that is, during the last six or eight months, read all the copies of the Chronicle. I know what it contained in general with referenec to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Bailey matter. It was the intention and 333 idea of that paper to publish both sides of the controversy, and it did so to a great extent. It printed all the letters that Senator Bailey gave out in reply to matters that had been brought up in this case and in reply to letter of the Attorney General, and it printed anything that Senator Bailey might see fit to say or any of his friends who might take the trouble. It printed and gave publicity to the argument or statement of Senator Bailey that the Waters Pierce Oil Company had not in the previous suit been convicted of being a trust. It also printed and gave publicity to the statement and claim of Mr. Johnson and Mr. Priest to the effect that the statement or affidavit of Mr. Pierce was in accordance with the truth, and that that statement or affidavit of Mr. Pierce was made at the suggestion and under the direction of attorney in the case. It also published and gave publicity to the statement and contention of Mr. Bailey that the vouchers which have been referred to were forgeries. It printed every utterance of Mr. Bailey on the subject that we could get hold of in any way, either from his own papers or from himself. I have not regularly read the Houston Post during the last six or eight months, but only occasionally. I can't answer as to whether or not the Houston Post also published and circulated the claims of Mr. Bailey, to the effect that the Waters Pierce Oil Company had not been convicted as a trust, that the documents and vouchers were forgeries, etc. I do not know as to whether or not the Houston Post has been defending Mr. Pierce and claiming that Mr. Pierce was not guilty of making the false affidavit. I do not know anything about the circulation of the Houston Post. I should judge they have considerable circulation here. I know that it has a circulation here.

334 I have heard discussions of the question as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company could get a fair and impartial trial in this County. I have not heard any other than what I heard in reporting the case. I haven't heard anything to the effect that it could not get a fair trial. I am a newspaper man and lately have been circulating mainly among the members of the Legislature. Have not been on the streets much. During the last five or six months I have heard discussions with reference to Bailey and the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Haven't heard anything in those discussions that the Waters Pierce Oil Company could or could not get a fair and impartial trial in this county. I haven't heard or seen anything to indicate that the people of Travis County are taking any particular interest in this particular case. So far as the attendance on this court is concerned, I should think they were not. It is a fact that the principal attendance here has been of attorneys and newspaper men and witnesses. I have seen a great many cases on trial here where more people have been on attendance, excluding the classes I have mentioned just now. The discussion I have heard of these matters during the last five or six months have generally been about Bailey and his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, which is regarded as a trust. I have not generally heard any discussion as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust.

Redirect examination:

I don't think the circulation of the Houston Post in this County is anything like as large as that of the Chronicle. Our paper is twenty-five cents a month cheaper, and the people have an idea they can get all the news out of the Chronicle. It is probable that since some time in December the editorials and headlines of the Houston Chronicle have been continually adverse to Mr. Bailey and 335 incidentally adverse to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and H. C. Pierce. Editorially that has been the case, and the headline-writer would let his opinion creep into his writing in the headlines.

I am pretty well acquainted in Austin. I regard the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust, and in the discussions I have heard about Bailey it is generally regarded as a trust. I never heard anybody who regarded that it is not a trust. It is generally regarded among the people that I know and have heard express themselves, that Mr. Pierce's affidavit made when this company obtained its permit to do business in Texas was false. I have also heard the people say they regarded the re-admission of the company into Texas as a fraud perpetrated on the State, and I have also heard Mr. Bailey deny that. This amounts almost to a positive conviction with me and most of the people of this county that I have talked with; it is the same way in regard to all questions adverse to the company. I attended both the regular and special sessions of the Legislature just closed. I remember when the resolution to investigate Senator Bailey on account of his alleged connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company and other matters was introduced. I was present when these matters were discussed, in the Legislature, and heard the arguments of Judge Duncan and Judge Robertson and others in favor of the Investigation. I heard it charged on the floor of the House that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust; it was done by leading members of the Legislature. I also heard it charged that the affidavit of Mr. Pierce, already referred to was false, and that the admission of this company into Texas was a fraud. There was a very large attendance during the time of those discussions. I don't know what part was confined to Travis County; there were a great many people here from a distance. The galleries were always crowded. I frequently sa/ people of Austin and Travis County there, but I 336 can't state which were in the majority—they or the strangers. The anti-Bailey speeches were not published to any great extent in the local papers, but the Bailey speeches were. The Tribune is rather small and could not print the speeches in full. It published synopses of the anti-Bailey speeches.

During the month of December, that is, for three or four weeks preceding the primary election here, held about the fifth of January, Senator Bailey and his alleged connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company and its re-entry into the State was the principal topic of political discussion in Austin. I don't know about the county in regard to this. This discussion continued in the Legislature. My duties took me to that and I wasn't on the streets much, except going to and from dinner. It was the subject of a great deal of discussion in both halls of the Legislature and in the lobbies and on the galleries. It would crop out at times even during the special session of the Legislature. For instance, a measure of some kind would be up, and Bailey's friends thought it would be a stab at him, and the anti-Bailey people would think it was not. But the discussions were not as frequent as up to the time of the so-called vindication. I did not during the session of the Legislature ever hear any friend of Mr. Bailey or any one else defend the Waters Pierce Oil Company or H. C. Pierce against the charges brought against them. They defended Bailey, but I didn't hear that part of it.

I have seen other civil cases on trial in a District Court of Travis County where there were as large a number of newspaper men taking down the testimony and reporting the proceedings, as there are here. One was an anti-trust case against the Pullman Palace Car Company and the other was the Fort Worth Stockyards case. In fact, most of the anti-trust cases attracted the attention of 337 the staff men who are here. I reported those cases to the same extent that I am reporting this case. Of the correspondents here now, there are Mr. Wassom, for the Dallas and Galveston News, Mr. Pricer for the San Antonio Express, Mr. Stroter, I believe, is writing for the Statesman; I report for the Houston Chronicle. Each of these papers tries to gives the news features of the proceedings here, that is the substance. There has been a reporter here for the Tribune, I don't see him now. I think his name is Anderson. There is no one here that I know of, reporter for the Houston Post. They get their news through the Statesman. Outside of those anti-trust cases, I have never known of a civil case in which there has been as much interest manifested by the newspaper men. I do not know, of course, what the attendance will be here if this case goes to trial on the facts.

Recross-examination:

I have not heard anybody say a good word for Mr. Pierce or the Waters Pierce Oil Company during this controversy, that I can recall. I did not state a while ago that Mr. Bailey defended Mr. Pierce and the defendant. I said Mr. Bailey defended the charge that it was fraudulently re-admitted. I have heard him say frequently that that was untrue, and no one would repeat it but liars and dogs and scoundrels. I never heard him make the statement that the Standard Oil Company was attacking Mr. Pierce in these proceedings. He said that with regard to the Attorney General and these officials in his speech. I haven't heard the Standard Oil Company feature of it mentioned. I never say this contention published in the Post; I heard that was the case. I say that the Waters Pierce is a trust, and mean by that I believe that a majority of its 338 stock is owned by the Standard Oil Company. I don't know what the general belief is on that, but it is mine. And when I speak of its being fraudulently re-admitted into the State, I mean that when Mr. Pierce made the affidavit the Standard Oil Company then owned a majority of the stock, and that he knew it. I think that it is general basis for the belief that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, that is to say, that it is controlled by the Standard Oil Company; and also that when Mr. Pierce made the affidavit on which the Waters Pierce Oil Company was re-admitted into the State he knew that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was owned and controlled by the Standard Oil Company.

GLENN PRICER, a witness for the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

My name is Glenn Pricer. I live in Austin, and have been here for five months. My business here during the session of the Legislature just closed, both regular and extra sessions, was that of Correspondent for the San Antonio Express. During that time my duties called me to different places. I was in the House part of the time; part of the time in the Senate, and part of the time in the Bailey Investigating Committee room. I was present in the State Senate when nominations were being made for United States Senator. I know Senator G. W. Glasscock, and know that he is the Representative for Travis and Williamson Counties in the State Senate. He lives in Georgetown. I heard his speech on the occasion just mentioned. I do not think I made any notes from his speech at the time; I think he had a copy prepared and I used that. I think he nominated A. W. Terrell for United States Senator. I remember he was denunciatory of both Senator Bailey and the Waters Pierce Oil Company in his speech. I do not think there 339 was any one more violent against the Waters Pierce Oil Company than Senator Glasscock, throughout the session of the Legislature and the controversy pending over the Senatorship growing out of the controversy over the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

Cross-examination:

I don't remember exactly what Senator Glasscock said about the Waters Pierce Oil Company. He discussed the Waters Pierce Oil Company to some extent, but only because of Senator Bailey's connection with it. I think he said it was a trust; I am not quite sure he did. I do not think he discussed the facts on which he predicated that. He just denounced the company in a general way. That was on the occasion of the speech he made in nominating Judge Terrell for the Unted States Senate. He denounced it on several other occasions also. I do not think that in reporting his speech or any of the proceedings that I reported any of the facts indicating that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. I had his speech as he wrote it, and if there was anything in that I don't remember. I don't think I wrote anything myself about its being a trust.

The paper I represent is the San Antonio Express. I don't know whether the San Antonio Express published Senator Bailey's contentions to the effect that the old judgment of the District Court of Travis County didn't hold that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. I think it was their intention to publish all the letters given out by him. They published his contention that the vouchers and documents referred to by the Attorney General were forgeries. They also published his suggestion that there was a conspiracy among the officers and his enemies against the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Pierce himself.

340 Redirect examination:

Judge J. H. Robertson and Colonel John L. Peeler represented Travis County in the House of Representatives. I was not in the House when they voted on the question of United States Senator.

As a matter of general knowledge, I know they voted against Senator Bailey and for some other person. There was no other nominee by any other party for the United States Senate than Senator Bailey, the nominee of the Democratic Party. I know that Senator Glasscock, Judge Robertson and Colonel John L. Peeler were Democrats and were elected as Democratic nominees.

It is admitted that at the regular session of the Legislature of 1901, Judge D. A. McFall, then a Representative in the Legislature from Travis County, introduced in the Legislature a bill to revoke the permit to do business in Texas granted to the Waters Pierce Oil Company on May 31, 1900; and that the Legislature failed to pass the bill.

It is also admitted that Judge D. A. McFall, as the Representative from Travis County of the Legislature of Texas, at the regular session in 1901, introduced a resolution to investigate Senator Bailey on account of his alleged connection with the admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas, and its obtaining its permit on May 31, 1900; and it is agreed that the Journals of that Legislature with reference to that matter may be considered in evidence and either party may refer to them in the argument or incorporate in the record any part of those Journals that they may desire.

341 WALTER CALDWELL, for the defendant, testified as follows:

My name is Walter Caldwell. I have lived in Travis County since 1874. I live at No. 1009 West Sixth Street in Austin. I have not lived in any other portion of Travis County than the city of Austin. My home was in Bastrop county before I came here. I am best acquainted in the Southeastern portion of Travis County. I am acquainted in Hornsby's and Webberville, but better acquainted around in the Del Valle country. I have a pretty general acquaintance in the city of Austin. During the last six months I have heard expressions among the citizens with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company as to whether it is a trust and as to its being admitted to do business in this State through fraud practiced on the State; I have heard people assign that as their reason for their opposition to Mr. Bailey. I have heard quite a number of people assign that as their reason for their opposition to him. The matter was the subject of general discussion during that trial here in the Legislature in January and February of this year. I have heard very little about it since then. I think it is the general opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and I have heard it charged that its re-admission into this State was procured by fraud. I have just heard it in a general way that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I have heard people from portions of Travis County outside of the city of Austin express themselves on the subject, but generally the talk I have heard about it was in the city. I may have occasionally talked about the subject on the road going out to my farm with some farmers, but I don't remember any particular instance. I have not heard anybody speak in favor of or undertake to defend the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have heard people defend Mr. Bailey for his connection with this oil company, but they 342 didn't defend the company, not that I remember of.

Cross-examination:

I have not heard the facts of this case discussed that I know of; it may be that I have, but I don't remember it now. In fact, I don't know the merits of the case. From what I have heard and know about the matter, I have no reason to suppose that the Waters Pierce Oil Company cannot get a fair and impartial trial in this county. I think there are plenty of good men in this county who will observe the law and their oaths.

Redirect examination:

As to whether or not I take into consideration the fact that a man's prejudgment of a question may unconsciously influence his action, I would much rather a man would be biased in my favor than against me. So far as I have heard opinions expressed by people in this county, I believe they are prejudiced against the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

Recross-examination:

I believe I could give the defendant a fair and impartial trial if I were on the jury. I believe that there are plenty of men honest enough, notwithstanding they may be prejudiced, that would come here and give an honest verdict according to the law and the evidence. I don't know how many such men there are in this county, but there are plenty of good people in this county. I think there are more than twelve such men in this county. I don't know whether there are more than twelve such men in my own ward or not. I believe there are plenty of men in this county, that would be entirely willing to disregard newspaper statements that 343 they have read and the general talk that has been indulged in and come here and fairly and impartially try this case.

Redirect examination:

The idea I mean to convey is, that I think that any fair, honest and conscientious man ought to be able to come here and when sworn on the jury lay aside any prejudice he might have and make up his verdict entirely on the testimony that is adduced on the trial and the law as given in charge by the Court. I believe that an honest man will lay aside his prejudice as far as a human being can do it and bring in a verdict on the law and evidence.

J. L. NICHOLS, for the defendant, testified as follows:

I live eight miles South of the city of Austin, out near Manchaca. I have lived there fifty odd years. My acquaintance is general in that community, and I know a good many people here in Austin. I have been living or staying in Austin since about the 18th of last January, being employed up at the Capitol now as one of the Capitol policemen. During the last four or five months I have heard very few expressions of opinion among the people living in and around Manchaca with reference to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Bailey controversy, as I have been in Austin the most of the time. During December and January before I came here I heard a few expressions of opinion on that subject around Manchaca, but very few. The expressions of the people I heard discuss it were that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and they thought its admission to do business in Texas was a fruad. I have heard very few people express themselves on the subject; I could not be positive as to the number. I have not heard anybody in that commu-344 nity express a contrary opinion. Since I came to Austin to work at the Capitol, it was general talk for a month or two around the Capitol, but I paid very little attention to it. There were a good many whom I know and a good many whom I did not know that discussed the matter. Among those whom I knew as living in Travis County the opinion expressed was that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust and its admission to do business in Texas was a fraud. I have not heard anybody in the city of Austin express a contrary opinion.

Cross-examination:

I don't think I have heard anything to indicate that the defendant could not get a fair and impartial trial in this county. From the talk I heard at Manchaca and since I have been working at the Capitol I don't know whether the defendant can get a fair and impartial trial in this county or not. From what I have heard, it would be a hard matter to get a jury. I have talked to very few people about it at Manchaca. I have not talked to more than three or four men here in town about it. I have just heard them casually talking about it. My idea is that if everybody else believed like those three or four it would be hard to get a fair trial here. I have never heard the facts of this case discussed. The most of the discussion I have heard about it was with reference to the Bailey controversy that existed some time ago. It has not been talked of for some time. It has been some time since I have heard anybody say anything about it at all. I think something near half of the voters at Manchaca box felt enough interest to vote at the election held in January in the Bailey controversy. The others didn't feel enough interest in it to go to the polls. I could not tell whether or not a number of jurors could be obtained at Manchaca who would fairly try 345 this case, as I have not been there for some time. I don't know whether I could fairly try the case or not. If I were on the jury I think I would decide the case on the evidence before me, without reference to any facts I may have gathered from the newspapers or general talk. I believe the most of the people I know at Manchaca would be just as fair and impartial as I would.

I know Tom Carpenter and John Patterson very well. They are residents of Manchaca. I suppose they understand public sentiment there better than I do, as I have not been to Manchaca for several months. They live right there, and I hardly ever go to Manchaca even when I am at home.

Redirect examination:

I am in some doubt as to whether or not I could act as a juror impartially in this case. I have formed an opinion about the matter, and would not like to serve on the jury. I believe that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is guilty and that it ought to lose out in this case. I am in doubt as to whether or not I could look at the testimony of Mr. Pierce and other officers of the company and weigh it as impartially as I could if I had no opinion, if I were taken on the jury. In expressing the opinion that the company could get an impartial trial of this case I think that any honest man ought to be able when taken on a jury to lay aside his former opinions and prejudices and render a verdict based solely on the evidence. I don't believe you could get a jury in this case without getting men on it who had already made up their minds, like I have, that the company is guilty.

Recross-examination:

That is based simply on the little knowledge I have from the talk at Manchaca and with a few people here in town. I don't 346 know anything about the balance of the county. I suppose there are a number of people at Manchaca and in that neighborhood who don't care anything about the Waters Pierce Oil Company, don't read the papers at all, haven't taken any stock in this business, and don't know anything about it. If they did-'t know anything about it, I don't suppose they could be prejudiced.

W. M. McElroy, for the defendant, testified as follows:

I live at No. 3012 Gaudalupe Street in Austin. I have lived in Austin about eleven years, and in Travis County thirty-three years. I know a great many people in Travis County. As to which portion of the county I am best acquainted in, there isn't much difference. I am engaged in buying cotton, down on East Fifth Street. I have been engaged in that business ever since I have been here. I have been in the cotton business about seventeen years. In my business I am brought in contact with citizens of Austin and different portions of Travis County. I buy cotton from both producers and merchants. During the past five or six months I have heard a good deal of talk with reference to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust or monopoly and as to whether or not the admission of the present company into Texas to do business was procured by fraud. I have heard it discussed both by people here in the city and by country people. I could not say just what portions of the county the country people were from; they would meet down at the yard or at my office and be talking about it. From what I have heard, I believe the most of the people regard the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust or monopoly operating here in violation of law.

I have not heard anybody express a good word for the com-
347 pany until to-day, when I heard three men do so. The rest of the people I have heard discuss it were demeaning the company and saying they ought to be driven out of the country. I didn't pay any attention, only they were just talking. From what I have heard and from my knowledge of the people of this county, I do not believe you could secure in this county a fair and impartial jury of men who have no prejudice. Taking into consideration the statement that among the issues in this case are the charges that the defendant company is a trust and a monopoly and that its admission into the State was procured by fraud, I do not believe you could secure a jury of impartial men in this county, from what I have heard.

Cross-examination:

I do not think I could try the case fairly. All I know about the matter is from general rumors, newspaper articles and all that kind of business. I have not heard any discussion of what purported to be the facts that are to be introduced in the trial of this case. I do not know what defense is to be made here, nor the character of the evidence that is to be introduced against this company. I could not fairly try the case because from what I have heard and read my opinion would be sort of made up, and when a man makes up his mind it is hard to change it. I don't know whether or not I could come here and try the case according to the testimony; I might do it. I would not like to say. I am not certain about it.

I think there are about 470 voters in my ward. I don't know how many of those I have heard express themselves on this subject, but at the last school election Mr. Marcuse and others were talking about it. I suppose I have heard fifty of the voters in that ward 348 express themselves. They were not all talking to me, but just standing there talking. I have not heard a single one say he could not try the case fairly; I have not heard anything on that line at all. As to the other 420 voters in that ward, I have not heard any expression from them. I have heard more talk down at my place of business than up there. I could not say how many I have heard talking about it down there, but maybe fifty or more. I have heard a larger percentage of people in my own ward talk about it than in any other ward, but I have more of them talking about it down at my place of business. I have not heard as many as fifty men from one voting box talk about the matter, and I know nothing of what are the views of about 420 voters in my own ward. I am not certain that I have heard even as many as fifty men in my own ward talk about it; I may have heard more than that, or maybe not that many, because I didn't pay any attention to the number. I don't think I could right now indicate more than four or five men who I have heard talk about it, because I didn't pay much attention to them. As to whether or not I am in position to say that the qualified voters in the Sixth Ward could not come here and qualify as jurors in this case, I don't know except as to those I have heard talk about it; that's all I can tell you.

Redirect examination:

I have not heard any one say a good word for the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I don't know exactly the number, but I believe there were about 370 votes polled in my ward in the Primary election held early in January to instruct our representatives whether or not they should vote for Senator Bailey for re-election. That ward went against Senator Bailey in that election, but I do not remember 349 by what majority now. The basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey or the reason assigned for not supporting him was that they said he was concerned in this trust business with the Waters Pierce Oil Company as attorney or something—anyhow, that he had been implicated in it in some way.

Recross-examination:

I don't know how many I heard assign that as their reason for their voting against Senator Bailey, but I heard several men say so. A very large percentage of the voters there did not express themselves in my hearing. As to the most of them, I don't know what influenced them.

Redirect examination:

I could not say as to whether the opposition in my ward to Senator Bailey began about the time this suit was filed or not. I don't know what time it was, as I was not paying any attention to it. I was the Democratic Chairman in that precinct last year. There was no issue in regard to Mr. Bailey in the Democratic primaries last July. I did not hear any opposition to Mr. Bailey up to that time. The first I heard that Mr. Bailey was attorney for the Waters Pierce Oil Company was just after the State Democratic Convention last year.

Recross examination:

Mr. Bailey's name was not on the tickets at the Primary election last year.

W. B. WALKER, for the defendant, testified as follows:

My name is W. B. Walker, and I live in Austin. I have lived here thirty-five years. I am engaged in the wholesale grocery busi-
350 ness. I have been in the wholesale business seven years, and before that was in the retail grocery business. When I was in the retail business I knew nearly every man in Travis County. I have not now as good an acquaintance in the county as formerly.

As to my opinion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I think they are a lot of thugs. I have expressed that opinion whenever anybody asked me about it. Everybody that knows anything about the oil business knows that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I mean everybody in Texas or the United States or Travis County or anywhere else. Of course its admission to do business in Texas after the old company was excluded was a fraud. They simply turned their coats and came back into Texas. They have some friends here, but not many, I think. I have not talked with country people at all about it; I have talked only with merchants and the grocery merchants. Some of the people I have talked to in the last few months don't care anything about it, and half the people of this county don't know the Waters Pierce Oil Company or who they buy oil from.

(No cross examination.)

J. M. MEREDITH, for the Defendant, testified as follows:

I live in Hyde Park, and am engaged in the retail grocery business. I have been engaged in that business out there about five years. I have a general acquaintance in Austin and the Northern part of Travis County. My acquaintance is limited in the Southern and Eastern portions of the County. I get my trade from the Northern part of the city and the Northern part of the County. I have customers in Hyde Park and some as far down as Nineteenth street and some out as far as the county line, out about Fiskville and 351 Sprinkle. I am one of the Aldermen of the City of Austin.

During the past five or six months I have heard considerable discussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company among the people of this city and county. My place of business out there as rather a public place; there is a watering trough there and a great many farmers stop there. During the Bailey controversy there was always more or less people on my porch there discussing that matter, day in and day out. I don't remember when it began, but it was all during the first part of the Legislature last Winter; it was almost a constant thing that more or less people were there talking about that matter. The testimony taken before the Bailey Investigating Committee was published in the daily newspapers, and I read it every day. The testimony was discussed as it came out. I had the "Statesman" there and somebody would get it and read it, and that would start the discussion. It was almost the universal opinion of the people I heard discuss it that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was part of the Standard Oil Company and in the trust. It was the general belief that the present company re-entered the State in a fraudulent manner, as far as I have heard it discussed. I have never heard anybody say a good word for the Waters Pierce Oil Company in my life. Among those whom I have heard discuss the matter there were citizens of the county and residents of the city. This matter was the subject of general discussion at my store for a period running over several months by people stopping there. Basing my opinion upon the expressions of the people of my acquaintance whom I have I have heard discuss it, I will say that if the sentiment of the county is the same as that among the people I have heard discuss it, I do not think you could secure in this county a jury of impartial, unprejudiced men who have not made up their minds with reference to any of the issues in this case; but I 352 do not pretend to know the sentiment of the majority of the people of Travis County. I have an opinion on the question, and would not attempt to sit as a juror in the case.

Cross-examination:

I have customers living out at Fiskville and farther up towards the mountains. A good many people come from Sprinkle and trade with me. I would not attempt to name them, but a good many people come by there and stop to water their horses and probably come in and buy something and sit down and talk. I haven't any customers from Pecan Springs; that is too far East. There are more than three or four parties from Sprinkle that come by and purchase from me; there are probably eight or ten from Sprinkle. Almost everybody from Fiskville in coming to Austin has to come by my place, but they don't all stop. All the people from Fiskville did not stop at my store and discuss it. I have no idea how many of them stopped there. Just a small percentage of the whole number of people in that section came by and talked about this question at my place, but I could not tell you what per cent. I don't suppose I have heard over ten per cent. of the qualified voters residing in that portion of the county discuss the subject. I do not suppose I have heard one-tenth of the qualified voters of the Fourth Ward discuss the matter, and my idea is based on the expressions of a limited number of the people as compared with the whole. I know absolutely nothing about the sentiment of the East end of the county running from Hyde Park out East, nor do I know the sentiment of the mountain people up about Jollyville. If the sentiment of the people of the county is the same as among the people I know, I don't think you could get a jury of impartial men, but whether 353 or not the sentiment is the same I cannot say. If every other man in Travis County thinks like I do, the defendant could not get a fair trial, but I don't undertake to say that they do. I heard some discussion as to whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, independent of the Bailey controversy, but very few. I buy oil from the company, and abuse them once in a while. I have not discussed the question with their driver—their driver won't talk. I believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and would like to see it fired. I have not heard the facts discussed by anybody that knew the facts any better than I did, and have not heard anybody that knew the facts say that it is not a part of the Standard Oil Company. Everybody that discussed the question just assumed that it was a trust, without knowing any of the facts. I have prejudice instilled into my mind so deep that I would not attempt to go into the jury box, because I would be afraid of myself. I could not law aside my prejudice; it would not be human to do it. I am not setting myself up as a standard for other people; they can do as they please. I have been dealing with the company for several years and have had it in my mind and have discussed it with my neighbors. I have discussed it with other merchants and with drummers. I have given the question considerable thought, and have read a good deal about it. I have read magazine articles, on the subject. I have read Mr. Tarbell's magazine articles. I would not undertake to say that all the other people of Travis County—the farmers, merchants, laboring men and others—have given the subject the same thought as I have and formed the same ideas. I don't suppose more than one man in ten has as great prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company as I have. I do not mean that all the other people out there entertain the same views as I do; they are not quite as radical as I am. Some of those men are just as honest as I am. I have heard some good men testify here that a fair trial can be had in this county, and I regard 354 them as honest men. They may believe what they say they could do. I am just as honest on the other side that I could not do it. I don't know whether the defendant company can get a fair trial in this county or not; it might get as fair a trial here as it could in any other.

Redirect examination:

If Mr. Brady were running for District Attorney, and I heard ten per cent. of the people out in the North End of the county and in my neighborhood express themselves very bitterly against him, and the same reports came from Webberville, Creedmoor, Manchaca, Manor and elsewhere, and I never heard any one speak a good word for him, I would not think he stood very good chance of election.

Recross-examination:

If I heard only thirty or forty men express themselves, and did not know anything about the rest of the county, I think I would have a pretty good idea of how it would result. I have been an officer myself, and had some boxes where I got a few votes, but still won out.

Defendant next introduced in evidence the head-lines and following portions of an editorial published in the Houston Chronicle of date Feb. 8th, 1907, the head-lines and portions of said editorial so introduced being as follows:—

Defending H. Clay Pierce.

Whatever may be thought of a newspaper professedly democratic, and therefore supposed to be in sympathy with the doctrine of the party for the suppression of the trusts, no one can sincerely say that the Houston Post has not consistently defended H. Clay 355 Pierce, one of the greatest trust masters in the United States. Even in behalf of its own idol, Senator Bailey, the Post has not been more vigorous, nor his it been more vehement in its denunciation of the anti-Baileyites than of those whose official duties made it necessary to bring out the facts and circumstances upon which the grand jury of Travis County indicted H. Clay Pierce for perjury.

There are two men, at least who in the estimation of the Houston Post can do no wrong. One of them is H. Clay Pierce, a self-confessed perjurer, and now under indictment in Texas, and the other is Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey, how being investigated upon charges which, if proven, show a moral unfitness for the office of United States Senator, or of any other office of trust in a representative form of government.

* * * * * * *

It is a singular coincidence that the Post first took a fancy, to the magnificent character and magnetic personality of Henry Clay Pierce just after Senator Bailey had successfully officiated at the ceremonies attendant upon the readmission of the oil octopus into the State. Then it was that the Houston Post discovered so much for the common weal, in the way that Henry Clay Pierce was "Bowing to the Law," and this was chronologically just after Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey, upon the strength of a day's acquaintance, had made that historical "touch" for $3300, and various other sums.

When the Post commended Henry Clay Pierce's method of "bowing to the law," six years ago, about the time Pierce committed perjury in order to get the oil octopus back into Texas, it is to be taken for granted that it did not know of the act of perjury, because Senator Bailey declares that he did not know of it. There-

356 fore, since Senator Bailey, though declaring that Pierce had deceived him, has not denounced him for his perfidy, it seems to be another one of those coincidences to find the Post vehemently and blindly defending Henry Clay Pierce, as appears from the following from an editorial, which appeared in that paper the other day.

* * * * * * *

The substance of Pierce's affidavit in Texas was that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was not a trust. The substance of Pierce's testimony in the Missouri ouster cases was that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust at the time it was re-admitted to Texas, because its stock was owned by the Standard Oil Company. This kind of perjury the Post calls "technical rather than criminal." The Post has evidently discovered a new class of falsehoods, which it would call "technical."

In certain pleadings at law, it is necessary to make what is called a formal oath, and the fact that all of the allegations are not proven does not subject the affiant to the charge of perjury. But there is no sort of similarity between the formal oath in pleadings in a suit and the affidavit which Pierce was required by law to make before the oil octopus could be readmitted to Texas.

The Waters Pierce Oil Company had been convicted of "making exclusive contra-ts," and that constituted it a trust in the opinion of the Courts. Therefore how perfectly absurd and supremely ridiculous is the assertion that an affidavit required by law that the company is not a trust is "technical rather than criminal."

Pierce knew that his company had been convicted of being a trust, because he knew that it was necessary for a pretended dissolution and reorganization in order to get back into the State. Therefore he must have known that the affidavit for readmission was not a 357 formal affair.

* * * * * * *

Therefore if the Post's own excuse for Pierce is accepted, he is none the less guilty at law, but his lawyer becomes an accessory before the facts, and is likewise guilty of crime.

It is incomprehensible, however, that Henry Clay Pierce is as ignorant of what constitutes an oath at law as the Houston Post professes itself to be, and it is not likely that he will plead the "baby act" by incriminating his lawyer when he cannot extricate himself thereby from the meshes of the law.

Evidently Henry Clay Pierce may be as big as knave as the Post's line of defense seems to indicate, but he is not all kinds of a fool. The Post's devotion is sublime, but its method of defending absurd and ridiculous.

Defendant next introduced in evidence pages 1, 2, & 3, of the Houston Chronicle of the issue of Jan. 27th, 1907, the pages so introduced being as follows:

(Here follows facsimile marked pp. 358, 358*a*, and 358*b*.)

359 Defendant next introduced in evidence the following article appearing in K. Lamity's Harpoon of April 1st, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

Warm-blooded Man—Clay Pierce.

The Austin Statesman, a Bailey organ owned by John Henry Kirby the Lumber King and Prince of Pines, says:

"Bailey's record in congress is, as we have before said, as clean as a hound's tooth, and the Standard Oil octupus can not destroy him. He will continue faithfully his duty to do as in the past he has ever done it."

So far as the "cleanliness" of the record is concerned, I fully agree with you, though fail to see where the comparison is any compliment to Mr. Bailey. As for the Standard Oil Company "destroying Joe Bailey," such rot is enough to make the aforesaid hound puke up his teeth by the mouthful.

You must take Texas people for infernal fools. The Waters Pierce Oil Company is controlled and principally owned by the Standard Oil Company. Joe Bailey is the best friend the president of the Waters Pierce Oil, alias the Standard Oil Company ever had in Texas. He was the means of its being re-admitted to Texas, and giving it the opportunity of robbing Texas people out of millions of dollars.

In return the Waters Pierce alias the Standard Oil Company has repaid Bailey by lending him thousands of dollars. The only sane reason why the Waters Pierce alias the Standard Oil Company could possibly want to "destroy Bailey" might be the fear that if they remained on the present friendly terms, Joe might borrow every darned cent it had in the treasury and give his unindorsed note for security.

Such gushes of editorial guano del torro falls as flat as a wet
360 blanket when one remembers that in his examination before the investigation committee, the P. of P. said that Clay Pierce, the president of the Waters Pierce alias Standard Oil Company was the "only millionaire he knew, who had warm blood enough in his veins to lend a man money and help him out when he was in a close place."

Yes, that is a commendable trait of character in Clay, to lend money to Democratic Senators and lumber kings when they need it. I honor him for having "warm blood," and helping those who help him. Clay has the "warm blood" and also the "warm money," but in securing the latter (through the political influence of Joe Bailey), Mr. Pierce has certainly thrown the "warm soup" into the Democratic voters of Texas, when they had their faces turned in the opposite direction.

Defendant next introduced in evidence the following portions of an article appearing in K. Lamity's Harpoon, of March 1st, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

K. Lamity's Harpoon.

Joe Bailey vs. Texas Democrats.

If Joe Bailey has not betrayed the trust placed in his hands by the Texas Democracy, then it is impossible for it to be betrayed. He has, by his own confession, saddled the Standard oil trust on Texas. To make it worse, he seems to be proud of it, and claims as his most intimate friend, the Hon. H. Clay Pierce—manager of the Waters Pierce Oil Company—said company being under the control of the Standard Oil Company. Clay Pierce—the oil magnate—the ac-*mo*wledged perju*ro*r—who dares not visit Texas, as he is 361 now under indictment for swearing to a bald-faced lie in order to get reinstated in Texas, and thus be able ro rob the common people—the people who burn oil—out of millions of hard-earned money. This Clay Pierce, the man who has "warm blood in his veins," is Mr. Bailey's dearest friend, and he now desires to prove his innocence of having gone over to the people's enemies by a man who is under indictment right here in Austin, just under the shadow of the room in the capitol where the white-wash is now being prepared to cover up the oil spots on Bailey's senatorial toga. You may smear damp lime over them a foot thick, boys, but that kerosene is bound to show.

Defendant next introduced in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in the Houston Chronicle of Jan. 6th, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

"Bailey Repudiated by Travis County.

Democrats in the Capital City of Texas Rebuke Practice of United Senator in Serving the Trusts.—Battle was Hard Fought Against Tremendous Odds.

Special to The Chronicle.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 5.—Travis County repudiated Senator Bailey's methods today by a small majority ranging from one to two hundred votes.

Only about 2000 votes were polled but enough voters turned out to let the balance of the state know that this county s-ands for purity in public official- and a service to be rendered by them that 362 is not tainted with corporation and trust influences.

Senator Bailey has been in the County nearly all the week during which time he made four speeches in explanation of his conduct and close affiliations with the head of the Waters Pierce Oil Company which is a branch of the Standard Oil Company."

and also the following article appearing in said paper of said date:

Standard Oil is know- to be a corrupter of congressmen. Senator Bailey helped Standard Oil and Pierce, president of the Waters Pierce, a branch of the Standard Oil, loaned money to Senator Bailey and gave him rich employment. The most charitable must admit that an investigation is imperative.

What the people of Texas want is a democratic senator who believes in equal rights to all and special privileges to none, not even to Waters Pierce and Standard Oil.

Defendant next introduced in evidence the following cartoon appearing in The Houston Chronicle of Jan. 20, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:-

AN ALL-EMBRACING SITUATION

Be Not So Evil-Minded and So
Hoodlumes to Try
To Nose Out Any Friendship
Twist Myself and Octopi.

365

Can Senator Bailey be an effective public champion of the people and at the same time the private attorney of Pierce of Waters Pierce and Standard Oil fame?

363 Defendant next introduced in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in the Houston Chronicle of Jan. 7th, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date viz:

Farmer's View of Bailey.

His Letter Shows the Rural Districts to be Well Informed.

Special to The Chronicle.

Cameron, Texas, Jan. 6.—R. W. Cage, a farmer of the Walker creek community, has given out a letter on Senator Bailey which shows that the residents of rural communities are well posted on the Bailey agitation, and are not influenced by the statements and opinions of others. Following is the letter.

To R. Lyles and Others, Cameron, Texas.

GENTLEMEN: You say Senator Bailey has rendered to the people faithful and able services during his 15 years in congress. The Standard Oil Company and the Waters Pierce Oil Company can truthfully say more. Six years ago these two criminal corporations were operating in Texas together under the name of the Waters Pierce Oil Company and were making off the people the shameful profit of 700 per cent. each year on their capital invested, and they were by judgment of the court, driven out and prohibited from longer doing business in Texas, and they were readmitted into Texas by the influence of Senator Bailey. This was worth many million dollars to these two corporations.

Yours truly, R. W. CAGE.

364 Defendant next introduced in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in Houston Chronicle of Jan. 8th, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

Bailey says he is above being influenced. He asserts, with flashing eyes and fierce visage, that anyone who even intimates that he (Bailey) can be influenced is an infamous liar. Despite such ferocious declarations, it remains a matter of record that Pierce lied to him (Bailey produced a letter from Pierce to prove it), and that Bailey has never yet called Pierce an infamous liar. He has not so much as whispered in that well-known stage whisper of his: "Pierce, you fibbed to me; you nasty naughty thing!" Of course, there are liars and liars—liars who are too far away to hear you when you hiss "infamous liar!"—liars who are useful for stage purposes, "property" liars as it were, who are convenient for creating spect-ular and grandstand effects—liars who are dead broke, and last, but not least, liars who are touchable for $3,300 the day after you meet them. Figure out for yourself which class Pierce is in.

366 Defendant next offered in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in The Houston Chronicle of Jan. 20, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

The Cocke Charges Against Joe Bailey.

San Antonio Representative Says He Has Mailed Them to the Committee.

Several Matters are Mentioned of Which the Public Has Not Previously Heard—Alleged Relations With John W. Gates in Port Arthur Deal and Loans Suggested.

Staff Special.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 19.—Formal charges have been prepared by Representative W. A. Cocke for filing with the Chairman of both the House and Senate investigating committees against Senator Bailey. Mr. Cocke stated tonight that he would mail copies to the committees with a statement that he be allowed to question witnesses, otherwise he would withdraw the charges.

Thirty-six charges are contained in the complaint covering the various official acts of the Senator from the time before or during the Spanish war, when he is alleged to have entered into a mule contract, though the episodes of the Waters Pierce trust action, when fraudulent action is alleged to have been taken in securing the dismissal of suits; the facts of the investigation at that time; the acts of Senator Bailey in the upper house of Congress and in Austin; the circumstances of the Tennessee railroad transaction on to the present time. It is alleged that in 1905 Senator Bailey collected a fee of $118,000 through a Bainesville Bank.

367 After covering well known allegations concerning the events at Waco, when the Waters Pierce Oil Company was permitted to reorganize and re-enter Texas, Mr. Cocke alleged that Senator Bailey prevented a close scrutiny of his record and failed, when on the stand, to tell the whole truth. An allegation is made to the effect that during 1901 Senator Bailey came to Austin as an agent for the Standard Oil Company to use his influence to the defeat of the Grinnan and Davidson anti-trust bills.

Defendant next offered in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in The Houston Chronicle, of Jan. 23, 1907, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

Bailey and the Trusts in the Sunday Chronicle.

Copies of the Chicago Examiner of Monday, containing an exposition of the relations existing between the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company and the close manner in which Joseph W. Bailey has been identified with these monopolies have been received in Houston.

An effort was made on the part of the owner of the newsstand which received the copies to suppress them.

Defendant next offered in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in The Houston Chronicle of Nov. 28, 1906, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

368 Did Senator Bailey Take Pierce Money?

Vouchers Showing Sums Paid to Him are Alleged to be in Existence.

Demand Made on Counsel for Waters Pierce Oil Company to Produce Documents Evidencing the Payment of Several Thousand Dollars to Senator Bailey on Account of Texas Cases.

Special to The Chronicle.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 28.—The sensational stage was reached in the ouster suit against the Waters Pierce Oil Company last night when a demand was made by counsel representing the state for documents of the defendant company which it is alleged will show the payment of divers sums to Hon. J. W. Bailey, junior senator from Texas, by H. C. Pierce, on account of "the Texas cases." The documents described in the demand made for their introduction will recall in public memory utterances which Senator Bailey has recently made in Texas to the effect that he did not receive one dollar for any service he may have rendered in getting the Waters Pierce Oil Company reinstated in Texas six years ago.

Transactions showing that the Senator has been paid for services rendered to H. C. Pierce are minutely described in the demand for the production of the documents. Dates and amounts are given, and vouchers showing on what account payments were made, are alleged to be in existence. The sudden and unexpected turn given to the litigation bids fair to convulse the state politically and would seem to render necessary a renewal of Senator Bailey's campaign of explanation and vindication.

369 Money Paid to Bailey.

Attorney General Davidson and assistant counsel for the state served upon Hon. George Clark, of counsel for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and filed with the District Clerk of Travis County, a notice demanding the production in court of various records and papers of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, showing, among other things, the original trust agreement, and agreement between the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Eagle Refining Company for the purchase of the Texas property of the last mentioned company; also books showing copies of correspondence between counsel for the Waters Pierce Oil Company and J. W. Bailey, and various vouchers of specified number and date purporting to show payment of money to J. W. Bailey.

Notice is given that if the original are not produced upon the trial of the case, secondary evidence will be offered by the state.

The text of the notice is as follows:

Defendant next offered in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in The Houston Chronicle of Dec. 3, 1906, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:—

Maybe H. C. Pierce is as great an expert in juggling records as he proved himself to be in manipulating an affidavit.

375 Defendant next offered in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in The Houston Chronicle of Sept. 17, 1906, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

Texas May Proceed Against Mr. Pierce.

Magnate's Sworn Testimony and Texas Affidavit Wholly at Variance.

Evidence in Missouri's Ouster Proceedings Admitted that Standard Oil Held 3,000 Shares Waters Pierce Stock when Company was Re-admitted to Texas—Contradicts Previous Affidavit.

Special to The Chronicle.

Austin, Texas, Sept. 17.—Considerable interest is being manifested in state official circles here in the ouster proceeding now being conducted by the State of Missouri against the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company before Commissioner Anthony in St. Louis. Special interest is attached to the testimony adduced by Henry Clay Pierce, president of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, as it disclosed that at the time the company was readmitted into the State, in 1900, the Standard Oil Company was the owner of over 3000 shares of the stock. In the face of this disclosure Mr. Pierce made a sworn affidavit to the State of Texas that none of the stock of the Waters Pierce Oil Company was owned by any trust whatever.

The testimony of Mr. Pierce has shown beyond a doubt that it is at variance with his sworn affidavit made in Texas in 1900.

This lays Mr. Pierce liable to the Texas authorities if his company was readmitted into the state under false pretenses. When 376 seen about this matter the attorney general refused to express himself as to what the department will do looking toward the institution of criminal proceedings against President Pierce. The matter, however, would have to be brought to the attention of the Travis County Grand Jury before the state could do anything, and the attorney general has not indicated what he will do in the premises.

The affidavit upon which the Waters Pierce Oil Company was readmitted into the state in 1900 was a stringent one, and its text is as follows:

(Here followed copy of affidavit set out in plaintiff's petition and alleged to have been made by H. C. Pierce, on May 31st, 1900.)

Defendant next offered in evidence the following portion of an article appearing in The Houston Chronicle of Dec. 1, 1906, as published in the issue of said paper of said date, viz:

The Bailey Chickens Come Home to Roost.

Attorney General Gives the Senator a Large Dose of His Own Medicine.

Record is Cited to Show that Bailey Did Receive Money from Pierce on Account of the Texas Cases.—Authenticity of the Senator's Denials is Flatly Challenged.

Special to The Chronicle.

Austin, Texas, Dec. 1.—After months and years of evasion, avoidance, denunciations, sophistry and subterfuge, it appears that the Honorable Joseph Weldon Bailey, junior United States sen-377 ator from Texas, president of the American Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, owner of the Grapevine Ranch promotor of fine Kentucky horse flesh, and in off years corporation counsel for railroad and oil companies at last apparently finds himself cornered.

Unless all signs fail he is 'twixt the devil and the deep blue sea—the oil octopus and the azure of political oblivion.

After denouncing men as infamous liars who reiterated well authenticated and undisputed charges against him the senator is now called upon to dodge the boomerang effect of his own epithets which find application to himself in this that he has publicly denied the existence of facts which have now been disclosed by public documents.

The poultry is now making a return trip.

From the time of the legislative investigation of six years and more ago down to yesterday the senator has denied in sworn testimony and in public speeches and writings that he received any compensation from H. Clay Pierce or the oil company of which Pierce is the head for any services rendered in connection with the civil proceedings against the oil company or the criminal proceedings against Pierce. These denials are shown by records cited by the attorney general of Texas, to be either fabrications or subterfuges. Thus the man who six months ago solemnly challenged the veracity of the President of the United States and who has since that time used the word liar promiscously is called upon to swallow some of his own medicine.

There ought to be efficacy in the remedy for the senator has been given a large dose. His case is a chronic one, with long existing complications. A malady of six years' duration must needs require a remedy of heroic proportions. Such a remedy is administered in a letter which Attorney General Davidson has addressed to Sen-
378 ator Bailey. This letter is in reply to the statement which Senator Bailey gave out from Washington in which he charged a political conspiracy against him, talked wildly about forged documents and threatened prosecution for perjury and goodness knows what besides. The letter from the attorney general is *cl*aculated to knock a hunk of placidity out of the senator's bump of serenity, and is as follows:

Davidson to Bailey.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Nov. 30, 1906.

Hon. J. W. Bailey, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: For more than six years the people of Texas have lived under the shadow of the wrong perpetrated against them by the reintroduction of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas under your guidance and direction after it had been outlawed by the highest courts of the land. During all of this period of time it has plundered the people without conscience and the obligation which I, as attorney general owed to them, prompted me to exhaust every effort to purge this state of an institution which should never have been permitted to re-enter.

In developing the testimony necessary to convict that corporation of continued violations of our laws, I have proceeded with an eye single to that purpase. That our investigations have developed the fact that you have not been candid with the people in stating your connection with its reintroduction has only filled me with shame and sadness.

Even under the great provocation of having unworthy motives ascribed to me, my assistants and associates, I have had no feeling other than that of sorrow, that one to whom has been entrusted the high position of United States senator should resort to abuse and vilification in an effort to silence the righteous indignation of our people.

379 In my anxiety to escape a controversy that might have injuriously affected the interests of the state in the case of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I have refrained from denying your mis-statement, to the effect that you had tendered your services to the state in that case.

If the attack made by you on me through the papers of this date were purely personal, I might still refrain, but when you charge that the officers of the State have entered into a conspiracy to do injury to a citizen I owe it to the people who elected me to an honorable position to answer.

I have filed a petition wherein it is charged that H. C. Pierce, acting for the Waters Pierce Oil Company before and after its reorganization paid out money in connection with the cases pending against the old company, thereby assuming obligations of the old corporation and that such sums so paid were audited and approved by the auditors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The allegations have been sustained by the district judge as proper: They would not have been made if the facts had not been regarded as pertinent nor would they have been if I had not been in position to prove them.

The circumstance that the evidence established that you received some of the money which the company charged to expenses and connected with the Texas anti-trust cases is a fact for which I am in no sense responsible; and my idea of the discharge of public duties does not comport with the suppression of evidence because such evidence might injure one in high position.

That you may have an opportunity of explaining the facts suggested by the notice filed by us in the discharge of official duty, I make the following statements and ask the following questions:

April 25, 1900, you received from H. C. Pierce $3300.

This sum was subsequently returned to H. C. Pierce by the 380 Waters Pierce Oil Company and charged as "account of Texas cases." Was the sum given to you as a loan or as a fee? If a loan, has it ever been paid? If a fee, for what service?

On June 15, 1900, a charge was made in the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company of $1500 paid to Henry & Stribling "on account of expenses of anti-trust civil case." Was not this sum paid by a sight draft drawn by you? You have stated that you did not draw on the Waters Pierce Oil Company for such sum. Did you draw such a draft on H. C. Pierce or J. D. Johnson?

You received $200 on November 23, 1900, which was charged up on the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as "on account of the Texas cases." Did you represent the Waters Pierce Oil Company or H. C. Pierce in Texas in any case other than the anti-trust case? Was the sum paid to you by H. C. Pierce or the Waters Pierce Oil Company?

On March 28, 1901, or about that time, you wrote a letter to H. C. Pierce, in response to which you received New York exchange for $1750. This sum was charged up on the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as "on account of Texas legal expenses." Did you in this letter request a loan, or did you demand a fee? If a loan, has it been paid? If a fee, for what service?

On March 6, 1901, you executed your note for $8000 due in four months to H. C. Pierce. You received Pierce's check for the amount. He immediately had the amount repaid him by the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Has this note ever been paid? Has payment ever been demanded?

Yours truly, R. V. DAVIDSON.

Attorney General R. V. Davidson last night gave out the following open letter written by him to Joseph W. Bailey in reply to a statement given out by Mr. Bailey in Washington Thursday night, a special report of which was published in The Statesman yesterday morning:

AUSTIN, TEXAS, November 30, 1906.

Correspondence is Made Public.

Senator Bailey Offered to Testify in Waters-Pierce Case.

OCTOBER 6, 1906.

Hon. J. W. Bailey, United States Senator, Gainesville, Texas.

SIR: In answer to your letter of October 3, you are advised that the suit against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was instituted without reference to any political effect, or without consideration of its consequences upon any person in this State; it was filed for the sole purpose of vindicating an outraged law and punishing a palpable fraud.

385 We have been engaged for months in collecting the necessary testimony upon which to base this action, and the suit was filed as soon as we had sufficient evidence in legal form.

You failed to point out the particular allegations in the petition to which you except. Had you done so I would have probably been in a position to point out its materiality.

I expect to prove every allegation made, and, in my judgment, each and every one is material and relevant to the case which the state expects to present to the Court.

I specifically deny that any allegation was made having in view any political consequence, or to aid a movement of any character.

The question of tendering your services to the state to aid in the prosecution, is one which you must settle according to your own inclinations. If you entertained such a purpose it was never communicated to me, although you had frequent opportunity to do so; and the grounds upon which you predicate your action in refraining from so doing, are based upon a construction for which you alone must accept the responsibility.

As stated, the sole purpose of this suit is to drive from the borders of this state a foreign corporation which has for twenty-five years preyed upon the people, and consumed their substance, which corporation when outlawed by a judgment of the highest court of the land was re-admitted into the state by a fraud, which for premeditated audacity and utter contempt of law has never before, nor since, been equalled in the history of this country. I have resisted every effort made to draw this case into politics as the interest of the state is paramount to the political fortunes of any person. Therefore, I trust that it will not become necessary for me to take any part in this agitation.

Referring to your proposal to testify in the case, concern-
386 ing the representation which the defendant made to you claiming its independence of all trust relations, I beg to advise that if your testimony should be limited to that issue I do not believe that it will be of any material value to the state's case, as I understand that defendant will not deny that it claimed to be independent.

Very respectfully,

(Signed) R. V. DAVIDSON,
Attorney General.

Attorney General."

Defendant next introduced in evidence letter of date November 30, 1906, from R. V. Davidson, Attorney General to Hon. J. W. Bailey, which appeared in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday, December 2, 1906, and which is as follows:

"AUSTIN, TEXAS, November 30, 190-.

"Hon. J. W. Bailey, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: For more than six years the people of Texas have lived under the shadow of the wrong perpetrated against them by the reintroduction of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas under your guidance and direction after it had been outlawed by the highest courts of the land.

During all that period of time it has plundered the people without conscience, and the obligation which I, as attorney general, owed them prompted me to exhaust every effort to purge this state of an institution which should never have been permitted to re-enter.

In developing the testimony necessary to convict that corporation of continued violations of our laws, I have proceeded with an eye single to that purpose. That our investigations have developed the fact that you have not been candid with the people in stating your connection with it- reintroduction has only filled me with shame and sadness.

Even under the great provocation of having unworthy —
389 ascribed to me, my assistants and associates, I have had no feeling other than that of sorrow, that one to whom has been entrusted the high position of United States senator should resort to to abuse and villification in an effort to silence the righteous indignation of our people.

In my anxiety to escape a controversy that might have injuriously affected the interests of the state in the case against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I have refrained from denying your mis-statement to the effect that you had tendered your services to the State in that case.

If the attack made by you on me through the papers of this date were purely personal I might still refrain; but when you charge that the officers of the state have entered into a conspiracy to do injury to a citizen, I owe it to the people who elected me to an honorable position to answer.

I have filed a petition wherein it is charged that H. C. Pierce, acting for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, before and after its reorganization, paid out money in connection with cases pending against the oil company, thereby assuming obligations of the old corporation and that such sums so paid were audited and approved by the auditors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The allegations have been sustained by the district judge as proper. They would not have been made if the facts had not been regarded as pertinent, nor would they have been if I had not been in position to prove them.

The circumstances that the evidence establishes that you received some of the money which the company charged to expenses connected with the Texas anti-trust cases is a fact for which I am in no sense responsible, and my idea of the discharge of public duty does not comport with the suppression of evidence because such evidence might injure one in high position.

390 That you may have an opportunity of explaining the facts suggested by the notice filed by us in the discharge of official duty, I make the following statements and ask the following questions:

April 25, 1900, you received from H. C. Pierce $3,300. This sum was was subsequently returned to H. C. Pierce by the Waters Pierce Oil Company and charged as "account of Texas cases." Was the sum given to you as a loan or as a fee? If a loan, has it ever been paid? If a fee, for what service?

On June 15, 1900, a charge was made in the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company of $1,500 as paid to Henry & Stribling, "on account of expense of anti-trust civil case." Was not this sum paid by a sight draft drawn by you? You have stated that you did not draw for such sums. Did you draw such a draft on H. C. Pierce or J. D. Johnson?

You received $200 on November 23, 1900, which was charged upon the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as on "account of Texas cases." Did you represent the Waters Pierce Oil Company or H. C. Pierce in Texas in any case other than the anti-trust case? Was the sum paid to you by H. C. Pierce or the Waters Pierce Oil Company?

On March 28, 1901, or about that time, you wrote a letter to H. C. Pierce in response to which you received New York Exchange for $1,750. This sum was charged on the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company as on "account of Texas legal expenses." Did you in this letter request a loan, or did you demand a fee? If a loan, has it been paid? If a fee, for what service.

On March 6, 1901, you executed your note for $8,000, due in four months to H. C. Pierce. You received Pierce's check for the amount. He immediately had the amount repaid him by the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Has this note ever been paid? Has pay-391 ment ever been demanded?

Yours truly,

R. V. DAVIDSON,
Attorney General."

Defendant next introduced in evidence an editorial from the Austin Daily Tribune of date Friday, September 21, 1906, which is as follows:

"Waters-Pierce Suit.

"As foreshadowed in The Tribune, the expected has happened and the state has instituted suit against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to oust it from the State and to recover penalties aggregating $5,228,400.

Attorney General Davidson has been busy for several months getting up evidence against the company and the testimony of Mr. Pierce in St. Louis last week, damaging as it was, had nothing whatever to do with the action of Attorney General Davidson and County Attorney Brady.

They had secured all of the evidence necessary before Pierce made his statement. His evidence only corroborated that which the State had obtained from various sources.

This case will be of special interest to Texans, as the trial is expected to put Senator Bailey under the brilliant blaze of the searchlight.

For several years Senator Bailey had been suspected of being in the very close confidence of the oil trust and its very able servant and defender, and recent developments tend to show that the suspicion has been fully confirmed.

Progress of the case just filed will be watched with interest."

392 Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines of an article, and a portion of the article signed by "H. F. Ring, President of the Harris County Good Government Club," dated Houston, Texas, Sept. 16, 1906, and appearing in The Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday Morning, September 23, 1906, the headlines to the article and the portion of the article offered in evidence being as follows:

Senator Bailey Under the Limelight.

"Shame of Texas" Is Now the Slogan.

Joseph W. Bailey, by His Own Admission "Is a Traitor Senator" to the People.

Does Not Mince Matters.

Good Government Club of Houston Starts the Watch-Fires in a Hot Campaign.

Address to the People.

"For twenty years or more the Waters Pierce Oil Company has operated in Texas, unopposed by the Standard, and time and again it had, by nefarious practices, crushed out all attempts to compete with it. The Standard Oil Company has never been known to fail to wage relentless war on every real competitor. Yet the bare assurance of some one was enough to satisfy Mr. Bailey that he was "interceding" for "an independent concern." That "assurance" prevented this green and innocent one from knowing that he was being used as a tool by the Standard Oil Company; from knowing what ever- intelligent merchant and farmer in Texas, 393 knew, namely: That the Waters Pierce Oil Company was controlled by the Standard Oil. And now, since this well known fact has been recently established in a judicial proceeding brought by the attorney general of Missouri, we understand that Mr. Bailey is about to make some kind of grandstand play for the purpose of fooling his constituents into the belief that in 1900 he was innocently imposed upon by the representatives of the Standard Oil Company. Will they be fooled?"

The defendant next introduced in evidence the following article, and the headlines to the article, as same appeared in the Austin Daily Tribune, of date Thursday, November 22, 1906, viz:

"Grand July Indicted H. C. Pierce for Perjury.

The Oily Fox Ensconced in Fastnesses of Empire State to Prevent His Extradition from Missouri.

"That H. C. Pierce recently slipped out of Missouri and went over to the State of New York is taken here to mean that he is apprised of the indictment against him by the Austin Grand Jury for false swearing in his statement to the Court concerning the relations existing between the Standard Oil and Waters Pierce.

It has been rumored here for some days that the Grand Jury of the District court had returned a true bill of indictment against H. Clay Pierce of St. Louis, President of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and such an indictment has been looked for for a long time. The report was practically confirmed here yesterday although none of the officials connected with the court would make the open 394 statement that such is the case. It is stated, however, that Mr. Pierce knew whether he had been indicted or not, and the further fact was announced that immediately after the report of the alleged indictment became current Mr. Pierce left the State of Missouri and he is now said to be in New York. He also had some of his Texas attorneys come to St. Louis and confer with himself and attorneys in that city in regard to the proposed criminal prosecution here.

The charge against Mr. Pierce contained in the indictment is false swearing. The particular offense is that the affidavit which he made to the Secretary of State of Texas in 1900 at the time the Waters Pierce Company was re-admitted to do business in the state, was false in that it stated that none of the stock of that company was owned or controlled by the Standard Oil Company.

Although the offense of perjury is debarred by limitation at the expiration of three years, it is stated that this limitation runs for only the time that the accused is in Texas. As Mr. Pierce has been out of Texas for most of the time since the alleged offense was committed he is alleged to be still amenable to the law."

The defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and a portion of, an article appearing in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Monday, November 26, 1906, as follows:

395 "Objections Overruled in Waters-Pierce Suit.

Victory Is Now in Sight for Texas Against Oil Trust.

State Asks Time to Amend Petition.

"In the case of the State of Texas against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company this morning Judge Brooks sustained several exceptions from the approximate number of 145 raised by the defendant to the State's petition * * * * * *"

The defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and portions of, an article in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Wednesday, November 28, 1906, as follows:

"State Springs Sensation.

Wants to Know About Bailey's Connection With Re-Admission of Oil Trust.

Books and Vouchers Are in Great Demand.

Which the State Alleges Will Show That the Senator Was Paid Some Fourteen Thousand Dollars.

"The name of Joseph W. Bailey, United States Senator, was brought into the Waters Pierce suit as having received remuneration from the concern for services rendered and loans, it is alleged by the State. The Senator may have an opportunity to explain.

396 "A new sensation was sprung by the State in the Waters Pierce Oil controversy when they brought into the case last evening alleged facts concerning the connection of Senator Joseph W. Bailey with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. They demand correspondence, vouchers, cancelled checks and other papers relating to the alleged payment of several sums of money to him for services rendered on account of demand made to him and on account of a loan of $8000 in March, 1901, for which he gave his note, so it is alleged. The state alleges that the total amount of $14,570 was paid to the Senator on account of services and as loans."

"Demand Company Records.

"Last evening at seven o'clock before District Clerk J. P. Hart, the state filed a demand of the Waters Pierce Oil Company of records of transactions of the concern. The papers demanded follow:

Defendant next introduced in evidence the following article from the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday, December 9, 1906:

"To the Waters Pierce Oil Company: Skiddoo!"

400 Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and an article, and in connection therewith a letter from R. V. Davidson, Attorney General, dated Austin, Texas, December 7, 1906, to Hon. J. W. Bailey, all of which appeared in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday December 9, 1906, and which are as follows:

"Six Hundred Demand Defeat of Bailey.

Representative Travis County Democrats Emphatically Opposed to Re-election of Oil Senator.

"Signed by six hundred democrats of Travis County, a petition asking Representative Robertson to vote against Senator Bailey for the United States Senate is being circulated throughout the county. The petition is simple, asking only of Mr. Robertson that he vote against the re-election of Senator Bailey. Copies of the petition were sent to all parts of the County and the eagerness with which it was approved indicates unquestionably the sentiment of the people in Travis County.

Discussion was continued today and many are quoted as saying that they are of the opinion that the senator is up a tree. The Attorney General placed marked emphasis in his reply to Mr. Bailey's statement. Many hot words are being exchanged between those interested in the fight.

"Senator Bailey departed Friday evening for Dallas and it is expected that he will return to Austin this evening. Just what course he will pursue or just what new sensations will be sprung it is difficult to predict, although developements of interest are expected. The documentary evidence presented by Attorney General Davidson is deemed by many incontrovertible, but the howl of forgery and perjury is being cheered by Bailey's henchmen in the city.

401 "The statement to the people of Texas was given out by Attorney General Davidson Friday night and contained many interesting disclosures. It read as follows:

"The following reply was made by Attorney General Davidson Friday night:

AUSTIN, TEXAS, December 7, 1906.

"Hon. J. W. Bailey, Austin, Texas.

SIR: In view of the admissions contained in your letter of yesterday in response to some of the questions set out in my letter to you of November 30, I desire to say only this:

I have never co-operated in any movement to prevent your reelection, but have confined myself to my official duties and to the preparation for trial of the case of the State of Texas vs. the Waters Pierce Oil Company. Some of those who are actively opposing you politically asked me to show them the evidence in my possession, but I declined to accede to the request.

But for the fact that the charge is made that I have in my possession, and am using forged documents connecting your name with the Waters Pierce Oil Company I would not make any reply to your letter.

My sense of duty to the people of this State now impels me to make public the evidence in my possession relating to that matter, and I herewith give copies of said documents to the press. The documents are not forgeries. The copies are as follows:

Defendant next offered in evidence letter from E. G. Senter, dated Dallas, Texas, Dec. 15, 1906, addressed to the Democratic Voters of the Sixth Senatorial District, and the headlines to the letter as same appeared published in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday Morning, December 16, 1906, as follows, to-wit:

"Arraignment of Senator Bailey.

Senator Elect W. Senter Gives Forceful Reasons Why Bailey Should Not Return to Senate.

"Dallas, Dec. 15.—The following letter was given out here today by State Senator-elect, E. G. Senter:

DALLAS, TEXAS, Dec. 15, 1906.

To the Democratic Voters of the Sixth Senatorial District:

The disclosures relating to Mr. Bailey, which have been made public since the primary election create a condition without a precedent. Under similar circumstances, any conscientious 408 judge would grant a new trial in a case pending before him. There are abundant evidences of a strong public demand for a rehearing in the senatorial matter, and believing that this issue is one which should be settled by the democratic voters of the State, rather than by the members of the thirtieth Legislature, I beg to beg to submit to you the question whether under the changed conditions, you will now instruct me to vote for or against Mr. Bailey for United States Senator. I do not undertake to say how your will should be expressed, but beg to suggest that it can be ascertained, without serious inconvenience, through mass meetings or local primaries. Inasmuch as the time for action is short, I take the liberty of suggesting further that whatever steps you may choose to take should not be deferred later than Saturday December 29.

The claim that Mr. Bailey has a vested right to the Senatorship by reason of the action of the democratic primaries and state convention must be considered as any other claim of title. If it is proposed to stand upon technicalities, the answer is that the people's forum only acts as a cou-t of equity. If any equity is asserted the claim must come with sufficient proof of clean hands, and that is the very question at issue.

It would be a cowardly evasion of my plain duty if I did not advise you of my own convictions touching this matter.

Up to the time of the publication of the evidence in the possession of the attorney general, and the subsequent admissions of Mr. Bailey I was committed to the view that loyalty to democratic precedents required that every doubt should be resolved in his favor, and in my own mind I have labored long and earnestly to convince myself that I could, without doing violence to my own convictions, make reasonable and satisfactory explanation of the transactions 409 which have lately come under review. The result is, after mature deliberation, that I now come to make public confession of my own mental pettifoggery. All of the years of my life have been given to the advocacy of another kind of gospel. From infancy I was taught that Robert Lee's sublime abnegation and self chosen poverty set a historical standard for Southern leadership which no man had dared or would ever dare to tramble in the dust. Fortune-getting I believe to be incompatible with a zealous and faithful administration of a public trust. The fact that Mr. Bailey has risen, within the brief space of six years, from admitted poverty to affluence, while his time belonged wholly to the public is a circumstance that in the case of any official should call for full and candid explanation. Has this been vouchsafed by Mr. Bailey? Let the record speak for itself:

The public was assured that it had been put in possession of the whole truth when the subject was under investigation six years ago. Did Mr. Bailey deal candidly with the public at that time?

In his late speech-making tour through Texas to explain his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, Mr. Bailey assumed to tell, with emphasis, the full history of his connection with that company. Did he then deal candidly with the public?

Has the public yet been taken into the full confidence of Mr. Bailey, and have all the transactions of the same general class as those under review been disclosed? Has the account between him and Pierce and his associates been closed, and is Mr. Bailey ready to make an exhibit of the whole to the public eye? These questions are pertinent in view of the slow and tedious processes by which all that the public knows about this matter has been revealed.

The trust is that all that he has disclosed about the matter has been in belated explanation of some fact which found its 410 way to the public over his violent protest.

A legislative investigation has been called for, but nothing it could unfold could affect the moral force of these admitted facts:

First. That Mr. Bailey undertook to act as the interceding friend of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company upon no greater evidence of its innocence than a letter of introduction delivered to him by Pierce and written by David R. Francis, whose identity with law-defying and trust-promoting interests was at the time notorious.

Second. That concurrently with the friendly service which he rendered to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, Mr. Bailey began to borrow large sums of money from Pierce, that these loans were increased, and that they have apparently been discharged by fees charged against Pierce and his associates for subsequent service.

Third. That the group of financiers surrounding Pierce have, since the re-entrance of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas paid enormous fees to Mr. Bailey, which, in cases disclosed to the public, have been wholly out of proportion to the services rendered, measured by the customs of this state.

Fourth. That Mr. Bailey's reputation as a lawyer was as well established prior to 1900 as thereafter, but that the group of financiers whose clientage brought him wealth did not, as far as the public is advised, seek his counsel or services until after the Waters-Pierce Oil Company re-entered Texas.

It is contended that these controlling facts show nothing more than indiscretion. If that be true, the reply is that there are some kinds of indiscretion which are offenses against the public weal, and this is one of them. It is also true that the case here presented exhausts the possibilities of proofs, whatever might be the circumstances.

411 The special interests which seek to coax or to lure a public servant into their camp do not commit the folly of making vulgar propositions. The most that can ever be charged or proved against them is that they place Aladdin's lamp in the hands of the official upon whom they have designs and bid him greatly his lust for wealth.

If Mr. Bailey was insensible to the meaning of the extraordinary favors showered upon him by Pierce and his associates can he be safely trusted with the vast responsibilities which rest upon a representative of Texas in the nation's highest parliament? If he devined their purposes and took those benefits with the concealed design to render no reciprocal services, is he longer worthy either of their confidence or of ours?

We cannot shut our eyes to the significance of the fact that the publication of documents in the hands of the attorney general brought the reluctant admission from the general counsel of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and also from one of the attorneys for the state in the prosecution against it that a large sum of money was paid by the company to that attorney from subsequent services.

It is clear from the evidence which has been published that both Pierce and the Standard Oil Company understood that these transactions with Mr. Bailey were based upon his services in behalf of the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. The transfer of Mr. Bailey's obligation by Pierce to the Standard Oil Company and the entries made upon the records of that company declaratory of these transactions are proofs indisputable of the underlying motives by which they were both actuated. These records were made long ago and were not intended for the eye of the public. They are against the interests of both Pierce and the Standard Oil, and it must be assumed that the- speak the truth as far as these 412 parties are concerned. It is urged that Mr. Bailey is not responsible for the transfer of his notes by Pierce to Standard Oil. Very true. But he is chargeable with notice of Pierce's understanding of the nature of the transactions between himself and Pierce. It is difficult to believe that a man of Pierce's experience could have been misled touching a matter of this sort. He was many times a millionaire and did not need to discount Mr. Bailey's notes in order to raise funds. He is not charged by any one with being such a penurious trickster as one who would have been who unloaded these obligations upon the Standard Oil upon false pretense, for the purpose of casting a loss upon it which might otherwise have fallen upon himself.

Texas is entitled to a weight and influence in Congress unimpaired by personal embarrassment on the part of either of its representatives. It must be apparent to every candid mind that Mr. Bailey's influence as a senator has gone. His re-election would furnish the enemies of democracy with lamentable proof of our laxity of view with respect to our own shortcomings, but it could not rehabilitate him as a National leader. The best evidence that our national standards are still unsullied is given by the fact that no man can long fill a conspicuous place in the confidence and affections of the people of this country unless he wholly eschews the hunger and thirst for wealth.

Another potent reason why I believe Mr. Bailey's course should not be endorsed is that such actions would be, in effect, a general license to public officials, the evil results of which would not be slow to manifest themselves in the public service. If Mr. Bailey can do these things and escape censure, why should others hesitate to follow his example? Can it be doubted that such a precedent would sow dragon's teeth in every community in this State?
413 Shall we permit a lower standard of conduct to a United States Senator than would be tolerated in a minor official? If a District Judge should quickly pass from poverty to wealth as the result of favors from a syndicate of financiers who had profited by his action on the bench could words express the public indignation which would be felt upon the disclosure of the transactions.

In its broadest phases—as it may affect official conduct and public sentiment in this State, and as it may shape the ideals of the young men who are coming on and must soon take up the control of public affairs—this is a moral issue. I-s disposition is of supreme importance, not only to Texas, but to the republic, because it is the first case since the beginning of the government that such transactions as have been traced to Mr. Bailey, on the part of a United States Senator, have been presented as they are presented here for approval or condemnation by a sovereign state. If upon such an issue Texas should not be found upon the side of sound and wholesome public morals, well may the thinking Americans tremble for the future of this country.

It is a palpable evasion of the issue to declaim against those who have been instrumental in making these transactions public. The skillful lawyers always expend their indignation upon the witness who has brought his client to the bar, but the intelligent juror, understanding that the quality of the client's act must be measured by a standard that is not varied by the mechanism through which the law travels to its facts. A faithful public servant has no occasion to quarrel with those who turn the calcium upon his inner life, and their reasons are wholly irrelevant to the question whether the acts should be approved or disapproved.

414 There is a graver question here involved than Mr. Bailey's future. His conduct has placed in jeopardy the future of the democracy of the nation. He has, at the national capitol as well as in Texas, defiantly announced that he intends to continue in the course for which he is now arraigned. His re-election is sought as a vindication of his conduct. This puts him without giving full and emphatic approval to all that he has done, and in view of his attitude with respect to the matter, who can doubt that he would so construe a re-election? To give him a clear acquittance is to make a jest of every sentence touching unlawful trusts and public morals that will be written in democratic platforms in the next national campaign. It would make Texas and Bailey the fruitful theme of every Republican orator who should take the stump against Bryan in 1908, from Maine to California, and we delude ourselves if we imagine the effect would not be serious to the party. Will such an example tend to invite the confidence of thoughtful voters in doubtful states? Can the democracy of the nation point to the senate unabashed with Mr. Bailey there? This question, it should be remembered, will not be answered by personal friends and partisans, but by the millions of silent voters of the land who hold no briefs for any leader, but who in the quiet of their homes, mindful of no influence save God and country, take counsel with their own consciences.

Beyond all questions of party stands out plain and luminous the fact that we cannot approve Mr. Bailey's conduct without approving the wrong for which no penance has been done and no apology has been made. The personal affection which now seeks with all its arts and power to shield him is almost as magnificent as a mother's unquenchable love. He must be dead indeed to the richness of 415 human friendship who can witness without a throb of sympathy the enfolding kindness which it now throws around Mr. Bailey—a touching witness to the greatness which he has so recklessly sacrificed. But while this spectacle challenges our admiration, in the silence of the night, when God reigns and conscience speaks, there stands out luminously this admonition written across the face of the heavens: "For unto whoms-ever much is given, of him much shall be required."

Respectfully, E. G. SENTER."

Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to and a portion of an article from the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday, December 30, 1906, as follows:

"Travis Democrats Oppose Bailey.

Many Prominent Speakers Make Addresses at Friday Night's Meeting.

Very Much Enthusiasm.

Appeals Were Made for United Action on the Part of Every Voter in the County.

"Purity in politics prohibits public men from taking advantage of their influence for gain or retire them, was the sentiment of about sixty-five representative men of Austin and Travis County who gathered at the anti-Bailey Democrats' club headquarters Friday 416 evening and yesterday afternoon assumed a stronger opposition to Mr. Bailey's continuance as United States Senator. Much enthusiasm prevailed and each address was the occasion of intense interest. The speakers were roundly applauded. Strong statements that were convincing and vigorous appeals for united action on the part of every voter features each address, and the speakers themselves were men of prominence in the political eye.

The opposition to the Senator is growing each day and added effort on the part of those interested to place the matter under the consideration of the voters is being put forth.

Jingling the Silver.

"God forbid the time when a nomination could not be called when the nominee was found to be so unworthy," said Hon. T. S. Johnson, formerly office assistant attorney general under Attorney General T. S. Smith, and who formerly resided in Hill County.

Judge Johnson called attention to the many political occur-ences and the position of the Senator. The refusal on the part of the executive committee to place the name of Mr. Bailey on a new primary was also criticised. The numerous "loans" granted the senator Judge Johnson condemned in strong terms and without hesitation.

He stated that he was present in the committee room during the process of investigation by the Legislature of Bailey and that the senator had, before the committee, made a clean breast of it all. Judge Johnson stated that he sympathized with him at the time, but it had developed since that he was jingling $7500 of the Waters Pierce Oil money at that very time.

Was Once a Bailey Man.

In response to a question Mr. Johnson stated that at the time he believed in Mr. Bailey he was office assistant attorney 417 general under T. S. Smith. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company was re-admitted to transact business in Texas during the time Mr. Smith was attorney general.

He appealed to his audience for unity of action in the campaign and urged that a strong organization be effected in Travis County and carry it in a whirl against such an official as Mr. Bailey.

What Outburst Means.

"If Pierce didn't have Bailey ride with him in his private car, Pierce was ungrateful," said E. T. Moore, Sr., a prominent lawyer and former member of the Legislature, who was the next speaker. His address was forcible and straight to the point. He dodged no issue and treated the subject vigorously. The meaning of this instantaneous activity and outburst among the people where there had been no opposition or invitation he inquired and emphasized that the people of Texas demanded purity. To one who bartered their rights they would retire him from public life.

That Texas had been outraged, Mr. Moore pointed out, greatly to the amusement and approval of the audience. He called attention to how regardless of the fact of the banishment of the Waters Pierce Oil Company by all of the Courts, when Bailey was convinced of its injustice, he raised the ban and brought them back, at the expense of the citizens.

Did Not Vote for Bailey.

Continuing, Mr. Moore said: "I was a member of the Legislature which investigated and elected Bailey, and although he was without opposition, I knew better and I did not vote for him." He criticised the senator for the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company regardless of the fact that the Courts outlawed them. He re-418 ferred to the loans after a mere letter of introduction."

Defendant next introduced in evidence the following article which appeared in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Thursday, January 3, 1907:

"Why All Democrats Should Oppose Bailey.

"It is the plain duty of every democrat that loves his country on next Saturday to attend the primary and by his ballot vote against Senator J. W. Bailey, whose actions while in the Senate have been contrary to the principles of democracy and against his own people. It is the bounden duty of the good citizenship of Travis County to register its will, and that will against him, for during his incumbency he has been the paid agent of the trusts and monopolies, the enemies of the people that have constantly preyed upon the rights of the people ever since free government was established.

The people trusted him and imposed their implicit confidence in him and in the critical hour, when they needed the help most, when Texas had driven the Waters Pierce Oil Company from its borders, one of the most gigantic trusts and monopolies in the United States, what did he do. He betrayed the people, took Pierce's gold, and represented this trust, the arch enemy of the people, and by his action re-instated it in Texas, depriving the people of a great victory and turning it into a humiliating defeat. Every democrat should be diametrically opposed to him and his return to the United States senate, because of the following reasons:

419 First. He betrayed the interests of the people for Standard Oil Gold.

Second. Because he advised the Waters Pierce Oil Company how, by indirection, it could defeat the will of the law and the people of Texas.

Third. Because he violated the plain letter of the Constitution, to-wit: "Perpetuities and monopolies are contrary to the spirit and genius of free government and shall never be allowed." Under his oath he swore to uphold the constitution and vindicate the law, and at the critical point he betrayed his people, spat upon the law and put the constitution under his foot.

Fourth. He is the paid agent of H. Clay Pierce and holds a power of attorney coupled with an interest in $13,000,000 of corporate trust property in the State of Tennessee, and when this interest came up before the senate he assumed to represent the people and this corporation at the same time.

Fifth. He has undertaken to serve two masters by bowing down and worshipping the golden calf.

Sixth. He has sought by suppression and misrepresentation to keep the facts concerning his relations to the trusts of this country from the people, the very people he said at Dallas were the best people in the world.

Seventh. His evidence before the investigating committee in the Legislature and his subsequent statements are conflicting and in direct opposition to each other upon the same points. He convicts himself by his own statements and admissions.

Eighth. Because the evidence now in the possession of the Attorney General of Texas convicts him, and by reason of Bailey's admissions and confessions he stands convicted of treason beyond a reasonable doubt.

In the great fight between the Waters Pierce Oil Company
420 and the State of Texas, the people were arrayed on one side opposing this gigantic monopoly which had been preying upon them for so many years, and when the people had won and this corporation had been put out of Texas Mr. Bailey by reason of his position under oath to serve the people of his State, betrayed them, and for Standard Oil gold and went over to the Waters Pierce Oil Company and defeated all the work that had been done, and by his advice to those enemies to free government and the rights of the people, rendered ineffective the decree of our courts and put this giant freebooter and trust monopoly back in Texas.

He ran for the Senate on an anti-trust plank and what does he do? He serves the trust while in Congress and on the stump tells the people that he has always guarded their interest.

The Bailey people are fighting the primary because they know that he is guilty, and although the people have been fooled once, still you know they can not be fooled all the time. Do not let them fool you. They will tell you that Bailey is a great man. If so, what of it? So was Benedict Arnold great but by his acts he betrayed the people of this country and went over to the enemy, for which he has been by the people held in eternal execration. Bailey, might have been great but he left his people and went over to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, the enemy of the people, and he should be held in execration by the people of Texas and driven from the senate."

421 Defendant next introduced in evidence portions of an article from the Austin Daily Tribune of date Friday, January 4, 1907, as follows:

* * * * * * *

"There was vinegar and vitriol in the addresses on both sides of the Bailey controversy which consumed several hours last evening in a joint debate participated in by Hon. A. W. Terrell, representing the opposition to Senator Bailey, and Colonel Richard M. Wynne of Fort Worth, in the Fifty-third District court room at the Court house. The room was filled to overflowing with people and standing room was at a premium. Both the antis and those supporting Senator Bailey were present and enthusiasm ran at a high rate when the speakers introduced strong points in argument of the question."

* * * * * * *

"Bailey Too Inconsistent.

"Judge Terrell declared that a poor man can now go to the United States Senate and get rich in six years. "I don't want men to get rich too quick in public office," said Judge Terrell. He spoke of Chauncey Depew, and the manner in which he became rich. Bailey doesn't explain how he got rich quick and yet people call him "Honest Joe." He spoke of H. Clay Pierce and the indictment for perjury, and said that "he should be wearing stripes for the offense." Of Bailey- request to inspect the papers, Judge Terrell said in reply that any time that he said that he didn't borrow money from Pierce the attorney general would allow him to inspect those papers.

Judge Terrell also spoke of Bailey giving the Waters Pierce Oil Company assistance in being re-admitted into Texas. He declared that Pierce didn't want lawyers, but he wanted influence. Bailey said I am not practicing influence, but just loan me $3300.

422 About Bailey's Homecoming.

Judge Terrell declared that Bailey returned to Texas to fight the Drennan Bill, which makes corporations responsible for their debts, and the McFall Bill, which can take away the permit to do business in Texas. At this time Judge Terrell said that Senator Bailey wrote a letter to Pierce and said:

"My Dear Pierce—Send me $1750 New York exchange so it won't be necessary for me to indorse it. Send it at once for I should have had it several days ago."

The voucher was marked "account legislation," which bears out the judge's statement.

This was in April, continued Judge Terrell, about the 9th and the Senate had reported the bills favorably, and it was sent back to the House where it was defeated. "It was assas-inated by the influence of a United States Senator," he added.

This was the most convincing point of argument in Judge Terrell's address, in which he showed by facts that Bailey came back to Texas to lobby for the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

There is Wool in His Teeth.

Judge Terrell called attention to the cartoon in Collier's Weekly, which he contended shows that the impartial press, who had no interest in the outcome of the controversy, had condemned Bailey for his actions. Judge Terrell then gave his reasons and objections to always voting for the party nominee, and said that if he found a man unworthy he would see him in a mighty warm place before he would vote for him. "I don't wear an inscription under my collar, some great man's dog," he said."

He gave as an illustration a story of a dog that he once owned who was accused by his neighbor of having killed a sheep,
423 the tracks of the dog having been traced up to the home of Mr. Terrell. In addition to the evidence of the tracks of the dog, his teeth were found to be full of wool. The neighbor said, "Suspicion barks at his heels, Judge, and there is wool in his teeth, he must be shot for he is guilty." Continuing Judge Terrell said: "Suspicion barks at the heels of Joseph Weldon Bailey and there is wool in his teeth."

Judge Terrell was given at great ovation at the conclusion of his address."

The defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to and portions of, an article appearing in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday Morning, January 6, 1907, as follows:

"Sterling Democracy of Travis County Repudiates Senator Bailey.

Majority of Voters Declare Themselves Unalterably Opposed to His Return to Senate.

"The democracy of Travis County, or at least that portion of it which places the issues above the man, and demands clean, unassailed and unimpeachable records at the hands of its public servants, spoke in no uncertain terms yesterday, declaring its unalterable opposition to the return of Joseph Weldon Bailey to the United States senate.

By a vote of 1042 against 946 for the return of the Senator, the result of the primaries was known at an early hour last night, and while sixteen boxes were still unheard from at a late hour, it was generally conceded that the final returns would affect the result but little.

Brief in the time allowed for activity, but bitter in its 424 intensity and fiercely waged by opposing factions from start to finish, the whirlwind campaign was in many respects one of the most remarkable in the political history of Travis County. There was no celebration of victory last night, for it was a victory tinged with sadness that one so long beloved and idolized by his people should be branded as recreant to the high trust imposed in him.

But the voice of true democracy has spoken—"No man can serve two masters; either he will forsake the one and cleave to the other, or else he will love the one and despise the other."

* * * * * * *

"Triumph for the People.

"This election is a triumph for the people," declared J. Gregg Hill, chairman of the executive committee of Travis County anti-Bailey Club, "and shows very plainly that the people of this county do not endorse Bailey's connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company." Mr. Hill expressed satisfaction at the results, which he said last night did not come as a surprise."

* * * * * * *

"Down with rascality, the honest vote has won," declared Judge A. W. Terrell, when advised over the telephone. The learned Judge stated that he wished to congratulate the committee on the work done."

* * * * * * *

425 " Victory Over Slush Fund.

" The fight is over in Travis County. It was one of the people against Waters Pierce and Standard Oil.

It was very plain these big oil companies were spending money. There is no denying the fact that some of the slush fund was being furnished by Waters Pierce. Men drawing big salaries from the Waters Pierce Company could be seen driving from one voting place to another, and boosters could be seen and were working with money to get votes for Bailey.

The people voting against Bailey yesterday did so knowing that they were slapping the oil trust and its hired attorney, Joseph W. Bailey.

It is a victory over slush funds and corporate power headed by Joseph W. Bailey, who not content with making two speeches in Austin and one in Manor, in which he denounced the good name of those who have the manhood to oppose his self confessed grafting, but had imported into this County his henchmen to work at the polls to change the voters.

People Congratulated on Their Victory.

While the fight was among democrats, one side was fighting for the principles of true democracy, while on the other side headed by Joseph W. Bailey and his henchmen, the fight was for the success of machine politics with no argument to stand upon but that that Joseph W. Bailey is the nominee." .

Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and a portion of an editorial appearing in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Wednesday, January 9, 1907, as follows:

426 "The Legislature's Paramount Duty."

* * * * * * *

"Criticism has at time- grown violent. Attorney General Davidson has been designated as a hydra-headed monster, who, through the influence and machinations of sore-headed and conscienceless politicians, has made allegations which he will not be able to sustain at the critical moment. Prominent partisan newspapers of the State have striven to detract from his efforts to prosecute the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and have asserted that the suit against this blood-sucking corporation was inspired solely through a base desire to defeat Senator Bailey for re-election."

* * * * * * *

Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and portions of, an articles appearing in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Thursday, January 17, 1907, the portions introduced being as follows:

" Written in Scarlet.

" Written in Scarlet!

" By the shades of the white hosts of democracy marching on before, and the sainted memories of the immortal Houston and the peerless Reagan!

Has it chanced in this day of insiduous corruption that one in whom the people imposed the highest trust and confidence should brand the brow of Texas for all time with the crimson scar of Shame?

427 " Written in Scarlet!

Ay, and in bold, clear unmistakable chirography, opposite the word " republish " in the telegraph-code book of the Waters Pierce and Standard Oil Company, both in one, the name of J. W. Bailey, United States Senator for a state which never before in its history has known a blur on its escutcheon.

Such was the evidence given the House of Representatives yesterday by Attorney General Davidson in substantiation of certain charges which have been hitherto declared false and backed by a purpose blacker than hell itself." * * *

"* * * Why should the name of a senator from Texas be included in the secret code of such a thousand-tentacled, million eyed octopus as the Waters-Pierce-Standard Oil Company, if not for the sole reason that he was a party to certain transactions of such a nature that they could ill afford to bear the fierce white light of public inspection?"

* * * * * * *

Defendant next introduced portions of the charges filed before the Legislative Investigating Committee by William A. Cocke, against Joseph W. Bailey charging Bailey's connection with certain transactions with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, as such charges appeared printed in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday, January 20, 1907, and the headlines in said paper preceding said charges, the portions introduced being as follows:

428 "Specific Charges Filed by Representative Cocke.

"Alleges That Bailey Received Additional Sum of Hundred Thousand Dollars from Waters-Pierce Oil Company of Missouri.

"Representative William A. Cocke of Bexar County last night filed the following specific charges against Joseph W. Bailey in connection with certain alleged transactions with the Waters Pierce Oil Company:

"STATE OF TEXAS, County of Travis:

Investigation in re J. W. Bailey pending before the Investigating Committee of the State Senate and House of Representatives of the Texas Legislature.

To said Honorable Committee:

Now comes William A. Cocke, a member of the Thirtieth House of Representatives, Texas Legislature, and, upon information and belief, alleges and charges J. W. Bailey as follows:

* * * * * * *

"Second. That during the early months of the year 1900, J. W. Bailey entered into an agreement with one John Francis, brother of David R. Francis of Missouri, as well as with said D. B. Francis and one Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania, together with H. C. Pierce of the Waters Pierce Oil Company of Missouri (in consideration of which agreement and conspiracy and the services to be rendered thereunder by the said J. W. Bailey he was to be assisted in the purchase of the Gibbs ranch in Dallas County, Texas), whereby the said J. W. Bailey undertook to use his personal, official and political influence and standing with his lifetime friend, Hon. Thomas S. Smith, then Attorney General of Texas, and with other state 429 officials, to the end that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, then and now, a subsidiary company of the Standard Oil Company, might defeat the ouster judgment which had been rendered against it in favor of the State of Texas, by which said Waters-Pierce Oil Company would be enabled to re-enter the State of Texas in violation of law.

"Third. That in pursuance of said agreement aforesaid, and the conspiracy thereby created, the said J. W. Bailey on or about the 25th day of April, 1900, called upon H. C. Pierce in the City of St. Louis and then and there conspired with the said Pierce on behalf of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company to defeat the aforesaid judgment of the courts of Texas, as affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

"Fourth.—That the said J. W. Bailey well knew, or by the exercise of that patriotic prudence which should characterize the trusted representatives of the people, should have known that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was an intra-state trust and an outlaw of the State of Texas; and that the said H. C. Pierce and other representatives of said Company were under indictment in the District Court of McLennan County, Texas, for violation of the anti-trust law of the State.

"Fifth. That notwithstanding said knowledge, the said J. W. Bailey on the date aforesaid, and in pursuance of the conspiracy hereinbefore alleged, accepted employment from the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the said H. C. Pierce, and then and there did accept and receive the sum of at least $3,300 as a retainer fee for said services (pretending, however, that the said $3,300 was paid in the form of a loan); that said $3,300 was in fact and in truth, financial compensation, or a fee, for his personal, political and official influence in the premises.

"Sixth. That said J. W. Bailey's official duties then re-
430 quired his presence in the city of Washington; notwithstanding which, he returned to the State of Texas, in company with said H. C. Pierce and one J. B. Johnson, general attorney of the said Waters-Pierce Oil Company; that while en route to Texas the said J. W. Bailey conspired with the said H.C. Pierce and the said J. B. Johnson, not only to secure the fraudulent re-admission of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the State of Texas, but also conspired with the parties aforesaid to the end that certain penalty suits against said company, then pending at Waco, Texas, and the indictment and litigation herein above alluded to should be compromised and dismissed on the best possible terms; that in pursuance of said conspiracy the said J. W. Bailey while en route to Texas telegraphed to one Oscar L. Stribling of the law firm of Henry & Stribling of Waco, Texas, associate counsel for the State of Texas in the penalty suits aforesaid, to meet the said J. W. Bailey and his co-conspirators at Hillsboro, Texas, as they were en route from St. Louis, Mo., to Austin Texas; that said Stribling did not meet said parties at Hillsboro, as requested by said telegram from the said J. W. Bailey to to do; that the said J. W. Bailey and his co-conspirators failing to see said Stribling at Hillsboro came on to Waco, Texas, and there conferred with local counsel for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, to-wit, George Clark, and Henry & Stribling, the latter firm being at that time associate counsel for the State of Texas, and with the District Judge before whom said penalty proceedings and indictments were then pending; that the purposes of said conferences was to arrange a legal disposition of the litigation aforesaid; that the said J. W. Bailey and his co-conspirators refrained at the time in question from calling upon one Cullen F. Thomas, county attorney of McLennan County, who then represented the State of Texas in the litigation pending at Waco, for the reason that the said Bailey and his 431 co-conspirators deemed it wise to arrange with other interested parties, including Henry & Stribling, before they should approach the said Cullen F. Thomas in the premises.

"Seventh. That the said J. W. Bailey, H. C. Pierce and J. D. Johnsen, then continued their journey to Austin, Texas, where the said J. W. Bailey exercised his political and personal influence with Thomas S. Smith, whom he had known and who had been his friend from boyhood, to induce the latter as the acting attorney general of Texas to consent to a compromise of the ouster judgment against the said Waters Pierce Oil Company; failing in which the said J. W. Bailey then exercised his like influence with the said Thomas S. Smith to induce the latter to advise the Secretary of State to issue a new permit to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company upon its fraudulent dissolution and re-incorporation proposed by said J. W. Bailey to be had and without the necessity of mandamus proceedings; that the said J. W. Bailey likewise, and at the same time, to-wit, on or about the first day of May, 1900, exercised his personal, political and official influence with D. H. Hardy, then Secretary of State to induce the latter to issue a permit to the said Waters Pierce Oil Company to do business in Texas upon the fraudulent dissolution and fictitious re-organization aforesaid, thus avoiding the necessity of said company mandamusing said Hardy and judicially determin-g its right to re-enter Texas.

"Eighth. That the said J. W. Bailey and his co-conspirators thereupon returned from Austin, Texas, to Waco, Texas, and resumed negotiations looking to the dismissal of the litigation and indictment there pending and hereinbefore described; that the said J. W. Bailey on or about the second day of May, 1900, at the City of Waco, Texas, used his personal, political and official in-432 fluence and prestige in an effort to secure the dismissal and compromise aforesaid and to that end did approve and endorse a proposition to pay to Henry & Stribling a sum of money about five times larger than there were entitled to by law under the proposed compromise with the State of Texas, and used said illegitimate offer as an inducement to the said Henry & Stribling, associate counsel for the state, to induce them to make an illegitimate dismissal or compromise of said litigation; that said J. W. Bailey at the time and place last mentioned used his personal, official and political influence with the District Judge before whom the litigation was pending in an effort to influence said official in the premises; that said J. W. Bailey and his co-conspirators did at the same time make an unsuccessful effort to secure the approval of Cullen F. Thomas of the illegitimate settlement sought to be had.

"Ninth. That during the month of June, 1900, said J. W. Bailey in furtherance of the conspiracy hereinbefore alleged participated in, endorsed, approved or connived at the payment to Oscar L. Stribling of the firm of Henry & Stribling aforesaid, the sum of $1500 as "hush money" to induce the said Stribling of the said Henry & Stribling to refrain from discharging their official duties by exposing the fraud involved in the re-admission of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the State of Texas on or about the thirty first day of May, 1900, and from prosecuting the litigation then pending against said company; that said J. W. Bailey had been advised by the public press of the State that the re-admission aforesaid was openly charged to be fraudulent and in violation of the rights of the State of Texas, and that he was also advised thereof by correspondence passing between himself and J. D. Johnson, or himself and H. C. Pierce, or himself and George Clark, which facts were well calculated to put said J. W. Bailey upon notice (although it is here alleged that he already well knew the fact) that he 433 was representing interests adverse to those of the people of his state; that the $1500 "hush money" aforesaid was falsely styled a "personal loan" in an effort to cunningly conceal the real nature of the transaction in the event of its subsequent disclosure, as was also the case with the $3300 paid direct to said J. W. Bailey by said H. C. Pierce on April 15, 1900; that notes were executed for the said $3300 and the said $1500 in furtherance of this adroit advice to deceive the people of Texas as to the actual character of their monetary dealings."

* * * * * * *

"Eleventh. That the said J. W. Bailey, during the month of November, 1900, received of H. C. Pierce for the account of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company the sum of $200 after being fully advised of the illegal and fraudulent status of said company in the matter of its re-admission to the State of Texas; that during the year 1900, said J. W. Bailey likewise had other and further financial dealings with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, of which your informant is not advised, but which should be investigated.

"Twelfth. That some time after the re-admission of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the State of Texas and the fraudulent dismissal of the litigation then pending against said company, and its officers at Waco, Texas, said J. W. Bailey had used his personal, political and official influence to "quiet all Texas parties," he, said J. W. Bailey, received from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of Missouri, the additional sum of $100,000 as compensation to said J. W. Bailey for the exercise of his influence aforesaid, notwithstanding said J. W. Bailey, under oath, in the month of January, 1901, and many times thereafter, denied that he ever received any money from the 434 Standard Oil Company, or the Waters Pierce Oil Company."

* * * * * * *

"Eighteenth. That during the month of March, 1901, the said J. W. Bailey left his official duties in Washington and returned to the State of Texas for the purpose of using his personal, political and official influence and prestige with the Legislature of Texas to defeat the Senate bill No. 164 introduced into said body by Senators Grinnan and Davidson, which act affected adversely the interests of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and to defeat House bill No. 422 introduced by Representative D. A. McFall, seeking to revoke the alleged fraudulently acquired permit to do business by the fictitiously re-organized and re-admitted Waters-Pierce Oil Company, secured on the 31st day of May, 1900."

"Nineteenth. The said J. W. Bailey in furtherance of his political efforts and official influence just described, wrote to H. C. Pierce on the 25th day of March, 1901, for the sum of $1750, which he now claims was a part of the $8000 hereinabove alluded to, but which was in fact also used by said J. W. Bailey to influence legislation in Texas, or was appropriated by him as compensation for services so rendered, although the said J. W. Bailey has since falsely claimed that the said services were rendered gratuitously because he deemed their passage of such legislation a reflection upon his official character and standing."

Very respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM A. COCKE,

Member of House of Representatives Thirtieth Texas Legislature.

435 Defendant next introduced in evidence the following article from the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday, February 17, 1907:

"The Sequence and Consequence.

1900.

May 31. Waters-Pierce Oil Company re-admitted.

June 5. George Clark writes Johnson, "Hell broke loose in Texas. Stribling threatens receiver. Have Bailey make some suggestions to him."

June 12. H. C. Pierce wires Finlay from Lake Nabogoman, "If Johnson approves, authorize Bailey to loan Stribling $1500 on his note. Bailey should quiet all Texas Parties. Tell him I will see him soon."

June 13. J. W. Bailey reaches Gainesville from Washington. Draws draft on H. C. Pierce for $1500.

June 15. Waters-Pierce Oil Company issues voucher for $1500 to Henry & Stribling.

June 16. Johnson writes Clark he has succeeded in satisfying, for the time being at least, Henry & Stribling. This is strictly confidential.

Nov. 5. Waco, Texas, penalty suits dismissed by district Judge about this date.

Nov. 9. Clark writes Johnson confidential letter regarding same.

Nov. 12. Johnson writes Clark it is better for Stribling not to come to St. Louis, that if he insists on seeing him now that he will arrange to meet him at some convenient point—to tell Stribling so, and if necessary he will write Stribling a letter direct, under cover to Clark.

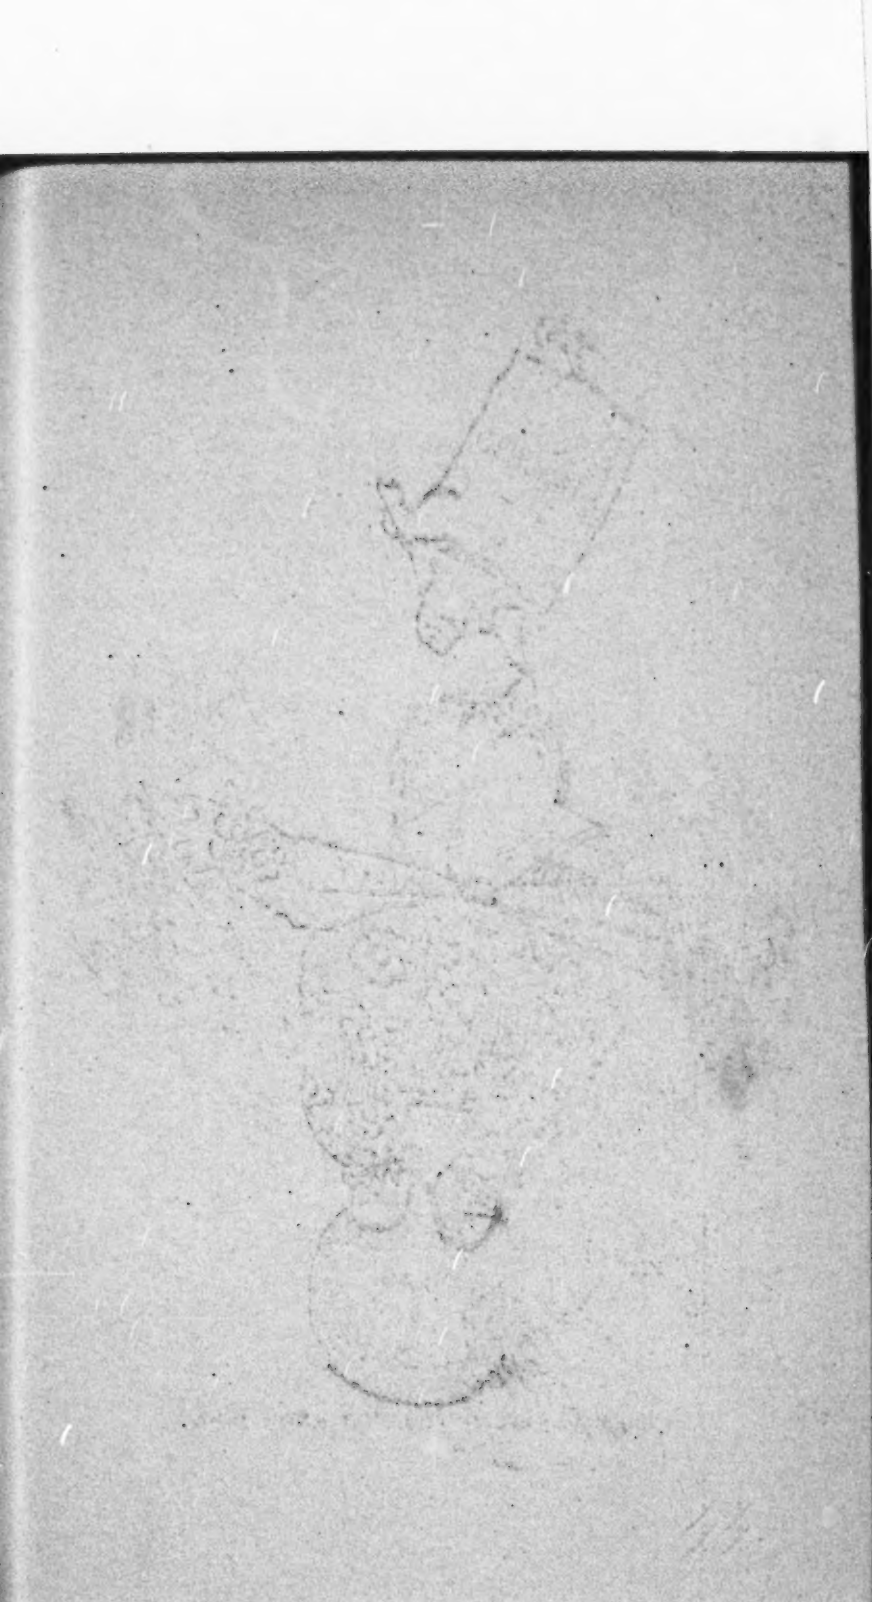
Nov. 15. Clark writes Johnson that he had been unable to convince Stribling; that he would leave there on the following Monday for St. Louis.

Nov. 17. Clark's letter reached St. Louis, and notation made on Henry & Stribling's voucher that the draft had been that day delivered to H. C. Pierce by Mr. Gruet.

Nov. 19. Stribling reaches St. Louis.

Nov. 20. Waters-Pierce Oil Company issued voucher to H. C. Pierce for $3100, paid to J. D. Johnson, on account of Waco, Texas, penalty suits, which was explained as being an expenditure to renovate a car on account of small pox in May proceedings. * * * Mr. Stribling has said it was paid to him to lobby some prospective legislation.



JUST AS EASY—IF YOU ONLY KNOW HOW.

Dec. 22. David R. Francis wrote to Pierce enclosing his Personal check for $4800 to pay Bailey's indebtedness to said Pierce, and requested to be advised if Bailey was due anything further. On same day Francis wrote Bailey, stating what he had said to Pierce, and enclosing Bailey's receipt for $3300 and also Bailey's sight draft drawn at Gainesville, Texas, June 13, 1900, for $1500.

NOTE.—It is a shame that D. R. Francis should get things so mixed up, because Senator Bailey in his letter to the Attorney General, dated December 6, 1906, said that he had paid back that $3300 himself, when he sold his horse, which he did in the summer shortly after the adjournment of Congress. Also a shame about the draft, because he said he had never heard of any such draft and would resign his seat in congress if anybody would produce same; that the whole transaction was a forgery.

437 In a speech at the Opera House at Austin, Senator Bailey stated that he had no more to do with the $1500 draft or that transaction, than Charles Fred Tucker had to do with the salvation of immortal souls."

Defendant next introduced in evidence the following cartoon as same appeared printed on page 1 of the Austin Daily Tribune of date February 24, 1907:

439 Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and portions of, an article appearing in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Friday, February 8, 1907, which were as follows:

"Trusts are Plundering the People of Texas.

Attorney General Davidson Declares that Certain Trusts are Operating in State and that Powers of His Office are Inadequate."

* * * * * * *

"To the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives, Austin, Texas.

GENTLEMEN: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the resolution adopted by the House of Representatives on January 17, 1907, which is as follows:

* * * * * * *

"The Oil Trust.

"The State had filed a suit in the District Court of Travis County against one of the branches of the Standard Oil Trust—the Waters Pierce Oil Company. That company is the retail distributing branch of the Standard Oil Company for the Southwest and the Republic of Mexico. The Standard Oil Company is not doing business in Texas under that name. No permit has been issued to any corporation by that name to do business in Texas. We believe it owns other corporations in Texas, such as refining companies, pipe line companies and producing companies, and have secured some testimony to substantiate our opinion. Each concern is maintained independently of all the others, yet dominated from a central 440 organization. The methods of Standard Oil are more secretive than all the other trusts combined. The stock of some of these corporations owned by the Standard Oil Company stands in the name of a half dozen intermediate corporations before it is finally lodged at 26 Broadway. For illustration: The controlling interest of the Jones Oil Company of Texas will be owned by the Brown Oil Company of Indiana, which in turn is owned by the Smith Oil Company of Ohio, which latter corporation will be owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. A suit filed against the Jones Oil Company in Texas for being a member of a trust must be traced through Indiana and Ohio to New Jersey by competent legal testimony before you can show its relation with the parent of the trusts. The records of the office of the Secretary of State would probably show that John Doe, Richard Doe, and Bill Smith owned the stock."

Defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and portions of the proceedings had and testimony taken before the Legislative Investigating Committee in the Bailey Investigation, as same were reported by and appeared in the Austin Tribune of date Tuesday, January 29, 1907, as follows:

"Vouchers not Forgeries Gruet Tells Committee.

Former Secretary of Waters-Pierce Subjected to the Keenest Cross-Questions Last Night—Naudain Testifies.

441 "Given to him to be kept from the general files of the office as confidential matters, according to his testimony, the vouchers in the possession of the Attorney General were explained thoroughly last evening before the Investigating Committee by J. P. Gruet, who has been the most conspicuous figure in the present controversy over Senator Bailey. "I turned the papers and vouchers over to the Hearst papers because of the attitude of Mr. Bailey towards me in his speeches in Texas during the campaign," was the answer given by Mr. Gruet when asked why he gave that long two-page interview to the Chicago Examiner. Detailed explanations were given to the papers in turn as they were exhibited by Mr. Crane to Mr. Gruet, and his testimony has been the most damaging of any given before the committee. He made no attempt to deny or conceal the fact that he gave his interview because of Mr. Bailey's numerous attacks upon him in speeches made in the State. He occupied the stand during the entire time of the evening session, and submitted to a searching cross-examination by Mr. Odell.

Testimony Not Hearsay.

Mr. Gruet gave his testimony not from hearsay, but from knowledge secured by several years' experience with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. His employment as secretary of that company during the time in which they had an agreement with the Standard Oil trust and his duties were recited by Mr. Gruet together with the method of corresponding with the head office at 26 Broadway, New York. He stated that each branch of the Standard Oil Company sent a representative to convene at 26 Broadway. Mr. Odell objected to the testimony as being irrelevant and Senator Looney asked Mr. Gruet if his testimony was based on actual experience or hearsay. Mr. Gruet replied that he had attended those board meetings. This testimony was given to show the relation 442 of the Waters Pierce Oil Company with the Standard Oil Company.

Vouchers Not Forgeries.

When asked to explain the $3300 voucher, Mr. Gruet said that he approved it for payment and that Mr. Pierce signed it. "I put in the voucher the words, 'on account of Texas cases' by Mr. Pierce's instructions", he added. "I don't know whether it was before or after it was audited."

In reply to a question asked by Mr. Crane, Mr. Gruet said that he took possession of the vouchers at the request of Mr. Pierce. He was asked if Mr. Pierce ever stated why he wanted them kept by him. Mr. Gruet replied that Mr. Pierce never explained any further than to say that they were confidential matters and he wished them kept in his (Mr. Gruet's) private files.

"Fees in the Waco civil cases", written on the Henry & Stribling voucher was explained by Mr. Gruet as being the handwriting of Mr. Finlay. He said that the receipt for the $1500 was in his and Mr. Pierce's handwriting and that it indicates on the face of it that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company paid Mr. Bailey $1500 on account of Texas cases.

Audited by Standard Oil Man.

Mr. Gruet's attention was called to the letter written by Mr. Bailey at Gainesville, Texas, and at this point he was asked who H. H. Stein was. He replied that Mr. Stein was auditor for the Standard Oil Company. The witness stated that he wrote the $3100 voucher except the notation as to what it was for, and that was written by his son. The voucher for $200 was made by the witness according to instructions from Mr. Pierce. It was receipted by Mr. Pierce and audited by Mr. Stein of the Standard Oil Company.

443 With regard to the letter from Mr. Pierce to Mr. Bailey, the witness stated that it was signed by Mr. Stewart, the stenographer of Mr. Pierce. He stated that he had no other authority for issuing the voucher and there was no complaint made because of it. He stated that he had the cashier make out the exchange for $1750 and sent it to Mr. Bailey at Gainesville. Mr. Gruet stated that the note dated March 1, 1900, was carried by voucher which he made out. Mr. Pierce had sent the money to Mr. Bailey. It was audited by C. W. Norman, a Standard Oil auditor.

Mr. Crane asked if these transactions were included in the reports made to the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Gruet replied that they were not specialized. He said that Wade Hampton was in charge of the Standard Oil Company auditors.

"These transactions were charged up to profit and loss," said Mr. Gruet, "and I know it, because I worked up all of the finals of the profit and loss account."

Mr. Gruet recired all of the transactions he had with Mr. Pierce in connection with the Tennessee Construction Company."

* * * * * * *

"Naudain's Testimony.

"H. Naudain, auditor of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, occupied the stand yesterday afternoon. Mr. Naudain's mission here was to say whether or not the papers introduced into the cases were originals or otherwise, although the Bailey people admit that they are original.

Mr. Naudain stated that he had been with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for thirteen years in the capacity as auditor. He testified that the voucher for $3300 under date of June 30, 1900, 444 was made out in the handwriting of J. P. Gruet. He testified to the proper auditing of the telegram and the voucher.

He said that the voucher dated November 23, 1900, and marked "account of Texas cases," appeared to be genuine.

It was suggested at this point that the books throughout should not be examined, as they represented private transactions, and that only the matters touching Mr. Bailey should be looked into.

The further testimony was a repetition of the testimony Mr. Naudain gave a few days ago before the assistant Attorney General, and was merely a general identification of the genuineness of the papers."

The defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and a portion of the report of the proceedings had and testimony taken before the Legislative Investigation Committee in the Bailey Investigation, as same was published in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Wednesday, January 30, 1907, as follows:

"Testimony of the Younger Gruet Proves Voucher Entries Correct.

Evidence Given by His Father Fully Corroborated Before the Committee Today—Explanations of Flateua Letter Given—Bailey Makes Sensational Play Last Night.

"The prosecution in the investigation of Senator Bailey have now established the proof of their contention that his dealings which are shown in the vouchers were with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. The name of Mr. Bailey is in the voucher in con-445 nection with the supposed loans and the writing has been identified. The attorneys for Mr. Bailey have tried in vain to prove that the alterations were made by Mr. Gruet after he had left the employ of the company, but without avail. In the testimony of J. P. Gruet, Jr., which was taken at the session of the committee in the morning, the testimony of his father, J. P. Gruet, Sr., was corroborated in every detail."

* * * * * * *

The defendant next introduced in evidence the headlines to, and a portion of an article concerning, and a portion of a resolution introduced in the House of Representatives of the Texas Legislature for the purpose of ordering an investigation of Senator Bailey, as same appeared and was reported in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Wednesday, January 9, 1907, as follows:

"Resolutions Demand Full Investigation of Bailey.

Many Legislators Will Insist Upon More Light on the Recent Charges Against Senator.

"Resolutions demanding the investigation of the conduct of Senator Joseph W. Bailey in his deals with H. Clay Pierce, signed by twenty-seven members of the house, were filed about the time the motion to take a recess was being put to-day in the house of representatives. The signatures of the twenty-seven members were secured within an hour's time, and a number of others are expected to add their names to it at the first opportunity. The resolution is as follows:"

* * * * * * *

446 "And that notwithstanding the said Waters-Pierce Oil Company secured its re-admission and a new permit to do business in Texas through fraud and perjury, and notwithstanding the said company has thence until now been continuously violating the anti-trust laws of the State, driving out, destroying, or absorbing all competition so as to oppressively and arbitrarily dictate the prices of oil and all products dealt in by said company in the State of Texas, that the said Joseph W. Bailey was continuously from that time engaged in large financial transactions with the said H. Clay Pierce, President of said Company, and has used his senatorial and personal influence in the State of Texas to secure and protect the said Waters Pierce Oil Company in its aforesaid violations of the Texas anti-trust laws and in its method of destroying and removing competition and in establishing and maintaining a monopoly of the business embraced within the charter of said corporation;"

The Defendant next introduced in evidence the following article published and appearing in the Austin Daily Tribune of date Sunday, December 23, 1906, viz:

"The Trail of the Octopus.

(A modern melodrama of frenzied finance in two acts. Especially adapted for the use of captains of industry and professional politicians. Too heavy for amateurs.

447 Cast of Characters.

H. Clay Pierce, one of the tentacles.

David R. Francis, the mysterious Missourian.

Act. I.—Palatial home of H. Clay Pierce. Curtain rises disclosing the oil magnate seated in his sumptuous library, chewing a black cigar in great agitation.

(Enter David R.)

Francis.—You sent for me?

Pierce—Yes, David, old fellow; I am up against the real thing in Texas.

Francis.—Too bad. What's the matter?

Pierce.—Matter enough. My company, the Waters-Pierce, is forever enjoined from doing business in Texas.

Francis.—I am very sorry to hear that.

Pierce—Yes, and the worst of it is I am indicted by a Grand Jury at Waco, Texas.

Francis—That is too bad. Who were your attorneys, and did they know their business?

Pierce.—We had the best lawyers money could obtain, and they fought a good fight and lost, and I have no complaint to make at their efforts or abilities, and so satisfied are we with their legal attainments that we have employed them by the year to attend to all our legal affairs.

Francis.—Pierce, you have been going at this thing wrong. You don't need law nor lawyers; you need influence and need it badly.

Pierce.—Well, David, you have been recommended to me as the proper person to see about this influence business, and I have been told that you know a great many people in Texas, and as I am a stranger you can advise what to do.

Francis. Pierce I can put you in touch with a live wire that can do the very work you need, but it will be somewhat expensive.

448 Pierce.—We care nothing for expense. You see, David, we make about 700 per cent. profit and expense is no object.

Francis.—Do you know Senator Bailey?

Pierce.—No, I have never had the pleasure of meeting him.

Francis.—You must meet him. He is the very man; he is a fine looking fellow, possessing a very pleasing personality.

Pierce.—Can a fellow talk to him about confidential matters?

Francis.—Yes—when there is money in it.

Pierce.—I understand you, David; but how am I to see him?

Francis.—I will give you a letter of introduction. You see, the Senator and I are bosom friends, and he will talk to you more freely with an introduction coming from me.

Pierce—Whatever is done in this matter must be done right away. We have but a few days more of grace in Texas. How am I to see the Senator to give him the letter of introduction Can you suggest a plan?

Francis.—Yes, I will telegraph him to come to St. Louis at once.

Pierce.—Write out the telegram and get it off.

Francis.—(Writes) Senator Joseph W. Bailey, Gainesville, Texas. Come St. Louis first trian. Big fee to you and no work. David R. Francis.

Pierce.—Look here, Francis, can I really approach the Senator?

Francis—Yes, but you must go about it in a gentle way. You see, Pierce, Bailey is loved by the Texas people, and there is not a man in Texas who can head him off on gab. He is one of those fellows that always lines up in Congress, making big speeches in the interest of the people, but he is smooth enough to never introduce and get passed a law in the interest of the people. Confidentially, he is a good man for the corporations, for by his long speeches 449 he helps to delay legislation. So you need not be afraid; I am steering you against the real thing, and he will do the work.

Francis.—Before you see him I will tell him that everything is all right; that I have given you a letter and you want him to help you.

Pierce.—Must I offer him to pay to do this?

Francis.—Certainly. He will most likely refuse to accept, but in lieu will request of you a loan. You must favor him and he can pay the note in services to be rendered, you understand.

Pierce.—The very thing. Why haven't we thought of this before?

Francis.—Yes, Pierce; you have been working the wrong way. It is not law you need in Texas—its influence, and a good deal of it.

Pierce.—David, do you think Bailey is the man to work the game?

Francis.—Yes. He is the only man in Texas who has the influence that has the nerve to go against the proposition, and besides, Bailey is supposed to — one of the plain people. You see, when he first entered Congress he refused to even dress in any but the plainest of clothing, and made speeches in the interest of the people, and would not accept pay for the days he was absent from his seat in Congress, and he was very particular to see that his speeches were published and that his refusal to accept pay for the days when absent from roll call, all of which has endeared him to the people of Texas, and they will not suspect him of doing them any harm.

Pierce.—He is the man I want. I could give such a fellow as that employment the year 'round."

Francis.—The senator will be here tomorrow. You can arrange with him, and my word for it, he will have the whole thing 450 running smoothly for you in Texas within thrity days.

Pierce.—Francis, I am very grateful to you for the information given, and will be glad to report success to you later.

Act II.—Some months later. Scene, same as in the first Act. Francis and Pierce discovered seated.

Francis.—Well, Clay how did she work?

Pierce.—Say, David that fellow Bailey is a peach. Talk about a pull! He's got it in Texas.

Francis.—Pierce, did you pay him in a loan or a fee?

Pierce.—Loan, of course. You see, the senator is a little shy about calling it fees, but he is great on the loan proposition.

Francis.—What is the difference to you?

Pierce.—None. I am not kicking, but say, Francis, when is he likely to quit striking me for a loan?

Francis.—Don't be afraid of Bailey. You let him have a loan every time he asks for it. You will need him to help you out all along.

Pierce.—Yes, you are correct. I can use him to advantage in the future. My experience in this Texas matter has taught me that it is a pull you need, and not law, and Bailey fills the bill and I am satisfied."

451 Agreement of Counsel.

It was here admitted by both sides that about January 31, 1907, it was published in the local papers, both the Austin Statesman and the Austin Tribune, and in the Houston Chronicle, that in the Investigation before the Legislative Investigating Committee, the witnesses J. P. Gruet, Sr., H. Naudain, A. M. Finlay and A. J. Hutchinson, had testified to the genuineness of the vouchers and other papers described in the letter from Attorney General Davidson to Hon. J. W. Bailey, dated Austin, Texas, December 7, 1906, as published in the Austin Dailey Tribune of Sunday, December 9, 1906, which letter, as published has already been read in evidence; and that such local papers and the Houston Chronicle further stated in the issues about January 31, 1907, that said documents described in said letter had been introduced in evidence before said Legislative Investigating Committee. And further, that said local papers and the Houston Chronicle, in issues about said January 31, 1907, published that J. P. Gruet, Sr., testified before said Legislative Investigating Committee that said vouchers had been audited by auditors of the Standard Oil Company.

It is not meant by this agreement to withdraw any testimony which has heretofore been introduced, but simply to cut off further inquiry into matters introduced before that Legislative Investigating Committee.

It was here admitted by counsel for both the state and defendant that the various copies of the Austin Statesman, Austin Tribune, Houston Chronicle, and K. Lamity's Harpoon, portions of which had been introduced in evidence by defendant and showing the publication therein, respectively of the various articles above set out, were true copies of such papers of the respective dates named, as published and circulated.

452 J. GREGG HILL, for the State, testified as follows:

My name is J. Gregg Hill, and I am engaged in the real estate business in Austin. I have been engaged in that business four or five years. I have lived in Austin since 1887. I am fairly well acquainted with the people here. I heard this case discussed to some extent during the campaign in regard to the election held here in January to instruct our representatives whether they should vote for or against Mr. Bailey. That was in connection with Senator Bailey's alleged participation in the affairs of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have not heard any independent discussion of the merits of this case or the issues involved in this case outside of Senator Bailey's connection with it. I have not heard the matter discussed with reference to whether or not the defendant in this case can get a fair and impartial trial. I have not heard any reason given or any views nor any opinion stated to the effect that the defendant can not get a fair and impartial trial. I do not know of any reason why the defendant could not get a fair and impartial trial of this case in this county; I think they should be able to do so. I have been summoned as a witness in this case; I was summoned by the defense, is my understanding. From what I have heard of this case, I think the defendant can obtain a fair and impartial jury among the jurors of this county without any trouble. I could try this case fairly alike to both sides on the evidence and the law as given on the trial of the case.

Cross-examination:

As to my belief in reference to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is guilty, I don't know anything about the case
453 further than I heard discussed in the Bailey campaign. It is a fact that I was very active in my opposition to Senator

Bailey. As to the basis of my opposition to him, I thought that he had lied to his constituents, and I don't think any man in his position, trying to represent the people, should turn around and represent an interest whose acts might have to be passed on by legislation in which he might have to take part. I did not know anything about whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust or not. From what I had read in the newspapers I thought it was a trust, and believe so now. I believed at that time that its admission into Texas was procured by fraud, and that Senator Bailey did it. If I were taken on the jury I would go into the jury box with that belief, but at the same time I could give them a fair trial, as any honorable man should do. That statement is based on my idea that any fair and impartial man can, in a case of this kind, lay aside any preconceived opinion and render an impartial verdict; in a good many cases he might not do so. I make the distinction because in some cases it might be that a man's friends or relatives were involved, but not in this case. My idea is that if a man were not interested in it, no matter how thoroughly convinced he might be, he could lay his opinion aside and go into the jury box, though he might not be able to do so. I believe it is within the range of possibility for a man to do that, and I believe it is within the range of probability. In reference to whether or not I could go into the jury box and consider the testimony of H. Clay Pierce and other officers of the company as fairly as if I didn't have any preconceived opinion with reference to this case, I would take the evidence and the law and give them what I thought to be absolute justice. If the evidence showed otherwise, I would not believe that absolute justice would mean to shut the defendant out of the State of Texas. I would be governed by the law and the evidence. Unless the evidence showed otherwise, I would shut them out, and so would any other sensible man, I think.

454 During the six months that this matter has been under consideration I don't remember of having heard one man undertake to justify the Waters Pierce Oil Company or speak a good word for it in this county. While I have not heard hundreds of men denounce the Waters Pierce Oil Company as a trust, I have heard quite a number do so; I heard dozens in the city denounce it, but I would not say that I heard dozens from other portions of the county do so. As I said a while ago, in connection with the Bailey election, I did hear it denounced. I don't remember the date when the violent opposition in this county to Senator Bailey developed. Personally, I had not fully made up my mind as to how I stood in the Bailey matter until after Senator Bailey stated that he had not done certain things, and afterwards admitted that he had done them; from that time on I opposed him. I read Attorney General Davidson's letter to Senator Bailey in which he discussed the Waters Pierce Oil Company and said that Senator Bailey had wrought great oppression on the people of this State and that for six years the people of Texas had lived under the shadow of a great wrong brought about by Senator Bailey. I don't know whether that leter was read generally in the city of Austin or not. I don't know wiether the letter was published in both the newspapers of Austin or not, but I read it in the "Statesman." I could not say whether it was published in the "Tribune" or not. I think that a great many people who read newspapers, not only in this county but all over the State, have formed their opinions and believe that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I don't know whether or not a majority of the people of this county believe it is a trust, as I have not talked to them about it. I have expressed the opinion that the defendant can get a fair trial here because I believe the people of the county are just as fair and intelligent as in any other county. I can lay aside my opinion and weigh the evidence of Mr. Pierce and other officials of the company like I would that of any other witness, and would give them what I thought to be fair and just in the matter. In arriving at the credence I thought should be given to their testimony, if I were on the jury, I would not be governed by the fact that a man had done something before, because I would have to be governed by the evidence. I know that I can blot out everything in my mind; it would not be a sudden transformation, but just my desire and willingness to do justice in the case. I would not prefer to see the Waters Pierce Oil Company defeated in this case; I would expect to see them get justice. I don't know that my idea is that the defeat of the company in this case would be justice, because I don't know what the case would be. If they deserve to be run out, they should be run out, like any other trust or anybody else; if they are innocent, they should be defended, like any one else. As to my reason for believing the defendant can get a fair trial of this case in this county, I think there are hundreds of people in Travis county who have no prejudice one way or the other. I have not talked to very many; I have heard expressions from a dozen or two, but not hundreds.

I attended the speaking here in the court-house when Colonel Wynne and Judge Terrell addressed the people during the Bailey campaign preceding the election held in January last. Judge Terrell in his speech very bitterly denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey for his connection with it, but I did not applaud his speech. He was applauded when he denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Henry Clay Pierce. He also denounced Senator Bailey. The Court-room was full at the time. The sentiments Judge Terrell expressed met with general approval of the audience, but it was for this reason: The Bailey people had a meeting elsewhere, and those who came to hear Judge Terrell were in sympathy with his side of it. I am acquainted with Judge Terrell. He has lived in this county for a great many years, and I believe he was once District Judge here, but that was before my time. I know that he has been State Senator and also a member of the House of Representatives, and he was Minister to Turkey during President Cleveland's administration. Judge Terrell is and has been for many years a man of very strong influence in Travis County. I also heard Taylor Moore speak here and at Manor. Mr. Moore in his speech here very violently denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company, Henry Clay Pierce and Senator Bailey for his connection with the company. The house was full at the time; I don't remember whether there were any people standing up or not that night, but there was a good crowd. The sentiments expressed by Mr. Moore were roundly applauded by the audience. As to whether or not Mr. Moore is a master at vituperation, he seems to understand his business very well. His speech at Manor was delivered early in the morning. He had a very poor audience at Manor, only about forty people being present. He discussed the Waters Pierce Oil Company and denounced it down there; he declared that its admission into Texas was procured by fraud, and he denounced Mr. Bailey for his alleged connection with it, along the same lines as in his speech in Austin. His speech at Manor was not as roundly applauded as the one here, but it was applauded to a certain extent. I went from here to Manor with Mr. Moore in a buggy. I was doing all I could against Senator Bailey. The only speeches I heard were here and at Manor. I did not hear Mr. Cocke make a speech here. I would have liked to hear his speech. The only speeches I heard were at Manor and the one here at the Court house and Senator Bailey's speech at the opera House. I helped send out literature during that campaign, charging the Waters Pierce Oil Company with be-457 ing a trust. I don't think we charged that its admission into Texas was secured by fraud; I don't remember exactly. We tried to get literature into the hands of every voter in the county. The literature we sent out denounced the Waters Pierce Oil Company and Senator Bailey. I don't think it was violent in its terms; we had to restrict ourselves. As to Mr. Bailey, I would not consider any language violent; as to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, such is not the case. I consider the Waters Pierce Oil Company some better than the Senator. I was Chairman of the Anti-Bailey campaign committee in Travis County, and all of the literature was sent out under my supervision. We made other charges against Mr. Bailey than his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but that was the main thing. I don't reme-ber exactly how much money we spent in that campaign; it was somewhere between five and six hundred dollars. That money was subscribed by people in the city of Austin. It was not a very large list of contributors to the fund, because we had some men who contributed liberally to it. I contributed to the fund. I don't know just how much that election cost me; perhaps forty or fifty dollars. I did not spend that money to prove that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust and that Senator Bailey was representing them; we were fighting Senator Bailey for his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Compnay and for misrepresenting the facts to the people. If I had not thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust and operating in violation of the law, as to whether or not I would have opposed Senator Bailey, I will say: I would oppose any man who would say one thing and then turn around, in other words, I will fight any politician who lies to the people, I don't care who he is.

In reference to whether or not I am still willing to swear that the defendant can get a fair trial in this county, there are as 458 many Bailey men as anti-Bailey men in Travis County. I think every good citizen wants to see the defendant gets justice. As to whether or not I would disqualify myself if called as a juror, that would depend on the questions. If I were called as a juror and the question were asked me, "Mr. Hill, have you any bias in favor of or against the Waters Pierce Oil Company?" I would have to say, frankly, from what I have read in the papers regarding their actions, I am biased against them. I do not believe I am prejudiced against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. As to whether or not I understand the word "prejudice," it has different meanings. I mean in the sense of hostility or enmity. If it means prejudgment, I would say that I don't know enough about the case to be able to judge. With the statement that the issues in the case are that the defendant is a trust, that it is operating in violation of the law, and that it was brough- into the State by fraud, I will say that it was brought into the State — those issues. Regarding trusts, I think a trust should be made to obey the law. I know that trusts are denounced by the laws of Texas and other States. I know that all corporations are not trusts. What I mean is this: I believe that railroads and oil companies and telegraph companies are necessary, but I don't believe it is right for any of them to enter into combinations to control things. I don't know whether the defendant is a trust or not.

Redirect examination:

I think that, notwithstanding what I have heard and read, I can qualify as a juror and give the defendant a fair trial. From what I know th the people of this county, I don't see any reason why you should not get many fair jurors.

With reference to the speeches made in the campaign, there 459 were some very warm speeches made in behalf of Senator Bailey. I heard Col. Dick Wynne of Fort Worth make a speech in the interest of Senator Bailey here. Senator Bailey also made speeches in his own interest. I heard him speak at the opera house. He denounced the Attorney General and nearly everybody else that was against him. Mr. Bailey himself is not a novice at vituperation. I did not hear Mr. Bailey's speech at the skating-rink. As to how many people the "Statesman" said were out to hear him at the skating-rink, the headlines said there were several thousand, and said that his speech was well received by the audience, and I heard on the street that the people there went wild. His vituperation was well received by the audience at the opera-house. I think a great many people who received letters sent out by our committee and by the other side simply pitched them into the waste basket, and many people who read the newspapers don't read the political news. As to the number of contributors to the Anti-Bailey fund, I should judge that there were not more than twenty-five; that is making a rough guess. It was hard for us to raise money in that campaign, and we have a bill hanging over us to-day, although we had two or three committees working. There were more men refused to contribute than did contribute. Our committees worked parts of two or three days trying to raise money. I don't know whether there was a Bailey fund raised in this county or not, but I know there was some money disbursed by them, because I could see them at it. I tried to find out how much money was disbursed on the other side, but could not. During the campaign I heard some discussion as to the Waters Pierce Oil Company's being a trust. I did not hear it discussed by one party on one side claiming that it was a trust and by some one else claiming that it was not. I have not heard any discussion of what the State expects to prove nor of what the 460 defendant expects to prove as its defense in this case.

Recross-examination:

I have not kept any of the campaign literature we used; I think it has been destroyed. If we sent out any copies of a document issued by the "Good Government Club" at Houston and entitled, "The Shame of Texas," or something like that, I don't remember it. There were a few of those sent us here, but whether or not they were circulated I don't know.

WILL NEHRING, for the State, testified as follows:

I reside in Dessau, in Travis County. Dessau is about twelve miles North of Austin. I was summoned as a witness for the defense in this case, I think. I am Democratic Chairman at my voting box. I have resided there twenty-nine years. I am fairly well acquainted with the people living at Dessau and at Pflugerville and around there down as far as Manor. I have heard very little discussion concerning the Waters Pierce Oil Company among the people out there; it was mostly regarding Senator Bailey. I have heard mighty little discussion about the Waters Pierce Oil Company or the issues involved in this case independent of the Bailey matter. There was a great deal of discussion concerning Senator Bailey during the campaign. From what I have heard among the people of my section and the citizens of Austin, I believe the defendant can get a fair and impartial trial. As to how many men I think could be obtained at my box that would try this case fairly and impartially to both sides, I have not heard any of them discuss the matter. I think I could go into the jury box and try this case fairly and impartially.
461 I have no doubt on that subject. I could set aside my impressions and try the case on the evidence and the law.

Cross-examination:

I heard a great deal of discussion about Mr. Bailey when it first came out about him and the oil company; I mean the Standard, combined with the Waters Pierce. They were talking about that money that Mr. Bailey got that ought to have gone to the State, is the way I heard them talk about it. What I heard them talk about, they didn't think it was his place to work for the oil company; that's the way I understood it. I don't know whether the people thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust and that Mr. Bailey had been working for it knowing it was a trust or not, as I never heard them say. I heard them talking that the money Mr. Bailey got ought to have gone to the State—that it was money that belonged to the State and he put it into his pocket instead of paying it into the State Treasury; I think that was it, as well as I understood it. I think the defendant can get a fair and impartial trial in this county. I can't say whether or not the State ought to win in this case, as I have not heard any evidence. I don't go by what I read in the papers nor by what I hear people say; I think I have to hear the evidence first. I voted against Mr. Bailey. There was mighty little interest taken in the election at my box. I think there were just fifteen votes there. I think there were five votes for Mr. Bailey and ten or eleven against him. I voted against Mr. Bailey because I thought he was not the man for the place, from what I had read about him. I didn't know what he had done with the money he got. I thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust. I don't know whether it ought to be put out of business in Texas or not. I don't know whether the most of the people out my way believe it is 462 a trust or not; I have not heard them say.

Redirect examination:

There are about fifty qualified jurors out there.

B. F. CAGLE, for the State, testified as follows:

My name is B. F. Cagle, and I live about three miles North-east of Austin, out here on the Manor road, in Travis County. Pecan Springs is my voting box. I moved to Pecan Springs last December a year ago. I lived down at Del Valle about twenty years, and am well acquainted with the people there. I am very well acquainted with the people in the Pecan Springs neighborhood, and have been for years. I don't think I heard much discussion at Pecan Springs or other points in the county about the Bailey Controversy, other than what I read in the papers. I did not hear much discussion concerning it, because I am at work all the time. There is no store near me; there is one at Fort Prairie, and stores here in Austin. I don't think I heard any discussion until I came here Monday morning as to whether or not the defendant can get a fair trial or not. The most I have heard talking about it said they thought they could get just as fair a trial in Travis county as anywhere in the United States or the State. I am a qualified juror. I think I could qualify as a juror in this case and try it fairly and impartially. I have no such opinion concerning this matter as that I could not go into the jury box and give the defendant a fair trial.

Cross-examination:

As to what I think of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I don't know as I have ever given it any study or paid any attention whatever to it, because I have business to attend to at home and 463 we have legislators to attend to that. I may read articles, and give them a little thought, and go on. I am studying about my own business, that's the way I stand on it.

Redirect examination:

I never did ask by which side I was summoned as a witness in this case. I asked Judge Penn yesterday to use me so I could go.

Recross-examination:

I had heard no discussion about this matter until I came around the court-house, except that John Shelton one day asked me what

I thought about it and I told him, and he asked me if I thought Pierce could get a fair trial in this county, and I told him I thought he could, or any other man.

T. E. CATER, for the State, testified as follows:

I live at Fairview, about thirty miles up the river. I think there are about forty-eight qualified voters and qualified jurors at my box. I have not heard any discussion of the subject of whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company can secure a fair and impartial trial in this county nor as to the character of business in which it has been engaged in Texas. I did not hear any discussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but I did hear discussion of Mr. Bailey during the Bailey controversy. I have not heard any discussion of Senator Bailey in connection with the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. From what I have read and heard, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can get a fair and impartial trial in this county, I would not want to serve on the jury, but if I had to, I could qualify as a juror and try it on the facts and the law. I don't know anything about the issues in this case and I would be governed by the law and the facts.

464 Cross-examination:

I would not like to sit on the jury, from the simple fact that I have heard so much lately in regard to Mr. Bailey's being connected with it; it is just lately I have heard it. I don't mean that I would be afraid that I would not be able to do the right thing. That would be one reason, and there are other reasons, but I don't like to state what they are. I don't know whether the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust or not. I have heard the name of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, but don't know whether there is any such institution or not; if I ever came in contact with it, I didn't know it. I have heard Mr. Bailey discussed in connection with the people and Congress—that he was serving two masters at the same time—that he was serving the people in Congress and receiving money from a corporation when his time was due in Congress. As to what corporation it was, I don't know, but supposed to be the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and I never heard of his denying it. I accepted what I heard about it, and voted accordingly. As to what I mean by a fair trial, I would lay aside any prejudice that I might have against any company or any one else and try it on the evidence. If I had any prejudice I would not necessarily lay it aside; while the case was going on I would have no prejudice; when I was taken as a juror I would discard it, and take it up again after the case was over, just like my tobacco—quit once and commence again. If I were taken on the jury I would feel friendly to both sides. I have heard the name of H. C. Pierce, and heard him discussed in connection with Mr. Bailey; his name was discussed as president of the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I can't say that I have formed an opinion about it.

465 I have not heard it discussed as to whether Mr. Pierce's oil company was readmitted to do business in Texas through fraud or not. I never heard any mention of the fact that his company was put out of business here. I heard that he had been indicted for taking money—not Mr. Pierce, but Mr. Bailey; that's the information I got. I don't say that I voted against him, and did not say it a while ago. I didn't vote in the last election at all; I voted in the general election last year. I mean by the last election the one they had to vote either for or against Bailey. I did not cast my vote then. I saw the tickets voted at that election. I was one of the judges at the election, but did not vote. There were four votes polled at my box in that election, and we had three judges at the election. I did not express my opinion about it there; I was too sharp for that, because I had other reasons for it. I- regard to my objections to expressing my opinion, I don't know as that would cut any ice here; I don't know as that would have any effect here. I don't think it would affect this case an iota, and it is a private matter that I don't want to disclose. That is my reason for not voting. It is a private reason, but I might use it publicly some other time. I refuse to use it now unless I have to do so. It would not pertain to this case or any other case in which I might be accepted as a juror. I was there all day at the election. I believe I was mistaken in saying that Mr. Bailey was indicted, but these accusations were brought against him. I don't really know that either Pierce or Bailey was indicted; I am not sure about that. As to how I came to hold the election, one of our judges up there came over and asked me to assist him.

Redirect examination.

There were four votes cast at our box at that election, and we had three judges. We have about forty-eight voters at that box.
466 The Waters Pierce Oil Company was not mentioned up there the day before the election, and there didn't seem to be any excitement about the Bailey question, and there has not been any since then.

THEODORE BOHLS, for the State, testified as follows:

I reside at Bee Cave, about fifteen miles Southwest of Austin. I was summoned here as a witness, but I don't know whether by the defendant or the plaintiff. I come to town pretty often sometimes, and attend to my business and go back home. I don't think we had any election on the Bailey question at Bee Cave. The papers were brought to me to hold the election, and I refused to hold it. I have heard the Waters Pierce Oil Company and the Bailey controversy mentioned once in a while, but paid no attention to it, and I don't remember whom I heard talking about it. I did not hear any discussion of the subject when I would come to Austin. I live in about the most thickly settled portion out there. There was no general discussion of the Waters Pierce Oil Company among the people out there. There was some talk about Mr. Bailey a few months ago out there. I glanced at some newspaper accounts of the matter at that time. From the attention I paid to it and from what I have heard, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can get a fair and impartial trial in this county. Fair and impartial jurors can be obtained around Bee Cave to try this case. I think I could go into the jury box and try this case with fairness and impartiality to both sides.

Cross-examination:

I suppose it is the case of the Waters Pierce Oil Company they are talking about that I could try fairly. I have never read enough to understand the foundation of it. I believe the talk was that 467 it was a trust. In passing by I might have heard it discussed. I never did ask anybody about it and never stood and listened to the arguments about it. There was more or less stir going on about it, but I took mighty little interest in it, because it was not concerning me. I heard them talking about the oil company, and I never paid heed to it nor read the papers to know what it was about—it didn't interest me enough to know. I said that I believe the defendant can get a fair trial here. I say that because I think we have honest men here that can be selected to try the case, as well as anywhere else. I did not know that a former case against this company had been tried until I heard it here; I don't remember of hearing of it before. In regard to the election held in this county last January, I knew about it three days before the papers were brought to me; I read it in the Galveston News. I know that the Legislature met last Winter and that they had an investigation growing out of the oil business, and that it lasted five or six weeks. I did not know until I came here yesterday that Mr. Pierce had been indicted; I heard it discussed here, that he had been tried here before; that's all I heard about it. I have heard some people say that they thought the Waters Pierce Oil Company was a trust, but I didn't hear much discussion of the subject. I did not hear them say they thought the company ought to be driven out of the State and prevented from doing business. I just heard them say what I have stated, as I was passing by and I didn't pay any attention to it, and didn't even know what the foundation of it was. I did not hear those people say the company was doing business in this State in violation of the law. I have been subscribing for the Galveston News for the last twenty-five or thirty years. I don't take any of the local papers. The Galveston News has contained a great deal about this matter the last few months, but I didn't pay any attention to it, because it didn't concern me.

468 Redirect examination:

I was sitting here in the room yesterday when Mr. John E. Shelton was testifying but could not hear what he said and did not understand it. If Mr. Shelton spoke to me with reference to this case some days ago, I don't remember anything about it.

CHARLES THIELE, for the State testified as follows:

My name is Charles Thiele, and I reside four miles North of Austin. The voting box out there is at my place and I am Chairman there. I have been Democratic Chairman there the last twelve years. I think I was summoned as a witness for the Waters Pierce Oil Company in this case. I agreed to hold an election at Thiele's Residence last January in the Bailey controversy, and the stationery was sent out there, but we didn't hold any, as nobody came. There was no interest taken on that issue that day at my place. I have not during the last six months heard discussion with reference to that matter among the people of my community or here in Austin. I was at home at work and did not hear the speeches. I did not hear any discussion among the people while that campaign was going on nor while the investigation was going on in the Legislature. I took the "Statesman," and that is all I read. I heard the people discussing that question but very little. I did not hear it to any extent that I know of. I come to Austin about once a week, and always very late in the evening. I have some relatives here in the city. I heard very little discussion among my relatives and other people before the election last January. My relatives came to see us sometimes, and they are the only persons I expressed myself to. I told them that this county was going to hold an election, that I would not object 469 to holding one, and if there was any truth in what I read in the "Statesman" and so forth, I though- they ought to hold one. When I came here yesterday it was my opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company could obtain a fair trial in this county, and when I went to dinner yesterday I stopped in a store up here and there were four or five men there; one was a drummer, who goes from house to house, and I put the question to them if they thought Travis County could produce twelve men as jurors to give an impartial verdict in this case and they almost unanimously answered that they though- so. My opinion is the same now as yesterday; I have not changed it. I do not know of any reason why the Waters Pierce Oil Company can not get a fair and impartial trial of this case in this county. If I were summoned as a juror in this case I think I could qualify and try this case fairly and impartially on both sides. I have no doubt on the subject. I don't know any of the facts in the case, and I would have to go accoraing to the testimony and the evidence. I have not heard the facts of this case discussed to amount to anything.

Recross-examination:

Those people I was talking to yesterday said they would feel sorry if this county could not produce twelve men who would give an impartial verdict in this case. I also asked them if they thought there — any prejudice in this county against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and they said No, it didn't amount to anything—somebody would talk about it who had never heard any of the facts. My idea of a fair trial in this case is that twelve men can be found in the county who will say that they will give the defendant a fair and impartial trial. There might be a case come up where a fair trial could not be had in this county, but it would be a sorrowful 470 thing. I think there certainly ought to be twelve good men among six thousand.

ROBERT WOLF, for the State, testified as follows:

I reside at Manor, and am Justice of the Peace down there. I have lived there eight years. I understand that I was summoned as a witness for the defendant here. During the last six months I have heard a general discussion concerning the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have read a whole lot about it; I have read two or three different ways, though. From what I have heard and read, I am sure that the defendant can obtain a fair and impartial trial of this case in this county. It can receive a fair and impartial trial of this case in can in any other county in the State. If I were summoned as a juror in this case I could try it fairly and impartially on the facts.

I remember having a conversation recently with John E. Shelton concerning this case. I did not tell Mr. Shelton that the defendant could not obtain a fair trial of this case in this county. I had been down to Atlee and had come back and got on the noon train going to Manor and was sitting with some friends in the car, we had seats facing one another, and Mr. Shelton came in; he said, "You fellows are about to get in trouble up in Austin," and one of them said, "Well, no, not as long as we have got the Judge with us"; Mr. Shelton said, "You are the very Judge I want to see," and he called me back to the smoker and he asked me about the prohibition question, and I answered him; then he said something about Bailey, I don't know what, and he asked me, "What about this Bailey business?" I told him I didn't think much of it, it was so little thought of or so little interest taken in it after it was quashed, and 471 he said, "You know they have instituted suit against the Waters Pierce Oil Company and also against H. Clay Pierce." I said, "Yes, I have heard about it." He said, "They are trying to get a change of venue. Don't you think it will be a hard matter to get a jury in Travis County to indict them or give them a fair trial?" I said, "Well, it might be hard, but no harder than in any other county," as all the papers had been advertising and writing it up, and I told him that I believed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company could get a fair and impartial trial in Travis County; I told him it might be that they would have to summon a good many jurors, but that they could get a fair trial. I had no prejudice against the company personally.

Cross-examination:

I have lived in Travis County about eighteen years. I am twenty-eight years of age. I believe that we have enough conscientious men in this county to give the defendant a fair trial. I believe that with reference to any case, without reference to its publicity. I believe that conscientious men will do right if they take the oath as jurors. I don't believe that all men will do it. Now, in a murder or rape case, or something like that, I think there would be trouble in getting jurors, but not in a civil suit like this. I know that during the investigation in the Legislature this matter was discussed for a month or more and public speeches were made nearly every day in this county during the campaign. I know that a suit against the old Waters Pierce Oil Company was tried here some years ago and judgment was rendered against the company and it was put out of business. I also understand that it is charged that its coming back into the State was a fraud on the laws of the State, but it has not been 472 found guilty of it. I know that when this suit was filed it provoked a political contest in Travis county; I considered it a political scheme. With reference to whether or not the newspapers have given more notice to this case than to any other case, civil or criminal, that has ever come under my observation in this county, I think the Burt murder case and others received about as much notice. Perhaps the newspapers have published a dozen times as much about this case as they did about the Burt case. I know that there are many counties that did not hold any election at all in regard to the Bailey controversy and I know that Travis county is the county where the Legislature meets and the investigation was had. I do not see why in some county other than Travis there would be less pre-judgment of the case than in this county. I do not believe the people here could say straight out that they have their minds made up as to the issues in this case. There were a good many circulars and pamphlets sent out during the Bailey campaign. I think a few people in this county have formed opinions growing out of the discussion of this matter.

Redirect examination:

The literature sent out over the county during that campaign and the legislative investigation related more especially to Mr. Bailey. The primary election held in this county last January called out a comparatively like vote. So far as I know very few people read the pamphlets that were circulated; I did not read them. I stated that I thought the Burt case and other cases that have been tried in this county had received as much notice as this case. I have not heard any of the facts of this case discussed by the people, only the re-admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company to the State.

473 Recross-examination:

I have heard people say they thought its re-admission to the State was a fraud. The expressions I have heard regarding Senator Bailey related to his alleged connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company and other things as well. The majority of the people believed that Senator Bailey had received money from the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and some of them claimed that he should not have taken it at all, being as he was drawing a salary from Texas. Others said he had no business working for the Waters Pierce Oil Company because it was accused of being a trust. Some said that Senator Bailey had no business working for them or receiving money from them and denying it and coming back and saying he had got it. As to whether or not anybody was defending the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, that was not discussed very much in my part of the country—Bailey was the one. The people have the idea that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, but they could not get up and swear that it is.

Redirect examination:

I think you can get plenty of good men in this county to try this case. The charges against Senator Bailey were numerous. His alleged connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Oompany was not the only charge against him that was discussed. His services to public service corporations, the Security Oil Company, and his race horse farms and everything else were discussed.

Recross-examination:

I was under the impression that the filing of this suit was a result of the Bailey controversy. I was under the impression that the evidence brought out was what caused the suit to be instituted.

Redirect examination:

I heard something about the evidence of Mr. Pierce in Missouri before this suit was filed. The people generally were talking 474 about it.

NELSON HOUSER, for the State, testified as follows:

I live in Manor, in this county. I have lived right in Manor about a year and a half, and have lived in Travis County about thirty years. I have lived within about five miles of Manor and in Manor for twenty or thirty years. I am acquainted with the people in and about New Sweden Kimbro and Decker. During the past six months I have heard discussion of the Bailey and Waters Pierce Oil Company matter—principally in regard to Senator Bailey, and incidentally referring to the company. I have read about it in the newspapers, also. From what I have heard and read, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can obtain a fair and impartial trial in this county. If accepted as a juror in this case, I could qualify and give the defendant a fair and impartial trial. All I know in regard to the facts of this case is what I have read in the papers. As to whether or not I have an opinion that would prevent me from qualifying as a juror, I am not taking it so seriously that I could not discard any impression I have. I think some men could be obtained around Manor that would give a fair trial but some could not do so. I was summoned as a witness for the defense in this case.

Cross-examination:

I don't know why some of them would not qualify, only I have heard them talk that way. They said they would not be competent jurors in this case, as they have their minds made up, I suppose. I have my opinion about the case; it is that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, and if I went into the*y* jury-box I would do so with that opinion, though I am not taking it seriously. While I have not heard the facts of the case, from what I have heard my 475 opinion is that it came back into the State in defiance of the law and through a fraud. Nevertheless, I could give it a fair trial. I think there are other men of the same frame of mind in my community who could do the same. I heard that there was a judgment rendered against the old Waters Pierce Oil Company, but that it came back into the State afterwards, and that was claimed to be a fraud on the State. I suppose everything concerning that matter occurred in Travis County, though I don't really know. I think that, in my frame of mind, I could give the defendants a fair trial.

Redirect examination:

I have sat as a juror in a murder case. I had heard that the man had been killed, before being taken as a juror, but that fact did not affect my verdict. I would go into the jury box and try the case fairly, notwithstanding I have heard that this company was tried once before.

R. E. LEE, for the State, testified as follows:

I reside at Carl, out South of Austin, between Bluff Springs and Creedmoor. I have resided in that section of the county nearly twenty-four years. I know a great many of the people on the south side of the river in Travis County. I come to Austin almost every week, and sometimes twice a week. I buy groceries at Deen & Walling's principally and meet a great many farmers there from different sections. I have heard the Bailey and Waters Pierce matter talked of some, but not a great deal. In the fall I was engaged in gathering my crop, and in the Winter I was doing carpenter work. During the campaign that preceded the election held in January and during the investigation of Senator Bailey, I heard some discussion among the citizens with regard to it. We did not hold any 476 election at Carl in the Bailey controversy. As to the reason for not holding it, in the first place Mr. Barr and I were the judges of the election there, and he had moved out before that time and was not qualified to assist me in holding it. I asked my old clerks who has been holding elections for some years about holding the election, and they asked me whether there was any money in it, and I told them I wasn't sure, I couldn't promise them anything at all, and so they didn't come. I could not get anybody to serve. I left the papers and said, "If there is any one else that wants to hold the election they can get the papers." I think there are between thirty and forty voters at Carl. I have read the newspaper accounts of the Bailey controversy, and the Waters Pierce Oil Company was mentioned in that connection. I read the Austin Daily Statesman, the Daily Tribune and the Semi-Weekly Galveston News. From the newspaper articles I read and the discussions I heard among my neighbors and here in town, I think the defendant in this case can get a fair and impartial trial in Travis County. I think I could qualify as a juror and try the case fairly alike to both sides. I have no doubt about that, any more than I have in any case I ever set on. As to whether or not there is any feeling against the Waters Pierce Oil Company, I never heard the Waters Pierce Oil Company mentioned until three or four days ago. I mingle with my neighbors when I have the time to spare.

Cross-examination:

I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. In regard to my opinion as to whether or not its admission into the State after the old company was excluded was a fraud upon the State, I would read one newspaper and it would convince me it was, and then pick up another and read it and it would convince me it was not; 477 so I don't know. As to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, I have not heard that subject discussed until last Thursday, when I heard two men discuss it. From what they said, I think they regard it as a trust. As to the basis of the opposition to Senator Bailey in my community, the people consider that Mr. Bailey is our Senator and that he had not represented the people as he should have done. They believed then, and believe it yet, that he had been working for trusts and monopolies. They believed that the Waters Pierce Oil Company was one of the trusts and monopolies for which he had been working. I think I could qualify as a juror in this case and try it impartially. If the testimony of Mr. H. C. Pierce and other officers of the company were introduced in evidence, I believe I could weigh it as impartially as if I didn't have this opinion. I do not believe I would have any more difficulty in weighing it impartially than if I didn't have the opinion. I would not take the oath as a juror if I thought I could not try the case impartially. I can not speak for any one by myself on the question of whether or not I believe that any honest and conscientious man can lay aside any prejudice or prejudgment of the case and try it according to the law and the evidence; I think I can do it, and I have done such things. Where I believed men to be guilty before I went into the jury box, I would acquit where the evidence was such that I could not do other than that. I believed they were guilty, but had no evidence to back it up. I would take the evidence and the charge and return a verdict that I believed to be in accordance with the law and the rulings of the court. I have not heard anybody in my neighborhood speak a good word for the Waters Pierce Oil Company; I have not heard it discussed at all. I did hear it discussed in connection with the Bailey matter, but they were not blaming the trust for getting Bailey to get them 478 back here. They were opposing Mr. Bailey because he had not been true to us as our Senator. The reason they thought he had not been true was because he had been working for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and that it was a trust.

Redirect examination:

Senator Bailey just had the people wound up in a ball and rolling them ahead of him; I know he had me, anything he said was all right. I was summoned here as a witness for the defense.

THOMAS CARPENTER, for the State, testified as follows:

I live at Manchaca, in Travis County. I have lived there twenty-four years. I am a cotton-buyer and ginner. I am well acquainted with the people living in the Manchaca neighborhood. I know some of the people at Oak Hill, Roberts and Bluff Springs. I was summoned here as a witness for the defense. I was in the county on the day of the election held in January, and I was here during the Bailey Investigation in the Legislature. I read the newspaper accounts of those occurrences. I have heard discussion concerning the Bailey controversy among the people around Manchaca and the neighboring boxes and in the city of Austin; it was generally discussed at the time stated. From what I have read and heard, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can obtain a fair and impartial trial of this case in this county. I feel sure that fair and impartial jurors to try this case can be secured in and around Manchaca. I could qualify as a juror and try the case fairly to both sides on the facts and the law as charged by the court.

479 Cross-examination:

I do not believe that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, operating in Texas in violation of the law. I do not believe that it was admitted into Texas by fraud six years ago. I voted for Mr. Bailey in the election last January. From what I have heard, the majority of the people in my precinct consider that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I do not know that they think it is operating here in violation of the law, but they think it is a corporation that has something to do with the regulation of the prices of oil. They think it is a trust, and they think any trust is in violation of the law. I don't know that the majority of them also say that its admission into the State of Texas six years ago after the old company was ousted was accomplished by fraud.

I know the people living around Bluff Springs and Roberts and Oak Hill. I do not see very frequently the people that live around Roberts and Oak Hill. From what I have heard, I think the majority of the people out there believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. I think the majority of the reading public everywhere believes it is a trust. I heard Mr. Summerrow out at Manchaca undertake to defend the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I think he is the only one I have heard say anything in favor of it. In expressing the opinion that the defendant can secure a fair and impartial trial of this case in this county, I proceed on the idea that any honest, conscientious man when he is sworn as a juror should be able to lay aside any preconceived idea he has with reference to the case and try it according to the law and the evidence.

Redirect examination:

I do not undertake to say to what extent the people have opinions in this matter. As to whether or not a man can lay 480 aside his prejudice or preconceived views of a matter would depend on the extent to which his mind is made up. I base my statement on the idea that the people's minds are not so made up that they could not lay aside their opinions.

JOHN PATTERSON, for the State, testified as follows:

My name is John Patterson, and I am in the fraternal life insurance at present. I have been a school teacher in this county for twelve years. I reside at Manchaca. Manchaca has been my home all the time, although I would be away all the time except in the Summer; I called it my home all the time. I am well acquainted with the people in that community. I know the people at Bluff Springs as well as those at Manchaca; at Oatmanville and at Roberts

I know practically half the people. I was in the county during the Bailey campaign and at the time of the primary election, and I was here during the Bailey Investigating committee's work in the Legislature. I read the newspapers every day and almost everything else I could get hold of, and heard Senator Bailey make a speech. I heard discussions among the people of Manchaca and Roberts and that section at that time. From what I heard and read, I believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company can obtain a fair and impartial trial in this county. As far as any prejudice is concerned, I think I could qualify as a juror and try this case on the facts and the law as charged by the court. I have no prejudice, in the sense that I have no desire to see one side or the other win in the case, and I have no feeling in the case. If I have any views concerning the matter, I can set them aside. I was summoned as a witness for the defense in this case.

481 Cross-examination:

I think, from my general reading, that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a part of the Standard Oil Company, and think it is a part of the trust. I think it would necessarily follow that the company has been violating the laws of Texas against combinations, trusts and conspiracies in restraint of trade, and I think its admission into the State six years ago was accomplished by fraud. I don't think that all the people out there believe that way. There are some that do not believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust—or, at least, they have talked so. I have heard such expressions, and have heard others say they didn't know anything about it at all. In the election last January there were sixteen votes against and fifteen for Mr. Bailey at Manchaca. I was an anti-Bailey man. I did not distribute anti-Bailey literature out there. I was opposed to Mr. Bailey for several reasons: First, I did not think he was a good party man before the nomination; I would not have opposed him after the nomination, on that ground. Second, I thought he had misrepresented things to the people of Texas. Third, I did not think it was proper for a United States Senator to ge getting large sums of money from the monied interests of the country at the same time he was drawing salary from the State of Texas or the United States government to represent Texas; and lastly and my most earnest reason for it was on account of his language in the city of Austin. I never took any active interest until after his speech at the skating-rink. I used my influence to defeat him, and impressed i*n* on the minds of my friends as far as I could. I heard expressions here in Austin along the same lines. I have not heard any expressions that I can recall since the Bailey election. If I am not mistaken, 482 I heard Judge Penn say we didn't know anything about it—didn't know it was a trust. I think I heard Judge Penn discuss the Bailey matter downstairs on the street. I could not say who was present. If I heard him say anything it was nothing more than the Waters Pierce Oil Company had not been convicted of being a trust, and that we did not know that it was a trust. I have heard others make about the same statement. I do not think a man would be a competent juror who had said the company was a trust and that it had been fraudulently admitted into the State. I think I could lay aside my prejudice and try the case on the law and the evidence. I have no greater ability to lay aside my opinions than most people.

Redirect examination:

I do not entertain any violent opinions on this subject at all. I went around Manchaca talking against Senator Bailey after I heard him at the skating-rink, but did not take any active interest against the Waters Pierce Oil Company. It was Senator Bailey that we had up and discussed.

A. D. DYE for the State, testified as follows:

I live out at Creedmore. I am acquainted with Calvin Hughes and W. R. Davis. I have lived out close to Creedmore about twenty years. I am very well acquainted with the people in that section. During the past six months I have heard discussion of the Bailey matter, in connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. The discussion was pretty general in that part of the country. I go up to the store often, and there was a good deal of discussion there. From those discussions and any newspaper reports I may have seen, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can obtain a fair and impartial trial in this county. I could qualify as a juror and try the case impartially to both sides under the facts and the charge 483 of the Court. I have no opinion concerning the matter that would interfere with my duty as a juror. I was summoned here as a witness for the defendant.

Cross-examination:

In the discussion I heard out there the matter was discussed pretty generally. The people I heard discuss the matter expressed the opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a member of a trust; it is the general belief in the community that it is. I have also heard them talking that the admission of the present company into the State six years ago was accomplished by fraud, after the old company was ousted from the State and the new company organized. From what I have heard about it, I believe that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a member of a trust. I guess I also believe that the organization of the present company and obtaining its permit to do Texas in Texas was accomplished by fraud on the State. I think I could lay aside this preconceived idea and try the case according to the law and the evidence; I would try to do it. I think I could take the testimony of H. C. Pierce and other officers of the company and give it the same weight that I would have been able to give it if I had not heard all of this discussion and had not formed these preconceived ideas. I think it would be more difficult for me to give credence to their testimony than it would have been otherwise. I guess that would be the natural effect on any man that would go into the jury-box with an opinion. My opinion that the defendant can get a fair and impartial trial is predicated on the idea that an honest conscientious man ought to be able to lay aside his opinion when he is sworn as a juror and try a case according to the law and the evidence.

484 Redirect examination:

I don't know anything about the facts the State expects to prove. I have no opinion that would interfere with my duties as a juror and prevent me from rendering a fair and impartial verdict. My opinion would not influence me in rendering a verdict after I heard the evidence.

Recross-examination:

The Austin Statesman and Tribune circulate out in my part of the county, and I believe the Houston Chronicle does, too. The testimony taken before the Bailey Investigating committee as published in the Statesman and Tribune and other newspapers was generally read and commented upon in the community. I saw copies of the Houston Chronicle or other papers in that community purporting to contain photographic copies of vouchers, letters, etc., in the Bailey Investigating Committee. Those papers were circulated generally in the community.

Redirect examination:

I don't remember as to whether or not the Fort Worth Record and Houston Post circulated around there. I saw the Houston Post occasionally.

485 Plaintiff's Testimony.

C. C. BAKER, a witness for the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I live fourteen miles northeast of Austin; about five miles from Manor. I might say that I have a general acquaintance in that neighborhood; I am acquainted with nearly every man in that part of the country. I have heard very little expression in regard to the case of the State of Texas vs. Waters Pierce Oil Company. I have read of it in the papers, and have heard some comment, but not an extensive comment. I do not know of any reason that exists in this county why the defendant could not get a fair and impartial trial here, any more than any other portion of the State where the people read and are posted in regard to the character of the company. That would be my idea about it. I think they can get as fair a trial in Travis County as they could in any other well posted county in the state, that is, where the people read and keep posted in regard to trusts and where there is a general sentiment against trusts among the common people. I know of no special reason why a fair trial could not be had in this county; just the general sentiment against corporations. I think the same conditions exist in other parts of the State and throughout the country. I don't know that I know of any prejudice that exists against this corporation that does not exist against the others. It might be possible that there is more prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company in Travis County and all other counties in the State than any other trust. I believe the Waters Pierce Oil Company can secure a fair and impartial trial in this county, but it would depend upon the jury selected, just as in any other case. If a jury of honest fair-minded men is selected a fair trial could be had. I don't think its being the Waters Pierce Company would prevent its getting a fair trial. I believe I 486 was summoned as a witness for the defendant in this case.

Cross-examination:

I don't know that I could positively answer the question that I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company is guilty in this case. The impression made on my mind from reading the papers and hearing the matter discussed generally by intelligent people is that they were re-instated in a fraudulent manner; that seems to be the general impression, but I don't know it to be a fact. I have not heard anybody express a contrary opinion, but I have heard it expressed differently through the papers. Thinking the matter over I believe I have heard people express a contrary opinion, but I could not be positive as to how many. I explain the matter in this way; There is a Bailey feature in this case, and in discussing the Bailey feature in connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, there are a great many people in my community who are especially friendly to the Bailey feature in the suit of the Waters Pierce Oil Company and they question everything that is an unfriendly opinion as expressed against Mr. Bailey. I don't know that I have heard from a good many Bailey men that the admission of the Waters Pierce Oil Company into Texas was a fraud and that Mr. Pierce imposed on Mr. Bailey in inducing him to get the company in here.

I was an ardent opponent of Mr. Bailey in this last campaign. I don't think that a fair trial in this case would inevitably result in a conviction of the Waters Pierce Oil Company it would depend upon the evidence. I do not believe it is guilty. I would have to see more positive evidence. Mine is all second hand. If I were on the jury in this case I would not be inclined to look askance at the testimony of every one connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I believe I could accept their testimony as fairly as I could others.

I have said that I believe most of the people consider the 487 Waters Pierce Oil Company guilty. That was not the basis of the opposition to Mr. Bailey; it was his connection with the company. They believe and I believe that he got it back into the State.

W. R. Davis, a witness for the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:—

I live at Creedmoor; that is the same voting box at which Mr. Calvin Hughes lives. I have lived there some twelve or fourteen years. I am farming out there. I think I am tolerably well acquainted with the people around Creedmoor and south of the river generally. I think I am a pretty good mixer. In regard to the sentiment at Creedmoor concerning the Waters Pierce Oil Company and its getting a fair trial in this county, I will say that if you cut out the Bailey part I don't think I have heard the company discussed. I have heard it said that it is a trust, and have heard that it is not a trust. I have heard both sides. Leaving out the Bailey issue I don't think I have heard anything south of the river to indicate prejudice against the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

I don't know whether I was called as a witness for the defendant. I was called over the 'phone, and I don't know by whom. Counsel for defendant said a moment ago they were willing to excuse me.

Leaving out the Bailey issue, I think the Waters Pierce Oil Company can get a fair trial in this county.

Cross-examination:

I have heard some few people express the opinion that the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust, but I have not heard many express their opinion about the Waters Pierce Oil Company at all, only in regard to this Bailey matter. I have heard Mr. Bailey cussed and discussed. It was about a standoff on that point. Some cussed him because they thought he had got the Waters Pierce Oil Com-488 pany back into the State after they had been put out, and others cussed because they thought he was a traitor to the party and the people; that he had lied to them; that we had him employed as Congressman and United States Senator, and we thought that he would represent us, but instead of that he represented the trusts. I think the people meant this Waters Pierce Oil Company and other trusts; I can't think of the names. Among the people I heard express themselves, the great majority think the Waters Pierce Oil Company is a trust. A majority also thought that its admission into the State after the old company was dismissed, was a fraud.

In the last election I voted at Creedmoor. I voted against Mr. Bailey.

I don't know what I think about the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I am pretty well satisfied with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. I am getting oil about as cheap, and have no kick coming against them. I reckon they are a trust, and I believe it was fraudulently re-admitted.

The people in my community read a great deal. I read most of the testimony in the Bailey Investigation. I think most of the people out there read it. I have seen something purporting to be from Mr. Lightfoot about valuable evidence he had secured, but don't remember what it was. I couldn't say as to whether or not the people generally read it. I may have a read a letter from the Attorney General to Senator Bailey, written about the first of December, but I couldn't say for certain. Most of the people around Creedmoor and south of the river take one or the other of the local papers, the Statesman or the Tribune. I do not know whether or not the Houston Chronicle is taken in that part of the country.

Redirect examination:

I don't think I have heard any discussion among the people about the issues in this case, that is, the facts in this particular case.

489 The plaintiff here introduced in evidence a written agreement on file among the papers in this case, and signed by counsel for plaintiff and defendant, by which it was agreed that it was a fact that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had, since about September 20th, 1900, owned 2747 shares of the capital stock of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and that from said date auditors of said Standard Oil Company had, from time to time, audited the books of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and that on the trial of this case the said agreement might be read in evidence as an admission by defendant of said facts, to the introduction of which agreement in evidence on this hearing defendant objected on the ground that the same was irrelevant and immaterial to any issue before the Court on the hearing of said application for a change of venue, but which objection was overruled by the court and the said agreement was admitted in evidence, and to which action and ruling of the Court in so admitting said agreement in evidence the defendant then and there in open Court excepted.

And be it further remembered, that upon the conclusion of the evidence on the hearing of said application for change of venue in this court, the court, after hearing the argument of counsel thereon, overruled defendant's said application for a change of venue in this cause, and refused to grant to defendant a change of venue in this cause, and to which action and ruling of the Court, in so refusing said application for a change of venue and in so refusing to grant to defendant a change of venue in this cause, defendant then and there in open court excepted and here and now tenders this, its bill of exception to such action and ruling of the court and prays that the same be allowed and ordered filed and made a part of the record in this cause.

The foregoing bill of exceptions was tendered and delivered to me on the 29 day of June, A. One of the other five had no such opinion thereon as would disqualify him, and one of the remaining four had no opinion thereon but was unable because of physical disability to read and write.

(Endorsed:) No. 24,551. The State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. Defendant's Bill of Exceptions No. 7. Filed June 29, 1907. D. J. Pickle, Clerk.

491 Charge of Court.

Filed May 31, 1907.

No. 24551.

vs.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Cause Pending in the District Court of Travis County, Texas, for the 26th Judicial District, May Term, A. D. 1907.

GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY:

In this case the State of Texas, as plaintiff, has sued the Waters Pierce Oil Company, a private corporation chartered under the laws of the State of Missouri, and doing business in Texas by virtue of a permit issued to it by the State of Texas on May 31, 1900, as defendant, to cancel said permit, and to recover penalties for violations of the anti-trust laws of Texas which the State alleges the defendant has committed on each and every day from May 31, 1900, to April 29, 1907.

The State alleges that on or about January 1, 1870, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, H. H. Rogers, Henry M. Flagler, and a number of other persons conceived the scheme of monopolizing and controlling the business of refining, transporting, and selling petroleum and the products thereof throughout the United States, including the State of Texas, and that said persons to that end and for that purpose entered into a conspiracy among themselves and with other individuals and corporations, including the defendant corporation, which conspiracy the State alleges continued in force and effect from the date of its formation until the date of the filing of the State's Second Amended Petition in this case, 492 and the State further alleges that in pursuance of said alleged conspiracy the defendant has done various acts and entered into various agreements which constitute violations of the anti-trust laws of Texas.

The State further alleges that the defendant's predecessor, the Waters Pierce Oil Company incorporated in 1878, on or about the 5th day of October, 1894, entered into a contract with the Eagle Refining Company, A. W. Clem, and certain other individuals named in its petition, by the terms of which defendant acquired the property of said Eagle Refining Company situated in the City of Dallas, Texas, and the right to operate its business under the name of the said Eagle Refining Company. It further alleges that the defendant did subsequent to May 31, 1900, operate said Eagle Refining Company and maintain the plant thereof at Dallas, as an apparently competing concern for various purposes prohibited by the anti-trust laws.

The State further alleges that in the year 1896, the defendant's said predecessor bought out the business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and of one Roy Campbell, who were at that time doing business in the City of San Antonio, Texas, and elsewhere, and entered into contracts and agreements with the said Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and Roy Campbell whereby said Texas Oil and Gasoline Company was thereafter to be operated under said name by defendant as an apparently competing concern with defendant at San Antonio, in the sale of the products of petroleum. It further alleges that said Texas Oil and Gasoline Company was operated by defendant as a concern apparently competing with it at San Antonio subsequent to May 31, 1900, for various purposes in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State. For full particulars of the State's allegations you are referred to its Second Amended Original Petition.

The defendant denies all and singular the allegations of the State, and in addition to various other special defenses, pleads 493 specially that, if it has entered into any of the agreements or committed any of the acts alleged by the State, none of same constitute violations of the anti-trust laws of Texas because said agreements were made and said acts done (if at all) solely with reference to subjects of interstate commerce. For full particulars of defendant's allegations, you are referred to its 3rd Amended Original Answer.

As the Law of the case you are instructed as follows, viz:

I. The burden of proof rests upon the State to establish the affirmative of the issues which will hereafter be submitted in this charge for your consideration by a preponderance of the evidence, and you will find in favor of the defendant on each issue so submitted for your consideration, except such issue or issues, if any, as you find that the State has established by a preponderance of the evidence, and you will return a general verdict for the defendant, unless you find that the State has established by a preponderance of the evidence some combination or combinations of facts which will entitle it to recover under the Law as it is given you in charge by the Court.

II. The statute known as the anti-trust law of 1899 was in force on May 31, 1900, and thereafter remained continuously in force until March 31, 1903.

For the purposes of this charge you are instructed that this Act made it unlawful for any corporation transacting or conducting any kind of business in this State to enter into, or become a party to, any agreement, or understanding with any other corporation or individual to fix or regulate the price in Texas of any article of manufacture or merchandise or to control or limit in Texas the trade in any article of manufacture or merchandise.

494 You are further instructed that said statute also made it unlawful for any corporation transacting or conducting any kind of business in this State to bring about or permit any union or combination of its capital, property, trade or acts with the capital, property, trade or acts of any other person or corporation whereby the price in Texas of any article of manufacture or merchandise would be fixed or sought to be fixed, regulated or sought to be regulated; or whereby the price in Texas of any article of manufacture or merchandise would be reasonably calculated to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the trade in such article of manufacture or merchandise in Texas would be sought to be controlled or limited, or would be reasonably calculated to be controlled or limited.

The statute known as the anti-trust Law of 1903, became effective on March 31, 1903, and has since continued in force.

For the purposes of this charge you are instructed that this statute defines a trust to be a combination of capital, skill, or acts, by two or more persons, firms, corporations, or associations of persons, or either two or more of them, for either, any, or all, of the following purposes, viz:

1. To create or which may tend to create or carry out restrictions in trade or commerce in Texas, or to create or carry out restrictions in the free pursuit in Texas of any business authorized or permitted by the laws of this State.

2. To fix, maintain, or increase the price of merchandise in Texas.

3. To prevent or lessen competition in Texas in the sale of merchandise.

4. To abstain from engaging in business or in the sale of merchandise in Texas, or any portion thereof.

Said statute of 1903, further defines a monopoly to be a 495 combination or consolidation of two or more corporations when effected in any of the following methods, viz:

1. When the direction of the affairs of two or more corporations is in any manner brought under the same management or control for the purpose of producing, or where such common management or control tends to create, a trust as above defined.

2. When any corporation acquires the shares or certificates of stock, franchise or other rights, or the physical properties or any part thereof of any other corporation or corporations for the purpose of preventing or lessening, or where the effect of such acquisition tends to affect or lessen competition, whether such acquisition is accomplished directly or through the instrumentality of trustees or otherwise.

III. Oil, all other products of petroleum, and goods, wares or merchandise of any character which the defendant or its agents may have purchased or acquired in any manner outside the State of Texas and caused to be transported to its agents or others within the State, are the subjects of interstate commerce when they enter this State, and so remain until such commodities are removed from the original tanks, vessels, or other packages in which they are imported into the State, and become mixed with the common mass of property of similar character in the State. The anti-trust laws of Texas have no reference to agreements or pools or arrangements of any character concerning subjects of interstate commerce, and no agreement, pool, or other arrangement, if any, which the defendant may have entered into with reference to the sale of any subject of interstate commerce can be considered by you as violating any anti-trust law of Texas. But neither oil purchased by the defendant from the Corsicana Refinery or elsewhere in Texas, nor other merchandise purchased by defendant at points in Texas, nor such oil or other merchandise purchased by defendant at points out-496 side the State and transported into the State and removed from the original packages or vessels in which it was brought into the State and mingled with other property of similar character in the State, is the subject of interstate commerce, but on the contrary is the subject of local commerce, and any agreement or pool or arrangement entered into by defendant with reference to such property or the sale thereof, if any such there were, would be unlawful, if in violation of the anti-trust Laws of this State.

IV. A corporation such as defendant can only act through its agents and servants, but such a corporation is not liable for all of the acts of its agents or servants. It is liable, however, for the acts done in the scope of their employment and agency, and is also liable for the acts of its agents which it has authorized such agents to perform, and it is also liable for the unauthorized acts of its agents, if any, which have been knowingly acquiesced in or ratified by the governing body of said corporation.

V. Much evidence has been introduced before you relating to the doings and agreements of the agents of corporations other than defendant, and to the doings and agreements of defendant's predecessor's agents prior to June 1st, 1900, and to the doings and agreements of defendant's agents, and the agents of other corporations, outside the State of Texas, and to the doings and agreements of individuals both prior and subsequent to June 1, 1900, and both outside and within the State of Texas. None of this evidence is competent or can be considered by you against the defendant, except within the limitations and for the purposes hereinafter stated, viz:

If you find from a preponderance of the other evidence in the case, independent of all declarations or statements made by 497 any person or persons, except their evidence given while testifying by deposition or personally as witnesses on the trial of this case, that on June 1, 1900, there was formed or existed an agreement between the governing officers of defendant and the governing officers of any of the other corporations alleged in the State's petition to be co-conspirators with defendant relating to the management of defendant's business, or between the governing officers of defendant and any of the individuals alleged in the State's petition to be co-conspirators with defendant relating to the management of defendant's business, then you may consider for what, if anything, you think it worth, such acts or declarations of all the parties to said agreemnt, if any, and such acts and declarations of their authorized agents, if any, as were done or made, as the case may be, during the existence of said agreement, if any, and in furtherance of its execution, for the purpose of determining the character of said agreement, and whether or not it contemplated a violation by defendant of the anti-trust laws of Texas.

You may further consider for what, if anything, you think it worth as tending to show or explain the course of defendant's dealings in Texas, said evidence, if any, of what it did through its duly appointed and authorized agents, if any, outside the State,

None of said evidence can be considered by you against the defendant for any other purpose whatsoever, and none of it can be so considered by you against the defendant for said purposes, except such of it, if any, as you think proper to be considered when tested by the rules above stated relating to its competency.

VI. No agreement made by the defendant outside the State of Texas, to violate the anti-trust laws of Texas, if any such there were, can be made the basis for forfeiting its permit to do business 498 in Texas, or for imposing penalties upon it, unless such agreement was executed or attempted to be executed in Texas by the duly authorized agents of defendant; but inasmuch as the undisputed evidence in the case shows that the defendant has continuously maintained its agents in this State and prosecuted its business therein since May 31, 1900, you will be authorized to convict it of violating the anti-trust laws of Texas, if you find from a preponderance of the evidence in favor of the State on the issues submitted for your consideration in paragraphs VII, VIII, IX, X, or XI, of this charge.

VII. If you find from a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant company, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into or became a party to an agreement or understanding with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, on June 1, 1900, to fix or regulate the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, and if you further find from a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant company, remained or continued to be a party to said agreement or understanding, if any, and persisted in carrying same out in Texas, if any, through its duly authorized agents on June 1, 1900, or on any other date or dates subsequent to June 1, 1900, and prior to March 31, 1903, and if you further find from a preponderance of the evidence that the oil with reference to which said agreement or understanding, if any, was so made and carried out, was the subject of local as distinguished from interstate commerce, you will return a verdict for the State, and say by your verdict, we the jury find for the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph seven of the Court's charge. You are instructed in this connection that if you find in favor of the State on the issues above submitted for your consideration in this paragraph of the charge, each day embraced between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, during which the defendant remained 499 a party to the agreement or understanding herein mentioned, if there were any such agreement or understanding, and if it remained a party to same on any of said days, would constitute a separate and distinct violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas.

If you do not find from a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant was on June 1, 1900, or on some date subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, through the action of its duly appointed and authorized agents, a party to an agreement or understanding with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to fix or regulate the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, and if you do not further find from a preponderance of the evidence that the oil with reference to which defendant entered into said agreement or understanding, if any such there were, was the subject of local as distinguished from interstate commerce, you will say by your verdict, we the jury find for the defendant on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph seven of the Court's charge.

VIII. If you find from a preponderance of the evidence that on June 1, 1900, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, had brought about or permitted any combination or union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whereby the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, was sought to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the price in Texas of such oil would be reasonably calculated to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the trade in such oil in Texas was sought to be controlled or limited, you will return a verdict for the State and say by your verdict, we the jury find for the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in 500 paragraph eight of the Court's charge. In this connection you are instructed that if the defendant became a party to a pool of the character mentioned in this paragraph of the charge, each day between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, that it remained a party to such pool, if there were any such days, would constitute a separate violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas. If you do not find from a preponderance of the evidence that on June 1, 1900, or that on some date subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents had brought about or permitted a combination or union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and if you do not further find from a preponderance of the evidence that by said combination or union, if such there were, the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, was sought to be fixed or regulated, or that thereby the price in Texas of such oil was reasonably calculated to be fixed or regulated, or that thereby the trade in such oil in Texas was sought to be controlled or limited or would be reasonably calculated to be controlled or limited, you will say by your verdict, we the jury find for the defendant on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph eight of the Court's charge.

IX. If you find from a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into a combination of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the purpose of creating in Texas, or which tended to create in Texas, or carry out in Texas, restrictions in the free pursuit in this State of the business of selling oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, or to fix, 501 maintain, or increase the price of such oil in Texas, or to prevent or lessen competition in Texas in the sale of such oil, and that the defendant remained or was a party to and acted under such combination, if such there were, on March 31, 1903, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, you will return a verdict for the State, and say by your verdict, we the jury find for the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph nine of the Court's charge. In this connection you are instructed that if the defendant became a party to a trust of the character mentioned in this paragraph of the charge, each day between March 30, 1903, and April 29, 1907, that it remained a party to and acted under such trust, if there were any such days, would constitute a separate violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas.

If you do not find from a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into a combination of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the purpose of creating in Texas or which tended to create or carry out in Texas restrictions in the free pursuit in this State of the business of selling said character and kind of oil, or to fix, maintain, or increase the price of such oil in Texas, or to prevent or lessen competition in Texas, in the sale of such oil, and that the defendant remained or was a party to, and acted under, such combination, if such there were subsequent to March 30, 1903, and prior to April 30, 1907, you will say by your verdict, we the jury find for the defendant on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph nine of the Court's charge.

X. If you find from a preponderance of the evidence that the direction of the affairs of the defendant corporation and the affairs of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were under the 502 same management or control on March 31, 1903, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, and that they were placed under such common management or control, if any, by their respectively authorized officers, under such circumstances, that such common management or control, if such there were, created or tended to create or carry out restrictions in the sale in Texas of oil of the kind and character mentioned in the last preceding paragraph of this charge, or to fix, maintain, or increase the price in Texas of such oil, or to prevent or lessen in Texas the competition in the sale of such oil, you will return a verdict for the State and say by your verdict, we the jury find for the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph ten of the Court's charge. In this connection you are instructed that if the defendant entered into a monopoly of the character mentioned in this paragraph of the charge, each day between March 30, 1903, and April 29, 1907, that it remained a party to such monopoly, if there were any such days, constituted a separate violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas.

If you do not find from a preponderance of the evidence that the direction of the affairs of the defendant corporation and the affairs of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were under the same management or control on March 31, 1903, or on some date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, and that they were brought under such common management or control, if any, by their respectively authorized officers under such circumstances that such common management or control, if such there were, created or tended to create or carry out restrictions in the sale in Texas of such oil, or to fix, maintain, or increase the price in Texas of such oil, or to prevent or lessen in Texas the competition in the sale of such oil, you will say by your verdict, we the jury find for the defendant on the issues submitted for our consideration in 503 paragraph ten of the Court's charge.

XI. If you find from a preponderance of the evidence that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had on March 31, 1903, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, acquired a majority of the capital stock of the defendant corporation and thereby effected a combination of said two corporations, and if you further find from a preponderance of the evidence that said stock was acquired and combination effected, if any, with the purpose and intention on part of the managing officers and directors of said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey of preventing or lessening the competition in the sale in Texas of the character and kind of oil above mentioned, or that the effect of said combination, if such there were, tended to affect or lessen the competition in the sale in Texas of said oil, you will return a verdict for the State and say by your verdict, we the jury find in favor of the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph eleven of the Court's charge. In this connection you are instructed that if the defendant entered into a monopoly of the character mentioned in this paragraph of the charge, each day between March 30, 1903, and April 29, 1907, that it remained a party to such monopoly, if there were any such days, constituted a separate violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas.

If you do not find from a preponderance of the evidence that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had on March 31, 1903, or on some date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, acquired a majority of the capital stock of the defendant corporation, and if you do not further find from a preponderance of the evidence that said stock was acquired and combination effected, if it were at all, with the purpose and intention on part of the managing officers and directors of said Standard Oil Company of New 504 Jersey of preventing or lessening the competition in the sale in Texas of said character and kind of oil, or that the effect of said combination, if such there were, tended to affect or lessen the competition in the sale in Texas of said oil, you will say by your verdict, we the jury find in defendant's favor on the issues submitted for our consideration in paragraph eleven of the Court's charge.

XII. The evidence introduced before you does not show with sufficient definiteness that the defendant has since May 31, 1900, acted under or persisted in the performance of either the contract with Clem and the Eagle Refining Company and others, or the contract with Roy Campbell and the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company, in such manner as to violate the anti-trust laws of 1899 or 1903. You are therefore instructed to find in defendant's favor on the issues pleaded by the State with reference to said contracts.

XIII. Evidence has been introduced before you tending to show that the defendant has given rebates and discounts in the course of its dealings; evidence has also been introduced before you tending to show that defendant has made contracts and entered into understandings other than those which have been submitted for your consideration in paragraphs seven to eleven, inclusive, of this charge. Evidence has also been introduced before you tending to show the general course of dealings of defendant in Texas and elsewhere, including some of its business methods in meeting competition.

You are instructed that none of this evidence shows or tends to show any violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas, unless it tends in some degree to establish some one or more of the issues submitted for your consideration in the last above mentioned paragraphs of this charge; and you are therefore instructed to 505 acquit the defendant and return a general verdict for it,— notwithstanding any and all of said evidence, unless you find in favor of the State on the issues submitted for your consideration in some one or more of said paragraphs of the charge.

XIV. If you convict the defendant under the foregoing instructions of any violation or violations of the anti-trust law of 1899, you will specify in your verdict the date or days for which it is convicted of having violated said law, and will further specify in your verdict that for said violation or violations, if any, you find, that its permit to do business in Texas shall be forfeited, and the amount of money which shall be adjudged against it as penalties for said violations, if any. In fixing the penalties, if any, which you assess against the defendant for any violations of which you may convict it, of the anti-trust law of 1899, you will fix same at not less than Two Hundred Dollars or more than Five Thousand Dollars per day for each day that you find it has so violated the law. If you convict the defendant of any violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you will specify in your verdict the date or days for which it is so convicted, and further specify therein that as a result of said conviction, its permit to do business in Texas shall be forfeited, and the sum of money that shall be adjudged against it as a penalty for such violation, fixing said sum at Fifty Dollars per day for each and every day that you convict it of having violated said law.

XV. In order to aid you in preparing your verdict in proper form, when you have reach- same, the following forms of verdicts are submitted for your consideration.

1. If you find in favor of the State on all of the issues submitted to you and for the entire time for which penalties are claimed 506 by the State against the defendant in its petition, you will say: "We the jury find for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted to us for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, being 1033 days, and for the penalties at —— Dollars; and we find for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, being fourteen hundred and eighty-eight days, and fix the penalties at Seventy-four Thousand Four Hundred Dollars. We further find that the permit of the defendant to do business in the State of Texas should be canceled. We find for defendant upon all issues made by the pleadings and not submitted in the charge of the Court."

2. If you find in favor of the State on some of the issues submitted for your consideration relating to the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1899, and in favor of the State with reference to some of the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you may use the following form of verdict:

We the jury find in favor of the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in the following paragraphs of the Court's charge: ——. We further find that the defendant violated the anti-trust laws of Texas on the following days embraced between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903: ——. We further find that on account of said violations, the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited, and that penalties should be imposed upon it in the amount of —— Dollars. We further find that the defendant violated the anti-trust laws of 1903, on the following days embraced between the 30th day of March, 1903, and the 29th day of April, 1907: ——. We further find that 507 on account of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited, and that penalties should be imposed upon it in the amount of —— Dollars. On all other issues raised by the pleadings, we find in favor of the defendant.

3. If you find in favor of the State with reference to some or all of the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1899 submitted for your consideration, and if you find in favor of the defendant on other of said alleged violations, and if you find in favor of the defendant on the issue of all of the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you may use the following form of verdict:

We, the jury find in favor of the State on the issues submitted for our consideration in the following paragraphs of the Court's charge: ——. We further find that the defendant has violated the anti-trust laws of Texas on each of the following days embraced between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903: ——. We further find that because of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited, and penalties should be imposed upon it in the amount of —— Dollars. We further find in defendant's favor on all alleged violations of the anti-trust laws of 1903, and on all other issues made by the pleadings.

4. If you find in the defendant's favor on all issues submitted for your consideration relating to its alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of 1899, but find in favor of the State on all or some of the issues relating to defendant's alleged violation of the anti-trust law of 1903, you may use the following form of verdict:

508 We the jury find in defendant's favor on all issues submitted for our consideration relating to its alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of 1899, but find in favor of the State under the following paragraphs of the Court's charge: ——, for alleged violations of the anti-trust laws of 1903. We further find that the defendant has violated said anti-trust laws on each of the following days embraced between March 30, 1903, and April 29, 1907, ——. We further find that on account of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited, and that penalties should be imposed upon it in the sum of —— Dollars.

5. If you desire to return a general verdict for defendant, you may use the following form of verdict: We the jury find for the defendant.

XVI. You are the exclusive judges of the facts proved, of the credibility of the witnesses, and of the weight to be given to their testimony; but you are bound to take the law as it is given you in charge by the Court, and to be governed thereby in arriving at your verdict.

And now on this the 20th day of May, 1907, the above cause coming on for trial, both parties appeared by attorneys and announced ready, and a jury having been demanded, a jury of twelve good and lawful men were duly impaneled and sworn to try the case, and thereafter the case proceeded to trial, when by agreement of all parties on the 24th day of May, 1907, one of the jurors Aaron Davis, theretofore selected, was excused on account of sickness which disabled him from acting as a juror in the case, and the trial then proceeded before the Court and the eleven jurors theretofore duly selected and sworn, and the case continued on trial from day to day, and after all the pleadings, evidence and argument of counsel had been submitted to the jury, and after being duly charged by the Court, the jury retired in the custody of the proper officer to consider of their verdict, and thereafter on the 1st day of June, 1907, they returned into open Court the following verdict:

It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that the permit of the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, to do business in the State of Texas, be and the same is hereby canceled and held for naught, and that the said defendant be enjoined and prohibited from doing business in the State of Texas, except interstate business, but all other business it is hereby perpetually enjoined and prohibited from transacting within the State of Texas.

v.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

In the above entitled cause, now comes the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, and moves the Court to set aside the verdict of the jury heretofore returned against it, and the judgment of the Court thereon rendered, and to grant this defendant a new trial in this cause for the following reasons, to-wit:

1. Because the verdict of the jury is not supported by the evidence in that the evidence wholly failed to show that the defendant at any time since June 1st, 1900, committed any act or did anything within the State of Texas or elsewhere which was in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State of Texas.

2. Because the verdict of the jury is without evidence to support it in that all of the evidence introduced before the jury showed that whatever agreements, acts and transactions may have occurred between the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the defendant company did not involve commerce in the State of Texas, but were with respect to and related to inter-state commerce exclusively, and therefore they were not in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State of Texas.

3. Because the verdict of the jury is without evidence to support it in that the only evidence before the jury showing any 541 agreement act or transaction between the defendant company and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was limited and confined to the fact of ownership by the said Standard Oil Company of stock in defendant company, and there was no evidence to show that through such ownership, or otherwise, said Standard Oil Company at any time did, in any way undertake or did in fact interfere with or control or attempt to control the business of the defendant company with reference to the matter of fixing, regulating or maintaining of prices, or in limiting or controlling the quantity of oil or other product of petroleum in the State of Texas in violation of the laws of said State.

4. Because the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 7th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant company, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into or became a party to an agreement or understanding with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey on June 1, 1900, to fix or regulate the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, or that the defendant company remained or continued to be a party to said agreement or understanding, if any, and persisted in carrying out the same in Texas through its duly authorized agent on June 1, 1900, or on any other day or days subsequent to June 1, 1900, and prior to March 31, 1903, nor was there any evidence that the oil, with reference to which said agreement or understanding, if any, was so made and carried out, was the subject of local as distinguished from interstate commerce.

5. Because the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 8th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that on 542 June 1, 1900, or on any day subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, had brought about or permitted any combination or union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey whereby the price in Texas of oil, refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, was sought to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the price in Texas of such oil would be reasonably calculated to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the trade in such oil in Texas was sought to be controlled or limited.

6. Because the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 9th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into a combination of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the purpose of creating in Texas or which tended to create in Texas, or carry out in Texas restrictions in the free pursuit in this State of the business of selling oil refined from petroleum other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, or to fix, maintain or increase the price of such oil in Texas, or to prevent or lessen competition in Texas in the sale of such oil, and that the defendant remained or was a party to and acted under such combination, if any, on March 31, 1903, or on any day subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907.

7. Because the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 10 paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the direction of the affairs of the defendant and the affairs of the 543 Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were under the same management or control on March 31, 1903, or on any day subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, and that they were placed under such management and control, if any, by their respectively authorized officers under such circumstances that such common management or control, if such there was, created or tended to create or carry out restrictions in the sale in Texas of oil of the kind and character mentioned in the 9th paragraph of the charge, or to fix, maintain or increase the price in Texas of such oil or to prevent or lessen in Texas the Competition in the sale of such oil.

8. Because the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 11th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had on March 31, 1903, or any day subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, acquired a majority of the capital stock of the defendant corporation and thereby effected a combination of said two corporations, nor was there any evidence showing that said stock was acquired and combination effected, if any, with the purpose and intention on the part of the managing officers and directors of said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey of preventing or lessening the competition in the sale in Texas of the kind and character of oil mentioned, or that the effect of such combination, if any, tended to affect or lessen the competition in the sale in Texas of said oil.

9. Because the verdict of the jury, in so far as it assesses penalties against the defendant on each of the issues submitted to the jury for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, being, as found by the jury, 1033 days, is unsupported by the evidence, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of be-544 tween May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, committed such violation on any particular day, nor was there any evidence showing that the defendant, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, committed such violation for either 1033 days or any other definite number of days.

10. Because the verdict of the jury, in so far as it finds for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, being 1488 days, as found by the jury, is unsupported by the evidence, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, committed such violations on any particular day, nor was there any evidence showing that the defendant, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, committed such violation for 1488 days or any other definite number of days.

11. Because the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant at the sum of $1,549,500.00 for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, was so grossly and shockingly excessive as to show passion and prejudice upon the part of the jury against the defendant.

12. Because the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,-500.00 was so manifestly excessive as to amount to the deprivation of the property of the defendant without due process of law in contravention of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

13. Because the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of 545 the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,500.00 was so manifestly excessive as to amount to the imposition of excessive fines in violation of Section 13 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

14. Because the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,-500.00, and in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of law for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, at the sum of $74,400.00, is so manifestly excessive as to amount to the deprivation of the property of the defendant without due process of law in contravention of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

15. Because the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,-

500.00, and in assessing penaltics against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, at the sum of $74,400.00, is so manifestly excessive as to amount to the imposition upon the defendant of excessive fines in violation of Section 13 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

16. Because the Court erred in instructing the jury that they could assess penalties for alleged violations of the Anti-Trust Act of 1899 in excess of $50 per day.

The foregoing motion is presented by defendant without waiving any error committed by the court in any of its rulings on questions of law heretofore made, all of which rulings and errors will be insisted upon by the defendant in the further progress of this case in the event the court shall refuse this motion, and defendant also reserves the right to amend this motion and to assign such 546 additional grounds for setting aside said verdict and judgment as may hereafter present themselves, if it shall see proper so to do.

Filed June 1, 1907.

In the District Court, Travis County, Texas, Twenty-sixth Judicial District.

No. 24551.

STATE OF TEXAS, Plaintiff,
vs.
WATERS-PIERCE OIL COMPANY, Defendant.

To the Honorable V. L. Brooks, Judge of said Court:

And now comes the State of Texas, acting by and through her Attorney General, and the County Attorney of Travis County, Texas, acting under the direction and supervision of the said Attorney General, and shows to the Court:

First. That on the 1st day of June, 1907, in this court, in the above entitled and numbered cause, a judgment was rendered in favor of the State of Texas against the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, for the sum of One Million Six Hundred twenty-three Thousand Nine Hundred ($1,623,900.00) Dollars, and said judgment further providing for the cancellation of the permit of the said defendant to do business in the State of Texas; that said cause of action and said judgment was based upon alleged violation of the Anti-trust law of the State of Texas.

Second. That in a certain suit pending in the State of Missouri, wherein the State of Missouri is plaintiff, and the said above named defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, among others, is defendant, a suit was instituted for the forfeiture of the charter of said defendant, Waters Pierce Oil Company and prohibiting it doing business in said State, said suit being instituted in the Su-
553 preme Court of the State of Missouri; that in pursuance to law the said Supreme Court of the State of Missouri appointed a commissioner to hear testimony and make his report and findings of fact, and recommendation of law thereon; that after hearing the testimony, the said commissioner found in favor of the State of Missouri on all issues in said case, and recommended to the said Supreme Court of Missouri that the charter of the said Waters Pierce Oil Company be cancelled; that plaintiff is informed and believes that said recommendations have the force and effect of a judgment forfeiting the charter of the said defendant, Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Third. That the penalties recovered in this cause by plaintiff, the State of Texas, cannot be collected outside the State of Texas, and the property of the defendant situated in the State of Texas, as the plaintiff is informed and believes, is wholly inadequate to pay the above mentioned judgment; that the great bulk of the property within the State of Texas belonging to the defendant, subject to the payment of said judgment, consists of current accounts with merchants and dealers in the State of Texas, of tank cars, of money on hand, of oil that is easily removed, and property of that kind and character, practically the whole of it being personal movable, property and if carried beyond the limits of this State cannot be pursued by the State of Texas, and the State would have no way of collecting the above mentioned judgment; that under and by virtue of an act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved April 11, 1907, the State has a lien upon all of said property to secure the payment of the above mentioned judgment.

Fourth. That under the judgment of ouster rendered in this cause, the defendant has no right to do business in this State and has been convicted of doing business in this State in violation of the law for each and every day since the issuance of its permit seven 554 years ago; that it is necessary to preserve and protect the rights of the State that said business of said defendant should be conducted and carried on, at least temporarily, and be kept a going concern in this State.

Wherefore, plaintiff requests the Court to appoint a receiver to take charge of all the property and assets of every kind, character and description of the defendant situated within the State of Texas, pending the hearing of this application; that this court grant its most gracious writ of injunction, restraining and prohibiting the defendant, its officers, agents, attorneys and employees, or any of them, from removing from the State of Texas any part of the property or assets of said defendant situated within the State of Texas.

Upon consideration, the application for a temporary injunction pending the hearing of said application is hereby granted, and the Clerk of this Court is instructed to issue such temporary injunction 556 under his hand and the seal of court, restraining and prohibiting the defendant, its officers, agents, attorneys and employees, or any of them, from removing beyond the State of Texas any of the property or assets of the defendant until the further orders of this court.

558 And for further answer to said application, and for the purpose of replying to the portion thereof relating to the said suit pending in the State of Missouri, defendant says that it is not true, as stated in said application that the recommendation of said Commissioner have the force and effect of a judgment forfeiting the charter of this defendant, but, on the contrary, no judgment has been rendered in said cause in said Supreme Court of Missouri, and said report of said Commissioner does not have the effect of a judgment, but that said report and recommendations of said Commissioner may be either approved or rejected by said Supreme Court of Missouri, and will have no force or effect unless confirmed and approved by said Supreme Court of Missouri.

And now on this 10th day of June, 1907, at a regular term of this Court there came on to be heard the application of the State of Texas for the appointment of a receiver of the property and assets of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, a corporation, pending the further disposition of this cause, and the Court, after duly considering said application, is of the opinion that the prayer should be granted and a receiver appointed to take charge of all the property and assets of the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, situated within the State of Texas, or that may hereafter come within the State of Texas, and that such receiver shall immediately take charge of all of said property and assets and hold the same subject to the further orders of this Court, and said receiver is hereby directed and 563 instructed to continue and carry on the business of the defendant until such future time as the Court may direct, keeping and preserving the property coming into his custody and carrying on the business of marketing and supplying oil to the public in the State of Texas, with the right, power, and authority to continue the various clerks, servants and agents of every class and grade now in the employ of the defendant or to discharge them and employ others at his discretion and to require such bonds and security to himself as Receiver from any of the present employees or those hereafter engaged by him as he may think expedient and proper, and to sell the present stock of oil and other products and personal property in the hands of the defendant and which may come into his hands as receiver and to purchase and sell other oil, products and personal property in the regular course of business of the defendant to the same effect as the defendant could or might have done in the continuation of said business so that said business may be kept up to its present condition as near as may be; and the said Receiver shall have power, under control of the Court, to bring and defend actions in his own name as receiver, to take charge and keep possession of the property, to insure the same against loss and destruction by fire or otherwise as he may deem proper, to receive rents, collect, compound for, compromise demands, employ one or more attorneys at law, make transfers and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the Court may authorize and all the expenses of said receivership, including taxes, insurance premiums, attorney's fees, his own compensation and all expenses of said receivership to be paid as a part of the Court costs of the suit.

That the temporary injunction heretofore granted, prohibiting the defendant from moving any of its property and assets
564 beyond the limits of the State of Texas, be and the same is hereby continued in force until the further orders of this Court.

To all of which action the defendant in open Court excepts, and in open Court gives notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals of the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas.

And on this 13th day of June, A. D. 1907, the Court confirming said order and in pursuance thereof names and appoints as Receiver herein of the property in said order described Robert J. Eckhardt, who is a resident citizen of the County of Williamson, in the State of Texas, with the duties and powers therein named, and fixes the amount of his bond as such Receiver at ($250,000.00) Two Hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to be made payable to the Judge of this Court and his successors in office, for the use of all parties interested in said property and this suit.

And defendant renewed its exceptions to the appointment of a receiver and gives notice of appeal from the order appointing a receiver to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas at Austin.

And now on this the 15th day of June, 1907, in open Court it is ordered by the Court in the above cause, that $100,000.00 be and the same is hereby fixed as the amount of bond which the defendant shall be required to give in order to supercede the judgment of the Court placing defendant's property in the hands of a Receiver; and,

It is further ordered that upon the approval by the Court and the filing with the Clerk by defendant of a good and sufficient bond conditioned as required by law for said amount, further proceedings herein be suspended pending appeal.

But this order shall not effect or rescind the order heretofore entered prohibiting and enjoining the defendant, its servants, officers, agents and attorneys from removing any of its property or assets beyond the limits of the State of Texas, but said injunction shall remain in full force and effect pending the appeal from the order appointing a receiver herein.

And thereupon the defendant in open Court tendered to the Court and Clerk certain papers which it stated to be its appeal bond, and an affidavit with reference thereto, which bond purported to have as sureties thereon the American Surety Company of New York and John H. Kirby, and requested the Court and Clerk to approve the same, but the Court deferred further action in the premises and stated that it would announce its further action on said bond at 10 o'clock A. 570 Defendant's Bill of Exceptions to Orders and Proceedings in Reference to Receivership.

Filed June 29, 1907.

In the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District, May Term, A. D. 1907.

No. 24551.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
v.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

Be it remembered that on the 22nd day of September, A. D. 1906, the State of Texas instituted suit by original petition filed in the above court against the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in which petition and for cause of action against the defendant, the plaintiff alleged that defendant had on each and every day from June 1st, 1900, down to and including the 31st day of March, 1903, in each and every County in the State of Texas, committed acts in violation of Chapter 146 of the Acts of the Twenty-sixth Legislature, known as the Anti-trust law of 1899, and being entitled "An act to prohibit pools, trusts, monopolies and conspiracies to control business and prices of articles; and to prevent the formation or operation of pools, trusts, monopolies, and combinations of charters of corporations that violates the terms of this Act, and to authorize the institution of prosecutions and suits therefor;" and that said defendant had in each and every County in the State of Texas, and on each and every day from the 1st day of April, 1903, to the filing of said suit committed acts in violation of Chapter 94 of the Acts of the Twenty-eighth Legislature of the State of Texas, known 571 as the anti-trust law of 1903, and being entitled, "An Act to define, prohibit and declare illegal, trusts, monopolies and conspiracies in restraint of trade; to prescribe penalties for forming or being connected with such trusts, monopolies, and conspiracies; and to provide for the suppression of the same and to promote free competition in the State of Texas; and to repeal all laws in conflict therewith;" and in said petition the plaintiff sued for the maximum penalty provided in each of said statutes, and for the aggregate sum of $5,228,400.00.

That after the filing of said petition the defendant was duly served with citation, filed its answer to the October Term of said Court, A. D. 1906, and thereafter said cause was continued at said October term, and likewise at the March Term of said Court, A. D. 1907, and the pleadings of both parties having been amended the State filed its second amended original petition by leave of the Court, in which the plaintiff alleged that defendant had in each and every County and on each and every day from the 1st day of June, A. D. 1900, down to the 29th day of April, 1907, committed acts in violation of each of the two anti-trust statutes above set out, and in said amended petition the State continued to claim the maximum penalty provided in each of said statutes.

In said original petition and in the said second amended original petition the State alleged that the defendant was a foreign corporation chartered under the laws of the State of Missouri, and had during the period aforesaid, been engaged in transacting business in the State of Texas under a permit granted to the defendant by the Secretary of State of the State of Texas on May 31st, 1900, and in said second amended original petition the said State of Texas prayed for relief as follows:

"Plaintiff prays that it have judgment cancelling the permit issued to defendant on the 31st day of May, 1900, and for an 572–574 injunction restraining it from doing business within this State, and that it have judgment for the sum of $5,239,000.00, penalties, and it prays for costs and general relief."

And be it further remembered that in its answer to the said last named petition filed by the State, the defendant, among other things, denied all and singular the allegations contained in said petition and plead not guilty to the offenses therein charged against it, and upon said petition and said answer a trial was had before said Court and a jury duly impanelled, beginning on the 20th day of May, A. D. 1907, and concluding on the 1st day of June, A. D. 1907, when the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff and the Court rendered judgment thereon in words and figures as follows:

"24551.

v.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

And now on this the 20th day of May, 1907, the above cause coming on for trial, both parties appeared by Attorneys, and announced ready, and a jury having been demanded, a jury of twelve good and lawful men were duly impanelled and sworn to try the case, and thereafter the case proceeded to trial, when, by agreement of all parties on the 24th day of May, 1907, one of the jurors, Aaron Davis, theretofore selected, was excused on account of sickness, which disabled him from acting as a juror in the cause, and the trial then proceeded before the Court and the eleven jurors theretofore duly selected and sworn, and the case continued on trial from day to day, and after all the pleadings, evidence and argument of counsel had been submitted to the jury, and after being duly charged by the Court, the jury retired in the custody of the proper officer to consider of their verdict, and thereafter on the 1st day of June, 1907, they returned into open court the following verdict:

575 "AUSTIN, TEXAS, June 1, 1907.

"We the jury find for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted to us for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, being 1033 days, and for penalties $1,549,500.00 Dollars.

"And we find for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, being fourteen hundred and eighty days and fix the penalties at seventy four thousand four hundred dollars.

"We further find that the permit of the defendant to do business in the State of Texas should be cancelled.

"We find for defendant upon all issues made by the pleadings and not submitted in the charge of the court.

which verdict was by the court received, ordered filed and made a part of the record of this cause.

"It is, therefore, considered, ordered, adjudged and decreed that the plaintiff, the State of Texas, do have and recover of and from the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, a corporation, the sum of ($1,623,900.00) One Million, Six Hundred and 576 Twenty-three Thousand Nine Hundred Dollars, together with interest thereon from this date at the rate of six per cent. per annum, together with all costs of suit, for which execution may issue;

"It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that the permit of the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, to do business in the State of Texas, be, and the same is, hereby cancelled and held for naught, and that the said defendant be enjoined and prohibited from doing business in the State of Texas, except interstate business, but all other business it is hereby perpetually enjoined and prohibited from transacting within the State of Texas."

And be it further remembered that upon said 1st day of June A. D. 1907, the defendant filed with the Clerk of said court its motion to set aside the verdict of the jury aforesaid and the judgment thereon rendered, and to grant it a new trial.

And be it further remembered that after the filing of the motion aforesaid, the plaintiff, the State of Texas, through its attorneys, presented to the Honorable V. L. Brooks, Judge of this Court, its application for the appointment of a receiver, and upon the application the said Judge of this Court endorsed his fiat, and said application and fiat was thereupon, on said 1st day of June, A. D. 1907, filed with the Clerk of this Court, and the same is in words and figures as follows:

In the District Court, Travis County, Texas, Twenty-sixth Judicial District.

No. 24551.

STATE OF TEXAS, Plaintiff,
vs.
WATERS-PIERCE OIL COMPANY, Defendant.

To the Honorable V. L. Brooks, Judge of said Court:

And now comes the State of Texas, acting by and through 577 her Attorney General, and the County Attorney of Travis County, Texas, acting under the direction and supervision of the of the said Attorney General, and shows to the Court:

First. That on the 1st day of June, 1907, in this Court, in the above entitled and numbered cause, a judgment was rendered in favor of the State of Texas against the defendant, The Waters Pierce Oil Company, for the sum of One Million, Six Hundred Twenty-three Thousand, Nine Hundred ($1,623,900.00) Dollars, and said judgment further providing for the cancellation of the permit of the said defendant to do business in the State of Texas; that said cause of action and said judgment was based upon alleged violation of the Anti-trust law of the State of Texas.

Second. That in a certain suit pending in the State of Missouri, wherein the State of Missouri is plaintiff, and the said above named defendant, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, among others, is defendant, a suit was instituted for the forfeiture of the charter of said defendant, Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and prohibiting it doing business in said State, said suit being instituted in the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri; that in pursuance to law the said Supreme Court of the State of Missouri appointed a commissioner to hear testimony and make his report and findings of fact, and recommendation of law thereon; that after hearing the testimony, the said Commissioner found in favor of the State of Missouri on all issues in said case, recommended to the said Supreme Court of Missouri that the charter of the said Waters Pierce Oil Company be cancelled; that plaintiff is informed and believes that said recommendations have the force and effect of a judgment forfeiting the charter of the said defendant, Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Third. That the penalties recovered in this cause by plaintiff, the State of Texas, cannot be collected outside of the State of 578 Texas, and the property of the defendant situated in the State of Texas, as the plaintiff is informed and believes, is wholly inadequate to pay the above mentioned judgment; that the great bulk of the property within the State of Texas belonging to the defendant, subject to the payment of said judgment, consists of current accounts with merchants and dealers in the State of Texas, of tank cars, of money on hand, of oil that is easily removed, and property of that kind and character, practically the whole of it being personal, movable property and if carried beyond the limits of this State cannot be pursued by the State of Texas, and the State would have no way of collecting the above mentioned judgment; that under and by virtue of an act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved April 11, 1907, the State has a lien upon all of said property to secure the payment of the above mentioned judgment.

Fourth. That under the judgment of ouster rendered in this cause, the defendant has no right to do business in this State and has been convicted of doing business in this State in violation of the law for each and every day since the issuance of its permit seven years ago; that it is necessary to preserve and protect the rights of the State that said business of said defendant should be conducted and carried on, at least temporarily, and be kept a going concern in this State.

Wherefore, plaintiff requests the court to appoint a receiver to take charge of all the property and assets of every kind, character and description of the defendant situated within the State of Texas, pending the hearing of this application; that this court grant its most gracious writ of injunction, restraining and prohibiting the defendant, its officers, agents, attorneys and employees, or any 579 of them, from removing from the State of Texas any part of the property or assets of said defendant situated within the State of Texas.

In Chambers:

The above application for the appointment of a receiver of the property and assets of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, being presented to me, it is hereby set down for hearing on the 8th day of June, 1907, at 10 o'clock A. M. at the Court House in Travis County, Texas, and the Clerk will issue a notice to the defendant accordingly. Upon consideration, the application for a temporary injunction pending the hearing of said application is hereby granted, and the Clerk of this Court is instructed to issue such temporary injunction under his hand and the seal of court, restraining and prohibiting the defendant, its officers, agents, attorneys and employees, or any of them, from removing beyond the State of Texas any of the property or assets of the defendant until the further orders of this Court.

V. L. BROOKS,
Judge 26th Judicial District of Texas.

(Endorsed:) No. 24,551. The State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. Application for a Receiver. Filed June 1st, 1907, D. J. Pickle, Clerk, by J. A. Belger, Deputy.

581 And be it further remembered that on Friday, June 7th, 1907, defendant's motion for a new trial was taken up, argued and considered by the Court and on said day was overruled, to which action and ruling the defendant in open court excepted, and gave notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of the State of Texas; and said defendant thereupon, on said June 7th, 1907, tendered and placed in the hands of D. J. Pickle, the Clerk of said Court, on appeal bond with the American Surety Company of New York as its sole surety, which said bond is in words and figures as follows:

"THE STATE OF TEXAS, County of Travis:

"Whereas, in a certain cause pending in the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District, wherein the State of Texas was plaintiff and the Waters Pierce Oil Company was defendant, and numbered 24,551 on the docket of said Court, a judgment was on June 1st, 1907, rendered by said court in favor of the plaintiff, the State of Texas, and against the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company for the sum of One Million, Six Hundred and twenty-three thousand, and nine hundred ($1,623,900.00) Dollars, and for costs of suit, and cancelling the permit of said defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, to do business in the State of Texas; and, whereas, said defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, has appealed from said judgment to the Court of Civil Appeals of the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas, and desires to suspend the execution of such judgment pending such appeal;

Now, Therefore, know all men by these presents, that we, the said Waters Pierce Oil Company, as principal and — American Surety Company of New York, as surety, do hereby acknowledge ourselves bound to pay to the State of Texas the sum of 582 Three Million and Two Hundred and Seventy Five Thousand ($3,275,000.00) Dollars, conditioned that said Waters

Pierce Oil Company shall prosecute its said appeal with effect, and in case the judgment of the Supreme Court or the Court of Civil Appeals shall be against it, it shall perform its judgment, sentence or decree, and pay all such damages as said Court may award against it.

AMERICAN SURETY COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
By JAS. E. LUCY, Res. Vice President,
[L. S.] By W. T. DECHARD, Res. Ass't Secretary."

And be it further remembered that on Saturday, June 8th, 1907, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. and in open Court the Honorable V. L. Brooks, Judge, announced that the time for consideration of the application for the appointment of a receiver, above copied, had been reached, and the same was then called for consideration, whereupon the defendant, by its attorneys, stated that before considering said application they desired to call to the attention of the court the fact that they had tendered their supersedeas appeal bond, above copied, and that they desired to know the action of the Clerk as to whether he would approve or reject said bond, and thereupon, said Clerk, by written motion, requested instructions or advice from the Court as to whether said bond was legally sufficient and as to whether he was authorized to approve the same with the said single surety thereon, and thereupon the Court stated that before considering said application for a receiver he would consider the Clerk's request for advice, without assuming to have any power to dictate or control his action in approving or rejecting said bond, and 583 after argument of counsel for the State and defendant as to the sufficiency of said bond because of the admitted fact on the part of defendant that the said American Surety Company of New York was a bonding company chartered under the laws of another State and only had as assets within this State the $50,000.00 required to be deposited with the State Treasurer, as required by Article 734 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Texas, and after the said Judge gave advice to the said Clerk and without directing him to approve or reject said bond, the Clerk made known his refusal to accept said bond, and thereupon the defendant, by its counsel, requested a postponement of the further consideration of the said application for a receiver for a period of two weeks to allow it a reasonable time to procure other sureties and to give a supersedeas bond in connection with its appeal from the judgment rendered against it, and after full argument by both parties upon said application for postponement, and the propriety and authority of the Court to appoint a Receiver, the Court announced that he would take the matter under advisement until 10:00 o'clock on Monday morning, June 10th, 1907.

And be it further remembered that on said June 10th, 1907, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock A. M. the Court announced its ruling refusing to grant the postponement of the consideration of said application for a receiver and again called the same for consideration and action, and thereupon, defendant, by its counsel, read its answer and response to said application, same being in words and figures as follows:

And for further answer to said application and for the purpose of replying to the portion thereof relating to the said suit pending in the State of Missouri, defendant says that it is not true, as stated in said application, that the recommendation- of said Commissioner have the force and effect of a judgment forfeiting the charter of this defendant, but, on the contrary, no judgment has been 585 rendered in said cause in said Supreme Court of Missouri, and said report of said Commissioner does not have the effect of a judgment, but that said report and recommendations of said Commissioner may be either approved or rejected by said Supreme Court of Missouri, and will have no force or effect unless confirmed and approved by said Supreme Court of Missouri.

And be it further remembered that after reading the foregoing answer and response, counsel for defendant proceeded to argue its said general exception or demurrer to the said application for the appointment of a receiver, and at the conclusion of such 586 argument when counsel for the State started to argue the same, the Court announced that it was unnecessary for counsel for the State to make any further argument, and the Court thereupon proceeded to announce his conclusions with respect to said application and defendant's objections thereto, and stated that the Court would take judicial notice of the proceedings in the main case and of the rendition of judgment against the defendant for violating the anti-trust laws of the State, as charged against it in plaintiff's said second amended original petition, and that it had been found guilty of violating the said anti-trust laws on each and every day from the 1st day of June, 1900, to the 29th day of April, 1907, and that its permit to do further business in the State had been forfeited and cancelled by reason of said violations, and that defendant had since May 31, 1900, had been a member of an agreement which had its very existence in Texas, in violation of the Civil and Criminal laws of Texas, and that it has been and still is in possession of certain instrumentalities by means of which it, in violation of the public welfare and interests, intended to continue its violation of the law pending appeal from the judgment of conviction, and that the court would assume that the defendant would file its proper supersedeas bond from the said judgment of conviction, but that notwithstanding defendant's right to so file said supersedeas bond within the time provided by law, the Court was of the opinion that the Legislature had provided as a remedy or means of preventing defendant from the continued violation of the law, that a receiver should be appointed to take charge of its property and business and deprive it of the instrumentalities by which it had so violated the law, and would continue to violate the law; and that because of said statute and of the declared purpose of de-587 fendant, speaking through its general counsel John D. Johnson, in newspaper interviews which had been brought to the attention of the Court, in which said Johnson had discussed the effect of the aforesaid judgment of conviction against defendant, and had declared the purpose of defendant to appeal from said judgment of conviction and to continue to carry on its business in the same manner that it had theretofore done, notwithstanding such judgment of conviction; and without any evidence being submitted to the court in connection with said application, the court thereupon announced that it would grant the said application and appoint a receiver as therein prayed for, and that the Court had made up its mind as to the gentleman so to be appointed receiver, and would invite counsel for the State and for defendant to his room, where he would disclose the name of the gentlemen so determined upon, and give to counsel for both sides an opportunity to present any objections which they might have to the gentleman so determined upon, to which action of the court, and before the Judge left the bench and retired to his room for the conference aforesaid, the defendant, by its attorneys, in open Court, then and there excepted and gave notice of appeal from the action of the court to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas, and thereupon the Court caused an order to be prepared and entered of record evidencing its action in granting the application of the State for the appointment of a receiver aforesaid, which said order is in words and figures as follows:

"24551.

v.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

"And now on this the 10th day of June, 1907, at a regular term of this court, there came on to be heard the application of the State of Texas for the appointment of a receiver of the property and assets of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, a corporation pend-588 ing the further disposition of this cause, and the Court, after duly considering said application, is of the opinion that the prayer should be granted and a receiver appointed to take charge of all of the property and assets of the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, situated within the State of Texas, or that may hereafter come within the State of Texas, and that such receiver shall immediately take charge of all of said property and assets and hold the same subject to the further orders of this Court, and said receiver is hereby directed and instructed to continue and carry on the business of the defendant until such future time as the court may direct, keeping and preserving the property coming into his custody and carrying on the business and supplying oil to the public in the State of Texas; that the temporary injunction heretofore granted, prohibiting defendant from moving any of its property and assets beyond the limits of the State of Texas be. and the same is hereby continued in force until the further orders of this court.

"To all of which action the defendant in open court, excepts, and in open court give- notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals of the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas."

And be it further remembered that after the proceedings aforesaid had taken place in the manner above recited, the Honorable V. L. Brooks, Judge of said Court, did announce to counsel that he had determined upon the selection of Robert J. Eckhardt to be receiver, and was willing to hear any objections that might be urged against his appointment, and, at the request of defendant's counsel, the matter of the final order naming the said Eckhardt as receiver was postponed until June 13th, 1907, and on said last mentioned date the court, did make its order naming said Robert J. Eckhardt as receiver, and caused the same to be entered of record in 589 words and figures as follows:

"No. 24551.

v.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

"On this the 10th day of June, A. D. 1907, in this cause an order was made and entered by this Court granting the application of the plaintiff, the State of Texas, for the appointment of a receiver herein, the court at the time of the making of said order naming as receiver Robert J. Eckhardt and time being given both parties to urge any objection they might have to said Eckhardt, as such receiver, and no objection having been made to said Eckhardt, the Court now on this 13th day of June, 1907, confirming said order and in pursuance thereof names and appoints as receiver herein of the property in said order described said Robert J. Eckhardt with the duties and powers therein named and fixes the amount of his bond as such receiver at ($250,000.00) Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars;

"And defendant renews its exceptions to the appointment of a receiver and gives notice of appeal from the order appointing a receiver to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas, at Austin."

To which action of the Court at the time said order was entered defendant excepted and again gave notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas.

And be it further remembered that thereafter on the 15th day of June, A. D. 1907, the defendant having tendered to the Clerk of this Court another supersedeas appeal bond from the main judgment rendered against it on June 1st, 1907, with the American Surety Company of New York and John H. Kirby as its sureties thereon, and before the approval of said bond, as hereinafter recited, the court caused the following amendment to the above recited orders of June 10th and June 13th, 1907, to be entered, which 590 said order directing said amendment of said order was made over the objections of the defendant, and to the action of the court, in so amending said orders defendant then and there excepted and again gave notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas, which said amendment is in words and figures as follows:

In District Court, Travis County, Texas.

June 15th, 1907.

24551.

vs.
WATERS PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

And now on this 15th day of June, A. D. 1907, at a regular term of this Court, it is considered, ordered, adjudged and decreed by the Court that the orders of this Court made and entered in said cause on the 10th day of June, A. D. 1907, and the 13th day of June, A. D. 1907, be so amended as to hereafter read as follows:

And now on this 10th day of June, 1907, at a regular term of this Court, there came on to be heard the application of the State of Texas for the appointment of a receiver of the property and assets of the Waters Pierce Oil Company, a corporation pending the further disposition of this cause, and the Court, after duly considering said application, is of the opinion that the prayer should be granted and a receiver appointed to take charge of all the property and assets of the defendant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, situated within the State of Texas, or that may hereafter come within the State of Texas, and that such receiver shall immediately take charge of all of said property and assets and hold the same subject to the further orders of this court, and said receiver is hereby directed and instructed to continue and carry on the business of the defend-591 ant until such future time as the Court may direct, keeping and preserving the property coming into his custody and carrying on the business of marketing and supplying oil to the Public in the State of Texas, with the rights, power, and authority to continue the various clerks, servants, and agents of every class and grade now in the employ of the defendant or to discharge them and employ others at his discretion and to require such bonds and security to himself as Receiver from any of the present employees of those hereafter engaged by him as he may think expedient and proper; and to sell the present stock of oil and other products and personal property in the hands of the defendant and which may come into his hands as receiver and to purchase and sell other oil, products and personal property in the regular course of business of the defendant to the same effect as the defendant could or might have done in the continuation of said business so that said business may be kept up to its present condition as near as may be; and the said Receiver shall have power, under the control of the Court, to bring and defend actions in his own name as receiver, to take charge and keep possession of the property, to insure the same against loss and destruction by fire or otherwise as he may deem proper, to receive rents, collect, compound for, compromise demands, employ one or more attorneys at law, make transfers and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the Court may authorize and all the expenses of said receivership including taxes, insurance premiums, attorney's fees, his own compensation and all expenses of said receivership to be paid as a part of the Court costs of the suit. That the temporary injunction heretofore granted, prohibiting the defendant from removing any of its property and assets beyond the limits of the State of Texas, be, and the same, is hereby continued in force until the further orders of this Court;

592 To all of which action the defendant in open court excepts, and in open Court gives notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals of the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas.

And on this 13th day of June, A. D. 1907, the Court confirming said order and in pursuance thereof names and appoints as Receiver herein of the property in said order described Robert J. Eckhardt, who is a resident citizen of the County of Williamson, in the State of Texas, with the duties and powers therein names, and fixes the amount of his bond as such Receiver at ($250,000.00) Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, to be made payable to the Judge of this Court, and his successors in office, for the use of all parties interested in said property and this suit.

And defendant renewed its exceptions to the appointment of a receiver and gives notice of appeal from the order appointing a receiver to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of Texas, at Austin.

And be it further remembered that after the entry of said amended orders aforesaid, the Clerk of this Court, duly approved and filed defendant's said supersedeas appeal bond last above mentioned, and the same is in words and figures as follows:

In the District Court of Travis County, Texas, 26th Judicial District.

And, Whereas, the defendant in said cause duly filed its motion for a new trial, which said motion was by the Court overruled and refused by order and judgment entered on the 7th day of June, A. D. 1907, and the said defendant then and there in open Court excepted and gave notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Third Supreme Judicial District of the State of Texas.

And, Whereas, the defendant desires to perfect its said appeal and supersede the judgment aforesaid pending its appeal;

Now, Therefore, we, the said Waters Pierce Oil Company, defendant aforesaid and appellant, as principal, and The Amer-
596 can Surety Company of New York, a corporation duly qualified and authorized to execute this bond, as surety, together with Jno. H. Kirby, as further surety herein, do hereby each acknowledge ourselves indebted, held and firmly bound to pay to the State of Texas, plaintiff aforesaid and appellee herein, the full sum of Three Million, Two Hundred and Seventy-five Thousand ($3,275,000.00) Dollars, conditioned that the said appellant, the Waters Pierce Oil Company, shall prosecute its appeal with effect, and in case the judgment of the Supreme Court or the Court of Civil Appeals shall be against it, it shall perform its judgment, sentence or decree, and pay all such damages as said court may award against it.

(Endorsed:) No. 24,551. The State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. Appeal Bond No. 1. Filed June 15, 1907, D. J. Pickle, Clerk.

597 Be it further remembered that on June 15th, 1907, the court made and entered its order fixing the amount of bond which defendant was required to give in order to perfect its said appeal from the orders appointing a receiver and supersede the said orders so appointing a receiver at the sum of $100,000.00; and thereupon, defendant tendered and placed in the hands of the Court its supersedeas appeal bond in said sum last named, with the American Surety company of New York and John H. Kirby as its sureties, and the Court having announced its refusal to consider said bond at said time and its purpose to postpone the further consideration thereof until the succeeding Wednesday morning, June 19, 1907, at 10:00 o'clock, defendant at the time of such refusal to consider said bond and the postponement thereof excepted to the action of the Court.

Be it further remembered that on said 19th of June, 1907, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock, the court having announced that it would consider the matter of the approval of the receiver's bond of Robert J. Eckhardt, receiver, which had been tendered to him on the —— day of June, A. D. 1907, and would also consider the matter of the approval of defendant's said supersedeas appeal bond so tendered to him on June 18th, 1907, the defendant in open Court objected to the consideration and approval of the receiver's bond before acting upon its said appeal bond, which had been first placed with the Court, and for the additional reason that as defendant had duly filed with the Clerk of this Court its said supersedeas appeal bond from the main judgment of June 1st, 1907, the Court was without authority or jurisdiction to make any further orders with respect to said receivership or to approve said receiver's bond, which said objection was then and there overruled and defendant in open 598 court excepted, and thereupon the court proceeded and first entered its order of approval of the said receiver's bond, and, after so approving the same, did enter its order approving defendant's said supersedeas appeal bond so placed with the Court on June 15th, 1907, to which action of the court at the time defendant excepted; and defendant having announced to the court its desire to submit this said last mentioned supersedeas appeal bond to the Clerk for his approval, the Court directed the Clerk to first consider the bond of the receiver before approving defendant's said bond, to which action of the Court in so directing the Clerk defendant excepted.

And defendant now tenders this its bill of exceptions to all matters connected with the appointment of a receiver, as hereinbefore recited, and prays that this bill be signed and ordered filed as part of the record in this proceeding.

Examined and allowed.

Evidence has also been introduced before you tending to show the general course of dealings of defendant in Texas and elsewhere, including some of its business methods in meeting competition. You are instructed that none of this evidence shows or tends to show any violation of the anti-trust laws of Texas, unless it tends in some degree to establish some one or more of the issues submitted for your consideration in the last above mentioned paragraphs of this charge; you are therefore instructed to acquit the defendant and return a general verdict for it, notwithstanding any and all of said evidence, unless you find in favor of the State on the issues submitted for your consideration in some one or more of said paragraphs of the charge."

239. The Court erred in that portion of the fourteenth division of its charge, stating the law of the case, wherein it instructed the jury as follows: "If you convict the defendant under the foregoing instructions of any violation or violations of the anti-trust law of 1899, you will specify in your verdict the date or days for which it is convicted of having violated said law, and will further specify in your verdict that for said violation or violations, if any, you find that its permit to do business in Texas shall be forfeited, and the amount of money which shall be adjudged against it as penalties for said violations, if any. In fixing the penalties, if any, which 644 you assess against the defendant for any violation of which you may convict it, of the anti-trust law of 1899, you will fix the same at not less than $200 nor more than $5000 per day for each day that you find it has violated the law.

240. The Court erred in that portion of the fourteenth division of its charge, stating the law of the case wherein it instructed the jury as follows: "If you convict the defendant of any violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you will specify in your verdict the date or days for which it is so convicted and further specify therein that as a result of said conviction its permit to do business in Texas shall be forfeited, and the sum of money that shall be adjudged against it as a penalty for such violations, fixing said sum at $50 per day for each and every day that you convict it of having violated said law."

241. The Court erred in that portion of the fifteenth division of its charge, stating the law of the case, wherein it instructed the jury as follows: "If you find in favor of the State on all the issues submitted to you and for the entire time for which penalties are claimed by the state against the defendant in its petition, you will say: "We the jury, find for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted to us for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, being 1033 days, and for the penalties at —— Dollars; and we find for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, being 1488 days, and fix the penalties at $74,400. We further find that the permit of the defendant to do business in the State of Texas should be cancelled. We find for defendant upon all issues made by the pleadings and not submitted in the charge of the Court."

242. The Court erred in that portion of the fifteenth division of its charge, stating the law of the case, wherein it instructed 645 the jury as follows: "If you find in favor of the State on some of the issues submitted for your consideration relating to the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1899, and in favor of the State with reference to some of the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you may use the following form of verdict:

"We the jury, find in favor of the State on issues submitted for our consideration in the following papragraphs of the Court's charge: ——.

We further find that the defendant violated the anti-trust laws of Texas on the following days embraced between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903: ——. We further find that on account of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited and that penalties should be imposed upon it in the amount of —— dollars. We further find that the defendant violated the anti-trust laws of 1903, on the following days embraced between the 30th day of March, 1903, and the 29th day of April, 1907: ——. We further find that on account of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited and that penalties should be imposed upon it in the amount of —— Dollars. On all other issues raised by the pleadings, we find in favor of the defendant."

243. The Court erred in that portion of the fifteenth division of its charge, stating the law of the case, wherein it instructed the jury as follows: "If you find in favor of the State with reference to some or all of the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1899, submitted for your consideration, and if you find in favor of the defendant on other of said alleged violations, and if you find in favor of the defendant on the issue of all of the alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you may use the following form of verdict: "We, the jury, find in favor of the state on the issues
646 submitted for our consideration in the following paragraphs of the court's charge: ——. We further find that the defendant has violated the anti-trust laws of Texas on each of the following days embraced between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903: ——. We further find that because of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited, and penalties should be imposed upon it in the amount of —— Dollars. We further find in defendant's favor on all alleged violations of the anti-trust laws of 1903, and on all other issues made by the pleadings."

244. The Court erred in that portion of the fifteenth division of its charge, stating the law of the case, wherein it instructed the jury as follows: "If you find in the defendant's favor on all issues submitted for your consideration relating to its alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of 1899, but find in favor of the state on all or some of the issues relating to defendant's alleged violations of the anti-trust law of 1903, you may use the following form of verdict: "We, the jury, find in defendant's favor on all issues submitted for our consideration relating to its alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of 1899, but find in favor of the state under the following paragraphs of the Court's charge: —— for alleged violations of the anti-trust laws of 1903. We further find that the defendant has violated said anti-trust laws on each of the following days embraced between March 30, 1903, and April 29, 1907. ——. We further find that on account of said violations the permit of the defendant to do business in Texas should be forfeited, and that penalties should be imposed upon it in the sum of —— Dollars."

245. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 1 requested by the defendant.

647 246. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 2 requested by the defendant.

247. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 3 requested by the defendant.

248. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 4 requested by the defendant.

249. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 5 requested by the defendant.

252. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 8 requested by the defendant.

253. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 9 requested by the defendant.

258. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 14 requested by the defendant.

259. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 15 requested by the defendant.

260. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 16 requested by the defendant.

261. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 17 requested by the defendant.

648 262. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 18 requested by the defendant.

263. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 19 requested by the defendant.

264. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 20 requested by the defendant.

265. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 21 requested by the defendant.

266. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 22 requested by the defendant.

267. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 23 requested by the defendant.

268. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 24 requested by the defendant.

269. The Court erred in refusing Special Charge No. 25 requested by the defendant.

270. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the first ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said first ground of said motion for a new trial the verdict of the jury is not supported by the evidence in that the evidence wholly failed to show that the defendant at any time since June 1st, 1900, committed any act or did anything within the State of Texas or elsewhere which was in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State of Texas.

271. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the second ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said second ground of said motion for a new trial the verdict of the jury is without evidence to support it in that all of the evidence introduced before the jury showed that whatever agreements, acts and transactions may have occurred between the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the defendant company did not 649 involve commerce in the State of Texas, but were with respect to and related to interstate commerce exclusively, and therefore they were not in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State of Texas.

272. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the third ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said third ground of said motion for a trial the verdict of the jury is without evidence to support it in that the only evidence before the jury showing any agreement act or transaction between the defendant company and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was limited and confined to the fact of ownership by the said Standard Oil Company of stock in defendant company, and there was no evidence to show that through such ownership, or otherwise, said Standard Oil Company at any time did, in any way undertake or did in fact interfere with or control or attempt to control the business of the defendant company with reference to the matter of fixing, regulating or maintaining of prices, or in limiting or controlling the quantity of oil or other products of petroleum in the State of Texas in violation of the laws of said State.

273. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the fourth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said fourth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the court as contained in the 7th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant company, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into or became a party to an agreement or understanding with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey on June 1, 1900, to fix or regulate the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, or that the defendant company remained or continued to be a party to said agreement or understanding, if any, and persisted in carry-
650 ing out the same in Texas through its duly authorized agent on June 1, 1900, or on any other day or days subsequent to June 1, 1900, and prior to March 31, 1903, nor was there any evidence that the oil, with reference to which said agreement or understanding, if any, was so made and carried out, was the subject of local as distinguished from interstate commerce.

274. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the fifth ground of its motion for a new trial, because as set forth in said fifth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 8th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that on June 1, 1900, or on any day subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, had brought about or prompted any combination or union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey whereby the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, was sought to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the price in Texas of such soil would be reasonably calculated to be fixed or regulated, or whereby the trade in such oil in Texas was sought to be controlled or limited.

275. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the sixth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said sixth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 9th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered 651 into a combination of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for the purpose of creating in Texas, or which tended to create in Texas, or carry out in Texas, restrictions in the free pursuit in this State of the business of selling oil refined from petroleum other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, or to fix, maintain or increase the price of such oil in Texas, or to prevent or lessen competition in Texas in the sale of such oil in Texas, and that the defendant remained or was a party to and acted under such combination, if any, on March 31, 1903, or on any day subsequent thereto and prior to April 29th, 1907.

276. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the seventh ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said seventh ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the court as contained in the 10th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the direction of the affairs of the defendant and the affairs of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were under the same management or control on March 31, 1903, or on any day subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, and that they were placed under such management and control, if any, by their respectively authorized officers under such circumstances that such common management or control, if such there was, created or tended to create or carry out restrictions in the sale in Texas of oil of the kind and character mentioned in the 9th paragraph of the charge, or to fix, maintain, or increase the price in Texas of such oil, or to prevent or lessen in Texas the competition in the sale of such oil.

652 277. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the eighth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said eighth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury is unsupported by the evidence and contrary to the charge of the Court as contained in the 11th paragraph thereof, in that there was no evidence showing that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had on March 31, 1903, or any day subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, acquired a majority of the capital stock of the defendant corporation and thereby effected a combination of said two corporations, nor was there any evidence showing that said stock was acquired and combination effected, if any, with the purpose and intention on the part of the managing officers and directors of said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey of preventing or lessening the competition in the sale in Texas of the kind and character of oil mentioned, or that the effect of such combination if any, tended to effect or lessen the competition in the sale in Texas of said oil.

278. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the ninth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said ninth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury, in so far as it assesses penalties against the defendant on each of the issues submitted to the jury for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, being as found by the jury, 1033 days, is unsupported by the evidence, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant, if it 653 violated the law in any of the respects complained of between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, committed such violation on any particular day, nor was there any evidence showing that the defendant, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, committed such violation for either 1033 days or any other definite number of days.

279. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the tenth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said tenth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury, in so far as it finds for the plaintiff against the defendant on each of the issues submitted for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, being 1488 days, as found by the jury, is unsupported by the evidence, in that there was no evidence showing that the defendant, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, committed such violations on any particular day, nor was there any evidence showing that the defendant violated, if it violated the law in any of the respects complained of between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, committed such violation for 1488 days or any other definite number of days.

280. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the eleventh ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said eleventh ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant at the sum of $1,549,500.00 for alleged violations of the passion and prejudice upon the part of the jury against the defendant.
654 law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, was so grossly and shockingly excessive as to show

281. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the twelfth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said twelfth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violation of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,500.00 was so manifestly excessive as to amount to the deprivation of the property of the defendant without due process of law in contravention of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the constitution of the United States.

282. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the thirteenth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said thirteenth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,500.00 was so manifestly excessive as to amount to the imposition of excessive fines in violation of Section 13 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

283. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the fourteenth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said fourteenth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,500.00 and in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of law for each of the days between April 1, 1903,
655 and April 29, 1907, at the sum of $74,400.00, is so manifestly excessive as to amount to the deprivation of the property of the defendant without due process of law in contravention of Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

284. The Court erred in refusing to grant the defendant a new trial under the fifteenth ground of its motion for a new trial, because, as set forth in said fifteenth ground of said motion for a new trial, the verdict of the jury in assessing penalties, against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, at the sum of $1,549,500.00, and in assessing penalties against the defendant for alleged violations of the law for each of the days between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907, at the sum of $74,400.00, is so manifestly excessive as to amount to the imposition upon the defendant of excessive fines in violation of Section 13 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

285. The Court erred in overruling defendant's general exception to the motion or application of the State for the appointment of a receiver.

286. As the judgment recovered by the State of Texas against defendant on June 1st, 1897, was a personal judgment and did not attempt to foreclose the lien claimed upon defendant's property in the State, the Court was without jurisdiction by motion filed in the same cause to appoint a receiver, and erred in considering the same and in appointing the said Eckhardt receiver upon said motion.

287. The Court erred in overruling defendant's request for a postponement of action upon the said application until defendant should have a reasonable time to file a supersedeas bond in connection with its appeal from the main judgment rendered against it on June 1st, 1907.

656 288. The Court erred in making its order granting the application of the State of Texas for the appointment of a receiver of defendant's property by its order entered on June 10th, 1907.

289. The Court erred in naming and appointing Robert J. Eckhardt to be the receiver of defendant's property by its order entered on June 13th, 1907.

290. The Court erred in refusing to consider and approve defendant's supersedeas bond in the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00) tendered on June 15th, 1907, and in withholding its approval thereof until after the bond of the said Robert J. Eckhardt as receiver was tendered and approved on June 19th, 1907.

291. When defendant's appeal bond was approved and filed on June 15th, 1907, superseding the judgment recovered against it by the State of Texas on June 1st, 1907, in the main case, the appointment of said Robert J. Eckhardt as receiver, and all orders and proceedings theretofore had in connection with such appointment, were thereby vacated and became null and void, and the said Court erred in not entering a formal order recognizing the legal effect of the said supersedeas bond and vacating said appointment and setting aside all of its said orders, and in further considering said appointment as in force for any purpose.

292. The Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas approved April 11th, 1907, under which the Court acted in appointing the said receiver, is unconstitutional, null and void in so far as it attempts to create a lien upon this defendant's property for acts committed before the said Act took effect, in violation of Sec. 16, Art. 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

657 293. The Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas approved April 11th, 1907, under which the Court acted in appointing the said receiver, is unconstitutional, null and void in that it attempts to create a lien upon this defendant's property for acts committed before said Act took effect, in violation of Section Ten of Article Two of the Constitution of the United States, which denies to any state the right to pass an ex post facto law, and the Court erred in considering said act as the basis of its orders appointing the said receiver.

294. The said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved April 11th, 1907, under which the Court acted in appointing the said receiver, is unconstitutional, null and void in so far as it authorizes the appointment of a receiver in a suit brought to recover a personal judgment in which no lien upon defendant's property was set up and adjudicated, and the action of the Court in appointing the said receiver in this cause was in violation of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, in that it results in depriving defendant of its property without due process of law and in denying to defendant the equal protection of the law.

295. The said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved April 11th, 1907, under which the Court acted in appointing the said receiver, is unconstitutional, null and void, in so far as it authorizes the appointment of a receiver, in a suit brought against a defendant to recover fines and penalties for offenses committed in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State, as a means of preventing the defendant from the further or continued violation of such laws, and the action of the Court in appointing a receiver for defendant's property on that ground and for that purpose, as indicated in the opinion of the Court at the time said ap-
658 pointment was made, was unauthorized in law, and in violation of Section 17 of Article One, of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

296. The said Act of the Legislature, of the State of Texas, approved April 11th, 1907, under which the Court acted in appointing said receiver, is unconstitutional, null and void, in so far as it authorizes the appointment of a receiver in a suit brought against a defendant to recover fines and penalties for offenses committed in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State, as a means of preventing the defendant from the further or continued violation of such laws, and the action of the Court in appointing a receiver for defendant's property on that ground and for that purpose, as indicated in the opinion of the Court at the time said appointment was made, was unauthorized in law, and in violation of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, in that the result of said action was and is to deprive the defendant of its property without due process of law and to deny to defendant the equal protection of the laws.

297. The Court erred in appointing the said receiver without any evidence being introduced before it at the time said appointment was made, to show that defendant did not intend to change its status and methods of doing business so as to conform to the laws of the State of Texas, and without evidence affirmatively showing that defendant could not make use of its property and carry on its business in accordance with law, and in holding that the Court was authorized to so appoint a receiver for defendant's property in the State of Texas and deprive defendant of the instrumentalities by which it had been convicted of violating the laws of said state, based upon its past conduct and the said judgment of conviction rendered against it on June 1st, 1907.

659 Wherefore, defendant says that the said action of the Court was unauthorized and in violation of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and has the effect of depriving defendant of its property without due process of law, and in denying to it the equal protection of the laws.

298. The Court erred in disregarding the supersedeas bond filed by defendant in connection with its appeal from the main judgment recovered against it on June 1st, 1907, and in requiring defendant to file the additional bond in the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars to supersede the orders appointing the said receiver and to avoid having to surrender its property to said receiver by reason of said appointment; and this action on the part of the Court was without lawful warrant and in violation of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, in that the effect of such action by the Court was to deprive the defendant of its property without due process of law and to deny to it the equal protection of the law.

Wherefore, defendant prays that the judgment rendered against it and the said orders appointing a receiver, be reversed and set aside, and it will ever pray, &c.

No. 24551.

vs.
WATERS-PIERCE OIL COMPANY.

In the above entitled and numbered cause, now comes the defendant and files the following additional assignments of error to the action of the Court in appointing Robert J. Eckhardt receiver of the property of defendant, to-wit:

No. 299. The Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved April 11th, 1907, being Chapter 87 of the General Laws of the State of Texas, passed by the Thirtieth Legislature at its Regular Session, in so far as it authorizes the appointment of a receiver of appellant's property in this suit or prosecution instituted against appellant prior to the passage of said Act and for offenses alleged to have been committed prior to its passage, is unconstitutional, null and void, in that it violates the Tenth Section of Article One of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no State shall pass a bill of attainder or an ex post facto law.

No. 300. The said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas, approved April 11th, 1907, is unconstitutional, null and void, in so far as it attempts to create a lien upon appellant's property for the alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of said State, in that the lien is not created by the terms of the Act, based alone 661 upon the commission of the offense, but is left to be created by the action of the prosecuting officer in filing suit to recover the prescribed penalties. The statute therefore does not prescribe a fixed and uniform rule of law, applicable to all persons alike, but is a delegation of the legislative power to officers of the executive department to create a lien, or not create it, and to arbitrarily discriminate between persons at will, and the appointment of the receiver to take charge of appellant's property under this statute, results in depriving appellant of its property without due process of law, and in denying to it the equal protection of the law, in violation of Section One of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provisions of the Constitution of the United States are here urged and relied upon by appellant as against the validity and application of said Act of the Legislature of the State of Texas to the matters involved in this case, and to the act of the Court in appointing the said receiver thereunder.

Now comes the defendant in the above entitled and numbered cause and files the following assignments of error committed by the court on the trial of this cause, additional to the assignments hereinbefore filed.

301.

The court erred in that portion of the eighth paragraph of its charge, relating to the act of May 25, 1899, wherein it instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff if they should find from a preponderance of the evidence that on June 1, 1900, or on any date subsequent thereto, and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, had brought about or permitted any combination or union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whereby the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, was sought to be fixed or regulated.

302.

The court erred in that portion of the eighth paragraph of its charge, relating to the Act May 25, 1899, wherein it instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff if they should find from a preponderance of the evidence that on June 1, 1900, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, had brought about or permitted any combination or union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whereby the price in Texas of oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, would be reasonably calculated to be fixed or regulated.

303.

The court erred in that portion of the eighth paragraph of its charge, in regard to the act of May 25, 1899, wherein it instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff if they should find from a preponderance of the evidence that, on June 1, 1900, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to March 31, 1903, the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, had brought about or permitted any combination or a union of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, whereby the trade in oil, refined from petroleum, in Texas, was sought to be controlled or limited.

304.

The court erred in that portion of the ninth paragraph of its charge, relating to the act of March 31, 1903, wherein it instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff if they should find from a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant, acting through its duly appointed and authorized agents, entered into a combination of its capital with the capital of the Standard Oil Company
664 of New Jersey for the purpose of creating in Texas, or which tended to create in Texas, or carry out in Texas, restrictions in the free pursuit in this State of the business of selling oil refined from petroleum, other than oil which was the subject of interstate as distinguished from local commerce, and that the defendant remained or was a party to and acted under such combination, if such there were, on March 31, 1903, or on any other date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907.

305.

The court erred in that portion of the tenth paragraph of its charge, relating to the act of March 31, 1903, wherein it instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff if they should find from a preponderance of the evidence that the direction of the affairs of the defendant corporation and the affairs of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were under the same management or control on March 31, 1903, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, and that they were placed under such common management or control, if any, by their respective authorized officers under such circumstances that such common management or control, if such there were, created or tended to create or carry out restrictions in the sale in Texas of oil.

306.

The court erred in that portion of the tenth paragraph of its charge, relating to the act of March 31, 1903, wherein it instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff if they should find from a preponderance of the evidence that the direction of the affairs of the defendant corporation and the affairs of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were under the same management or control
665 on March 31, 1903, or on any date subsequent thereto and prior to April 29, 1907, and that they were placed under such common management or control, if any, by their respective authorized officers under such circumstances that such common management, or control, if such there were, tended to fix, maintain or increas the price of oil in Texas, or to prevent or lessen competition in the sale of oil in Texas.

The court erred in instructing the jury, as it did, in the 14th paragraph of its charge, that if they convicted the defendant of any violation of the anti-trust law of 1899 they would assess penalties against defendant at not less than $200 nor more than $5000 per day for each day that they should find defendant had violated the law.

308.

The court erred in the fifteenth paragraph of its charge in instructing the jury that in assessing penalties against defendant they could assess penalties for 1,033 days, covering the period between May 31, 1900, and March 31, 1903, and for 1,488 days, covering the period between April 1, 1903, and April 29, 1907.

309.

The court erred in permitting the witness C. W. Cahoon, who was shown to have been one of the general agents of the defendant company in Texas, to testify, over the objections of the defendant, that the defendant had at some times in Texas marketed as eupion oil both P. W. and S. W. oil, both of which were shown to have been grades of oil inferior to the grade of oil usually sold under the name of eupion oil as shown on pages 637-639 and pages 690 and 695 of the stenographer's report.

666 310.

The court erred in admitting in evidence, over the objections of defendant, that portion of the answer of the witness, Ida M. Butts, to the seventh interrogatory propounded to her, wherein she testified that while George Rice held certificates in the Standard Oil Company a suit was brought by the Attorney General of the State of Ohio to force the Standard Oil Company out of the Standard Oil Trust, or cause it to cease doing business in the State if it remained in the trust, and that the decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio was in favor of the State as shown on pages 13-17 of the stenographer's report.

311.

The court erred in admitting in evidence, over the objections of the defendant, that portion of the answer of the witness, Ida M. Butts, to the seventh interrogatory propounded to her in which she testified that, after the decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio in the suit brought by the Attorney General of that State, the Standard Oil Trust "pretended to go out of existence, and to this effect caused an order to be issued to all certificate holders, including George Rice, to exchange their trust certificates into certificates called, assignment of legal title."

312.

The court erred in admitting in evidence, over the objections of defendant, that portion of the answer of witness, Ida M. Butts, to the seventh interrogatory propounded to her by plaintiff in which she testified that, after the decision of the suit brought by the Attorney General of Ohio, the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was increased and said company made to all intents and purposes the same in effect as the Standard Oil
667 Trust and that they made it the holding company for all the companies of the Standard Oil Trust.

313.

The court erred in admitting in evidence, over the objections of defendant, that portion of the answer of the witness, Ida M. Butts, to the seventh interrogatory propounded to her by plaintiff, wherein she testified that, "the trust is not dissolved and could not be dissolved until all trust certificates were surrendered."

314.

The court erred in admitting in evidence, over the objections of defendant, that portion of the answer of the witness, Ida M. Butts, to the tenth interrogatory propounded to her, in which, after detailing the corporations and persons originally entering into the Standard Oil Trust, she testified that others were added until in the early part of the year 1906 there were twenty companies in the great grand division of the trust and naming such companies as shown on pages 18-21 of the stenographer's report.

315.

The court erred in admitting in evidence, over the objections of defendant, the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth paragraphs of the agreement between plaintiff and defendant, being stipulation No. 1, as shown on pages 43-46 of the stenographer's report.

316.

The court erred in permitting the witness, Royer Campbell, to testify, over the objections of defendant, that in the year 1894 when he quit buying oil from the original Waters Pierce Oil Com-.
668 pany in San Antonio, Texas, and bought from other parties to supply his trade in San Antonio, said Waters Pierce Oil Company immediately cut the price of oil from 16¢ or 17¢ to 8¢ and 10¢ per gallon, as shown on pages 470-473 of the stenographer's report. (Tr. ——.)

TUESDAY, May 21, 1907.

The jury having been selected and sworn, the pleadings were read, and the taking of testimony commenced at 2.30 P. M.

683 Mr. ALLEN: The plaintiff offers in evidence certified copy of the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company, incorporated under the laws of the State of Ohio, on January 10, 1870, and the various amendments to it, as they appear.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the introduction of this charter in evidence, on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case; on the further ground that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is not shown to have any connection with this company; and on the further ground that this charter antedates the formation, not only of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company incorporated in 1878; and it is not alleged in the petition and is not shown that the Standard Oil Company of Ohio ever did any business in Texas, or contemplated doing any business in Texas, or had any authority to do business in Texas.

The COURT: Have you finished your objection?

Judge PENN: Yes, sir.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the articles of incorporation were introduced in evidence, the date thereof being January 10, 1870, the names of the incorporators being John D. Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Samuel Andrews, Stephen V. Harkness, and William Rockefeller, the purpose of the corporation being the manufacture of petroleum and to deal in petroleum and its products, the capital stock being the sum of $1,000,000.00 in shares of $100.00 each, and the place of business Cleveland, Ohio. By a certificate dated February 9, 1872, and signed by John D. Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Samuel Andrews and Stephen V. Harkness, Directors, it is stated that at the annual meeting held on January 1, 1872, by a vote then and there taken, all the stockholders of the company being present and voting therefor, the capital stock was increased to the sum of $2,500,000.00, the

684 names of the stockholders being as follows: John D. Rockefeller, O. E. Jennings, B. Brewster, Wm. Rockefeller, S. V. Harkness, H. M. Flagler, S. P. Handy, S. Andrews, A. Stone, Jr., and S. Witt. Said certificate further states that the whole amount of such increase of capital stock had been paid to said company in money; that no note, bill, bond, or other security, had been taken for the same or any part thereof, and that the credit of the company had not been used directly or indirectly to raise funds to pay the same or any part thereof. By a certificate dated March 10, 1875, and signed by John D. Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Samuel Andrews, Oliver H. Payne, and Stephen V. Harkness, being a majority of the Board of Directors, it is stated that at a special meeting of the stockholders, by a vote then and there taken, all the stockholders of the company being present and voting therefor, the capital stock of said company was increased to the sum of $3,500,000.00, the names of the stockholders being as follows: J. D. Rockefeller, S. V. Harkness, H. M. Flagler, S. Andrews, J. D. Rockefeller, Agent; J. D. Rockefeller, Trustee; O. H. Payne, B. Brewster, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; T. P. Handy, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; O. B. Jennings, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; Wm. Rockefeller, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; Jos. Stanley, by O. H. Payne, his attorney; A. M. McGregor, by his attorney J. D. Rockefeller; W. C. Andrews; A. J. Pouch, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; F. A. Arter, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; P. H. Watson, by H. M. Flagler, his attorney; I. A. Bostwick, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; J. Huntington, by O. H. Payne, his attorney; D. M. Harkness, by H. M. Flagler, his attorney; Josiah Macey, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; W. H. Macey, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attroney; W. T. Wardwell, by H. M. Flagler, his attorney; D. P. Eells, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; S. F. Barger, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; W. H. Vanderbilt, by J. D. Rockefeller, his attorney; H. W. Payne, by O. H. Payne, his attorney; I. J. Vandegrift, by O. H. Payne, his attorney; John Pitcairn, Jr., by O. H. Payne, his attorney; L. G. Harkness, by H. M. Flagler, his attorney. Said certificate further states that the whole amount of such in-685 crease of capital stock had been paid to said company in money; that no note, bill, bond or other security had been taken for the same or any part thereof, and that the credit of the company had not been used directly or indirectly to raise funds to pay the same or any part thereof.)

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence certified copy of the charter of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri on the first day of May, 1878; and the amendment also, increasing the capital stock, is offered.

Judge PENN: We make the objection to this certified copy and the amendment that they are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and relate to a company not a party to this suit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the articles of association of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were introduced in evidence, dated May 1, 1878, the objects for which the company was formed being dealing in naval stores and dealing in and compounding petroleum and other oils and all the products thereof and buying and selling the same in the State of Missouri and other States; the capital stock being $100,000.00, divided into one thousand shares of $100.00 each; the directors to manage the affairs of the company during the first year being William H. Waters, Henry C. Pierce, Horace A. Hutchins, Frank D. Carley, and William P. Thompson, and the names of the incorporators being the same as the directors. By a statement dated June 13, 188?, it is shown that at a meeting of the stockholders of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company held at the office of the company in the city of St. Louis on said date, pursuant to notice, there were present in person or by proxy William H. Waters, representing 400 shares; F. D. Carley, representing 200 shares; H. A. Hutchins, representing one share; W. P. Thompson, representing one share; and George

H. Vilas, M. R. Keith and George F. Chester, Trustees, by 686 proxy, representing 398 shares, the same being all the shares of the stock of the company; that thereupon on motion it was unanimously resolved that the capital stock of the company be increased from $100,000.00 to $400,000.00; that thereupon the additional stock was subscribed and paid for in cash as follows: Chess-Carley Company, 600 shares, $60,000.00; Wm. H. Waters, 1200 shares, $120,000.00; Trustees of Standard Oil Trust, 1200 shares, $120,000.00—aggregating $300,000.00.)

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the Standard Oil Trust Agreement, that is copied and set out in our petition, and in that connection we offer in evidence first an agreement to the effect that this is a true copy, and some other facts in connection with it. I do not care to read at this time the Trust Agreement, it having been read, but I want to call attention to a few sections of it.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the introduction in evidence of the alleged Standard Oil Trust Agreement, on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case; on the further ground that it appears from the face of it and from the allegations in the petition to have been made prior to the organization of this defendant; and on the further ground that it appears to have been entered into prior, not only to the present anti-trust law of this State, but prior to any other anti-trust law of this State; and on the further ground that it appears from the allegations in the petition that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was not a party to said Trust Agreement; and on the further ground that it appears from the Agreement that the defendant was not a party to this Trust Agreement; and on the further ground that it appears from the Agreement that this Standard Oil Trust was dissolved in 1892, long prior to the organization of this defendant, and long prior to the enactment of either the anti-trust act of 1899 or the anti-trust act of 1903.

The COURT: Does it appear that the Waters-Pierce Oil
687 Company—what is the stipulation?

Mr. ALLEN: The stipulation is that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company as a corporation did not sign the Agreement, but a majority of the stock was put up under the agreement.

(The stipulation was read to the Court by Judge Penn, as follows:

"In lieu of the testimony of Mr. John D. Archbold and to avoid the expense of taking his testimony, it is agreed between the respective counsel for plaintiff and defendant in the above cause as follows:

"That the copy of the agreement commonly called the Standard Oil Trust Agreement, entered into as of the date of January 2, 1882, and the supplemental agreement dated the 4th of January, 1882, marked respectively Exhibits A and B of plaintiff's first amended original petition in said cause and set forth therein, are true copies of said agreements and may be read in evidence in this cause with the same force and effect as the originals of said agreements if properly proven up, subject to all objections that could be urged against the originals if offered in evidence, except the proof of its execution, and the correctness of the copy and the production of the original is waived. All other objections may be urged against the introduction of this copy that could be urged against the introduction of the original.

"It is further stipulated and agreed that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as a corporation, did not sign either the agreement or the supplemental agreement; that Mr. Henry Clay Pierce, who at that time owned substantially 40 per cent of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, did not sign either of said agreements nor deposit any part of his stock under either of them.

"It is further stipulated and agreed that Mr. Horace A. Hutchins and Mr. W. P. Thompson, at the date of said agreement, owned substantially 40 per cent of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, signed said agreement and deposited their stock thereunder; that the Chess-Carley Company, at said date, owned substantially 20 per cent of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, did 688 not sign said agreement, but deposited said shares under said agreement.

"It is further stipulated and agreed that from the date of the organization of the Standard Oil Trust, in accordance with the agreements herein referred to, the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust owned and held substantially 60 per cent of the capital stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and continued to hold and own the same until the year 1892.

"It is further stipulated and agreed that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company alluded to in this stipulation is the corporation organized under the laws of Missouri in May, 1878.

"This stipulation and the original trust agreements, as set forth in plaintiff's first amended original petition, shall be offered in evidence with the same force and effect and subject to all the objections as if the same were the testimony of said John D. Archbold and given in accordance with law in this cause.")

Judge PENN: And in this stipulation the right to make any legal objection to these copies offered in evidence is reserved, with the exception that we are not entitled to make the objection that it is a copy, and we do not make that.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, the Trust Agreement and the supplement we offer, that has been read to the jury as set out in the petition. Of course, we will not re-read it at this time, but we offer the whole of it in evidence.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, Your Honor understood our objection as going, not only to the original Trust Agreement, but to the supplement?

The COURT: The Standard Oil Trust Agreement and the agreement of counsel with reference to it?

Mr. ALLEN: There is a supplemental Trust Agreement, also.

Judge PENN: Made two days later. We intend all these 689 objections to go to the supplement to the Trust Agreement, as well as the original document.

The COURT: You may have your exception to the admission of any part of it.

Judge PENN: If Your Honor will permit, we desire to interpose an additional objection to this Trust Agreement and the supplement to it, on the ground that it appears that both the original and the supplement were made outside of the State of Texas, and do not either of them relate to any business transacted in the State of Texas.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the Trust Agreement and the supplement thereto were introduced in evidence, being the same as the exhibits attached to plaintiff's petition herein, which are here referred to in order to save repetition.)

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the certified copy of the charter and amendments thereto of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, incorporated under the laws of New Jersey.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the introduction of this certified copy of the charter in evidence, and the amendments, on the ground that they are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case; on the further ground that it is not made to appear, either by allegations in the petition or from this charter itself, that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey or the Standard Oil Company ever had authority to do business in Texas, either by the terms of its charter, or by a permit obtained from the State of Texas, or that it ever contemplated doing business in Texas; and on the further ground that it appears from the face of the charter that it was not such a corporation as could obtain or could have ever obtained a permit to do business in Texas—that is, since the date on 690 which this defendant obtained its permit to do business in this State. In amplification of the objection that it was not such a corporation as could have obtained a permit to do business in Texas, we assign as one of the reasons for that objection that it appears from this charter that the company was organized, and by the various amendments to its charter authorized, to transact a large number of businesses, and that by the laws of this State a foreign corporation could not obtain a permit to do business in Texas for more than one purpose, and it is not alleged or claimed that this company, but for the matters alleged in the petition, would have ever obtained or sought a permit to do an oil business in Texas. We make the further objection that the charter of a corporation organized under the laws of a sister State can not be held to be evidence of a conspiracy to violate the laws of another State.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the charter and amendments thereto were introduced in evidence, dated August 1, 1882, the incorporators being H. M. Flagler, T. C. Bushnell and James McGee; the name of the corporation being "Standard Oil Company of New Jersey," and the business of the company to be carried on at Bayonne, Communipaw and other points in the State of New Jersey, and in the City of New York, the principal part of the business within the State to be transacted at Bayonne. The objects for which said company was formed are stated to be, the refining of petroleum; the manufacturing of the various products thereof; the purchasing of the crude matarial and the sale of the manufactured products thereof; the manufacture of barrels, boxes, cans and other packages in which the manufactured products may be kept or transported; the manufacture and restoration of acids and whatever other substances may be used in the manufacture of the products of petroleum. The total amount of the capital stock as stated to be $3,000,000.00, divided into 30,000 shares of the par value of $100.00 each. The names and residences of the stockholders, and the number of shares held by each, 691 are as follows: H. M. Flagler of New York City, one share; Paul Babcock, Jr., of Jersey City, one share; James McGee of Plainfield, New Jersey, one share; Thos. C. Bushnell, of Morristown, New Jersey, one share; John D. Rockefeller of Cleveland, Ohio, Wm. Rockefeller of New York City, J. A. Bostwick of New York City, John D. Archbold of New York City, O. H. Payne of Cleveland, Ohio, Wm. G. Warden of Philadelphia, Pa., Benj. Brewster of New York City, Chas. Pratt of Brooklyn, N. Y., and H. M. Flagler of New York City, Trustees of Standard Oil Trust, 29,996 shares. By a certificate dated March 5, 1892, and signed by Paul Babcock, Jr., President, and attested by L. D. Clarke, Secretary, it is stated that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey proposes to increase its capital stock by adding thereto $7,000,000.00, divided onto 70,000 shares of $100.00 each, making the entire capital stock $10,000,000.00, that amount having been determined by the Board of Directors at a meeting held March 4, 1892, to which increase stockholders owning more than two-thirds in value of the existing capital stock had assented. The assent to the increase is signed by Paul Babcock, Jr., J. H. Alexander, T. C. Bushnell, and by H. M. Flagler, W. H. Tilford, J. D. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, H. H. Rogers, Wm. Rockefeller and O. B. Jennings, Trustees of Standard Oil Trust. By a certificate signed by Paul Babcock, Jr., J. H. Alexander and T. C. Bushnell, Directors, it is stated that the name of the corporation is changed from "Standard Oil Company of New Jersey" to "Standard Oil Company." By a certificate dated March 23, 1892, and signed by Paul Babcock, Jr., President, and attested by L. D. Clarke, Secretary, it is stated that the Board of Directors had authorized the issue of 60,000 shares to increase the capital stock, the par value of each share being $100.00. By a certificate dated March 30, 1892, signed by Paul Babcock, Jr., President, and attested by L. D. Clarke, Secretary, the number of directors of the company was increased from three to nine, the stockholders assenting

692 thereto being Paul Babcock, Jr., J. H. Alexander, T. C. Bushnell, W. H. Tilford, John D. Archbold, H. H. Rogers, O. R. Jennings, Wm. Rockefeller, Trustees of Standard Oil Trust, by Wm. Rockefeller, attorney in fact. Pursuant to a resolution passed by the Board of Directors, a meeting of the stockholders was held at the principal office of the company in Bayonne, New Jersey, on the 14th day of June, 1899, and at said meeting a resolution was adopted

changing the charter of the company. In the amendment the objects for which the company was formed are stated to be: "To do all kinds of mining, manufacturing and trading business; transporting goods and merchandise by land or water in any manner; to buy, sell, lease and improve lands; build houses, structures, vessels, cars, wharves, docks and piers; to lay and operate pipe lines; to erect and operate telegraph and telephone lines and lines for conducting electricity; to enter into and carry out contracts of every kind pertaining to its business; to acquire, use, sell and grant licenses under patent rights; to purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, sell, assign and transfer shares of capital stock and bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of corporations, and to exercise all the privileges of ownership including voting upon the stocks so held; to carry on its business and have offices and agencies therefor in all parts of the world, and to hold, purchase, mortgage and convey real estate and personal property outside the State of New Jersey." The total authorized stock of the corporation is stated to be $110,000,000.00, divided into 1,100,000 shares of the par value of $100.00 each. Of said stock, the 100,000 shares now issued and existing shall be preferred stock, and the increase of 1,000,000 shares shall be common stock. The charter was also amended in a number of particulars not deemed necessary to be set out here. These changes in the charter were assented — by more than two-thirds of the stockholders, the names of those signing the assent being as follows: Paul Babcock, J. H. Alexander, and the following, all of whom were represented and their names signed by Paul Babcock, their attor-

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the deposition of Ida M. Butts, residing in the city of Marietta, Ohio, on interrogatories propounded to her by the plaintiff.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name and where do you live, and what business are you and have you been connected with?

694 Answer. My name is Ida M. Butts. My residence Marietta, Ohio. I am in the lumber business and have been connected with the oil business.

Interrogatory 2. If you say you have been in the oil business, state with whom you were connected in that business, and state the extent and character of his connection with that business.

Answer. With George Rice. He was a producer and refiner of petroleum. He had a refinery at Marietta, Ohio, and shipped refined oil to nearly all States in the Union, including Texas.

Interrogatory 3. State whether or not George Rice was at any time connected with the Standard Oil Trust.

Answer. He was a member of the Standard Oil Trust, in that he owned Standard Oil Trust certificates.

Interrogatory 4. In what year was the Standard Oil Trust organized?

Answer. In the year 1882.

Interrogatory 5. Is George Rice dead or alive? If dead, when did he die, and who administered upon his estate?

Answer. He is dead. He died February 27, 1905. I am administratrix of the estate.

Interrogatory 6. State whether or not at the time of his death George Rice held any Standard Oil Trust certificates, and state who has his certificates at this time, and if you say you have them, state how long you have had them, and in what capacity.

Answer. He did. I have them, since his death in the capacity of administratrix.

Interrogatory 7. State whether or not during the time the certificates were held by Mr. Rice or by you as administratrix a suit was brought in the State of Ohio to dissolve the Standard Oil Trust. If so, state the history and result of this litigation, and state what was done by the Standard Oil Trust with reference to dissolution upon that judgment being rendered, and state what has been done 695 by the trustees of the Standard Oil Trust and by George Rice and yourself as holders of the certificates aforesaid concerning these certificates.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we desire to object to the answer of the witness to this question,—as to the answer and that portion of the question relating to asking the witness with reference to a suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Trust, and to state the history and result of this litigation, and to state what was done by the Standard Oil Trust with reference to dissolution upon that judgment being rendered. We make the objection that the statement of the witness with reference to these matters is not the best evidence, and is inadmissible for that reason; further, that her answer appears to be hearsay; and further, that it appears to be the mere conclusion of the witness with reference to these matters; and as to the portion of the answer in which she undertakes to detail what was done by the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust and by George Rice after the dissolution of the Standard Oil Trust, that it appears to be hearsay and merely the conclusion of the witness. With reference to the last paragraph in her answer,—the second paragraph,—we make the further objection that her answer appears to be hearsay, and merely her conclusion; and, further, that as to what laws were passed in the State of New Jersey and what was done with reference to procuring an amendment to the charter of the Standard Oil Company, her statements are not the best evidence of what was done.

The COURT: Are you objecting to the entire answer?

Judge PENN: Yes, sir. We are objecting to the entire answer and making the objection more specific as to certain portions. We object to the entire answer on the general ground that the entire answer appears to be hearsay and but her conclusions as to these matters, and then we make the more specific objections stated as to these portions.

The COURT: Is there any other part of this deposition that bears on the question of whether this is hearsay or not?

Mr. ALLEN: Not that part of it. There is some of it that later on it develops is hearsay that we will not offer, but we make the 696 contention, if the Court please, that this does not appear to be hearsay. So far as her testimony about the suit being brought, that is just incidental. It is not necessary to introduce the written record to show that. So far as what she says about the testimony of Archbold, that is not hearsay, because she makes it her own testimony by specific terms. She just simply says that Archbold gives it in better language than she could, and it is not disclosed that any part of it is hearsay by this answer. She may have been present at all these transactions and known all about them personally.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: We want to make another objection. I think I can call your attention to other parts of this that will make it appear it is hearsay, if you will give us a moment's time. If the Court please, we except to the ruling that was made, and we desire now to make more specific objections. As to the second sentence in the answer, as to what was the decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio, we make the objection again that this appears to be but the conclusion of the witness and is not the best evidence; that it is not competent for the witness to state her conclusion as to the effect of the decision or judgment of the Supreme Court of Ohio; that this should be done by properly certified or exemplified copies of that decision, so that the Court could pass upon the effect of that decision, and the Court should not be required to accept the conclusion of the witness with reference to that matter. As to the statement contained in this same sentence, as to what the Standard Oil Trust pretended to do, we object on the ground that it appears to be the mere conclusion of the witness. The witness does not claim to have been present or had any personal knowledge of the matters in regard to which she testifies. With reference to the statement as to a large number of trust certificates being changed into assignments of legal title, we make the objection that it appears there that this is but a conclusion of the witness; that she does not profess to have been present and 697 witnessed the exchanges or the issuance of the certificates about which she testifies, that she says were given in exchange. As to the second paragraph, as to what law was passed in New Jersey, we make the objection that it is not the best evidence; that a properly certified copy of the law of New Jersey referred to would be the best evidence; further, that it is but the conclusion of the witness as to the effect of this law, and is not competent. We object to the statement in this answer that it made the Standard Oil Company to all intents and purposes the same in effect as the Standard Oil Trust, on the ground that it appears to be but the conclusion of the witness. The next sentence, "They made it a holding company for all the companies of the Standard Oil Trust," we object to on the ground that it appears to be but the conclusion of the witness about a matter about which she does not profess to have had any personal knowledge, and in which it does not appear that she was interested. We make the objection then as to her quotations of the testimony of John D. Archbold before the Industrial Commission in 1900, that the whole of her quotations from what she says was Mr. Archbold's testimony is hearsay. As to the statement contained after the quotation from Mr. Archbold's testimony, to the effect that "the Trust is not dissolved and could not be dissolved until all trust certificates were surrendered," we make the objection that it is but the conclusion of the witness. We add to the objections to her quotation from Mr. Archbold's testimony, it appears from her statement that her quotation is hearsay as to her, quoted by her from the Congressional Record, and that, even if authentic, the testimony of Mr. Archbold before this Commission would be hearsay, and not admissible as against this company in this case, it appearing that Mr. Archbold was testifying there as an individual, and not in the discharge of any duty with reference to the Standard Oil Company, or with reference to this company.

The COURT: The objection to the quotation from the testimony of Archbold is sustained. Otherwise it is overruled.

698 Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

Mr. ALLEN: The State excepts to the sustaining of so much of the objection as is sustained.

Answer. While the certificates were held by George Rice, there was suit brought by the Attorney General of the State of Ohio in the State of Ohio to force the Standard Oil Company of Ohio out of the Standard Oil Trust or cause it to cease doing business in the State if it remained in the Trust. The decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio was in favor of the State, and the Standard Oil Trust then pretended to go out of existence, and to this effect caused an order to be issued to all certificate holders, including George Rice, to exchange their Trust Certificates into certificates called Assignment of Legal Title. A few certificates were exchanged, but both kinds were traded in on the market and nothing more was done to liquidated the Trust until 1897, when the Standard Oil Company of Ohio was brought before the Supreme Court of Ohio in contempt proceedings brought by the Attorney General. The Standard Oil Trust then began to bestir itself and a larger number of Trust Certificates were exchanged into Certificates of Assignment of Legal Title. They then increased the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and made it to all intents and purposes the same in effect as the Standard Oil Trust. They made it the holding company for all the companies of the Standard Oil Trust. The Trust is not dissolved, and could not be dissolved until all Trust Certificates were surrendered. George Rice's estate holds one Standard Oil Trust Certificate of six shares, one certificate of the Liquidating Trustees called Assignment of Legal Title, and Scrip in the twenty different corporations then in the Trust, which he obtained by having one Assignment of Legal Title exchanged for them.

Mr. ALLEN: We do not offer about that Trust Agreement, any of the answers as to that, because we already have it in.

Mr. BRADY: That is numbers 8, 9 and 10. We want to 699 offer number 11, I think.

Mr. ALLEN: We do not offer 8, 9 and 10. (After consultation): We offer in evidence the answer to the 10th interrogatory.

Interrogatory 10. Give the names of all the parties to the original Standard Oil Trust Agreement, including the names of individuals, firms and corporations participating in the formation of that Trust, or coming into it afterwards.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the first part of this witness' answer, in which she undertakes to state the parties originally entering into this Trust Agreement, on the ground that it is not the best evidence. Second, on the ground that it encumbers the record, because what is alleged to be a true copy of the original agreement, and what has been agreed to be a true copy of the original agreement, has been admitted in evidence by Your Honor. And as to the second paragraph of the witness' answer, in which she undertakes to detail what other parties subsequently became parties to this Trust, or entered into it, we make the objection that the answer appears to be but the conclusion of the witness. She does not profess by her answer to have been present when any other person or corporation signed this agreement or any other agreement making them parties to this Trust Agreement, nor to have witnessed the deposit of any stock or other papers with the Standard Oil Trust or its trustees, but the whole answer clearly appears to be a conclusion of the witness as to this matter.

Mr. ALLEN: So far as the first part of it is concerned, if Your Honor please, we just simply offer that for the purpose of identification of the names.

Judge PENN: And, if the Court please, it appears from the terms of the Trust Agreement, which has been offered in evidence, that parties could subsequently become parties to that Trust Agreement only by an instrument in writing, and we make the further objection that the instrument in writing by which parties subsequently 700 became parties to that instrument is the best evidence of their becoming such parties.

Mr. ALLEN: I will explain to the Court that the first part of the answer is not offered, except for identification. It is a matter of fact, and two subdivisions state the names of the parties and the corporations that are named in the Trust Agreement that has been read in evidence, but the third paragraph of her answer, that Your Honor will find there, goes on to say then that these people,—of course, it is in evidence,—that they signed that Trust Agreement, but she states as a fact then that they went into the Trust—states that as a fact—and then, in addition to that, states that others afterwards came in and became parties to the Trust, and names them, and we offer that. The other is just simply for the purpose of identification, to show the names of the parties that originally went in. We do not care so much about that, except merely for identification. So far as encumbering the record is concerned, they are exactly the same questions that have heretofore been offered. The third subdivision, all of them, are not. The sole purpose of offering it is to show who became parties to that Trust, both at its original formation and subsequently up to 1896.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

Interrogatory 11. State whether or not the certificate owned by you as administratrix is still in your possession. If so, please attach a copy of same to your answer, and make it a part thereof, and also attach any other papers appertaining to said certificate and mark these for identification.

Answer. It is. The original Trust Certificate for six shares is in my possession, and I attach a copy of the same to my answer and make it a part hereof, marking said copy Exhibit B. There is also a copy of this same certificate contained in my Exhibit A hereto attached, at page 37 thereof. I have also one share of Assignment of Legal Title issued by the Liquidating Trustees and also Scrip or Fractional Shares in the twenty different companies in the Trust as given by them in 1896, as named in the last list in my answer to the tenth interrogatory above, but I do not consider that these appertain to that certificate.

Judge PENN: If the exhibits referred to are offered we want to make an objection.

703 Mr. BRADY: We offer them in connection with this answer.

Judge PENN: Are you offering "A"?

Mr. ALLEN: No; that is that pamphlet.

Judge PENN: You offer exhibit "B." We object to the exhibit offered in evidence, purporting to be a copy of a certificate, on the ground, first, that it is immaterial and irrelevant; second, on the ground that there is no proof of the execution of the original by the parties purporting to have executed it, and, consequently, a copy of the original is not admissible in evidence. A copy could not be admitted in evidence without proof first having been made of the execution of the original.

Mr. ALLEN: She testifies that they issued that certificate to Rice, and it is immaterial as to who executed it. She says they issued it to him.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon Exhibit "B" was introduced in evidence, and it reads as follows:

Shares $100 Each.

Standard Oil Trust.

Number 8618. Shares 6.

This is to certify that George Rice is entitled to Six Shares in the equity to the property held by the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust, transferable only on the books of said Trustees on surrender of this Certificate. This Certificate is issued upon condition that the holder or any transferee thereof shall be subject to all the provisions of the agreement creating said Trust and of the by-laws adopted in pursuance of said agreement as fully as if he had signed the said Trust Agreement.

This certificate is issued nunc pro tunc in compliance with the judgment of the special term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, City and County of New York, entered on the fourteenth day of January, 1890, in an action wherein George Rice is plaintiff and Jno. D. Rockefeller and others as Trustees of The Standard Oil Trust are defendants.

Thereupon, at 5.50 P. M., the trial was adjourned until 9.30 A. M. May 22, 1907.

WEDNESDAY, May 22, 1907—9.30 a. m.

Mr. ALLEN: Shall we proceed, Your Honor?

The COURT: Yes, sir.

Mr. ALLEN: Next is the twelfth interrogatory.

Interrogatory 12: If you have in your possession more than one kind of Trust Certificate, attach a copy of each to your answer, mark each for identification, and state in your answer whether or not the copy is correct.

Judge PENN: Do you propose to offer the exhibits, Mr. Allen?

Mr. ALLEN: Yes, sir.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the intro-
705 duction in evidence of the exhibits referred to in this answer, being copies, as she states, of certain instruments, on the ground that there is no proof of the execution of the originals of these instruments by the parties purporting to have executed the same, and that, the execution of the originals not being proven, the copies are not admissible in evidence; and we object to the answer, Your Honor, with reference to whether or not she has in her possession the instruments referred to, on the ground that the execution of these instruments is not proven, and their execution not being proven, the question as to whether or not she is in possession of instruments of the character described is immaterial. Here is the question and the answer objected to (handing same to the Court).

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. As stated in my answer to the seventh interrogatory, I have in my possession, besides the Standard Oil Trust Certificate of six shares, a certificate of the Liquidating Trustees, called an Assignment of Legal Title, and one certificate of ownership of fractional shares or scrip in each of the twenty constituent companies named in the last list in my answer to the tenth interrogatory above. I attach a copy of the certificate of the Liquidating Trustees and of each of said scrip certificates to this deposition as a part of my answer to this interrogatory, each marked Exhibit C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, and W, respectively, and identified further by my initials signed by me thereunder. Steps are now being taken to exchange the share of Assignment of Legal Title hereinbefore referred to into a share in The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Thereupon the Exhibits referred to in the foregoing answer were introduced in evidence and read as follows:

706 EXHIBIT C.

Number A 18668.

Assignment of Legal Title to Stocks Heretofore Represented by One Shares Standard Oil Trust.

Whereas George Rice is the owner of equitable title to 1/972,500 of the amount of corporate stocks held by the Trustees of The Standard Oil Trust in each of the several corporations whose stocks were held by said Trust on the first day of July, A. D. 1892, which equitable ownership was represented by one shares of Standard Oil Trust surrendered for cancellation. Now we, the Trustees in whose names the legal title to said stock stands, do hereby assign and transfer to George Rice and his assigns the legal title to the aforesaid amount of the said stocks, and authorize the proper officers of the several corporations to transfer upon their books and to issue corporate certificates for the required amount of their respective capital stocks upon presentation and cancellation of this assignment. The several corporations will issue stock certificates for whole shares and scrip for fractions of shares, and upon presentation of fractional share scrip sufficient for the purpose, certificates for whole shares will be issued. When transfer of stock upon the corporate books is desired by virtue of this assignment, it must be placed in the hands of an attorney in fact both for the assignee and the undersigned Trustees, and said attorney shall first obtain the proper certificates and scrip from all the several companies, and thereupon shall deliver the certificate to the Trustees and the stock certificates and scrip to the party or parties entitled thereto.

Trustees to Liquidate.

STANDARD OIL TRUST,
720 By WM. ROCKEFELLER,
Attorney in Fact.

April 6th, 1896.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, then, the thirteenth.

Interrogatory 13. After the formation of the Standard Oil Trust, state whether or not any other companies joined in the Trust, or were incorporated by the Trust, and if so, state what companies so joined or were created by the Trust.

Judge PENN: We object to the answer of this witness, Your Honor, to this question, on the ground that it appears to be a mere conclusion of the witness; on the further ground that it appears to be hearsay; on the further ground that it is provided by the Standard Oil Trust Agreement, which has been introduced in evidence, that persons or corporations becoming parties thereto should do so by instruments in writing, and the instruments in writing are the best evidence of other parties becoming parties to that instrument; on the further ground that the witness does not claim in her answer to have any personal knowledge of the facts which she seems to think constituted these other companies parties to this trust, and it is therefore hearsay.

The COURT: Let me see it.

Mr. ALLEN: She only gives those that are known to her.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. There were other companies. Those known to me are the following: The Atlantic Refining Company, Pennsylvania; The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky; The Buckeye Pipe Line Company, Ohio; New York Transit Company, New York; The Solar Refining Company of Ohio; The Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas Company, Ohio; Union Tank Line Company, New Jersey; Southern 721 Pipe Line Company, Pennsylvania; Northern Pipe Line Company, Pennsylvania; The Eureka Pipe Line Company, West Virginia; Indiana Pipe Line Company, Indiana; Standard Oil Company of Indiana; Standard Oil Company of New York; Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; The Ohio Oil Company, Ohio; Forest Oil Company, Pennsylvania; South Penn Oil Company, Pennsylvania; The Anglo-American Oil Company (Limited).

Interrogatory 14. After the judgment of the Supreme Court of Ohio, state what difference, if any, was made with reference to the conduct and control of the companies which had been in the Trust by the trustees of the Standard Oil Trust, and state what is the present method of controlling and managing the companies that went into the Trust.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the answer of the witness to this question, on the ground that it does not appear that the witness has any personal knowledge of the matters therein testified to, and that it appears from the answer that it is the mere conclusion of the witness.

The COURT: The objection is overruled. What is the date of this deposition?

Mr. ALLEN: It was taken the 21st day of November, 1906.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts to the ruling of the Court.

Answer. They made little or no change until contempt proceedings were brought in 1897, when they transferred more Trust Certificates into Assignments of Legal Title Certificates and soon thereafter closed as many of them as possible into stock in The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which is the present method of controlling and managing the companies now in the Trust, The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey being able to hold stock of the other companies in the Trust became the holding company.

Interrogatory 15. Do you know anything about certificates issued after the judgment of the Supreme Court of Ohio, signed by John D. Rockefeller, President, certifying that the holders were entitled 722 to certain shares in the equity to the property held by the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust? If so, state whether or not one of these certificates was issued to George Rice or to you, and copy one of these certificates and make it a part of your answer.

Judge PENN: We have covered this same matter by previous objections, and don't care to renew it.

Answer. I do. George Rice was the owner and his estate is still the owner of one of these certificates, which is called Assignment of Legal Title. I have attached a copy of this certificate to this deposition as a part of my answer to the twelfth interrogatory, as Exhibit

"C", and hereby refer to said copy and exhibit as a part of my answer to this interrogatory.

Interrogatory 16. Give all the steps which have been taken by the Standard Oil Trust, or its trustees, or what is known as the Standard Oil interests since the rendition of the judgment by the Supreme Court of Ohio in carrying out that judgment, or in invading its provisions, or as the result of that judgment.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the answer of the witness to this question, on the ground that the witness does not appear to have any personal knowledge of the matters therein stated; that the matters stated appear to be but mere conclusions of the witness; on the further ground that it appears from the answer that these were transactions—these matters she testifies about were transactions with George Rice, who, by her previous answers, is shown to be dead; that she is his administratrix, and does not appear to have been present when any of the transactions took place or had any personal knowledge of the matter.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

Answer. As a result of that judgment The Standard Oil Trust agreed to dissolve, and, in order to do this, issued certificates called Assignments of Legal Title, signed by the Trustees to Liqui-
723 date The Standard Oil Trust to take the place of the original Standard Oil Trust Certificates. Nothing more was done, few certificates were exchanged, and both original Trust Certificates and Assignments of Legal Title Certificates were bought and sold on the market on same basis. When contempt proceedings were brought in 1897 by the Attorney General of the State of Ohio they began to get busy and changed a great many more certificates of The Standard Oil Trust into Assignments of Legal Title and then from that into the stock of The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Mr. George Rice insisted on having one Assignment of Legal Title transferred into corporate scrip of the various companies in the Trust, which with great reluctance they finally so transferred. This was accomplished through Mr. J. L. Kemper, in whose name the scrip in the various companies were issued, and who then transferred them to George Rice, but as they draw no dividends are probably the only ones so transferred or ever issued. The Assignment of Legal Title, marked Exhibit "C", is now in process of transfer into the stock of The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, where it will receive dividends on the earnings of all the companies in the Trust.

Interrogatory 17. State whether or not you have in your possession as administratrix of George Rice any instruments made or executed by the Standard Oil Trust or the trustees of the Standard Oil Trust, or the trustees in liquidation of the Standard Oil Trust, or any of the successors of either of these parties concerning the matter of ownership by George Rice of an interest in the Standard Oil Trust, or any company belonging to or controlled by it. If so, attach to your answers a copy of each of these instruments, marking it for identification, and state the circumstances under which George Rice or yourself received it.

Judge PENN: It is covered by previous objections.

Answer. I have. My answers to the former interrogatories cover all this interrogatory.

724 Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence an agreement signed by counsel, being stipulation No. 1, as to stock ownership.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we offer no objection at all to the first fact agreed to—the first paragraph in this stipulation. To the second, we object as being irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case—to that portion of the agreement relating to what shares of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company incorporated in 1878 were owned by the Standard Oil Company. To the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh paragraphs, we object on the ground that the matters therein agreed to are immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case. These matters relate to the ownership by the Standard Oil Company of stock in other companies, and it does not appear that any of these other companies ever contemplated doing business in Texas, and it appears affirmatively from the agreement that neither of these companies ever did any business in Texas or ever obtained a permit to do business in Texas and never applied for a permit to do business in Texas. The eighth paragraph we object to as immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. ALLEN: I will make the suggestion, if Your Honor please, that one purpose of offering that is to show that they never did business in Texas, any of them, except the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, in addition to the objections made by associate counsel to the stipulation showing the ownership of stock by the Standard Oil Company in certain corporations, I should like to offer the further objection that if the Standard Oil Company was authorized under the laws of the States creating those corporations to own stock in them, that the State of Texas can not raise the question of the illegality of the holding of the stock by the Standard Oil Company; and the further objection that when a 725 corporation comes into Texas and receives a permit to do business in the State, it comes with all of its capacities and functions as they exist in the State of its creation; and, further, that in the admission of foreign corporations into Texas no regard is paid by our laws to the incorporators of those companies nor to the manner of their constitution or organization.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

(Thereupon Stipulation No. 1, signed by counsel for both plaintiff and defendant, was introduced in evidence. It reads as follows:

"It is agreed, for the purpose of this case, only, upon the following facts, subject to all legal objections by either party:

First. That the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is a corporation organized under the laws of New Jersey; that since its organization in 1882 it has not conducted any business in the State of Texas; that it has not applied for or been granted a permit to transact any of its corporate business in the State of Texas.

Second. That said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey did own in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, in May, 1878, 2,747 shares out of a total of 4,000 shares of the said company, and that since about the 24th day of September, 1900, it has owned 2,748 shares of the capital stock out of a total of 4,000 shares of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company organized under the laws of Missouri, May 29, 1900.

Third. That the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey owns a majority of the shares of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Indiana on the 11th day of June, 1889, and that said Standard Oil Company of Indiana does business in Indiana, a part of Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas, South Dakota and North Dakota, but has at no time since its organization transacted any business in the State of Texas and has not applied for nor has it been granted a permit under the laws of Texas to do any business in said State of Texas.

Fourth. That the said Standard Oil Company of New 726 Jersey owns a majority of the shares of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of New York, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, on the 10th day of August, 1882; that the Standard Oil Company of New York does business in the States of New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire, and it has at no time transacted any business in the State of Texas and has not applied for nor has it been granted a permit under the laws of Texas to do any business in the said State of Texas.

Fifth. That the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey owns a majority of the shares of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Kentucky on the 7th day of October, 1886, and that the said Standard Oil Company of Kentucky does business in the following States: Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and part of Louisiana; that the said Standard Oil Company of Kentucky has at no time transacted any business in the State of Texas and has not applied for nor has it been granted a permit under the laws of Texas to do business in said State of Texas.

Sixth. That the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey owns a majority of the shares of the capital stock of the Continental Oil Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Iowa in December, 1884, and that the said Continental Oil Company has at no time transacted any business in the State of Texas and has not applied for nor has it been granted a permit under the laws of Texas to do any business in said State of Texas.

Seventh. That the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey owns a majority of the shares of capital stock of the Republic Oil Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York on the 4th day of June, 1901: and that said Republic Oil Company has at no time transacted any business in the State of Texas and has not applied for nor has it been granted a permit under 727 the laws of Texas to do any business in said State of Texas.

Eighth. That said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has owned the said majority shares of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of New York, and of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, and of the Continental Oil Company of Iowa, and of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and of the Republic Oil Company of New York, since practically the dates of their respective organizations.")

Mr. ALLEN: Now, we next offer in evidence these charters of the several corporations named.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, the purported articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, we make the objection, first, that it is immaterial and irrelevant——

The COURT: I did not understand what you said the paper was.

Judge PENN: It is what they offer as a certified copy of the charter of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. We make the objection, first, that it is immaterial and irrelevant. Second, there is no proof that this company was incorporated in accordance with the laws of the State of Kentucky. Third, that it appears that this company was not incorporated in accordance with the laws of the State of Kentucky. We object to the certificate attached to these copies by the Secretary of State of the State of Kentucky as to what was the law of the State of Kentucky in these respects, as being not the best evidence of what the laws of Kentucky are and as being entirely hearsay, it not being made to appear to the Court that among other duties of the Secretary of State of the State of Kentucky it was his duty to certify what the laws of that State are. We make the further objection that it does not appear that any charter was ever granted by the State of Kentucky to the Standard Oil Company therein named. We desire to add the further objection that the original charter does not appear to have ever been filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Kentucky. And we add the further objection that this instrument is not authenticated 728 under the acts of Congress relating to the public acts of officers of the States, relating to the introduction in evidence of acts of public officers of one State in the courts of another State.

Mr. ALLEN: I will call your attention to one suggestion. This agreement states the date of the incorporation, and they agree that there was a corporation formed on that date, under the laws of Kentucky—agreed to as facts, that it was properly incorporated.

The COURT: The objection is overruled, except so much as relates to the certificate of the Secretary of State of the State of Kentucky, which is sustained.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky were introduced in evidence.)

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the instrument which they offer as a certified copy of the articles of association of the Standard Oil Company of Pittsburg, on the ground, first, that it is irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case. Second, that this instrument does not appear to have ever been filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Pennsylvania. Third, that it is not certified in accordance with the provisions of Article 906 of the statutes of the United States. To be more specific as to this objection, that it is not certified under the—has not the great seal of the State of Pennsylvania affixed to the certification nor certified by any other officer as provided by Article 906 of the statutes of the United States.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company organized under the laws of Pennsylvania on the 15th of August, 1868, were introduced in evidence.)

729 Mr. ALLEN: We offer in evidence certified copy of the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company and the increase of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please your honor, we object to the introduction in evidence of this document, for the reason that it is irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case. We further object that this is a charter granted by the laws of another State, and that the State of Texas can not make any inquiry into the validity of this corporation, if that is one of the purposes for which it is offered.

Mr. ALLEN: We do not offer it, of course, for the purpose of inquiring into the validity of the charter. We offer it for the purpose of showing the formation of these corporations and the carrying it out, just like provided in the original Trust Agreement, and to show stock ownership and the aggregation of the different corporations. It may be perfectly legitimate originally, but our courts have held that they can not use the corporations as a blind.

Judge STEDMAN: We further object to the introduction of this charter in evidence, for the reason that it appears from the stipulation on file in this case that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana has no permit to do business in the State of Texas and has not applied for a permit to do business in Texas.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana were introduced in evidence.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, we offer in evidence certified copy of the articles of incorporation and the amendments thereto of the Standard Oil Company incorporated under the laws of the State of Iowa.

Judge PENN: We object, on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

730 (Thereupon the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company incorporated under the laws of the State of Iowa, with amendments thereto, were introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence original charter and the various amendments of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, may it please Your Honor, we object to the introduction of the copy of the original charter and the copy of the certificate of extension of the corporate powers of the Standard Oil Company of New York, and to each and all of the amendments to its charter upon the ground that each and all of these documents are immaterial and irrelevant. We further object to the introduction of these documents or any of them, for the reason that, as appears from the stipulation on file, the Standard Oil Company of New York has never obtained a permit to transact any business in Texas and has never applied for a permit to transact business in Texas. And we further object to the introduction in evidence of these documents, for the reason that it appears from the certificate of the extension of corporate powers that the Standard Oil Company was incorporated and exists for purposes that would preclude its admission to do business in the State of Texas. That objection is based upon the statutory provision of Texas to the effect that a foreign corporation shall be allowed to transact business only for some single, specified purpose. The certificate of the extension of powers shows that this company is permitted to transact not merely a general oil business, but also to engage in the acquisition, holding and disposition of stocks and bonds and other evidences of debt.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

(Thereupon the articles of incorporation of the Standard Oil Company of New York, with amendments thereto, were introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: We will offer all of these. They are the articles of incorporation of the Atlantic Refining Company and the various amendments thereto under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania.

731 Judge STEDMAN: We object to the introduction in evidence, may it please the Court, of each and all of these documents. First, because they and all of them are immaterial and irrelevant; and second, because it appears from one of the documents, dated on the 20th day of April, 1870, that the company was authorized to exercise all the privileges and franchises incident to a corporation, and that a company created by the laws of another State with such extensive powers could not under the laws of Texas be admitted into Texas to do business here; in other words, that the laws of Texas would not permit the granting of a license to a corporation created under the laws of another States for such indefinite and unlimited powers as are conferred upon this corporation by this charter.

The COURT: What is the purpose of this?

Mr. ALLEN: The purpose of it is, we have charged that the Atlantic Refining Company is one of the companies that are a part of this trust and that it entered into this agreement and the territory was parceled out, and it is shown—we expect to show by the testimony that all of the crude oil that was purchased by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for shipment was purchased from this company and nobody else.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: There is no stipulation here about the division of territory as to this particular company in this agreement, but we charge in the petition that it was one of the conspirators that entered into this general conspiracy which we have alleged; that is charged in the petition, that this corporation entered into the conspiracy that was entered into by all the corporations, and also the original Trust Agreement shows on its face that this particular corporation was a party to that general trust agreement.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

(Thereupon the articles of incorporation of the Atlantic Refining Company, with the amendments thereto, were introduced in evidence.

732 Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence portion of R. H. McNall's deposition, shown on page 5 of the questions and answers.

Judge PENN: We object, Your Honor, to the entire portion of the deposition of R. H. McNall which is offered, on the ground that all of the portions of the deposition which they offer are immaterial and irreleva[illegible].

Mr. ALLEN: That part that is offered is offered simply to show, and does show, where the Continental Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of Iowa do business—what States.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

(Mr. Lightfoot read the questions and Mr. Allen the answers, as follows:

Q. What business was Mr. H. M. Tilford in?

A. Oil business.

Q. What company was he connected with?

A. Continental Oil Company.

Q. What State?

A. Well, they do business in the West. Their head office was at Denver. I can't say what State they were incorporated in.

Q. What other companies?

A. The Standard Oil Company of San Francisco; that is an Iowa corporation, I believe.

Q. Well, what other connections did he have?

A. I don't remember of any other connections.

Q. Wasn't he connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at the time?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. What States did the Continental do business in during the time that you were associated with Mr. Tilford?

A. Colorado, Utah, Montana, New Mexico and Idaho.

Q. Did they do business in Arizona?

A. Yes, they did business in Arizona.

733 Q. Now, what States did the Standard Oil Company of San Francisco do business in?

A. Washington, Oregon, California, and I think also Arizona.

Q. Did they do business in Nevada?

A. Yes, I omitted that.")

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the deposition of E. M. Wilhoit, taken on interrogatories propounded by the State.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, where do you live, how long have you lived there, and where did you live prior to that time?

Answer. E. M. Wilhoit. 460 Monroe Street, Springfield, Missouri. Three years and a half. Joplin, Missouri.

Interrogatory 2. If you have stated that you lived at Topeka, Kansas (or if it be a fact), state what business you were engaged in there.

Answer. Yes, I lived in Topeka, Kansas, before coming to Joplin; was in the independent oil business a few months in Topeka, and was in the employ of the Standard Oil Company something like four years.

Interrogatory 3. If you have stated that you were agent for the Standard Oil Company, state what Standard Oil Company it was—that is to say, under the laws of what State was it incorporated—and state whether or not it is the same concern doing business in Missouri, and state whether or not the management is the same.

Answer. To the best of my knowledge it was the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. It was under the same management that governed the Standard Oil Company in Missouri. It was the same concern.

Interrogatory 4. What was your business at Topeka, Kansas, for the Standard Oil Company?

Answer. I was agent and had full charge of their business at that station.

Interrogatory 5. State whether or not prior to your employ-

734 ment by the Standard Oil Company at Topeka you had any connection with any oil concern at any other point in Kansas. If so, state what concern it was.

Answer. The Standard Oil Company at Wichita, Kansas.

Interrogatory 6. If in answer to the preceding question you say that you were employed at Wichita, Kansas, by the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state what became of this company, what was done with its property, and who succeeded to its business.

Judge PENN: We object to the answer to that question, Your Honor, on the ground, first, that it is irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case; second, that it appears that the Consolidated Tank Line Company was a company doing business entirely in other States, and the matters as to what may have become of the Consolidated Tank Line Company can not be material to any issue in this case, and whatever may have been done with the Consolidated Tank Line Company could not constitute a violtaion of the laws of this State.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. The Standard Oil Company absorbed the Consolidated Tank Line Company. I was employed by the Consolidated Tank Line Company at the time it was absorbed by the Standard.

Interrogatory 7. If in answer to the preceding question you state that you were located at Wichita, Kansas, state what territory was included within the agency at Wichita, and state whether or not the Indian Territory was included within this territory.

Judge PENN: We object to that, Your Honor, as irrelevant and immaterial.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. I traveled out of Wichita for several years and Wichita's territory was exclusively Southwest Kansas. The Indian Ter-735 ritory was not included in the Standard's territory.

Interrogatory 8. If you say that the Indian Territory was not included in the territory of the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state what oil company did business in that territory.

Answer. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 9. State whether or not while you were working for the Consolidated Tank Line Company, or the Standard Oil Company, you ever filled any orders for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state what action, if any, was taken by you with reference to the labeling of the goods.

Judge PENN: That is interrogatory No. 9. We object to the answer to this interrogatory, on the ground that the interrogatory inquires about and the answer relates only to business done in States other than Texas, either entirely intrastate business in another State or interstate commerce, and that whatever may have been done with reference to business done entirely in another State or interstate business could not constitute a violation of the laws of the State of Texas.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. Wichita's station of the Consolidated Tank Line Company or Standard Oil Company frequently received orders mailed direct from dealers in the Indian Territory, which were filled by the Consolidated Tank Line Company, but not in the name of the Consolidated Tank Line Company. They were filled from the storage tanks of the Consolidated Tank Line Company, but a label of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was used on the barrels in which shipment was made, as the Consolidated Company at that point was provided with Waters-Pierce Oil Company's labels. Such shipments as mentioned were charged to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and were not billed direct to the customer.

Intrrogatory 10. State whether or not you ever had any inquiries from the Panhandle country of Texas, and if so, state whether 736 this country was included within the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory, or in the territory of the Consolidated Tank Line Company or the Standard Oil Company, and state what action, if any, was taken by you with reference to the trade in the Panhandle.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the answer to this question, on the ground that it relates entirely to interstate commerce, and whatever may have been done could not constitute a violation of the laws of this State; on the further ground that the entire answer is immaterial and irrelevant. We object further to the statement, "I was instructed to make trips, which I did make, and inasmuch as the inquiries were for car-lots" and so on—statement here as to his instructions—on the ground that it is hearsay; and in the last sentence of the answer, after the comma, on the ground that it is hearsay.

Mr. ALLEN: It states that those instructions were given by the manager of the Standard.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. Yes sir, we had inquiries from the Panhandle country of Texas, which was the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory, and two different years on receipt of such inquiries I was instructed to make trips, which I did make, and inasmuch as the inquiries were for car-lots, and was given a schedule of prices to sell on, by the Consolidated Tank Line Company or Standard Oil Company, and was instructed by their manager, if necessary, to shade the prices liberally to secure the orders, as it was in the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, which we had no right to make shipments into, but if such shipments were secured, it would greatly increase the gallonage output of the Standard, and to wire my orders in, in order that they might be filled if possible before being detected by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. I made trips two seasons in succession, making sales, and on asking to go third season, they stated that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had gotten on to us and could not make further shipments to that territory.

737 Interrogatory 11. If in answer to the last question you state that you made one or more trips into the Panhandle of Texas, state at whose instance you went, and state what you did there, and state if your action was with the concurrence and consent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or if it was taken with the expectation and intention that that company would not know of your sales in the Panhandle of Texas.

Answer. I believe I have answered that in the preceding paragraph.

Interrogatory 12. Have you any knowledge of the dividing line between the territory assigned to the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company? If so, state where it is, and state how you acquired your knowledge.

Judge PENN: We object to that, Your Honor, as being irrelevant and immaterial, and as relating entirely to business outside of the State of Texas and interstate commerce; and we object further specially to the statement contained in this answer, "I was instructed to not make any sales in the Indian Territory or Texas, as that was the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company," as being hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. I have no knowledge of a dividing line except as I came in contact with it through instructions from the Standard and since being in the independent business, observing that the Standard sold goods in a certain territory and such territory was not invaded by the Waters-Pierce and the Waters-Pierce's territory was not invaded by the Standard; and while with the Standard and Consolidated Tank Line Company, I was instructed to not make any sales in the Indian Territory or Texas, as that was the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and the only sales I was permitted to make in such territory were those I have previously outlined. The territory or boundary line, such as we have observed, the State line of Texas,
North line of Indian Territory, the East line of the extreme 738 Southern part of Kansas running North to between Lamar and Jasper, Missouri, thence Northeasterly across the State of Missouri, being the dividing line between the Waters-Pierce and Standard Oil Company's territories, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company operating South of this line and the Standard Oil Company North.

Interrogatory 13. In what parts of Missouri and Kansas have you sold oil? At what points have you been in competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and at what points have you been in competition with the Standard Oil Company? State whether or not you have ever at any point been in competition with both companies.

Judge PENN: We make the same objections, Your Honor—that it is immaterial and irrelevant and relates to business transacted outside the State of Texas.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. I have sold oil at Topeka, Kansas, as business headquarters; now have distributing points at Springfield and Joplin, Missouri. At Topeka, Kansas, the Waters-Pierce to my knowledge never made a sale. At Joplin and Springfield, Missouri, I have never known the Standard to make a sale. Joplin, Missouri, being but eight miles from Galena, I have never known the Standard to make a sale at Joplin; while at Galena, eight miles distant and just across the Kansas line, I have never come in contact with where the Waters-Pierce have made a sale. At Carthage, Missouri, and Jasper, Missouri, the Waters-Pierce sells no doubt ninety per cent. of the oil that is consumed; and at Lamar, Missouri, a few miles distant North, the Standard sells all the oil that is sold. I have never known them to market oil both in the same territory or come in competition with each other except in the Panhandle of Texas, as previously outlined.

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the deposition of CHARLES F. HATFIELD.

739 Interrogatory 1. What is your name, residence and business?

Answer. Charles F. Hatfield; residence 216 Delmar; Secretary Eidson Publishing Company.

Interrogatory 2. State whether or not you have ever had any position with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state for what period and the character of your employment.

Answer. Yes. 1889, October 1st, to November 1st, 1904; the first six months at Marshall, Texas, as assistant manager, title of chief clerk, this being the division headquarters of the East Texas and Louisiana division of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company; after that until November of 1904 in the general offices at St. Louis, part of the time as assistant to the vice president, and afterwards in charge of the freight and claim department, and other statistical work, also embracing special work for various offices like the collecting of large railroad accounts and sales made to railroads.

Interrogatory 3. Before you became employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company state what your business was. State where you were employed.

Answer. Private Secretary to Col. W. P. Thompson. New York and Cleveland.

Interrogatory 4. If you have said, or if it be a fact, that you were employed at 26 Broadway, New York City, by what name the building was generally known?

Answer. Standard Oil Block.

Interrogatory 5. If you have said that you were employed as the private secretary of Col. Thompson, state who Col. Thompson was. State what his business was when you first knew him, and state what connection, if any, he had with the Standard Oil Company.

Judge PENN: We object to that as being irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in the case.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

740 Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. Principally Chairman of the committee known as the Domestic Trade Committee. He was also in general charge of the traffic arrangements of the Standard Oil Company, a director in a large number of other companies, oil, banks, trusts, like the Mercantile Trust, railroads, and generally a very busy man. When I first knew him he was secretary of the Standard Oil Company at Cleveland; afterwards vice president of that company until he removed to New York to take charge of the D. T. Committee, as above.

Interrogatory 6. Did you know H. E. Felton? If so, state by whom and where he was employed.

Answer. Yes. I first knew him in the Cleveland office and afterwards in New York, in the employ of the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 7. If you say that he was employed by the Standard Oil Company, or was employed at 26 Broadway, state what department he was in.

Answer. I think it was in the traffic, or the Union Tank Line—I have really forgotten exactly which.

Interrogatory 8. State whether or not you ever had any occasion to know anything about the trade territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state how you know, and state what the territory was.

Answer. I had a general knowledge through the correspondence that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company territory was West of the Mississippi River, taking in half of Missouri and including Oklahoma and Indian Territory, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, down to about Morgan City, and Old Mexico.

Interrogatory 9. If in answer to the preceding question you say that you first became familiar with the matter by reason of handling the correspondence of Col. Thompson in settling a controversy concerning this territory, state between what companies the controversy was, and state all the circumstances connected with Col.
741 Thompson's disposition of this controversy.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the answer to this interrogatory No. 9 as being irrelevant and immaterial; and on the further ground that the matters therein testified to appear to relate to matters entirely outside of the State of Texas, namely, in the State of Missouri; and on the further ground that it does not appear from the answers of the witness when the transactions testified to by him in this answer occurred.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. Between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Consolidated Tank Line Company, operating in the West and, I think, taking in the Northern part of Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, and West; the dispute was over some county in Missouri, and the matter of adjustment was referred to Colonel Thompson by both above companies, he being the Eastern director of both of these companies, to which all general correspondence of such character was referred. The adjustment was made by the Colonel's having a map made showing the dividing lines in Missouri, a copy of which was sent to both companies and one kept in the New York office. My answer covers the facts, there is lots of detail to it, but I don't remember all this.

Interrogatory 10. State whether or not you ever had any other occasion to become informed of the division of the territory for trade purposes between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company and its dependent companies, and if so, state what the occasion was, and state how you ascertained the facts connected with the matter, and state the territory conceded by the Standard Oil Company to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. Only in general correspondence, running over eight or nine years, and so many times that I could not remember the circumstances.

Interrogatory 11. Have you any knowledge of the scheme
742 or plan by which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company became familiar with the operation of its competitions? If so, state how you became familiar therewith, and state minutely and in detail the plan pursued.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to the answer to that interrogatory on the ground that it is irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case; and that the plans or schemes of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for obtaining information with reference to the operations of their competitors could not constitute any violation of the anti-trust laws or any other laws of this State.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Please note our exception, Your Honor.

Answer. That's a broad question, that I could not answer fully. I can merely say that through the agents of their own and friendly companies they had a general knowledge of the movements of competitive —. The data was systematically compiled and submitted to the proper officials, but the use made by them of this could only be surmised by me. My connection was simply in compiling statistics that were furnished me, working under the instructions of the president and vice president of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

(Interrogatories Nos. 12 and 13 omitted.)

Interrogatory 14. From whom did you receive instructions or directions in discharging the duties assigned to you by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. At different times I received instructions from every officer of the company from the president down to the general manager, as I was general utility man on account of my acquaintance with the railroad people.

Mr. ALLEN: The fifteenth says he didn't have any direct knowledge; we don't offer that.

(Interrogatories Nos. 16 and 17 omitted.)

743 Interrogatory 18. If in answer to any question you have stated that you are familiar with the trade territory occupied by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, then state whether or not you had occasion while employed in Col. Thompson's office to make any character of writing defining such territory; if so, state what it was and the circumstances under which it was made.

Answer. Too long ago for me to remember details, but in the general correspondence lasting for many years it was generally conceded that the territory as I have stated above was a matter about which there was no discussion to my knowledge, except in the special incident mentioned above where the Missouri line was not thoroughly defined. While I was in Texas there was a dispute with the Standard Oil people at New Orleans as to the exact dividing line in Southeast Louisiana, which was adjusted while I was there.

Interrogatory 19. When you left 26 Broadway, New York, where did you go, and in what companies' employ did you enter?

Answer. I'll answer it in my own way. Col. Thompson was elected president of the National Lead trust, I think, in May, 1889, and from that time until the latter part of August of that year my time was divided between #26 Broadway and the office of the National Lead trust. I resigned my position with the Colonel to accept the position that had been tendered to me some months previously by Mr. Pierce, in connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. That explains it.

Interrogatory 20. If in answer to the foregoing interrogatory you have stated, or if it be a fact, that you went to St. Louis and entered the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, then state whether or not you saw in the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company any writings, maps or other documents which had been prepared at 26 Broadway; if so, state what they were and what they referred to.

Judge PENN: Just a moment, Mr. Allen.

Mr. ALLEN: We don't offer any part of it, except that 744 about the map.

Judge PENN: Well, go ahead.

Answer. The map referred to above. I didn't quite understand the question, but the map referred to is the only document that I remember that referred to the territorial lines of the company.

Interrogatory 21. How long did you work for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and when did you sever your connection with them?

Answer. It is answered above, but I'll repeat it: from October 1st, 1889, to November 1st, 1904. I want to add to that, and I desire to state in this connection that I resigned my position to go into business for myself, with a letter of regrets from the president. I want to make this record so that there will be no opportunity for assuming that I am in any way unfriendly to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company or its officials, and, in fact, I am an unwilling witness in this case.

Interrogatory 22. Give in detail your knowledge of the plans of organization of the business at 26 Broadway, stating what companies were represented at that place, and who represented them at the time you were employed there, and state whether or not the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was represented by any officer or agent in that organization.

Judge PENN: We object to the answer of this witness, Your Honor, in so far as he undertakes to detail the plan of organization at 26 Broadway, on the ground that it appears to be but a conclusion of the witness from which he has no personal knowledge. We make the further objection that the entire answer is immaterial and irrelevant, and the further objection that it appears from the previous answers of the witness that he left the employ at 26 Broadway October 1, 1889, prior to the organization of this defendant.

Judge STEDMAN: And prior to the enactment of the law.

Judge PENN: Yes, sir, and prior to the enactment of the law under which this defendant is being prosecuted.

The COURT: What is the number of the interrogatory?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: It is the last one—No. 22.

745 Judge PENN: And we make the further objection that there is nothing detailed here that could have been an offense under the laws of this State.

The COURT: The objection is overruled, except as to that clause marked in parenthesis.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we could hardly without complicating matters make specific objection to a sentence here without the other. We desire to object to the second sentence in the answer because it appears that it is hearsay, in addition to the other objections.

Mr. ALLEN: We submit that that is not hearsay, because he starts out with the proposition that what he states is from his own personal knowledge in a general way, and that he is familiar with the plan of work and things in a general way what it was, and must be taken in connection with the other testimony, and detailed fully his means of knowledge, in other words, in previous answers.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Judge PENN: We except to the ruling of the Court as to the first objections made.

Answer. Only in a general way can I answer this question from personal knowledge, as it has been conceded that the organization of the Standard Oil Company and its interests is one of the greatest from a business standpoint in this or any other country. These companies were represented by various officials connected with several committees, such as the domestic trade committee, the manufacturing committee, lubricating oil committee, cooperage committee, and many others, all of which were the same as various departments are handled in a large business house, only instead of one officer looking after the sales, another after the supplies, another after the manufacturing, committees did this work,—all of the committees reporting, of course, to the executive committee, of which it was under-746 stood Mr. John D. Rockefeller was Chairman. For instance, if the domestic trade committee and the manufacturing committee disagreed on any point and could not adjust this disagreement, it would be referred to the executive committee, whose decision was final. So that there might be a clearing house to adjust differences between various subsidiary companies and the different territories, there was one man representing one or more of these, as a member of the domestic trade committee, of which Col. Thompson was Chairman. He also represented the Consolidated Tank Line Company, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the Camden Oil Company, I think it was, at Parkersburg, and, I believe, the Baltimore United Oil Company. Mr. H. A. Hutchins represented, for instance, the Standard Oil Company of Chicago, Cleveland, and some others which I don't recall. I think Mr. H. M. Tilford largely represented the Western companies, like the Continental, with headquarters at Denver, and the San Francisco interests. After I left # 26 Broadway, I think it was, the Standard Oil Trust was dissolved, and I have no personal knowledge of the manner in which the business was handled, but what companies, or what representatives, I could not state. During the entire time that I was connected with the Standard Oil Company at Cleveland and New York, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was represented by Colonel W. P. Thompson—at least, all the correspondence was addressed to him that came into his department or his committee. I do not know that they would place their orders for supplies with him, as there was a General Distribution Department; orders, at that time, being received in this Department from all subsidiary companies, and shipments made from whatever refinery had the stock and was nearest to the point of destination. Remember, that it has been many years since I was at # 26 Broadway.

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the judgment rendered in the case of the State of Texas against the Waters-Pierce Oil 747 Company on the 15th day of June, 1897.

Judge PENN: We object to that judgment as irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case, as being a judgment in a suit to which this defendant was not a party.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the judgment rendered in cause No. 12,589, the State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Company, dated June 15, 1897, was introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: We offer in evidence certified copy of an affidavit purporting to show the dissolution of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company incorporated under the laws of Missouri, on the 7th day of May, 1878.

Judge PENN: We object to that as irrelevant and immaterial, relating to the dissolution of the prior corporation.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the certified copy of affidavit of dissolution of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: Then we offer in evidence next the charter of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, to which you say you have no objection. It is the present company. It was executed on the 28th day of May, 1900; filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Missouri on May 29th, 1900; and filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Texas on the 31st day of May, 1900.

(Thereupon the charter of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company was introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: Then we offer in evidence a certified copy of 748 the permit of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Judge PENN: There is no objection to it.

(Thereupon the certified copy of the permit of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company was introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the mandate from the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of The State of Texas against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company,—certified copy of it.

Judge PENN: We make the same objection to this instrument that we did to the copy of the original judgment introduced in the District Court of Travis County, and which was introduced in evidence,—that it is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case, and is the final judgment in a suit to which this defendant was not a party.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the Mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of The State of Texas vs. Waters-Pierce Oil Company was introduced in evidence.)

Thereupon the Court adjourned until 9.30 A. M. May 23, 1907.

THURSDAY, MAY 23, 1907.

The COURT: We will proceed, Gentlemen.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, we next offer in evidence portion of the deposition of H. Clay Pierce taken in the case of the State of Missouri against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Republic Oil Company, which is offered by agreement that it may be used the same as if taken in this case.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT (to the Stenographer): We want you to take this down.

Mr. ALLEN (reading): Be it remembered, that on Mon-
749 day, the 19th day of March, 1906, at the Southern Hotel in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, this cause coming on for further hearing before Hon. Robert A. Anthony, Commissioner appointed and qualified by the Supreme Court of Missouri to hear the same, the following among other proceedings were had and entered of record, to-wit:

HENRY CLAY PIERCE, being produced, and duly sworn by the Commissioner, on his oath testified for the respondent, Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. JOHN D. JOHNSON:

Q. State your name, please.
A. Henry Clay Pierce.
Q. Your residence?
A. St. Louis.
Q. You spend most of your time in New York City, don't you?
A. All of it.
Q. What is your connection at the present time with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Mr. ALLEN (reading): The further hearing of this cause was adjourned until Tuesday, March 29, 1906, and from time to time from that date until the 10th day of September, 1906, when the hearing of this cause was resumed at the Southern Hotel in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, and the following further proceedings among others were had and entered of record, to wit:—

Mr. ALLEN: Judge Stedman, I suggest that if you have a copy of this testimony in this form it would be very much better, because I am going to jump by pages here, and I don't know how you can keep up with it in any other way.

Judge STEDMAN: I have it only in printed form.

Mr. ALLEN: We have it marked simply with reference to this paging.

Judge STEDMAN: Well, we will do the best we can.

750 Mr. ALLEN: Well, the first question, then, is on page 2. It's about the third or fourth question, Judge.

Judge STEDMAN: All right.

(Mr. Lightfoot read the questions and Mr. Allen the answers.)

Q. Mr. Pierce, you may state your name, age, and place of residence.
A. Henry Clay Pierce; St. Louis; fifty-seven.
Q. Are you a stockholder in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I am.
Q. It is a company organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, is it?
A. It is.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, about three pages of this is skipped.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: On page 3.

Mr. ALLEN: Page 3 or 4—it's page 4.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: There is one question on page 3, Mr. Allen.

Q. Does the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey own any stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, the answer is on the next page.

A. I understand that certain shares of stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company standing on its books in the name of M. M. Van Beuren has been admitted in this case to be the property of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Q. Can you state the number of those shares?

A. I believe the number is 2746.

Q. Substantially that?

A. Substantially. I am not sure as to the exact number.

Q. What number of shares do you own?

A. 1250.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, will you please explain the relations between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and, in order that you may be brief, if you have prepared a memoranda shortly detailing that, I will say that 751 you may refer to that memoranda and read it.

A. I have a memoranda answering that question, which I will read. During the Fall and Winter of 1877 and 1878 I organized under the laws of the State of Missouri the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company, which succeeded to the business of Waters, Pierce & Company. The original capital was one hundred thousand dollars, of which amount Waters, Pierce & Company subscribed for forty per cent., Horace A. Hutchins and William P. Thompson of Cleveland, Ohio, subscribed for forty per cent., and Chess, Carley & Company of Louisville, Kentucky, subscribed for twenty per cent. The first officers of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company were: William H. Waters, director and President; H. Clay Pierce, Director and Vice-President; Charles M. Adams, Secretary and Treasurer; Horace A. Hutchins, Director; William P. Thompson, Director, and Francis D. Carley, Director. Some time after the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company the forty per cent. belonging to Hutchins and Thompson, and the twenty per cent. belonging to Chess, Carley & Company, was transferred to the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust, and I purchased the interest of William H. Waters in the forty per cent. belonging to Waters, Pierce & Company. So that, when, on May 29th, 1900, the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company was liquidated, the assets were distributed in these proportions.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, then, it skips a page, Judge.

A. It simply refreshes my memory. When the license of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company to do business in Texas was revoked, and I sought to settle with the State, so that we could continue our business there, I was told very frankly by a prominent citizen of Texas that the people of that State would not tolerate the methods of the Standard Oil Company, and that no corporation controlled by that company would be permitted to carry on business in Texas. I explained this situation fully to the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company, and they agreed that I should organ-

752 ize a new company, the stock of which I should hold, and that I should manage and control the company absolutely free from any dictation or direction of the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. ALLEN: It skips down then to the next answer.

A. Up to the Spring of 1904 the Standard Oil Company made no attempt to interfere in any way with my management.

"Mr. HADLEY: Up to when?"

A. Up to the Spring of 1904, the Standard Oil Company made no attempt to interfere in any way with my management and control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but at that time they transferred the stock which had stood in my name to Mr. M. M. Van Beuren, and began in other ways to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company. I protested against this conduct as a violation of their agreement with me, and as contrary to the representations which I had made to the people of Texas.

Q. A great deal, Mr. Pierce, has been said in this case about the division of territory between the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. State as briefly as you can when the territorial operations of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company began and to what territory it extended.

A. When, in 1878, I organized the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company, its predecessors, Waters, Pierce & Company and H. C. Pierce & Company, had already established business in all of the territory in which the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company now operates, and it was agreed and understood between myself and the representatives of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, I think, at least it was the only Standard Oil Company that I knew of as being in existence at that time, that the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company would confine its operations and transact its business within the certain territory which Waters, Pierce & Company and H. C. Pierce & Company had transacted their business. In other words, the Waters-
753 Pierce Oil Company organized in 1878 was to take over the business of Waters, Pierce & Company. In pursuance of this understanding, certain lines were agreed upon in the State of Illinois, which comprised parts of, I think, Madison and St. Clair Counties, including East St. Louis——

Q. Wait a minute, Mr. Pierce. Have you that map, Mr. Hadley?

"Mr. HADLEY: Yes sir. (Handing Mr. Priest map, Exhibit "A.")"

"Mr. HADLEY: The red line with the black marks across it is the line drawn by Judge Johnson, as I understand it."

Q. Mr. Pierce, describe generally, without being particular, the divisional line of territory agreed upon at that time.

A. This map, as presented to me, is not correct. I am sufficiently familiar with it to state that. The original map is in my possession, or was, and I suppose search will disclose it. I will be very glad to produce it.

"Mr. HADLEY: It was in response to the original notice that one was offered here, from which this was determined."

A. That was without my knowledge. I will be glad to produce it if it can be found. It only came to my knowledge a half hour ago that this map was presented here. It was probably caused by the business falling into the hands of people who were not familiar with the original agreement. I doubt if any of the company's officers have seen the map within the last twenty years.

"The COMMISSIONER: I would suggest that if Mr. Pierce from his memory can give his recollection of the lines that he do so."

A. Mr. Commissioner, I will give it generally——(Judge Stedman interrupts.)

Judge STEDMAN: Your Honor, we object to that testimony, indicating certain territory, for the reason that it is immaterial and irrelevant; and, further, because it relates to transactions 754 with the Waters Pierce Oil Company which has ceased to exist, and which is not a party to this suit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts to the ruling of the Court.

(Mr. Allen read portion of the answer, as follows:)

A. The line within the State of Missouri commenced at a point just South of Hannibal, on the West bank of the Mississippi River, and ran according to county lines South-west to the Western border of Missouri, bordering upon Kansas a short distance South of Fort Scott.

Q. Continue with respect to the other territory, Mr. Pierce. That included the parts in Illinois that you have described, and the parts in Missouri you have described, and what other territory?

A. The State of Arkansas; what is now the Indian Territory and Oklahoma; the State of Texas; all of the State of Louisiana West of the Mississippi River, and the Republic of Mexico.

Q. Has there been any change in that territory since it was then established?

A. There has not.

Q. Pursuant to that division of territory the Waters-Pierce Oil Company confined its operations to building up the trade within that territory?

A. It did.

Q. When the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the old company, was organized in 1878, it succeeded the partnership of Waters, Pierce & Company?

A. It did.

Q. And Waters, Pierce & Company had succeeded the firm of——

A. H. Clay Pierce & Company.

Q. From what source did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company obtain its supplies of refined oils at that time?

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that as immaterial and irrelevant, and further, because it relates to transactions with the Waters-755 Pierce Company of 1878, which has been dissolved and is not a party to this suit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.
Judge STEDMAN: We except.

A. Almost exclusively from the Standard Oil Company.
Q. And from what sources has it since that time obtained its supplies of refined oils?
A. Almost exclusively from the Standard Oil Company and its allied interests.
Q. Did the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company or the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company refine any oil or manufacture any of the products of petroleum in the United States?
A. It did not manufacture refined oils. It did manufacture lubricating oils and greases.
Q. All of these other oils were obtained from the Standard Oil Company and its allied interests, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?
A. All of the refined oils, naphthas, gasolines and most of the lubricating oils were obtained from the Standard Oil Company and its allied interests.
Q. In other words, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was engaged exclusively as a merchant of manufactured products in the United States?
A. Within the United States, almost exclusively so.
Q. Did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company establish any refinery in the Republic of Mexico?
A. It did, several.
Q. From what source did it get the crude petroleum to refine in the Republic of Mexico?

Mr. ODELL: We object, if the Court please, to any testimony concerning business done by this company in the Republic of Mexico, for the reason that it is immaterial and irrelevant, and any business done in a foreign country in the refining of oil by this com-756 pany can have no possible applicability to this case or throw any light on the issues in the case.
Judge STEDMAN: And for the further reason, Your Honor, that this testimony relates to transactions with the old original Waters-Pierce Oil Company of 1878, now dissolved, and not a party to this suit.
The COURT: The objection is overruled.
Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. Because crude petroleum was not produced within the Republic of Mexico, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company obtained all of its crude petroleum for manufacturing in Mexico from the Standard Oil Company.
Q. How was the crude petroleum taken to Mexico for refining?
A. In bulk steamer belonging to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, built by and belonging to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. And all of the supplies of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sold in the Republic of Mexico was refined by it in the Republic of Mexico?
A. All, of all kinds.

Q. The present Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1900 succeeded to an established business of the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company and since that time it has confined itself exclusively to building up the business within the territory formerly occupied by the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company, is that true?

A. That is correctly stated.

Q. Will you tell me approximately the amount of sales in gallonage of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the United States territory?

A. I have not a division of the business between the United States and the Republic of Mexico, but I can state the gross sales of both.

Q. What are they, Mr. Pierce?

A. I have not refreshed my memory recently, but I recall that in the year 1902 the gross sales amounted to 2,677,362 barrels.

Q. How many gallons to the barrel?

A. Fifty.

757 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, we skip about a page.

Mr. ALLEN: Skip a page to the continuation of the Direct Examination by Mr. Priest.

Q. Mr. Pierce, personally you have been engaged in the oil business in the territory in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is operating, either in its name or in the name of preceding firms you have mentioned, for how many years?

A. Thirty-seven.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Then we skip about half a page.

Q. Who were the first board of directors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company organized in 1878, do you recall?

A. William H. Waters, H. C. Pierce, William P. Thompson, Horace A. Hutchins, Francis D. Carley.

Q. How long did those gentlemen continue as directors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, if you recall?

A. W. H. Waters until I purchased his interest.

Q. To shorten that answer and abbreviate the testimony, I will ask you if the first directors you named did not continue to act as such until 1885? (Handing witness a paper.)

A. All of the first directors continued from their election in the year 1878 until the annual meeting of the company in the year 1885.

Q. Where did Francis D. Carley live?

A. Louisville, Kentucky.

Q. Where did H. A. Hutchins live?

A. Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. Where did W. H. Waters live?

A. St. Louis, Missouri.

Q. Where did W. P. Thompson live?

A. Parkersburg, West Virginia, and Cleveland, Ohio.

Q. And you resided in St. Louis?

A. St. Louis, Missouri.

758 Q. Did Mr. W. H. Waters take any active part in the management of the company?

A. He did not.

Q. During the period he was a director. So that you were the only person present of the directors during that year in charge of the property?

A. During what year, Judge?

Q. During those years, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, 1882, 1883, 1884 and 1885.

A. Mr. Waters made his office headquarters in the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but he did not take any active part in the management of the business.

Q. In 1885 the directory continued as it was before except that W. H Tilford was elected instead of Francis D. Carley, did it not?

A. At the annual election in the year 1885 W. H. Tilford of New York succeeded F. D. Carley of Louisville.

Q. In 1887 Mr. Cowles took the place of H. A. Hutchins in the directory, did he?

A. Yes, sir, he did.

Q. Where did Mr. Cowles live?

A. Either in Cleveland, Ohio, or New York, I don't remember which.

Q. The same directory continued in 1888 except that H. M. Tilford was substituted for W. H. Tilford?

A. That is correct.

Q. Where did H. M. Tilford live?

A. New York City.

Q. Is he a brother of W. H. Tilford?

A. He is.

Q. The following year Mr. Silas H. Paine took the place of H. M. Tilford, did he not?

A. He did.

759 Q. Where did Silas H. Paine live?

A. New York City.

Q. In 1889 the directory continued substantially as it was in 1888?

A. I believe so.

Q. Now, in 1890 Mr. A. M. Finlay was elected instead of W. H. Waters, was he not?

A. That was in the year 1890?

Q. Eighteen hundred and ninety?

A. In that year I purchased the interest of W. H. Waters in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company; succeeded him as President; brought Mr. Finlay, who had been manager of a Texas division during a number of years, to St. Louis, and made him Vice-President and Director of the company.

Q. And Mr. G. F. Gregory succeeded Mr. W. H. Tilford in the directory?

A. That is correct.

Q. Otherwise the directory continued as the year previous?

A. That is true. Mr. Gregory lived in New York.

Q. In 1891 the directory consisted of yourself, Mr. Finlay, Mr. H. M. Tilford, Mr. Silas H. Paine and Mr. C. M. Pratt?

A. It did.

Q. Did any of those directors except yourself and Mr. Finlay reside in St. Louis?

A. They did not.

Q. Or take any part in the active management of the property?

A. Others than Mr. Finlay and myself did not take any active part in the management of the company.

Q. In 1892 the directory consisted of yourself, Mr. Finlay, Mr. H. M. Tilford, Mr. C. M. Adams and Mr. J. P. Gruet, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And Mr. Adams and Mr. Gruet both resided in St. Louis?

A. Mr. Adams and Mr. Gruet both resided in St. Louis.

760 Mr. Adams had been with the company as its secretary from the date of its organization—as its treasurer and secretary—and later as treasurer, and Mr. Gruet had been with the company some years as auditor and later as secretary.

Q. And the directory as constituted in that year continued until the year 1900?

A. That directory continued until the dissolution of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the year 1900.

Q. Now, in the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company, organized in 1900, who were that directors?

A. H. C. Pierce, Andrew M. Finlay, C. M. Adams, J. P. Gruet, John D. Johnson.

Q. And Mr. H. M. Tilford in 1900?

A. I have answered it correctly.

Q. This memoranda is wrong, then?

A. The memoranda relates to the old company prior to May 29th, 1900, when the old company was dissolved.

Q. And the directory as thus constituted continued until 1904, the Spring of 1904?

A. It did.

Q. In 1904 Mr. W. F. Taylor took the place of Mr. J. D. Johnson and Mr. R. P. Tinsley took the place of Mr. J. P. Gruet?

A. They did.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, we skip about a page.

Q. Can you give me approximately the quantity of oils of different kinds, or the products of petroleum, that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company since 1900 has purchased from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its allied companies—the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and Standard Oil Company of Indiana, I mean?

A. Do you intend to say annually or in the aggregate?

Q. You can put it annually. I do not want you to be precise and definite, of course you could not be, but approximately?

761 A. I have not recently examined the books, but, as I testified this morning, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sold during the year 1902, which was the last date I recall, about two million six hundred and seventy-seven thousand barrels of all kinds of oils and petroleum products in this country and in Mexico, and with the exception of fuel oil, which was purchased both from the Standard Oil Company and from producers generally in the Texas field, practically all of the crude oil which entered into the manufacture of the refined products in the Republic of Mexico and all of the refined oils and lubricating oils sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company within the United States were purchased from the Standard Oil Company.

Q. You mean the Standard Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana?

A. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana and its allied interests.

Mr. ALLEN: Skip about three pages.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, did you make any effort at any time to extend the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company outside of the territory which you defined this morning?

A. Since the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the year 1878, neither myself or any one connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, so far as I know, and certainly never with my authority, ever made any attempt to sell oil, to locate stations or in any manner transact business outside of the territory in which the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company now operates.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Skip four or five pages there.

Mr. ALLEN: It skips about four to five pages, then I take up the answer which begins, "In the United States the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has occupied"—it's a long answer. The answer explains itself.

A. In the United States the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has occupied the position of merchandising petroleum and its pro-
762 ducts. In the Republic of Mexico the Waters-Pierce Oil Company first occupied a similar position, but when the consumption of petroleum products in Mexico justified it established there four refineries, located at the principal cities, and purchased crude petroleum on the Atlantic Seaboard from the Standard Oil Company, or its allied interests, and transported the crude petroleum in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's own steamers to Vera Cruz and Tampico, in Mexico, to supply its refineries there, and at points in the interior of Mexico and in Mexico the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has, since the establishment of those refineries, manufactured all of the products of petroleum of all kinds sufficient to supply all of the requirements for such products within the Republic of Mexico, and is doing so at this time.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the firms which preceded the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company, organized in 1878, undertook to merchandise within the territory then allotted to it the products of the Standard Oil Company, and it has continued to occupy relatively that position ever since, is that true?

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that as immaterial and irrelevant; and, further, upon the ground that the transactions with companies or corporations prior to the organization of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company can not be visited upon this defendant; and, further, that those companies and corporations are not parties to this suit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

A. The firms which preceded the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company purchased crude oil, crude petroleum, from parties other than the Standard Oil Company, because in the beginning the Standard Oil Company did not have an existence, and refined and manufactured such crude oils into refined oils at their refineries located in St. Louis on the ground between Thirteenth and Fourteenth and 763 Austin and Gratiot streets, and sold that oil wherever it could. When the firm of W. H. Cobb & Company was organized in 1869 and succeeded to the firm of John R. Finlay & Company it for a time continued the same method of transacting its business, but when the Standard Oil Company came into existence the firm of W. H. Cobb & Company commenced purchasing crude petroleum and its refined products from the Standard Oil Company, and also continued purchasing from other parties. This method continued until the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1878. Does that answer your question sufficiently?

Q. Now, since 1878?

A. During and since 1878 the Waters-Pierce Oil Company within its United States territory has acted almost solely as merchandisers for the products of the Standard Oil Company, and in Mexico since the establishment of refineries there it has purchased crude oil outright from the Standard Oil Company and has manufactured and sold it in Mexico to the full extent of the demand.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, about two pages, Judge.

Q. Have you estimated and can you give me the proportion of oil sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in Missouri to that of its competitors?

A. I have not the figures covering recent periods, but for many years, when I was more actively attending to the business, it was from ninety to ninety-eight per cent. The average for several years was about ninety-seven and one-half per cent.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, four or five pages—about seven or eight pages there, Judge.

Mr. ALLEN: Mr. Hadley says, "Answer the question." "Question repeated by the Stenographer."

Judge STEDMAN: Is that in the cross examination?

Mr. ALLEN: Yes, sir. There is a long statement there by Judge Priest, and then "Mr. Hadley—Answer the question." Now, 764 we offer the answer, because it makes sense.

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company has been, and now is, dependent upon the Standard Oil Company for almost its entire supplies, and as I have already stated, the territory within which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, present and its predecessors, were to operate was established twenty-eight years ago and has not been changed. I, as the manager of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, did not deem it expedient to do business beyond the territory wherein the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was thoroughly and fully equipped.

Q. Why didn't you deem it expedient?

A. Well, my judgment was against it, General.

Q. Why was your judgment against it?

Mr. ALLEN: Well, we don't care for this. There is a lot of objections. Just read that question over there—"Mr. Hadley—Why didn't you deem it expedient?"

Q. Mr. Hadley—Why didn't you deem it expedient to extend your equipment and do business at other points in the State of Missouri?

A. It is a very difficult matter, General Hadley, to specifically define the basis of a judgment arrived at which is based upon a great many years of experience, but if the question is to be answered from the standpoint of today, it would be that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is not equipped to do business in Kansas City.

Q. Why haven't you equipped it to do business there?

A. Because the Waters-Pierce Oil Company never contemplated doing business in Kansas City.

Q. Why didn't it contemplate doing business in Kansas City?

A. Because the original Waters-Pierce Oil Company agreed—(Judge Stedman interrupted).

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that answer, because it is immaterial and irrelevant, and because it relates to transactions with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of 1878, which is dissolved, and 765 because that company is not a party to this suit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

A. Because the original Waters-Pierce Oil Company agreed it would confine its operations to the territory in which it and its predecessors has transacted its business.

Q. Who did it agree with?

A. It agreed, I should say, with Colonel Oliver H. Payne. The individuals I presume you are asking for?

Q. The representative of what company?

A. At that time the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

Q. As a result of that agreement the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in the State of Missouri, has confined its business to certain territory, and the Standard Oil Company has confined its business to certain territory?

A. As to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, yes. As to the Standard Oil Company I have not now, and have never had, any means of knowing the reasons for its operations.

Q. So far as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is concerned, your testimony is that according to an agreement it has not sold in the State of Missouri?

A. That was only the initial reason. I gave you the main reason first.

Q. But there was an agreement in the matter?

A. I have stated so.

Q. Since the organization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1878 down to the time of the disorganization you were a minority stockholder, were you not?

A. I was.

Q. And what was the percentage of your holdings at the beginning of the organization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

766 A. Practically forty per cent.

Q. What was it at the time of the organization of the Standard Oil Trust in 1882?

A. The same.

Q. Did it continue the same down to the time of the reincorporation in 1900?

A. It did.

Q. And the assets of the company was at that time divided upon that basis?

A. I have so stated.

Q. And on the reorganization of the company on May 29th, 1900, how much stock did you then own?

A. One hundred per cent.

Q. Did you own that yourself?

A. I subscribed for and gave my own check, which was honored at the bank, for the total amount; received the certificates in my name and held them.

Q. How soon did you transfer any portion of those certificates to anybody else?

A. The transfer I suppose you mean endorsed on the back, and hand the certificates to other people?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Several months afterwards.

Q. How long?

A. Three, four or five months.

Q. Do you remember what month it was?

A. I do not.

Q. To whom did you deliver the stock certificates that you did deliver?

A. To Mr. Garth, Cashier of the Mechanics' National Bank, New York.

Q. Representing whom?

767 A. That I can not say.

Q. How many shares of stock did you transfer?

A. Sixty-eight and one-half per cent.

Q. Practically leaving you owning how much?

A. Thirty-one and one-half per cent.

Q. Why did you transfer that stock?

A. I transferred the stock because it was understood that I would do so.

Q. At the time of the organization of the new company?

A. Not verbally or by any understanding, but tacitly so understood?

Q. With whom?

Judge STEDMAN: Now, this answer—I would like for Your Honor to examine it—shows that the witness has no knowledge of the matter, and we object to it because it shows he has no personal knowledge of the transaction, and it is hearsay.

Mr. ALLEN: It is disclosed a little further on, Your Honor. It shows that it was an arrangement by his attorney with the attorney of the Standard Oil Company. It is disclosed further on exactly how it came to his knowledge, that it was an arrangement made by Mr. Johnson, attorney of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, with the attorneys of the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: And he became a director, also.

The COURT: What is the question you object to?

Judge STEDMAN: It's the answer.

The COURT: To which question?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: "With whom?"—with whom did he have the understanding.

The COURT: The jurors want to retire, Mr. Sheriff.

(The jury retired.)

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

(The jury returned.)

768 Mr. ALLEN: To get the connection, Mr. Lightfoot, you had better go back a question or two.

Q. Why did you transfer that stock?

A. I transferred the stock because it was understood that I would do so.

Q. At the time of the organization of the new company?

A. Not verbally or by any understanding, but tacitly so understood.

Q. With whom?

A. I think I shall have to refer that to my attorney, Mr. J. D. Johnson.

Q. We will refer it to his Honor, the Commissioner.

A. I don't know. I was trying to help the General.

Q. I hadn't asked for assistance, Mr. Pierce. Didn't you know to whom you were to transfer that stock?

A. There never was any understanding to whom I was to transfer the stock.

Q. I didn't ask that. I asked you if you didn't know to whom you were to transfer the stock.

A. If you will make your question specific, I will answer it.

Q. Answer that question.

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know to whom you transferred it?

A. I have answered that, I transferred it to Mr. Garth.

Q. Did Mr. Garth become the owner of that stock?

A. So far as I know, yes.

Q. How long did Mr. Garth continue to own that stock?

A. I do not know. The stock continued in my name. I had no more reason or ability to know who held the certificate than I would if I had passed the certificate to any bank or any individual in this or any other city.

769 Q. Then, if I understand you, you were informed by your attorney that an agreement had been made by which, upon the organization of the new company, you should transfer sixty-eight and one-half per cent. of the stock to some unknown party?

Judge STEDMAN: Wait a moment. We object, Your Honor, to the question because the question calls for hearsay, and the answer gives hearsay,—asks for information from his attorney and he answers that the information was given by his attorney.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

A. Practically, yes.

Q. That was the information to you?

A. Practically.

Q. Your testimony is now, that within a few months after the organization of the new company you parted with the controlling interest to some party whose identity was not disclosed to you and whose identity is not disclosed now?

A. Practically that is correct.

Q. When did you become aware of the identity of this mysterious person?

A. In the month of June, 1904.

Q. By what means—a telegram?

A. Telegram from my son from St. Louis, stating that the stock had been presented to the Secretary and transferred from my name to the name of Mr. M. M. Van Beuren.

Q. Did you know who Mr. M. M. Van Beuren was?

A. I had never heard of him.

Q. Have you learned since who he was?

A. Only through the public press.

Q. That he was the son-in-law of John D. Archbold?

A. I have seen it so stated.

770 Q. Did you receive any dividends between the time that you transferred the stock to Mr. Garth and the time you were informed by your son that it was held by Mr. Van Beuren?

A. You mean on the stock that was transferred by me to Mr. Garth?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I did.

Q. What did you do with the dividends?

A. Transferred them to another party in New York.

Q. To whom?

A. I think Mr. Bayne, who was connected with the Seaboard National Bank of New York. I don't know what his position is.

Q. How did you happen to give them to Mr. Bayne?

A. Under request.

Q. From whom?

A. I am not sure whether it was through some representative of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in this office, or through Mr. Tilford in New York.

Q. Mr. Tilford? Who is Mr. Tilford?
A. I know four Mr. Tilfords.
Q. Who was the Mr. Tilford who ordered you to give the dividends on this stock to Mr. Bayne?
A. I do not recall whether it was Mr. W. H. or H. M. Tilford.
Q. It was one or the other?
A. I think so, or it may have been a notice from my office. I spent a great deal of time in New York, and the dividends were remitted to me in the East, and it may have been that the information came to me from the office in St. Louis.
Q. What business was W. H. and H. M. Tilford in?
A. They are connected with the Standard Oil Company.
Q. Of New Jersey?
A. Really, I couldn't locate the corporation.
Q. Have they offices at 26 Broadway?
771 A. I think so.
Q. They are members of the Domestic Trades Committee of the Standard Oil Company?
A. I think not.
Q. What committees?
A. I believe Mr. W. H. Tilford is a member of the Executive Committee. I do not know the position occupied by Mr. H. M. Tilford.
Q. He has some position with the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway?
A. I could not say.
Q. During the time between the incorporation of the company and the transfer of this stock to this gentleman who you have mentioned, Mr. Garth, what did you do with the dividends you received upon the stock, if you received any?
A. My impression is that they were paid to——

"Mr. PRIEST: That question assumes that there were dividends paid. There has been no evidence that there were dividends paid."

A. I do not know that I received any dividends.
Q. Do you remember whether you did or not?
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. Turning to the stock-book of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company which has been introduced in evidence, I will ask you to look at the stamps upon the back of this Certificate No. 3 in that book issued to H. C. Pierce, and look at the endorsement upon the cancellation stamp, and then state when it was that you transferred that stock, refreshing your recollection by that endorsement. (Handing stock-book to witness). Look at this revenue stamp upon the back of No. 3 and state if that is your handwriting.

Judge STEDMAN: Wait one moment.—Go ahead.

A. I think it is. (Mr. ALLEN: That is, he thinks it is his handwriting.)
Q. Read what it says.
772 A. "H. C. P., Sept. 4th, 1900."
Q. Is that the date when you transferred that stock?

A. I could not say.

Q. Is that the date when you canceled that stamp by writing your initials and date upon it?

A. It is evidently the date I canceled the stamp.

Q. Turning to the stock certificate itself and the endorsement upon it, it seems that the date of the transfer was about in July, 1904. I will ask you what explanation you have to offer as to why it was you were canceling the stamp, noting the transfer of the stock in 1900, and dating the transfer in 1904?

A. If the notation on the stamp referred to covers the date at which I dispossessed myself of the certificate by handing this certificate to Mr. Garth, I should infer that the other endorsement which indicates that this certificate was returned to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company canceled and other certificates issued in its place, was on the 12th day of July, 1904.

Q. That endorsement says that you transferred it, "I hereby sell, transfer and assign upon July 12th, 1904, this certificate" to Mr. Tinsley and Mr. Tilford and H. C. Pierce.

A. The writing you have just referred to is not my own. I do not know by whom or when it was placed there.

Q. I have not read the writing, but mostly the printing, "I hereby transfer, sell and assign."

A. The signature H. C. Pierce, put there by myself, was put there, I infer, on the 4th day of September, 1900.

Q. Did you date the assignment at the time of the transfer?

A. You mean the cancellation of the stamp or the assignment in writing on the back of the certificate?

Q. The assignment in writing on the back.

A. I did nothing more than cancel the stamp, as shown 773 hereon, and hand the certificate in blank to Mr. Garth.

Q. At the time these certificates were issued, representing the 2,750 shares of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, up until September, 1900, where were they?

A. Beyond my knowledge, General.

Q. Did they remain in your possession any length of time after they were issued?

A. The certificates were issued, I should say, on the 29th day of May, 1900.

Q. The first of June, 1900?

A. The first of June.

"COMMISSIONER: I notice there are a number of stamps on the back of that certificate. Are they all canceled on the same date?

"Mr. HADLEY: Yes, sir; that has been gone over before.

"COMMISSIONER: Were they not required to be placed upon the certificate at the date of its original issue?

"Mr. HADLEY: Yes, sir; on June 1, 1900.

"COMMISSIONER: Is that the date of the certificate?

"Mr. HADLEY: Yes, sir.

"Mr. PRIEST: The revenue law required the stamp to be placed on the certificate when issued. Those stamps bear the date of cancellation—June 1, 1900. The revenue law required the certificate to be stamped when it was transferred. That stamp bears date of September 4, 1900, and that is the date when Mr. Pierce signed his name to the blank transfer. The date of September 4, 1904, was added by the party who held possession of the certificate when he asked it to be transferred upon the books of the company."

Q. I wish you would examine certificate No. 1 of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and state for what amount that certificate,—what number of shares it called for.

A. One thousand.

774 Q. Is there a stamp upon the face of that certificate showing the date when it was issued?

A. The certificate is dated June 1, 1900.

Q. Then let me ask you, were the 4,000 shares of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company issued when the company was incorporated,—the new company?

A. I think so.

Q. That is your recollection, is it, Mr. Pierce?

A. The certificate book shows that they were issued to me on the first of June, which was the date succeeding the incorporation of the present company.

Q. Go back to certificate No. 2, and state the date of that certificate.

A. June 1, 1900.

Q. Is there a cancellation stamp on the face of that certificate?

A. There is.

Q. What is the date of it?

A. June 1, 1900.

Q. That certificate is for how much?

A. One thousand shares.

Q. Turn to certificate No. 3, and state how many shares that calls for.

A. Seven hundred and forty-eight.

Q. Is there a stamp upon the face of that certificate?

A. Yes.

"Mr. PRIEST: What do yo umean by stamp?

"Mr. HADLEY: Revenue stamp."

Q. What is the date of the cancellation of that stamp?

A. June 1st. There are several stamps.

Q. June 1, 1900?

A. Yes, sir.

775 Q. Now, turn to certificate of stock No. 5, and state what is the date of the issue of that stock.

A. June 1, 1900.

Q. Is there a revenue stamp upon the face of that certificate showing the date of its issue?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the date of that?

A. June 1, 1900.

Q. How much does that call for?

A. One share.

Q. That makes a total of 2749 shares, does it not?

A. I have not figured it.

Q. Well, certificate No. 1 calls for 1,000 shares; certificate No. 2 calls for 1,000 shares; No. 3 calls for 748 shares; certificate No. 5 calls for one share, making a total of 2749 shares. I will ask you to look at that stock book and find a single other share of stock with a revenue stamp on the fact of it showing the date of the issue of the stock.

"Mr. PRIEST: I am at a loss to discover the relevancy of this, General.

"Mr. HADLEY: You will see the relevancy of it later on."

A. What was your question, General?

Q. Look at the certificates of stock in that book and see if you can find another share of stock besides the 2,749 that had a revenue stamp placed on the face of it, showing the date of issue.

A. Certificate No. 4, issued June 1, 1900, appears here without any revenue stamps, either on the face or on the back. Certificate No. 8——

Q. What is the alleged date of that issue, or the date upon which it appears to have been issued—that is, the certificate No. 4?

A. June 1, 1900.

776 Q. And yet it has not a revenue stamp on it?

A. Are you referring, General, to the stubs or the certificates that remain in the book?

Q. The certificates remaining in the book.

A. Certificate No. 8, June 1, 1900, has a revenue stamp, marked W. P. O. Co., June 1, 1900.

Q. That makes 2,750 shares, does it not, Mr. Pierce?

A. Really, I have not figured it.

Q. Well, go ahead.

A. No. 9, dated January 14, 1904, which I assume was subsequent to the stamp requirement. Do you wish me to go further?

Q. That has none, of course?

A. That is all there are in the book.

Q. Now, look at these certificates which were issued on June 1, 1900,—that bore a revenue stamp on their face. I will ask you to look in the book of these certificates and state if all of them have revenue stamps on them, bearing date September, 1900.

A. Which ones are you referring to?

Q. That would be certificate No. 1.

A. The question is, have they revenue stamps on the back?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Certificate No. 1 has a revenue stamp on the face and two on the back.

Q. Certificate No. 2, how about that?

A. You asked for the date of No. 1, didn't you, General?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Really, I can't make out that date.

Q. Certificate No. 2, look at that.

A. Certificate No. 2 has a stamp on the face.

Q. Has it a stamp upon the back, showing transfer?

A. Certificate No. 2 has two stamps on the back, General.

777 Q. Can you make out those dates?

A. I can not.

Q. Is that transfer signed by you?

A. I signed the transfer in blank.

Q. Did you date it?

A. I did not.

Q. Look at certificate No. 3 and see if that has stamps on the back.

A. There are several stamps on the back, all of which are canceled.

Q. Can you make out the date on those that are canceled?

A. I can on part of them. Those I can make out are September 4th, 1900.

Q. Did you date that transfer?

A. I did not.

Q. Look at certificate No. 4 and state to whom that was originally issued, when, and the number of shares?

A. Certificate No. 4, issued June 1, 1900, to H. C. Pierce; 1248 shares.

Q. Does that bear a stamp on the face of it showing the date of its issue?

A. Not now.

Q. Has it a stamp upon it anywhere?

A. Not now.

Q. Did it ever have to your knowledge?

A. I do not recall.

Q. What was the date of its cancellation?

A. There is a red ink notation on the face, stating it was canceled June 13, 1904, I believe.

Q. At the time of the disincorporation of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company organized in 1878, how many shares of stock did the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey own in it?

A. I think the trustees of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey held 2778.

778 Q. 2748, wasn't it?

A. 2748.

Q. Then, upon the reincorporation of the new company in 1900, the first three certificates called for 2748 shares, and they were signed by you and issued June 1, 1900, bearing the stamp upon the face, and were transferred by you, according to the stamp on one of them, in September, 1900?

A. How do you mean, signed by me as President or individual?

Q. Signed by you as President and endorsed by you on the back.

A. All certificates were signed at that time by me as President.

Q. And they were endorsed by you on the back, were they?

A. Certificates Nos. 1, 2 and 3, totaling 2748 shares, were signed by me at the bottom of the blank transfer on the back of each certificate.

Q. And the cancellation stamps upon certificate No. 3 show that they were canceled in September, 1900?

A. Stamps on the back of certificate No. 3 show that they were cancelled September 4, 1900.

Q. Now, when were you informed by your attorney that you were to assign that number of certificates to Mr. Garth or some person whom you did not know?

A. I think at the time——(Judge Stedman interrupted the reading.)

Judge STEDMAN: Wait a moment. We object to the question and answer, for the reason that it calls for hearsay and the answer gives hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

A. I think at the time of the organization of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Were you paid anything for those shares?

A. I was.

Q. Who paid you?

779 A. Mr. Garth.

Q. Had you ever known Mr. Garth before that?

A. I had not.

Q. Did you make any inquiry as to who Mr. Garth represented?

A. I did.

Q. Did you find out who he represented?

A. I was told he represented Mr. Charles Pratt.

Q. Who was Mr. Charles Pratt?

A. Mr. Charles Pratt's home was in Brooklyn. He was connected with the Standard Oil Company.

Q. So, then, your understanding, to come down to the gist of the matter, Mr. Pierce, was that upon the reorganization of the company you should transfer the same number of shares of stock to Mr. Pratt of the Standard Oil Company that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey held in the old company?

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we object to the question because it calls for hearsay, and the answer gives hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

A. I was told by my attorney, Mr. John D. Johnson, that he had made such an arrangement with the general counsel of the Standard Oil Company.

Q. And you carried out that agreement?

A. I did.

Q. So that upon the reorganization of the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company the proportion of your ownership in the stock was the same as in the old company?

A. You mean as represented by the certificates?

Q. No, as represented by actual facts.

A. As represented by the certificates, my ownership in the new company represented on the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil 780 Company, my ownership in the new company was 3996 shares——

Q. But in reality——

A. According to my understanding—— (Judge Stedman interrupted reading.)

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that, because the question gives hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

A. According to my understanding, as I was informed by my attorney, Mr. J. D. Johnson, the 2748 shares which have just been referred to was to be transferred, belonged to and was to be transferred to the Standard Oil Company or its representatives.

Q. Then, to come down to the facts in the case, and that is what I want to get at, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or the Standard Oil Company, continued to have the same interest in the new company that it had in the old?

A. I believe so.

Q. And you so understood at the time?

A. I understood either at the time or shortly afterwards——

Judge STEDMAN: We object now to what he is informed by his attorney. That answer is hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

A. (concluded). When I was informed by my attorney, Mr. Johnson.

Mr. ALLEN: Did you read all of that answer?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Yes, sir.

(The answer was re-read, as follows):

A. I understood either at the time or shortly afterwards, when I was informed by Mr. Johnson, my attorney.

Q. Then from the time of the organization of the new company up to the present time, the Standard Oil Company has remained the owner of that 2750 shares of stock, has it not?

A. Not so far as the books of the company is concerned, 781 but so far as my belief and understanding is concerned.

Q. How long did Mr. Pratt hold them in his name?

A. They were never in Mr. Pratt's name.

Q. Who succeeded Mr. Pratt——

A. The certificates remained in my name from the date on which I handed them to Mr. Garth, which I assume was September 4, 1900, until some time in June, 1904, when they were transferred from my name to the name of Mr. M. M. Van Beuren. My knowledge of who held these certificates, the certificates themselves, in the interim, is beyond me.

Q. And all that time the dividends that you were paid upon this stock went to a representative of the Standard Oil Company?

A. Any dividends upon the 2748 shares which came into my possession was immediately transferred by me to the Seaboard National Bank of New York.

Q. And you understood, did you not, that you were transferring it there for the Standard Oil Company?

A. I presume so.

Q. When did this percentage of ownership between you and the Standard Oil interests arise in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the old company I mean, the 1250 and the 2750 shares?

A. Immediately subsequent to my purchase of Mr. Waters' interest in the forty per cent. originally subscribed in the first company by Waters, Pierce & Company.

Q. That was in what year?

A. I do not recall.

Q. Well, that was in 1887, was it not? It is when you succeeded Mr. Waters. No, that was in 1890, when Mr. Waters ceased to be a director or stockholder.

A. If that was the year, that was the time.

Q. That was the year he ceased to be a director?

A. Then it was during that year that the percentage of 782 the ownership in the company between the Standard Oil Company and myself was fixed.

Q. Became 1250 as against 2750?

A. Yes.

Q. Prior to that it had been forty per cent. and sixty per cent.?

A. Prior to that it had been forty and sixty, and prior to that it had been forty, forty and twenty, according to the original division.

Q. So from 1890 to the present time the Standard Oil Company or its representatives have held the 2750 shares, or a controlling interest in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. In the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company and in the second Waters-Pierce Oil Company, yes.

Q. Now, why was it on the organization of the new company you did not have the ownership of the Standard Oil Company appear upon the books of your company?

"Mr. PRIEST: I do not think that is material in this case.

"I think the question is proper."

Q. Answer the question, Mr. Pierce.

A. Are you asking for my personal reasons, General?

Q. Yes, sir. I am asking for the reasons.

A. My personal reasons were that it had been—— (Judge Stedman interrupted the reading.)

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that question, Your Honor, because it is hearsay.

The COURT: Let me see the answer. (Examines the answer.) The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

A. My personal reasons were that it had been agreed by my attorney and the general counsel of the Standard Oil Company that the stock should stand in my name.

Q. Was that to cover up something, Mr. Pierce?

A. It was for the purpose of enabling me to absolutely 783 own, control and operate the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. How did that enable you to own, control and operate the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, when in September the stock was transferred, in accordance with the previous agreement, over to Mr. Pratt, a representative of the Standard Oil Company?

A. It is notoriously known that people in whose name stock appears, whether they own it or not, do own and control and vote the stock so long as it stands in their name, and the mere fact that they have parted with the certificates does not take from them the power to vote and control the stock.

Q. But during that period I have understood you to say that the Standard Oil Company, in reality, owned that stock?

A. My understanding is that they did.

Q. Why didn't you want that fact to appear upon the records of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Because I wished myself to own, control, direct and vote the stock which represented the ownership of that company.

Q. Although you had endorsed the stock, signed your name to the transfer, and the stock itself had passed out of your possession?

A. Exactly.

Q. And remained in the possession of Mr. Garth, representing Mr. Pratt, who represented the Standard Oil Company?

A. I do not know. Whether the certificates remained in his name I do not know; but I do know that I controlled and operated the property under my ownership until the stock was transferred out of my name, when I became a minority instead of a majority stockholder in the company.

Q. You never was a majority stockholder in the company, except in fixing this transfer?

A. I paid for all the stock with my own check, and the stock remained in my own name and I managed the company through my stock ownership.

784 Q. You understood that you should not remain the owner of any larger proportion than you held in the old company?

Judge STEDMAN: We object, may it please the Court, because it calls for hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

A. I had the understanding through my attorney that I was to remain the owner of record of the stock, and to control the company and continued to do so so long as the stock remained in my name; that was the object of putting the stock in my name.

Q. It was not to enable you to get a license in the State of Texas that you handled the transaction in that way, was it, Mr. Pierce?

"Mr. PRIEST: We object to that as entirely immaterial.

"COMMISSIONER: The objection is sustained."

Q. You said in your direct examination, "Up to the Spring of 1904 the Standard Oil Company made no attempt to interfere in any way with my management and control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but at that time they transferred the stock which had stood in my name to Mr. M. M. Van Beuren, and began in other ways to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company." In that answer you referred, did you not, to the same stock that you have spoken of as having been transferred to Mr. Garth?

A. I did. Not transferred, General, on the book, but transferred so far as the certificates themselves are concerned.

Q. Transferred by endorsement. So your statement, then, Mr. Pierce, as I understand it, is that in both the old company and the new company you continued in charge of its operations up until 1904?

A. That is correct.

Q. And whatever the company did from 1900 up until 1904, it did under your management and control?

A. I believe so.

785 Q. Then you say the Standard Oil Company transferred this stock that you had endorsed in blank, to M. M. Van Beuren, and began in other ways to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company. In what other ways did they begin to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company?

A. I said that the Standard Oil Company transferred to M. M. Van Beuren the stock which I had endorsed in blank. This is the reverse of your statement.

Q. I was simply giving your statement.

A. I did not endorse it in blank to M. M. Van Beuren.

Q. No, you endorsed it in blank to the Standard Oil Company.

A. I endorsed it to no one. I endorsed it in blank.

Q. I read the statement as it was given.

A. Your statement was that it was endorsed in blank to M. M. Van Beuren.

Q. No, sir. You are getting off the question.

A. I do not wish to get off the statement. I endorsed the certificates in blank, and they were afterwards transferred to M. M. Van Beuren.

Q. I asked you in the other question, in what other ways besides securing the transfer of this stock to M. M. Van Beuren did the Standard Oil Company begin to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

A. Ousting directors that I had elected, and substituting those of its own selection, and in sending men here to manage the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, sending men into the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Anything else?

A. Everything that would follow such a changed condition of affairs.

Q. Did they change in any way the conduct of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company besides changing the personnel of the management?

786 A. Very materially.

Q. Did they begin to sell oil in competition with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana?

A. I could not say as to that, General. I was not here at the time.

Q. And did they enlarge or change the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I could not say as to that, either. I was not here.
Q. Did they commence to get oil from any different sources?
A. That I can not say. I presume not. You mean other sources than themselves?
Q. Yes, sir, than themselves.
A. I presume not.
Q. You said in your answer this morning, "I protested against this conduct as a violation of their agreement with me and as contrary to the representations I had made to the people of Texas." Now, when had they made such an agreement with you?
A. In 1878, when the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized.
Q. That was the agreement you referred to, was it?
A. Certainly.
Q. With whom was it made?
A. The individuals of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.
Q. Name some of them.
A. Colonel Oliver H. Payne.
Q. He is now dead, is he?
A. Very much alive. His father, General, is dead,—the ex-Senator.
Q. Who else?
A. Colonel W. P. Thompson.
Q. Is he dead?
A. Unfortunately, yes. Mr. Horace A. Hutchins.
Q. Is he dead?
A. Alive. To a certain extent, Mr. John D. Rockefeller.
787 You are speaking now of 1878?
Q. Yes.
A. I think that comprises the gentlemen I made my transactions with.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Skip about half a page.
Judge STEDMAN: Where does it begin?
Mr. LIGHTFOOT: At "Who audited the books."

Q. Who audited the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. The auditors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the auditors of the Standard Oil Company for and on behalf of the Standard Oil Company.
Q. How often did the Standard Oil Company audit the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. As often as it saw fit to do so.
Q. And after the reorganization who audited the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. So far as I know, and up to the time I ceased to handle the details of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, only the auditors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. Did you ever have any knowledge of any Standard Oil Company auditors auditing the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Not between 1900 and 1904.
Q. Did you after 1904?
A. Yes.

Q. Were you here all the time from 1900 up until 1904?

A. Very little of the time, General.

Q. Did you say that during that period you were in control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I did.

Q. And do you say you have no knowledge of the auditing of the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company by auditors of the Standard Oil Company?

788 A. I have no knowledge of the auditing of the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company by the auditors of the Standard Oil Company between the first of June, 1900, and some time during the year 1904.

Q. For the purpose of refreshing your recollection, Mr. Pierce, I will ask you if you do not remember on the 24th day of November, 1903, of being notified by Mr. J. P. Gruet in a letter written by him in St. Louis and sent to you in New York that an auditor from the Standard Oil Company office had been detailed to audit the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and that he arrived in the City of St. Louis on the 20th day of November for that purpose, and calling upon you to send some notes here in order that the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company might appear straight?

A. I have no knowledge of any such letter. I doubt very much if it was ever received. During that time, General, I was very ill, and for months, one period more than a year, I was unable to be seen or consulted in regard to business. That condition lasted over a period of three or four years.

Q. I will ask you if on November 30th you did not answer that letter by sending to Mr. Gruet the notes referred to?

A. I have no remembrance of it.

Q. Do you remember the circumstances of sending any notes to Mr. Gruet in response to a request from him?

A. I do not remember having been requested to do so, verbally or in writing, or having complied with the request or in any manner anything concerning it.

Q. But you did learn that the auditors of the Standard Oil Company afterwards were auditing the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I was informed verbally and by communications during the year 1904 and the fore part of the year 1905 that the Standard Oil Company auditors were auditing the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Did you learn the individuals who were doing this?

789 A. I did not. I did not ask or was not advised.

Q. Did you protest against that?

A. I do not remember that I did, General. I may have done so.

Q. Did the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company have any representative at 26 Broadway?

A. Do you mean a special representative?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. To whom it paid a salary?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I think, General, that for a great many years the first Waters-

Pierce Oil Company did pay to one or more, probably several, employes of the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway for special services rendered by such employes to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in connection with purchases of supplies for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the shipment of those supplies to Mexico. I will explain that we shipped nearly everything that went into the upkeep of refineries in Mexico from New York, and the tin for the manufacture of cases went from there and iron for tanks, in fact everything that entered into the manufacture of oil down there was shipped from New York, and we employed Standard Oil representatives who were familiar with our requirements to purchase and forward those supplies, bill them against the St. Louis office, and it is my impression that we paid such employes from the St. Louis office during a number of years prior to the dissolution of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. They were not regular employes of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I should say they were to the extent of the employment.

Q. That is, when they would do work for you their time for doing that work would be charged against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Only.

Q. Did you make any reports to 26 Broadway to any representative of the Standard Oil Company prior to 1900?

790 A. Myself, personally?

Q. No, the company.

A. I think I did regularly.

Q. And to whom were those reports made?

A. An auditor of the Standard Oil Company or the Comptroller of the Standard Oil Company, or various heads of departments of the Standard Oil Company.

Q. And what did those reports disclose, Mr. Pierce?

A. They disclosed a synopsis of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's business as it related to these various departments to whom the Waters-Pierce Oil Company reported.

Q. Those reports showing the general conduct of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company went to H. M. Tilford, did they not?

A. That I am not sure of. I had no occasion to know. I do not know to what particular individuals they were sent.

Q. Was not W. H. Tilford regarded as the man to whom the reports of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company came finally for supervision?

A. I think the reports were mailed to the heads of the departments who were interested in the character of the report.

Q. And H. M. Tilford had been a director of the company?

A. W. H. Tilford and H. M. Tilford both had been. You are speaking of the old or new company?

Q. I am speaking of the old company.

A. Both had been directors.

Q. But H. M. Tilford was a director up until 1900?

A. I think so.

Q. During that time the reports of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's business went to the various heads of departments at 26 Broadway?

A. Such reports as it gave to the Standard Oil Company went to the various heads of departments, but those reports covered only a very limited part of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's business.

791 Q. Did you make a marketing report?

A. I presume so, although I do not remember the details. At one time I perhaps could have enumerated most of them to you. There were a good many.

Q. Did you make a report as to salaries?

A. I think the reports as to salaries were made once a year.

Q. To whom?

A. I am not sure, but I think to Mr. H. M. Tilford.

Q. Did you make a lubricating oil report?

A. I don't remember that we did; possibly.

Q. Did you make a specialty report, report as to the sale of specialties?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. You don't know that you did not?

A. I do not know that we did not. We made generally whatever reports were desired.

Q. Whatever were called for?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. After the organization of the new company was there any change in that system of reports to 26 Broadway?

A. After the new company was organized the reports and communications were sent to Mr. R. H. McNall, 26 Broadway, instead of the various heads of departments of the Standard Oil Company, as had been the case during the existence of the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. What was the purpose of that change, Mr. Pierce?

A. The purpose of the change was that the growth of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's business had very largely increased the correspondence with the various heads of the Standard Oil Company, and in addition a multiplicity of manufacturing and refining plants of the Standard Oil Company as sources from which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company received its supplies had increased very largely 792 the correspondence between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the various interests and the individuals of the Standard Oil Company, and practice proved that very frequently delays in receiving orders, transmitting orders, shipping and otherwise handling the business between the two occurred, and as a business transaction it was found expedient, and so, upon my advice, a representative was selected, to be called Commercial Agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, who was to reside in New York, have his office at 26 Broadway, the home of the Standard Oil Company, through whom all communications from the various Standard Oil Company interests, plants and heads of departments were to be transmitted to the home office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in St. Louis, and to whom similar reports and communications from the home office in St. Louis of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were to be transmitted to the various refineries, plants and heads of departments of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. McNall was selected for the position because, as chief clerk to Mr. H. M. Tilford, Mr. McNall had become familiar with most of the transactions which it was thus sought to consolidate, and Mr. McNall was engaged by me; his salary was fixed; he was furnished with stationery, and, until he resigned this year, Mr. McNall continued to be the New York representative of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, not only in connection with those transactions with the Standard Oil Company but to a very large extent Mr. McNall represented the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in purchasing supplies of every kind and character used by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in its business in Mexico.

Q. He had been a clerk of Mr. Tilford before that, had he?

A. I think his position was assistant to Mr. H. M. Tilford.

Q. He continued, after he became the Commercial Agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in the office of Mr. Tilford?

A. I always found Mr. McNall in one of the offices of Mr. Tilford. You mean actually in the room?

Q. Yes, sir.

793 A. He did.

Q. Why was it the reports to Mr. McNall from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were addressed to him at 75 New Street?

A. That is beyond my knowledge. I only learned it through your developments.

Q. You were running the company here, Mr. Pierce?

A. General, I have been living in New York for the last three or four years, or rather that is where I spend most of my time. My health has required me to be there.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We skip the next.

Q. You say you were not aware that these reports to Mr. McNall were addressed to him at 75 New Street, the rear of 26 Broadway?

A. Not until I read it in the newspapers.

Q. When did Mr. McNall cease to be the Commercial Agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I do not recall, General, the exact time, but——

Q. It was this year, was it, after the institution of this suit?

A. It was during this year. It was February, March, April or May.

Q. And during the time that Mr. McNall held the position of Commercial Agent there were full reports as to the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sent to him, were there not?

A. No, they were not full reports of the business. Very meager percentage of the reports were sent to him.

Q. Reports were sent to him showing the financial condition of the business, were there not?

A. That I do not know.

Q. You were in charge of the company?

A. I was in charge of the company, but I could be in charge of a good many companies and not be on the spot.

Q. Here are a lot of reports furnished me as reports made to Mr.

McNall by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and I will read
794 the headings of them. Take for instance the first one here, "Sales and deliveries of refined oil by Waters-Pierce Oil Company during the month of ——." Do you remember of that report being made to Mr. McNall?

A. I do not.

Q. Here is the next report, a report as to the marine sales?

A. If you will pardon me, I am quite willing to say that they were all sent to him. If my attorney handed you those blanks, I am willing to say that they were all sent.

Q. Here is a report as to the barrels as compared with the same month of the year before. Do you know of that report being sent?

A. Won't you accept my general statement as to that, General?

Q. Here is a report showing the balance of the money on hand, sent to Mr. McNall?

A. I am not personally familiar and have not been for years familiar with the character of the reports that were furnished.

Q. Then you are not prepared to say that full reports were not sent to Mr. McNall?

A. I repeat again that reports of only a small percentage of the transactions of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were sent.

Q. The results of the conduct of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, you say, were not reported to Mr. McNall?

A. The results of some parts of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were always reported by the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the Standard Oil Company representatives, the heads of departments. Reports covering a part of the business of the second Waters-Pierce Oil Company were sent to Mr. R. H. McNall.

Q. At 26 Broadway?

A. 26 Broadway was the last address that I knew of.

Q. Do you say that reports as to the financial condition of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were not sent to Mr. McNall?

A. In a general way, General Hadley. I know of the 795 character of the reports that were formerly sent from the St. Louis office by the old company to the Standard Oil Company and by the new company to Mr. McNall, and when I say that they coverd only a small per cent. of the business, I am referring to the business in its entirety. The details of the business, the method of enlarging the business, the policy of the business, and matters of that kind, were not reported to Mr. McNall or the Standard Oil Company, but only results of transactions already had were reported.

Q. That is what I am getting at. The result of the conduct of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was reported?

A. Only a part of the business, a small part of the business.

Q. I find here a monthly report of delivery of wax candles, grease, etc. Do you remember that report being sent?

A. I presume it was sent.

Q. And a report of deliveries of lubricating oil during a certain month?

A. I presume it was sent.

Q. And reports of outside oils?

A. I presume it was sent.
Q. Delivery of specialty oil?
A. I presume it was sent.
Q. Marine sales I have already mentioned?
A. I know nothing about that, General.
Q. Comparative sales of barrels, of fifty gallons each, for a certain period as compared with the same period the year before?
A. I think those were sent.
Q. Those were sent to Mr. McNall? Reports of the total sales and net results of the business of the stations of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Perhaps that was sent.

Q. The statement showing the cost of barreling and marketing oil sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company during a certain month. Do you know of that being sent?

796

A. I am willing to repeat my offer to presume all reports were sent which you have there, which you say were handed to you by my attorneys, the attorneys of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. We do not agree that they show the entire business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. No, for the result is a small part of the business. The business consists much more largely of preparatory work and of execution than it does of results. The results are of very little consequence aside from the profits.
Q. Isn't that what men are in business for?
A. I am, and have been for these many long weary years.
Q. And that is what the Standard Oil Company is in business for?
A. It is so reported.
Q. Here is a report of milk cans, turpentine, fuel, oil, etc. That was sent with your knowledge?
A. I presume it was sent. Not to my knowledge, however.
Q. Here is another report as to deliveries of refined oil and naphtha by tank wagons?
A. That is smaller and more insignificant than anything that has come to my knowledge.
Q. You are somewhat surprised at the detail and insignificant matters that were reported to Mr. McNall?
A. Not at all. Mr. McNall was furnished anything and everything that he asked for as the representative of the Standard Oil Company and its various heads.
Q. Now, here is a report as to the sale and deliveries of naphtha, lubricating oils, other outside oils and merchandising?
A. I presume it was sent.

Q. Now, here is a report of refined oil and naphtha delivered by tank wagons, the semi-annual statement showing the cost of barreling and marketing oil. Do you know of that being sent?

797

A. I do not know, but I presume it was.
Q. Now, here is a report showing the monthly statement of the result of the sales and deliveries of refined oils.
A. I do not know concerning it, General. I presume it was sent.

Q. Now, here is a report of the deliveries of lubricating oils, outside oils, refined oil and petroleum merchandised to marine trade?

A. I do not recall that. I did not know we were reporting marine business. I presume it was sent, however, General.

Q. And any system of reports that the different heads of departments at 26 Broadway would call for would be sent to them?

A. The different heads of the different departments of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were in the habit of communicating through Mr. McNall, who was stationed at 26 Broadway, their desires, and, as the manager of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, it was my understanding that the heads of departments requested such information as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, who was a minority stockholder in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, desired to have——

Q. Minority or majority?

A. Majority—desired to have, and, recognizing the right of the largest stockholder in the company to have such information concerning its operations as it desired, I very readily instructed the various heads of the departments of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to send such information as was asked for.

Q. And that system continued during the entire life of the new company, or since its organization?

A. I can not speak, General, as to the interim during the years commencing with 1904 and ending in June, I think, 1905, or early in 1905.

Q. That was the time that the Standard Oil Company sent 798 out Tinsley and Backus, and some of the older employés of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were ousted, was it?

A. I think it occurred during that period.

Q. Are you familiar with this cash statement made by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, a copy of which I hand you?

A. I am.

Q. Did you know that that daily cash statement was sent to Mr. McNall, your Commercial Agent?

A. I did.

Q. And that disclosed, did it not, Mr. Pierce, the financial condition each day of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Financial condition of the St. Louis office only.

Q. That was the home office, was it not?

A. It was the home office in this country. In Mexico the City of Mexico was the home office.

Q. Were reports made from the City of Mexico to St. Louis?

A. Always.

Q. Then the result of the conduct of the business in Mexico would be reported to St. Louis?

A. Always.

Q. And then the report from St. Louis went to 26 Broadway?

A. Well, you are asking about this particular report?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I can not say that this particular report included the cash condition in Mexico.

Q. But the cash conditions in Mexico were reported here?

A. Always.

Q. And this was the controlling office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, was it not?

A. It was. That is a part of the percentage of business, General, which I excepted from your statement that we reported everything.

799 Q. Was not the business in Mexico part of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, but it would not necessarily be included in a report of that character.

Q. Do you say it was not?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. The conduct of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has been profitable, has it not, Mr. Pierce?

A. It has been satisfactory to me, General.

Q. The dividends of the new company have run something like four hundred per cent. a year, have they not?

A. Do you mean more or less?

Q. Well, about that?

A. Hardly.

Q. How much?

A. Are you asking what they have been?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. From six to seven hundred per cent.

Q. I was too low, then? Why hasn't the Waters-Pierce Oil Company developed oil fields and refined oils?

A. Well, I have not thought it to the interest of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to do so.

Q. You say the development of oil wells and the establishment of refineries near the point of consumption lessens the cost?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company was not in the business of refining oil in the United States.

Q. You were authorized to do it in your charter?

A. We were authorized to do a good many things we did not do.

Q. Why did you think it not advisable to do so? Was it because you agreed with the Standard Oil Company not to do so?

A. No, sir; there was no such agreement ever made be-800 tween myself and the Standard Oil Company. On the contrary, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has built and is operating four very large refineries on its own account absolutely without hindrance of the Standard Oil Company, and has been doing so for the past twenty-five years.

Q. And that has lessened the cost to the consumer?

A. Very materially.

Q. Why haven't you established refineries in Texas, then?

A. Because the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was not prepared to establish oil refineries. It had no facilities for doing so, and it was receiving its refined products from the Standard Oil Company promptly and of good quality and in a way to enable it to care for all of the business that I thought it advisable for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to engage in, and other people than the Standard Oil Company, as well as the Standard Oil Company, was refining oil in the State of Texas, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has taken from the Standard Oil Company the production of the refinery at Corsicana, and all the products of the Security Oil Company in Texas, and there was no occasion for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to go into the refining business and invest capital when it could purchase oil from them more cheaply.

Q. At all events, in all of the territory in the State of Missouri in which your company has sold oil it has no refinery, and it has sold no oil which it has refined itself?

A. No burning oil, General. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company manufactures lubricating oils and a great many kinds of oils other than burning oil which it sells within the State of Missouri.

Q. In your territory in Missouri you have sold the refined products that you have gotten from the Standard Oil Company?

A. I think almost entirely.

Q. Prior to 1878 the Standard Oil Company of Ohio had an office here and sold oil here?

801 A. Prior to the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company the Standard Oil Company of Ohio had an office for one year, or about one year, in the city of St. Louis.

Q. And they sold oil here?

A. It did.

Q. Did Pierce & Company have a refinery here at that time?

A. H. C. Pierce & Company had a refinery; Waters, Pierce & Company had a refinery, but I am not sure if Waters, Pierce & Company ever operated that refinery so far as refining oil was concerned.

Q. Who was in charge of the business of the Standard Oil Company prior to 1878?

A. Where?

Q. Here?

A. William H. Cobb.

Q. Was Mr. C. M. Adams connected with that company?

A. During the year prior to May, 1878, I think Mr. Adams was bookkeeper for Mr. Cobb, for the Standard Oil Company in St. Louis.

Q. On the organization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1878, the Standard Oil Company ceased to do business in St. Louis, did it not?

A. It did.

Q. And Mr. Adams became connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company as Secretary, did he not?

A. He became connected with the company, I think, as Secretary, although I do not remember the exact time.

Q. And from that time up to the present has the Standard Oil Company, to your knowledge, had a tank station or office in St. Louis?

A. I know that it has not.

(Skipped about half a page.)

Q. Did you know the firm of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle?

A. I knew several members of that firm.

Q. Did you know that they had a place of business here?

802 A. I knew they had a place here and in Springfield, Missouri.

Q. They had tank stations, did they not?

A. Both places.

Q. The same as your company?

A. No, sir; both inferior.

Q. They had some of the same kind?

A. No, sir; not of the same kind. They had tank stations.

Q. From which they distributed oil?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Republic Oil Company succeeded to the business of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle?

A. I do not know.

Q. Any way, Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle went out of business in 1901 and the Republic came in, did it not?

A. I do not recollect the date. I know that Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle ceased to do business in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory in Missouri, and I know some time afterwards the Republic Oil Company commenced to do business in the city of St. Louis.

Q. Did you know that after the Republic Oil Company took over Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle its tank station at Springfield, Missouri, was discontinued?

A. I know that the tank station of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle at Springfield was discontinued before the Republic commenced business in St. Louis.

Q. Do you know that the tank station of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle was not discontinued until after the Republic took over those properties?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company——

Q. Answer the question.

A. I am doing so, directly. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company purchased the Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle plant at Springfield, Missouri, and absorbed it into its own business.

803 Q. Do you say that the Republic Oil Company did not do business for a while in Springfield?

A. So far as I know they did not, and I think I know.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the Republic Oil Company took over the property of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle at Springfield, and operated that for a while, and then discontinued and removed the tank station?

A. I think I can state positively that it is not a fact, and that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had no dealings with the Republic Oil Company either at Springfield or elsewhere.

Q. The Republic Oil Company is owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, is it not?

A. I do not know. I accused the Standard Oil Company of owning the Republic Oil Company and it denied it.

Q. Not in the present year, though?

A. I have not communicated with the Standard Oil Company concerning it during the year 1905.

Q. Does your company own what is known as the International Oil Works?

A. It does.

Q. And operates that as an independent concern?

A. It does not.

Q. How does it operate it?

A. Mr. Grenner is employed on a salary and conducts the business for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. How long has that been going on?

A. I should say twelve or fifteen years.

Q. And it sells oil here as a separate concern, does it?

A. I believe it sells oil under the name of International Oil Works.

Q. And maintains a separate office?

A. I think it does.

Q. And maintains tank wagons of its own?

A. Yes, I think so.

804 Q. And yet that company is owned by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the purpose of that concealment?

A. It is not a concealment.

Q. Why, then, do you carry on the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under an alias?

A. Business reasons, all of which are good and sufficient to the management.

Q. Is there any other portion of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company being done under the name of some other company?

A. Locate it, please.

Q. In St. Louis?

A. I can not recall any, General. If I could I would cheerfully do so.

Q. Or in the State of Missouri?

A. That I do not know.

Q. You did operate the Inland Oil Company, did you not?

A. I think not. I think perhaps the Inland Oil Company was absorbed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. I do not think it ever owned or operated the Inland Oil Company.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you did operate the Inland Oil Company for a while and its operations were discontinued by orders from 26 Broadway?

A. That is not within my knowledge.

Q. And was not that order sent in a letter addressed to you as President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. If it was I never received it.

Q. What is your recollection as to whether the Inland Oil Company was operated for a while and then discontinued?

A. My recollection is very distinct that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company never owned or operated the Inland Oil Company until it purchased the Inland Oil Company and placed Mr. Gunni-805 son, its former manager, upon a salary.

Q. Is it operating that company now?

A. I do not think so, although I may be mistaken.

(Skip half a page.)

Q. Do you know John D. Archbold?

A. Very well.

Q. What position does he occupy?

A. I do not know his official title, General. I do know that he was a member of the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company. I also know that at various times he has been president of companies connected with the Standard Oil Company.

Q. Did you hear his statement made in this case?

A. I did not hear the statements of any of the gentlemen you have had the honor to examine.

Q. His statement is that the independent refineries in the United States could supply all the business in refined oil in the United States. Did you ever investigate the statistics as to the capacities of the independent refineries?

"Mr. PRIEST: I do not think it is proper, if Your Honor please, what Mr. Archbold says.

"COMMISSIONER: Objection overruled.

"To which action the respondents excepted."

Q. Did you ever investigate the statistics as to the capacities of the independent refineries in the United States?

A. I have not recently investigated the statistics as to the percentage of petroleum products manufactured by the Standard Oil Company and other oil companies in the United States.

Q. Are you able to state that it is not a fact that during the entire existence of the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company that the independent refineries in the United States had a capacity sufficient to supply all the trade in refined oil?

806 A. I am not able to state, because I have not made any investigation.

Q. You are not stating that that is not a fact?

A. No, sir. I have very carefully guarded against making statements I did not know to be correct. I have made no investigations along that line. I had no occasion to do so.

(Skips about half a page and begins with an answer.)

A. No. The first refineries from which the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company received its oil were all located at Cleveland, Ohio. Afterwards, when oil was discovered in the vicinity of Parkersburg, West Virginia, then a number of supplies, certain kinds of supplies, particularly the best brand of Eupion oil, was shipped from Parkersburg, West Virginia. Later, when crude oil was discovered in Ohio and Indiana, and the Standard Oil Company constructed a refinery at Whiting, at a less distance, consequently cheaper, a large percentage of the supplies of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company came from Whiting, Indiana. So that those three points were practically the sources from which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, during twenty-five years, received its supply of oil. The supply of oil for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory in Mexico, or its Mexican territory, was all shipped from Philadelphia in the crude state in Waters-Pierce Oil Company's steamers to Vera Cruz and Tampico and afterwards handled exclusively, manufactured and sold, by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in Mexico. So that the sources from which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has received its supplies from the Standard Oil Company, up until three or four years, has been almost entirely from Cleveland, Ohio; Parkersburg, West Virginia, and Whiting, Indiana.

Q. There were independent refineries at Cleveland, were there not?

A. In the early days, yes. I think not within the last fifteen or twenty years.

Q. Didn't Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle have one of the largest refineries there?

807 A. They had a very insignificant refinery so far as our requirements were concerned.

Q. It did have a refinery, however?

A. It did.

Q. Did you get any oil from any other refineries besides the Standard Oil Company at Cleveland, Ohio?

A. I think we did.

Q. In the last four years?

A. That I do not recall, General.

Q. There are independent refineries in the State of Kansas?

A. So I have been told.

Q. Did you ever get any oil from them?

A. I think not.

Q. Your oil now comes from Sugar Creek and Neodesha?

A. Neodesha, Kansas; Corsicana, Texas; Beaumont, Texas; Atlantic Refining Company, Philadelphia, and several other points, where the Standard Oil Company now supplies.

Q. And the shipment of these oils is directed by Mr. McNall from 26 Broadway, is it not?

A. Not at the present time.

Q. Up until the commencement of this suit it was, was it not?

A. No, it has never been directed by Mr. McNall. All shipments made to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, to whatever point, were made under directions from the officials of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the St. Louis office.

Q. At whatever price the Standard Oil Company wanted to bill it?

A. At whatever price was the current price of the goods upon the day the order was received.

Q. You did not know that until the order was received, did you?

A. Nearly always we did, because we had the current price of the Standard Oil Company, and we knew.

808 Q. That is, the Standard would sell it at the quoted price?

Mr. ALLEN: That question is not answered.

Q. Now, during the existence of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the old one or the new one, did you have the territory in Colorado and New Mexico?

A. Not during the existence of the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company. I think I have during the existence of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Didn't the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company sell oil a while in the State of Colorado and New Mexico until the Standard Oil Company took it away from them?

A. I think not. I do know that the firm of Waters, Pierce & Company, and its predecessors, sold a great deal of oil, and personally I organized for H. C. Pierce & Company a good deal of territory in Colorado.

Q. But after the organization of the new company that territory was taken over by the Standard, was it not?

A. I think not. I think it was many years after the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company when the Standard Oil Company, under any name, did business in the territory to which I refer as being operated in by H. C. Pierce & Company.

Q. Did the Continental Oil Company sell oil there?

A. I think not in 1878. The Continental was not in existence at that time.

Q. Has some of the territory in Louisiana been recently taken away from it?

A. None of it.

Q. You still sell oil there?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company sells in Louisiana West of the Mississippi River.

Q. But you don't sell East of that?

A. We have never done so.

809 Q. That is Standard territory?

A. I do not know. I know that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company does not claim it as its territory.

(Skips about a page.)

Q. I am talking United States. Then the fact that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company did from ninety to ninety-eight per cent. of the business was not due to the fact that there were not competitors that had tank wagons and tank stations to supply the trade?

A. At the time the Waters-Pierce Oil Company did the percentage of business you just mentioned there were very few competitors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company within the territory within the United States in which it did its business.

Q. I am talking of the new company?

A. I am speaking of the new company as well as the old. I doubt if the new company did anywheres near ninety-eight per cent. of the business.

Q. What has the new company done?

A. I should think eighty or eighty-five per cent.

Q. These conditions which you say contributed to the large percentage of the business have not existed since the new company has been in existence?

A. You mean the equipment?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. They have been largely increased and improved. The difference in percentage in former years and now is due almost entirely to the discovery of crude oil in the States of Texas, Louisiana, Kansas and in the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, which has caused a starting up of a great number of small refineries, all of which endeavor to do, and do, a considerable amount of business within the territory in the United States wherever the Waters-Pierce Oil Company operates.

(Skips about two pages.)

810 Q. You could have bought from any one you pleased, but you did not please to buy it from any one but the Standard?
A. Precisely.
Q. And the Standard could have sold to any one they pleased, but its products were almost exclusively handled through the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I think it was wisdom on the part of the Standard Oil Company to utilize the services of such a good merchant as myself.

(Skips next question and answer.)

Q. What is the cost of producing refined oil?
A. I could not tell you.
Q. Isn't the cost of producing a gallon of refined oil at Whiting about four cents a gallon?
A. I could not tell you.
Q. You said the cost of refined oil in the city of St. Louis has been about eight cents a gallon?
A. I did not.
Q. What was it?
A. I said I did not know. I think Mr. Johnson was kind enough to advance that information, but what it was I do not know. I said I had sold millions of gallons and hundreds of thousands of barrels at four and a half cents a gallon delivered to people in storage cans at their houses, including Kirkwood and Webster, which are several miles in the country.

(Skips nearly four pages.)

Q. How much of the time, Mr. Pierce, between June 1st, 1900, and the month of March, 1905, did you spend in St. Louis?
A. Between what dates?
Q. June 1st, 1900, the date of the organization of the new company, and the time of the commencement of this suit?
A. As I recollect, I was here nearly all of the year 1900.
811 Q. How about 1901?
A. I think the greater part of 1901.
Q. How about 1902?
A. A part of 1902.
Q. What part?
A. One-half or two-thirds.
Q. How about 1903?

A. In 1903 and 1904 I was ill East and unable to be in St. Louis.

Q. When was it that Mr. Finlay became president of the company?

A. The first time or second time, General?

Q. The second time?

A. I think February, 1904.

Q. February, 1904?

A. That is my remembrance.

Q. And in 1905 were you here in St. Louis?

A. In 1905 I was here in the month of June——

Q. Month of June?

A. July,——

Q. Were you here prior to June?

A. —and August. I think so, although I am not sure.

Q. What time?

A. Perhaps June was the first time I was here during the year 1905.

Q. During the years I have asked you about you were also in the railroad business, were you not?

A. I was.

Q. Were you giving personal attention to the management of the railroad business of the Mexican Central?

A. To a certain extent, to the necessary extent.

Q. Was it made known to you prior to your seeing this system of reports which were made to 26 Broadway, on yesterday, 812 that those reports were made?

A. I do not comprehend your question.

Q. Prior to bringing them to your attention yesterday, by showing you these reports, had you known what reports were made to 26 Broadway?

A. In a general way I knew of all reports at one time, but as those reports have been covering a period of twenty-five or twenty-six years, I did not give my personal attention to any additions or deductions from the volume of reports which were currently sent to the Standard Oil Company.

Q. Then you were not familiar with what reports were made?

A. I did not make any such statement.

Q. I asked you the question if you were?

A. I was familiar with the fact that a great many reports were sent, but the exact headings of the reports were of no importance to me. I simply approved of the sending of the reports, but what the headings were I was not familiar with.

Q. That was the extent of your information upon that subject, was it?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you familiar during this period I have mentioned with this circumstance of the business, of orders being received by your company—by that I refer to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company—from persons who did business in the Standard Oil Company's territory and orders being received by the Standard Oil Company from persons residing in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory and what was done, if you know, in transferring those orders from one company to another?

A. I do not think, General, that I ever had personal knowledge of transactions of either character. All I know concerning it is principally what I have read in the press since these proceedings commenced. I am quite sure I never had personal knowledge of transactions of that kind.

Q. Do you refer to what you read in the press of admissions
813 made here by counsel of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company that such orders were handled in the way I have indicated?

A. No. I refer to your charges.

Q. You did not see the admissions made by counsel that they were handled in that way?

A. Not at all.

Q. If such orders were handled in that way by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, that fact has not come to your knowledge?

A. It has not.

Q. Were you aware of any change in the system of paying the auditors of the Standard Oil Company who audited the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company after the reorganization?

A. Won't you make that a little more explicit as to what you mean by "system"?

Q. When auditors came here from 26 Broadway prior to June 1st, 1900, to audit the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, who paid those auditors?

A. I always supposed the Standard Oil Company paid them.

Q. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company did not pay them?

A. So far as I knew, they did not, and I should have made objection to any payment to the Standard Oil Company's auditors.

Q. After 1900 how was it handled?

A. It was not within my knowledge until since these proceedings commenced that any change from my former understanding had been made. I have been informed that at a date, which I assume was since the organization of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the Standard Oil Company auditors were paid by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but it was without my knowledge, and certainly would have been stopped had I known at the time of the charges being made. I should not have permitted them.

814 Q. Then has it come to your knowledge since testimony has been taken in this litigation that when the Standard Oil Company, through Wade Hampton, the General Auditor, wanted to audit the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, Mr. Hampton would send an auditor here and direct that he should be placed upon the pay-roll of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company while he was auditing the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. That was not in my knowledge in any instance since the organization of the first or second Waters-Pierce Oil Company until the past few months.

Q. Then, for the first time, it came to your knowledge?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So if that system was carried on from the time of the organization up to the time of the commencement of this suit, that was a detail of the business also that you did not know?

A. General, I doubt if that system was inaugurated very soon after the incorporation of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but whether or not it was, it was not within my knowledge—it was not reported to me.

Q. Now, I am not certain whether I asked you yesterday, and my recollection is that I did not, as to whether you knew of the dividends which were declared by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company being regularly reported to the Commercial Agent at 26 Broadway?

A. I did not know that they were reported specifically as dividends. I knew that upon the days dividends were paid that a cash statement, which was sent to the Commercial Agent—I presume you refer to Mr. McNall?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Included the disbursements, the cash disbursements, of that day, and, as a rule, at least the report sent to me, showed the amount of dividends and to whom it was remitted.

Q. Do you now recall, Mr. Pierce, that you did know that 815 daily cash statements were sent to Mr. McNall?

A. No, I do not recall that they were.

Q. Until I showed you the reports yesterday?

A. Oh, no, I beg your pardon, General. I do not want to answer in that way. Daily cash statements have always been sent to the Standard Oil Company and I knew they were sent daily to Mr. McNall, and I so testified yesterday.

Q. I may not have correctly recollected your testimony, then. But you did not know that reports of dividends were regularly made except as they might appear in the daily cash statements made to Mr. McNall?

A. How do you designate a report, General—by letter?

Q. By letter or any other means of communication—telegrams?

A. I never knew that they were reported by letter. They were not reported to me by letter. They were reported simply by having attached to the daily cash statements——

Q. I was not asking about your——

"Mr. PRIEST: Let him answer the question.

"COMMISSIONER: He can answer the question. I think he has a right to complete that answer."

A. The dividends were made usually upon regular days in each month, and upon the day a dividend was made, a memorandum of disbursements for that day was attached to the cash statement which I received, and I presume a similar one was sent to the Standard Oil Company, or to whatever name represented the Standard Oil Company, that we were authorized to send it to, and that statement was the only notice of dividends which I understood was sent to the Standard Oil Company or to Mr. McNall, or whoever might be its representative to receive dividends.

Q. Did you understand that dividends were reported only in that way?

A. Did I understand that they were reported in that way?

Q. Yes.

A. I never knew that they were otherwise reported.

816 Q. Did you know that they were in that way reported to Mr. McNall?

A. I assume that they were.

(Skip about three pages.)

Q. Were you familiar with the form of the reports that were made to Mr. McNall in reference to the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in this, that in addition to the letters to him a duplicate copy, without address or signature, was also sent?

A. To whom?

Q. To Mr. McNall?

A. I was not familiar with it, General.

Q. That was also a method of reporting the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or communicating with the Standard Oil officials with reference to the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, that was not within your knowledge?

A. I have not admitted that such reports were sent.

Q. Assuming that they were and assuming that the evidence shows it?

A. I have no knowledge of it.

Q. You have no knowledge of that?

A. No, sir.

Q. When did Mr. Tinsley come to St. Louis to take charge or to become connected with the management of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Mr. Tinsley came to St. Louis, as I remember, in April, 1904, to assume charge of the accounting department as successor to Mr. Gruet.

Q. Did he remain from that time?

A. I think Mr. Tinsley remained from the time he first came until the month of June, 1905, or perhaps he left as early as April or May, 1905.

Q. But you think Mr. Tinsley, from the time that he came in April, 1904, remained in connection with the management of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company until after the 817 commencement of this litigation?

A. From the time he came in 1904 until he left St. Louis finally, Mr. Tinsley remained in the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but not at all times in connection with the management of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. When did he become an officer?

A. I think in February, 1904, he was elected Vice President.

Q. He was elected Vice President, was he not, Mr. Pierce, before Mr. Van Beuren became the owner of this stock or before it was transferred to him upon the stock books?

A. Several months before.

Q. Well, then, was it against Mr. Tinsley's coming here to take charge that you protested?

A. Not at all. I acquiesced in it. I want to answer that differently. Mr. Tinsley did not come here to take charge of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Under an agreement with me, Mr. Tinsley was suggested by the S. O. Company, or rather by Mr. W. H. Tilford——

Q. Representing the S. O. Company?

A. Representing the Standard Oil Company, as an entirely competent man to succeed Mr. J. P. Gruet, who, for a long time, had been the Secretary of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but because of unfortunate infirmities had become disqualified to longer hold the position. I had never met Mr. Tinsley. I had never heard of Mr. Tinsley, but, as I secured Mr. Gruet originally from the Standard Oil Company and took him upon the recommendation of its then auditor, I also accepted Mr. Tinsley to succeed Mr. Gruet upon the recommendation of Mr. W. H. Tilford, who represented the Standard Oil Company, and it was distinctly understood between Mr. Tinsley and myself that Mr. Tinsley was to come here as the auditor or comptroller of the company and to have only to do with 818 the books and accounts of the company; that under no circumstances was he to interfere with the management of the company, and the position of Vice President was given to Mr. Tinsley simply to supply the position which would be made vacant by Mr. Gruet's retirement and my retirement from the presidency of the company, which I held up to that time, and Mr. Andrew M. Finlay's election to succeed me, Mr. Finlay having been Vice President since the organization of the present company.

Q. What was the date then when the Standard Oil Company began to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company?

A. Mr. Tinsley did not come here immediately upon his election in February. He was not in the city when he was elected. I was ill, as I recall, and unable to be here, and sent instructions, to perhaps Mr. Finlay, the Vice President, and Mr. J. D. Johnson, the General Counsel, as to how the election should be conducted and sent the proxies for my stock, which at that time amounted to within four shares of the entire four hundred thousand dollars of capital stock, or four thousand shares, and it was voted under my proxies for Mr. Tinsley.

Q. That was at a directors' meeting?

A. No, sir, stockholders' meeting. Voted for Mr. Tinsley as director, and the election of officers occurred at the same time. My health having continued such as to make it impossible for me to give close attention to the business, as the business required, Mr. Finlay was placed in my position and Mr. Tinsley was elected as Vice President. Mr. Tinsley did not come to St. Louis, as I recall, until perhaps two months afterwards, and when he came he was assigned by the President, Mr. Andrew M. Finlay, to the position in reference to the accounts which had been made vacant by the retirement of Mr. Gruet. Mr. Tinsley at first made no objections to taking charge of the books as the request was made, but finally Mr. Tinsley refused to take charge of the books and accounts.

819 Q. You haven't touched upon an answer to my question. My question was, when was it the Standard Oil Company began to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company against which you protested, as testified to by you from your written statement on yesterday, what day?

A. The action of Mr. Tinsley in refusing to perform the duties which it was agreed between Mr. Tilford, on behalf of the Standard Oil Company, and myself on behalf of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, that he should perform, caused a great deal of distress to Mr. Finlay, the President of the company, and in the course of time, Mr. Finlay failing to enforce his authority as against Mr. Tinsley's stronger character so wrought upon Mr. Finlay as to completely break down his health, resulting in Mr. Finlay being obliged to go abroad, where he remained several months.

Q. I do not care about the condition of the health of the gentleman. Tell me when it was they commenced to assume this management and control against which you protested.

(Colloquy between counsel shown in the testimony being read is omitted by agreement of counsel in this case.)

A. Immediately upon Mr. Finlay's departure for Europe for the purpose of restoring his health, Mr. Tinsley openly assumed charge of the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in all departments. He first took over the management of the Mexican department, removed it entirely from—he took away from General Manager Ackert the management of the Mexican division and assumed entire charge of it himself. He sent to Mexico as manager under the local general manager of Mexico a Standard Oil Company employé from Cleveland, Ohio, who was entirely unfamiliar with Mexico, its customs, people, languages or the business of the company in Mexico. The effect of that was to cause the very efficient manager of the company to resign his position. The answer to your question 820 as to dates is being given as explicitly as is possible, as the period covered all the time from the time Mr. Finlay went abroad until Mr. Tinsley was removed from his position.

Q. When did Mr. Finlay go abroad?

A. I think in the month of May or June.

Q. 1904?

A. Yes. I am not through with my answer.

Q. You have given the answer the question called for.

A. The resignation of the General Manager in Mexico left that department practically without a proper head. Mr. Tinsley proceeded at different dates to remove old and important officers, or rather employés, of the company, heads of departments, and substitute in their places inefficient, incompetent and inexperienced men. The number of changes in the management of the company equaled two or three hundred in the aggregate, and in nearly all cases those substituted were Standard Oil Company employés.

When this information came to my knowledge sufficiently to enable me to take action I protested to the officials of the Standard Oil Company in New York against the unwarranted action of Mr. Tinsley in violating the agreement entered into between the Standard Oil Company and myself at the time of the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1878, and the implied continuation of that understanding at the time the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized.

Q. Now, are you through? When did you make your protest?

A. At the time.

Q. At what time?

A. I made a protest, I think, in the month- of April, May and June.

Q. 1904?

A. 1905.

Q. 1905?

A. 1905.

Q. That was a year after it occurred?

821 A. I beg your pardon. Mr. Finlay did not leave until the Fall—I am not sure when Mr. Finlay left. If I knew when Mr. Finlay left I could tell.

Q. You didn't understand me. Your protests were made a year after Mr. Tinsley came here?

A. I did not answer that way. If I knew when Mr. Finlay went on his vacation I could tell you more clearly.

Q. It was in the Spring of 1904?

A. That Mr. Finlay went on his vacation?

Q. I understood you to say so.

A. That is not the date. I am very positive of that.

Q. Do you know?

A. I can easily ascertain, and then I will have some premise from which to answer your question.

Q. Was it the date when the stock was put in the name of M. M. Van Beuren that you protested?

A. Not at all. The stock was put in Mr. Van Beuren's name, I think, in the month of June, 1904. Mr. Tinsley's usurpation of the management of the business did not commence until very late in the Fall of 1904, and was not vicious until the beginning of the year 1905, and my protest—you asked the date of my protest?

Q. Yes.

A. My protest was made in the most positive manner in the month of May and in the month of June, 1905.

Q. That is, after the commencement of this suit?

A. I believe so. I do not recall the date of the suit.

Q. Let me call your attention to your testimony on yesterday when you made this statement, "Up to the Spring of 1904 the Standard Oil Company made no attempt to interfere in any way with my management and control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but at that time they transferred the stock which had stood 822 in my name to M. M. Van Beuren and began in other ways to assume control over the affairs and operations of the company. I protested against this conduct." But this protest was not made until the year after the Spring of 1904?

A. There is nothing in that statement which specifies that the protest was made in the year 1904. The stock was transferred in the month of June, 1904, I think. That specifies the first of April. That statement was intended to cover the time when Mr. Tinsley first came to St. Louis, but Mr. Tinsley did not immediately upon his arrival in St. Louis, or some considerable time afterwards, undertake to supersede the President in the management of the business, and he did not actively do so until Mr. Finlay's health compelled Mr. Finlay to absent himself, when Mr. Tinsley, as Vice President of the company, became the executive of the company and was in full power to enforce all of his wishes.

Q. Then it was in the Fall of 1904 and in the early part of 1905 you say the management of Mr. Tinsley became vicious?

A. Correct.

Q. When did you learn of the transfer of this stock to Mr. Van Beuren—on the day it was made?

A. On the day it was made.

Q. Did you protest against that?

A. I did not. There was no occasion for me to protest.

Q. What did you mean when you said in your written statement on yesterday, "At that time"—referring to the Spring of 1904—"they transferred the stock which had stood in my name to M. M. Van Beuren. I protested against this conduct." Did you mean you protested against the transfer of the stock?

A. I may have protested against the transfer of the stock as being contrary to the understanding with me. The specific methods of protest or the dates of the protest are not now within my mind. It would be very easy to recall them.

823 Q. Who did you protest to against the transfer of this stock to Mr. Van Beuren?

A. If I made a protest, I protested to Mr. Rogers or Mr. Archbold or Mr. W. H. Tilford.

Q. Why did you protest to them?

A. Because I assumed that they were the people responsible to me for the keeping of the agreement that was made when this company was organized.

Q. I understood you to say yesterday that you did not know who Mr. M. M. Van Beuren was?

A. I did not mention Mr. Van Beuren's name. You are not following the facts.

Q. You follow the question and I will take care of the facts.

A. I will.

Q. Did you know who Mr. Van Beuren represented when this stock was transferred to him?

A. I want the privilege of correcting your statement.

Q. I will stand by my statement, you correct your own.

A. I did not mention Mr. Van Beuren's name. I said Mr. Archbold.

Q. Why did you protest to Mr. Archbold against the transferring of the stock to Van Beuren if you did not know who Mr. Van Beuren represented?

A. I repeat that at that time I did not know who Mr. Van Beuren was, and it was necessary for me to make an investigation to ascertain who Mr. Van Beuren was. I did not protest because the stock was transferred to Mr. Van Beuren. I protested, if I made any protest, against the stock being transferred out of my name to any one.

Q. Let me see, I want to get this matter straight. Did you or did you not protest against the transfer of this stock to Mr. M. M. Van Beuren?

A. I certainly protested against the transfer of the stock to M. M. Van Beuren, but I do not recall if I protested at the time.

824 You have undertaken to fix the date as April, 1904, as being the date of the protest in the statement which I yesterday read. I now wish to say that I do not recall the reason the protest was made at that time or whether it was made subsequently or what time subsequent, if at all.

Q. So you can not make the statement when a protest was made, if one was made?

A. Except generally.

Q. You stated yesterday that you did not know who Mr. Van Beuren was until it was admitted by Mr. Rogers in the testimony taken in New York in March, 1906, that Mr. Van Beuren held this stock for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?

A. I did not know who Mr. Van Beuren was. I do not now know who Mr. Van Beuren is except by hearsay. I have never been informed except through the press as to who Mr. Van Beuren is.

Q. When you did protest against this transfer of stock to Van Beuren did you go to Rogers, Archbold and Tilford?

A. I was protesting against the transfer. In the first place, I do not say that I did protest. I do not recall whether I did or not at that time. Subsequently I am very sure that I did protest against the transfer of that stock, and possibly I protested in writing, but I went to Mr. Rogers, Mr. Tilford and Mr. Archbold to file my protest because they were the people responsible to me for the keeping of the Standard Oil Company's agreement with me.

Q. Did you go to them because you thought Mr. Van Beuren represented them?

A. Ask that again

Q. Did you go to them because you thought Mr. Van Beuren represented them?

A. Not at all. Mr. Van Beuren was a quantity of no value in my mind.

Q. You never made any inquiry of them as to who he was?

825 A. I did not. Afterwards I asked them who Mr. Van Beuren was.

Q. You knew that the stock was Standard Oil Company's stock, did you not?

A. I did not know to whom the Standard Oil Company had transferred the stock. I did not know whether Mr. Van Beuren was a broker or whether he was connected with the Standard Oil Company.

I knew nothing about the disposition of the shares of stock after I passed them over to Mr. Garth in the year 1900.

Q. For Mr. Pratt or for the Standard Oil Company?

A. I did not pass them over to Mr. Pratt for the Standard Oil Company.

Q. Who did you pass them to?

A. I sold those certificates of stock for a cash consideration, paid at the time by Mr. Garth, Cashier of the Mechanics National Bank, as I testified yesterday. Mr. Pratt went with me there and was present and the money was paid to me by Mr. Garth, not paid by Mr. Pratt. The certificates were handed by me to Mr. Garth and not to Mr. Pratt.

Q. When did you get the check?

A. The moment of transferring the certificates.

Q. When did you transfer the certificates?

A. As I recall, it was during the Summer of 1904. Those certificates will show. I don't recall the exact date, General. 1900, I mean—not 1904.

Q. Didn't you get a check for $274,800.00?

A. I do not recall the amount. I got a check for the value of the stock at par.

Q. Just the par value of the stock?

A. That is correct.

Q. Didn't you get that check, Mr. Pierce, at the time the new company was organized?

A. I did not. I did not receive any money. When the new company was organized I gave my own check on the Fourth 826 National Bank for four hundred thousand dollars. That check was charged to my account and it was taken over by the treasurer of the new company as the full capital stock. I held the certificates of stock in my own possession from that date, from the date of the organization of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, until I transferred the twenty-seven hundred—what is the amount, do you recall?

Q. 2748.

A. The 2748 shares to Mr. Garth in the office of the Mechanics National Bank of New York some two or three months afterwards. I received from Mr. Garth his check on the Mechanics National Bank for the par value of those shares. I had not received any money from any one prior to that date for any shares of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and the shares had not been out of my possession. I did not receive any pay for those shares at the time of the organization of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or at any subsequent time until Mr. Garth received the 2748 shares and handed me his check on the Mechanics National Bank for $274,800.00, which I sent to my bank in St. Louis, and it was deposited to my individual credit.

Q. Now, I understood you to say yesterday, or I recollect you as saying yesterday, that the fact that this transaction was to be handled in this way was made known to you by your attorney as a result of an agreement had with the General Solicitor of the Standard Oil Company. Did I understand you correctly?

Judge STEDMAN: We renew our objection to that on the ground it is hearsay.

The COURT: It is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Exception.

A. I think we did, General.

Q. Had you had any conversation or understanding with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company that the transaction was to be handled in that way?

827 A. Your question is, had I had an understanding with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company prior to any date, General?

Q. Prior to the time that the stock was transferred to Mr. Garth through you in the manner in which you have stated?

A. Had I had any understanding with the Executive Committee as to the transfer of this stock?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. And the method of transferring it to Mr. Garth?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I think not, General. I think it all came through Mr. Johnson, my attorney.

Q. I refer more specifically to your written statement yesterday in which you said, "When the license of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company to do business in Texas was revoked I sought to settle with the State, so that we could continue our business there. I was told very frankly by a prominent citizen of Texas that the people of that State would not tolerate the methods of the Standard Oil Company, and that no corporation controlled by that company would be permitted to carry on business in Texas. I explained this situation fully to the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company, and they agreed that I should organize a new company, the stock of which I should hold." Do you remember of testifying that way yesterday?

A. Perfectly.

Q. When was that understanding had with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company that you should organize a new company and hold the stock?

A. Your question, General, applies to an entirely different proposition. Your previous question, if you please, related to my having an understanding with the Standard Oil Company, or its Executive Committee, with regard to my sale of a part of this stock after it was issued by me to Mr. Garth or some one else. My answer to 828 that was I did not recall, and I am quite sure that there was no understanding with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company upon that subject—that the transaction was handled by Mr. J. D. Johnson, my attorney. In answer to your present inquiry, I will say that immediately after the suits were brought, or rather after the suit was determined upon, that the license be taken away from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in Texas, I conferred repeatedly with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company in regard to the methods to be employed to secure a reinstatement of the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the State of Texas and the securing of a new license enabling it to do business there, and the statement that you have read is absolutely correct.

Q. When was that conference with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company at which the Executive Committee agreed that a new company shoud be organized of which you should hold all the stock?

A. I am not able to state the exact time, but those conferences were very frequent during the Winter and Spring of 1900.

Q. And prior to the organization of the new company?

A. Prior to May 29th, 1900.

Q. And do you wish now to be understood as saying that all the understanding that you had at that time with the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company in reference to the stock of the new company was that it should be held in your name?

A. My present recollection is that that is the case; that I had no personal understanding with any of the members of the Executive Committee prior to the organization of the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company as to what disposition was to be made of the stock which was to be issued to me and for which I was personally to pay.

Q. What did you mean when you said that the reason of the organization of this new company was that the people of 829 Texas would not tolerate any corporation which was controlled by that company?

A. The language of the statement is very explicit and plain as to its contents. I refer you to it.

Q. And did that refer to the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Did the statement quoted in there refer to the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company? Certainly, because the new company had not then been incorporated.

Q. Then the statement referring to a corporation controlled by the Standard Oil Company refers to the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Naturally.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, didn't the Standard Oil Company after this transfer of stock have the same power of control at least and the same stock interest in the new company that they had in the old company?

A. Repeat it.

Q. The question was whether the Standard Oil Company had the same interest in the new company that they had in the old, did they not?

A. The Standard Oil Company at the time that the new company was incorporated and the license obtained in the State of Texas had no stock interest whatever in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. It was entirely vested in myself and for several months afterwards the stock certificates remained in my name, and for years afterwards the stock stood in my name upon the books of the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Then the difference between the old company and the new company was that the Standard Oil Company stock in the new company appeared in another name?

A. I will leave you to draw your own conclusions. I am unable to.

Q. What member of the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company was it that you had this understanding with about the organization of the new company?

A. It included practically all the members of the Executive Committee except one or two.

830 Q. After Mr. Tinsley assumed this management and control that you have spoken of was there any change to your knowledge in the system of reports made by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to 26 Broadway?

A. Not within my knowledge.

Thereupon the Court adjourned until 2.30 P. M.

Court opens at 2.30 P. M.

The COURT: Proceed, Gentlemen.

(Deposition of H. C. Pierce Resumed.)

Q. Was there any change made in the trade territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I think there was none whatever.

Q. And no change to your knowledge in the trade territory of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana?

A. I am not advised as to the territory of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Q. Was there any change after Mr. Tinsley assumed this management and control in the source from which the oil that was sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was received?

A. I think not.

Q. Was there any change in the course that had previously been followed as to the sale of oil by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory?

A. I do not comprehend your question.

Q. Was the oil that company sold in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory still sold almost exclusively through the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under Mr. Tinsley as it had been previously?

A. I comprehend your question to mean, did the Standard 831 Oil Company continue to sell supplies to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Yes.

Q. And the Waters-Pierce Oil Company continued almost exclusively to sell the products of the Standard Oil Company?

A. It did.

Q. Then in so far as the reports to 26 Broadway were concerned; in so far as the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was concerned; in so far as the source from which supplies came, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company went ahead the same under Mr. Tinsley as it had under your management and control?

A. There may have been immaterial changes. Mr. Tinsley may have sent a different kind of report, more or less reports, but in the main the business, so far as the source of supplies and territory within which the sales were made, that remained the same, as it does today, General.

Q. At the time of the reorganization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and just prior to which, had there been a one hundred per cent. dividend on the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company declared?

A. I can not say. Dividends were so frequent I can not specify any particular one.

Q. You mean that one hundred per cent. dividends were so frequent that they now escape your recollection?

A. I have answered it.

Q. That is your answer, is it?

A. It is not my answer to your last question, no.

Q. I will ask you if it is not a fact that when the reorganization was decided upon if there was not a dividend of one hundred per cent. declared and if there was not given to each of the six stockholders a check representing his dividend which represented the amount of the capital stock?

A. How was that?

(Question repeated by Stenographer.)

832 A. I think I comprehend the question, General.

Q. Well, please answer the question.

A. It is not a fact. No such dividend was ever made. No such dividend was ever made with the intention of disposing of the original capital stock or any part of the capital stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. I didn't ask you as to the intention. I asked you if it was not a fact that on May 21st, 1900——

A. I was obliged to answer that way in order to qualify my answer.

Q. You can qualify in any way you see fit, but I want you to answer the question. I asked you if upon May 21st, 1900, there was not by the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company a dividend of one hundred per cent. declared and by a check drawn on the National City Bank of New York there was not paid to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey $280,906.00; a check to you of $127,722.00; a check to H. M. Tilford of $102.00; a check to Mr. Finlay of $102.00; to Adams $102.00 and to Gruet $102.00?

A. I do not recall, but it is quite likely that such a dividend was made. It would not have been anything unusual for it to have been made on that date or any other day. I do not recall that it had anything to do with the reorganization of the new company. Still my memory may be defective in that regard.

Q. Do you remember any other instance when a one hundred per cent. dividend was declared?

A. I think so.

Q. When?

A. I do not recall the date. Dividends are paid as the surplus permits.

Q. You don't say that the dividends were not paid as I have indicated?

A. Any dividends would be paid in checks to the stockholders of record.

Q. Now, following the organization of the company, did 833 the new company give notes to the old company?

A. I do not recall the details of that. It was managed entirely by Mr. Johnson, the attorney of the company. I would be very glad to enlighten you if I could answer. It can be easily ascertained by refreshing my memory by examining the accounts.

Q. Let me ask you this question, that following this dividend of four hundred thousand dollars, practically, which I have referred to, that there were six notes given by the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company which were transferred by the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the stockholders in accordance with the percentage of the stock that they held?

A. I do not recall the details of that transaction, General. I do recall that notes were given, but the details of it I do not recall.

Q. Don't you recollect of receiving from the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company a note given by the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company amounting to $1,227,399.00?

A. I received a note. I do not recall the exact amount.

Q. And were not those notes that were given by the new company to the old company and those given by the old company to the different stockholders paid by dividends in the new company?

A. I can not say how they were paid. My note was paid, I know.

Q. Wasn't it paid by dividends in the new company?

A. I can not say, General. I don't know. I can not state as to the details of the transaction. My mind was too much employed to attend to matters of that kind.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, here is a colloquy between the attorneys, and then he says, "I refer you now to a letter." And then we skip over. "Mr. Hadley—I refer you now, Mr. Pierce, to correspondence in the month of November, 1903, which was submitted to counsel yesterday, and to which I call your attention, in which this letter was written, 'H. C. Pierce, New York. Dear Sir' "—then we 834 have to skip again. It goes over several pages. It says, "Witness examines papers."

Mr. ALLEN: Away over past the colloquy between Judge Priest and General Hadley.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT (reading): "Mr. Hadley—Do you not recall, after seeing these papers"——(Judge Stedman interrupts.)

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we object to the entire course of the examination in respect to the letter which was exhibited by Attorney General Hadley to Mr. Pierce, upon the ground, first, that the contents of the letter are not shown; we are in ignorance of what the contents of the letter are, and the letter itself is the best evidence both of its existence and of its contents; and, in the second place, so far as we can discover, not knowing the contents of the letter, that the same are immaterial and irrelevant.

The COURT: Let me see what it is you are offering. (Court inspects the deposition.) What is the purpose of this testimony?

Mr. ALLEN: Well, the main purpose is to show that he testifies that he was running the concern, and we want to show that he did not know that the Standard Oil Company—we will show by other testimony, it will be an agreed fact in the case that the Standard Oil Company did audit the books of the concern, and he states there that he did not know that that was being done, and yet he states that he was running the company and dominating it; and, in addition to that, to test this witness's statement along those lines.

The COURT: Haven't you already shown that he didn't know whether the Standard Oil Company audited the books or not?

Mr. ALLEN: Well, of course, I think we have, but it is cumulative on that point.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, this inquiry relates to a letter which, we have presumed, is intended by the other side to show communication of information to him upon this subject. Now, we are completely in the dark as to the contents of the letter 835 which would give the information upon this subject—that that is the point of our objection, that it is sought by reference to this letter to visit upon him knowledge of the fact which they are seeking to elicit when the letter itself it not produced.

Mr. ALLEN: It appears from those questions that General Hadley tried to refresh his memory, and after reading whatever was handed him—I don't know what it was—he still said that he had no knowledge of those things.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: The question on page 121 by Mr. Hadley gives the merit of whatever there is in the question.

Mr. ALLEN: We don't care anything about the letter except he said he didn't read it and didn't write it. We haven't it, and don't know what it was.

The COURT: The objection is sustained, except to——

Judge PENN: What part is sustained?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Except as to the part where it commences, "Mr. Hadley—Do you not recall"—and the answer, too?

The COURT: Yes, sir, all that bears on what you offer on that subject.

Mr. HADLEY:

Q. Do you not recall, after seeing these papers, the fact that in November, 1903, by reason of the fact that the Standard Oil Company had an auditor who was auditing the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, that you sent some notes given by the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company and endorsed to you, back here, to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's office here in St. Louis?

A. I have no recollection of the transaction or of writing the letter, and I think I testified yesterday that I had no recollection of the Standard Oil Company auditing the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's books subsequent to the organization of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company until within the past year or two.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: I think that is all we care to offer at 836 present.

Mr. ALLEN: That's all that we offer from it.

Judge STEDMAN: If the Court please, we would like to offer some of the testimony of Mr. Pierce omitted by the State at this time.

Mr. ALLEN: Well, we prefer that they put it in when they come to offer their testimony, after we have closed, and we object to the interruption. There is quite a lot of that testimony there, and we object to the interruption to put it in now.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, the testimony offered is a part of the testimony given by Mr. Pierce in Missouri, case up there. This testimony is introduced by agreement between counsel. Now, we think that we ought to be permitted at this stage of the proceedings to offer the remainder of his testimony, or so much as we think is admissible and desire to offer, in order that the jury may now connect all of these matters in their minds.

The COURT: Very well. I will permit you to do so.

(Portions of deposition of H. C. Pierce read by defendant.)

(Judge Stedman read the questions and Judge Penn the answers.)

Q. Are you now or have you been at any time a stockholder in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana?

Judge PENN: That's the fourth question, Mr. Allen, in the direct examination by Judge Priest.

Mr. ALLEN: I have it here.

A. I am not and never have been.

Q. Are you now, or have you at any time been, a shareholder in the Republic Oil Company?

A. I am not, and never have been.

Q. Are you now, or have you at any time been, a shareholder in the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?

A. I am not, and never have been.

Q. Have you ever owned any certificates of interest or any 837 interest in any form in the so-called Standard Oil Trust?

A. I have not.

Q. Have you at any time ever owned or do you now own any stock in any other oil company than the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I have not, and do not now own any stock in any other oil company other than the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. You are informed as to the ownership of the shares of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, are you?

A. I am.

Q. Now, I will ask you if the Standard Oil Company of Indiana or the Republic Oil Company own any stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. They do not.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, the next—"Does the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey own any stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?"

Judge PENN: The answer to that was read by the State.

Judge STEDMAN: Yes, I see, that's over on the next page. Now, Judge Penn, they read this here. Here is a question and part of the answer to which was introduced by the State, and we desire the remainder of the answer.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, will you please explain the relations between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and, in order that you may be brief, if you have prepared a memoranda shortly detailing that, I will say that you may refer to that memoranda and read it.

Judge PENN: Well, hadn't I better read all the answer, so the jury will understand?

Judge STEDMAN: I think so.

A. I have a memoranda answering that question, which I will read. During the Fall and Winter of 1877 and 1878, I organized, under the laws of the State of Missouri, the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company, which succeeded to the business of Waters, Pierce 838 & Company. The original capital was one hundred thousand dollars, of which amount Waters, Pierce & Company subscribed for forty per cent.; Horace A. Hutchins and William P. Thompson, of Cleveland, Ohio, subscribed for forty per cent., and Chess, Carley & Company, of Louisville, Ky., subscribed for twenty per cent. The first officers of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company were William H. Waters, Director and President; H. Clay Pierce, Director and Vice President; Charles M. Adams, Secretary and Treasurer; Horace A. Hutchins, Director; William P. Thompson, Director, and Francis D. Carley, Director. Some time after the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company the forty per cent. belonging to Hutchins and Thompson and the twenty per cent. belonging to Chess, Carley & Company was transferred to the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust, and I purchased the interest of William H. Waters in the forty per cent. belonging to Waters, Pierce & Company. So that when, on May 29th, 1900, the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company was liquidated the assets were distributed in these proportions.

Judge PENN: That's the portion of the answer read by the State. The balance is as follows:

When the Standard Oil Trust was organized I was urged to place the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the trust, but refused to do so, and even after the forty per cent. of the capital stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company issued to Hutchins and Thompson and the twenty per cent. issued to Chess, Carley & Company had been placed in the trust by the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, to whom it had been transferred, I still refused to place my stock in the trust. Wher the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized it was agreed by all parties interested that I should control and direct its policy.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, get down to the next "A".

A. Its policy and operations, and this I constantly continued to do from the date of its organization until February, 1900, when protracted ill health compelled me to absent myself from St.
839 Louis, and I retired as president of the company and elected my brother-in-law, Mr. Andrew M. Finlay, my successor.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, we object to the remainder of the answer, because the examination shows that it is hearsay—that he learned it from Mr. John D. Johnson, his attorney.

The COURT: Give the portion of the testimony which you say shows that it is hearsay.

Mr. ALLEN: Well, it is away over at the other side. Counsel I suppose will agree that that is a fact, that it is developed further on by interrogatories of Mr. Hadley that whatever information he had about it he got from Mr. J. D. Johnson.

Judge PENN: I don't know whether it is or not.

Mr. ALLEN: Well, I will find it if the Court will indulge me.

Judge PENN: We will not offer that sentence, Mr. Allen. We don't consider it of any importance and don't want to take up time unnecessarily.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, that relates to the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Now, state about the relations between the Standard Oil Company and the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

A. I have that in memoranda, Mr. Priest, and if you please, I will read from my memoranda.

"COMMISSIONER: Mr. Pierce, one question. You are giving that as your testimony?"

A. I am.

"COMMISSIONER: Proceed."

A. It simply refreshes my memory. When the license of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company to do business in Texas was revoked, and I sought to settle with the State, so that we could continue our business there, I was told very frankly by a prominent citizen of Texas that the people of that State would not tolerate the methods of the Standard Oil Company, and that no corporation controlled 840 by that company would be permitted to carry on business in Texas. I explained this situation fully to the Executive Committee of the Standard Oil Company, and they agreed that I should organize a new company, the stock of which I should hold, and that I should manage and control the company absolutely free from any dictation or direction of the Standard Oil Company.

Judge PENN: That's the portion the State read. Now, we read the balance:

This was done, and in order that the company should conduct its business in strict accordance with the laws of every State in which it was operating, I placed the attorney of the company on the Executive Committee, with instructions to examine all reports and transactions to the end that no law should be violated. I earnestly desired the company to respect and obey the laws.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, after the discussion between the attorneys get the next answer.

Judge PENN: Now, here is the portion that the State offered, but we will have to read it to make it clear to the jury.

A. Up to the Spring of 1904 the Standard Oil Company made no attempt to interfere in any way with my management and control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but at that time they transferred the stock which had stood in my name to Mr. M. M. Van Beuren, and began in other ways to assume a control over the affairs and operations of the company. I protested against this conduct as a violation of their agreement with me, and as contrary to the representations which I had made to the people of Texas.

Judge PENN: The State read that portion. We now read the balance:

After frequent interviews and discussions on this point, the management and control of the company were again committed to my direction, and my son, Clay Arthur Pierce, is now President 841 of the company, and conducting it as an independent business.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, Judge, turn over two or three pages.

Judge PENN: "How many gallons to the barrel?"

Judge STEDMAN: Yes, sir, that's it.

Judge PENN: Beginning with the question, "Was there during all of this time and source."

Q. Was there during all of this time any source, other than those of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, from which you could obtain the merchandise to supply the market demand in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory?

A. You are referring to the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, Judge?

Q. Yes, sir, the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

A. There was not. The volume was so great that it would have been impossible for us to obtain a sufficient quantity to meet the requirements of our territory from any other source.

Q. Could you do so now, Mr. Pierce?

A. I feel quite sure that we could not. There have been many new industries, refineries in new localities, where crude petroleum has been produced, but without very careful investigation, my opinion is that we could not from all sources combined.

Q. Does the Waters-Pierce Oil Company own, or is it interested, directly or indirectly, in any oil producing property or oil wells in the United States?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company does not own, and is not interested, and never has been, in any oil wells or oil-producing property within the United States.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, over on the next page.

Q. And the present business of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company is the result of your management all of that period?

Mr. ALLEN: Now, we object to that as calling for the opinion and conclusion of the witness merely, and it is not material or relevant.

842 Judge PENN: The answer does not state a conclusion.

The COURT: The objection is sustained to the last clause of the answer. As to the rest, it is overruled.

Mr. ALLEN: The last sentence?

The COURT: "Honestly believe."

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

A. I have managed the business of the various interests, commencing with W. H. Cobb & Company, H. C. Pierce & Company, Waters, Pierce & Company, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company organized in 1878, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company organized in the year 1900, down to the present time, with the exception of a short interval.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, go over three pages, over on the fourth page.

Q. Do you know after the Spring of 1900, when the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized, how its affairs and policies were managed?

A. I do.

Q. By whom?

A. By the officers and the directors and the Executive Committee, composed of the officers and directors and some of the heads of departments.

Q. Do you know who constituted the Executive Committee of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Myself; Mr. Finlay, the Vice President; Mr. Adams, the Treasurer; Mr. Gruet, the Secretary; Mr. John D. Johnson, the General Counsel; Mr. Stephen Johnson, Manager of the Lubricating Department; Mr. Charles P. Ackert, General Manager of the Company. There may have been one or two more, but those are the names I now recall.

Q. Now, I will ask you, Mr. Pierce, whether the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company ever had any understanding or made any agreement, expressed or implied, with either the Republic Oil Company, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, or any other company or person in the State of Missouri, or elsewhere, for the purpose 843 of fixing or intending to fix or maintain the price at which any of the products of petroleum should be sold upon the market?

A. Absolutely it did not.

Q. And has not, to your knowledge, down to the present time?

A. To my knowledge, and I know generally and particularly in regard to the affairs of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, it has not down to the present time.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, over on the next page.

Q. I believe you stated this morning that the Standard Oil Company was the only source from which you could get, in your opinion, a supply adequate to the demands in the territory in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were operating?

A. I am very sure that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company could not have obtained more than a very small percentage of its total output from other sources than the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and Indiana and their allied interests.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, I want you to describe in a general way the equipment employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in merchandising the oil sold in Missouri and the territory in which it operates outside of the Republic of Mexico, and by this I mean the tank stations and wagons, and so forth, the material equipment.

A. Prior to the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and when I was conducting the business under the firm name of H. C. Pierce & Company, and Waters, Pierce & Company, I commenced introducing and locating stations at various points upon the lines of railways, rivers and water courses within the territory where I was conducting business. So that when the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized the firm of Waters, Pierce & Company had stations generally throughout the entire territory in which the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company now operates. Those stations consisted either of lands owned or leased, warehouses 844 owned, stationary storage tanks and other arrangements for the storage of oils; tank lines for the transportation of oils between St. Louis, or other initial point of shipment, to the stations; tank wagons in which to locally distribute the oil, and iron barrels and smaller metal receptacles for the transportation and delivery of oils within a radius of, say, less than one hundred miles from each distributing station. Those appliances have been increased practically upon the same lines since the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company to meet the growth of the business until, when the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized and at the present time, the lands and stations, transportation facilities and delivery facilities have been for many years and now are equal to supplying the entire demands for petroleum products of all kinds within the territory in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company transacts its business.

Q. Take, Mr. Pierce, as an illustration, do you know what the material equipment for the marketing of oil by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the City of St. Louis is?

A. The value, Judge Priest?

Q. No, I want you to describe it and the quantity of it, if you can.

A. As the firm of H. C. Pierce & Company I owned the block of ground between Thirteenth and Fourteenth street- and Gratiot and Austin streets, in St. Louis, and at the time of the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company the ground was covered and equipped with storage, handling, manufacturing and shipping appliances.

Q. Of what did they consist?

A. They consisted of iron storage tanks, brick buildings, machinery for the manufacture of tin cans for receiving, storing and shipping oil; the manufacture of iron barrels for similar purposes; the manufacture of wooden barrels; the manufacture of wooden cases, to receive and ship the tin cans; the manufacture of tank wagons for the local distribution of oils and machinery for 845 the manufacture of axle grease; for the manufacture and compounding of all kinds of lubricating oils, and machinery, appliances, and facilities for receiving, storing, handling and manufacturing and shipping practically all articles which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company handled to the extent that business was transacted in and from St. Louis. Similar facilities, according to the requirements of the different headquarters and stations throughout the territory, also existed.

Q. In other words, wherever the trade demanded you established these facilities for the economical handling for the merchants?

A. Originally the shipment started from St. Louis or came in by the Gulf of Mexico at Galveston. Later as the business developed, stations were established at the larger cities in all of the territory until many years ago these stations and facilities were established at all points where there were railway or water facilities and where there were none the goods were delivered to the merchants in the small towns and to the people in the country through means of iron barrels, tin cans and tank wagons.

Q. Then, I understand you, whenever a railroad was newly extended into a territory you followed them up by establishing stationary tanks, and you are the first person who established a system of delivery in tank wagons and those iron barrels?

A. Commencing in 1869, I personally and most of the time accompanied shipments from St. Louis radiating within the territory within which the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company now operates, located stations, attended personally to the construction, the selection of agents and the basis of sales and the organization of the local business, and as the railroads extended throughout the territory of which I am speaking, until stations were established at all points upon all railways and all water courses within that territory, and I personally attended to the shipping of those stations, or rather I was the first person to invent and have manufactured and 846 put into use tank wagons for the distribution of oil by having the horses haul the wagons; also the first iron barrels that were ever used in this country, and the appliances that I speak of were first used by myself, representing the various firms with which I have been connected in the oil business, and within the territory now occupied by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, long before those appliances were ever handled by any one else in this country.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, down lower.

Q. You confined yourself to establishing the facilities and preparing yourself to meet the enlarged demand within that territory?

A. Absolutely, and in keeping ahead of the demands, to the end that all requirements should be promptly met, because I knew that otherwise I would not be able to control the trade.

Q. Reverting back to the plant at St. Louis. As an adjunct to that plant and for the purpose of economizing in the cost of your oil did you establish a station in East St. Louis?

A. I did.

Q. And a pipe line under the Mississippi River at St. Louis?

A. I did, to avoid the cost of transporting the oil purchased from points East of the Mississippi River over the bridge to various points across the river, I established a large storage station in East St. Louis and located several pipe lines under the Mississippi River, so that during the past twenty or twenty-five years practically all of the oils received from points East of the Mississippi River at East

St. Louis have been received in East St. Louis by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, turned into its stationary tanks located there and pumped through pipe lines under the Mississippi River into the tanks belonging to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company located upon its lands at Thirteenth and Austin streets.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, will you give me approximately the 847 value of the equipment and plants of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I have not recently examined the books, but I should say in the neighborhood of five million of dollars.

Q. That has relation to your storage tanks and your equipment to serve the conveniences of the sale of petroleum?

A. Entirely so.

Q. Do you remember the cost to the user of illuminating oil when you first began in the oil business?

A. I have sold a great deal of illuminating oil of the ordinary quality in this city at one dollar per gallon, and a great deal more at forty cents later on.

Q. Within the past few years the price of oil has been on an average—I speak of the price to the consumer—of about how much per gallon?

A. I have sold a great deal of oil in the City of St. Louis within the past few years at four and one-half and five cents per gallon delivered into their cans or receptacles from tank wagons.

Q. The price of oil varies, speaking with respect of from week to week, to the cost of production and refining?

A. The price of refined oils, gasolines and lubricating oils of the various qualities is controlled almost entirely by the price of crude petroleum, and the latter is controlled very largely by the location of production as related to the point of manufacture; for instance, when there was a large supply of crude petroleum produced in Pennsylvania and other parts of the United States, the cost of refined products delivered in the territory within which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company operated was based not only upon the value of the crude and the cost of manufacture, but to a very large extent to the cost of transportation, which then was perhaps the larger part of the total cost, and later when a large production of crude petroleum was obtained in Ohio and Indiana and the Standard Oil Company established a manufactory at Whiting, near Chicago, the cost of 848 the refined products delivered to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the territory within which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company operated was very much lessened because of the less cost of transportation from the point of production of the crude and manufacture of the products to the territory within which it was sold, and so when a large production of crude petroleum was produced in Texas there were no manufactories within any reasonable distance from the point of production of the crude, and the quality of the crude being of much less value for manufacturing purposes than the production of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana crude, likewise affected the cost of the refined products. The proximity of the crude product and the manufacturing plant to the territory within which the manufactured products were sold was very often, as in the case of the Texas production, entirely overcome by the reduced value of the Texas production as compared with the Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana production, and so it has continued as to the crude petroleum in Kansas, the Indian Territory and Oklahoma. So that the price of the refined product to the consumer depends upon a great many elements, as I have illustrated.

Q. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company has never acquired nor attempted to acquire any oil fields or engage in the production or manufacture of oil, except as an incident to its business as a merchant in oils?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company has never acquired, nor attempted to acquire, any fields for the production of crude petroleum, or wherein crude petroleum was produced, and has engaged in the manufacture of petroleum products from crude petroleum purchased only to the extent of the requirements of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's business.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, turn over to the next page.
Judge PENN: I have it.

Q. Now, at present you get some oil from the Standard Oil Company's refinery at Whiting, Indiana, and at Sugar Creek, Missouri, do you not?

849 A. At the present time the Waters-Pierce Oil Company purchases of the Standard Oil Company petroleum products which are shipped to it from Whiting, Indiana, and Sugar Creek, Missouri.

Q. When was the refinery of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana erected at Sugar Creek?

A. I do not recall the exact time, but I should say about three years ago.

Q. What, if you know, is the capacity of that refinery—is it large or small?

A. Comparatively large.

Q. Now, what would be the effect of establishing that refinery at Sugar Creek upon the price of oil in the Southwest territory—would it lower or increase the price?

A. It would lower it to the extent of less freights from Sugar Creek than from Whiting. The selling price of the refined products should be lessened to the extent of the inferior quality of the crude used at Sugar Creek as compared with the better quality of the crude used at Whiting, the selling price should be correspondingly greater.

Q. In other words, when you establish a manufactory in the locality of distributing the finished product of the factory and in the neighborhood of the raw material the tendency is, as in this case, to reduce the cost of the product to the consumer?

A. It is so unless the quality of the crude is of so much less value as to offset the less cost of transportation and manufacturing.

Q. Transportation in that instance, as in all other instances, is an important factor in determining price?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Do you know whether the oils produced in Kansas are refined or are as good oils as produced elsewhere?

A. It is my understanding they are not. They are much inferior to the oils from which the Whiting products are manufactured.

850 Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, you have spoken of a great number of facilities for merchandising this oil. What advantage do you derive as a merchant from the equipment, and what is the advantage to the consumer from the establishment of such facilities?

A. The advantage to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is the regular control of the trade adjacent to the stations. The advantage to the consumer is a saving equal to a very large percentage of the total cost in almost entire absence of leakage, insurance, storage and other similar expenses. The introduction of tank cars as a means of transporting refined products, particularly those of lighter gravity, such as gasolines, amounts in a saving in evaporation alone to as much as fifty and seventy-five per cent. of the total contents, dependent upon the distance to be transported. The introduction of iron barrels for the delivery of refined products from Waters-Pierce Oil Company's stations to territory within a distance, say, of thirty or forty miles, where formerly the wooden packages in which the transportation was effected were held in storage until the merchant sold by the gallon, or in less measure, the contents of the barrel, is equal to from ten to sixty per cent. of the contents of the package, and a greater per cent. of saving accrues to the consumer when receiving the exact number of gallons or the exact measure purchased from a tank wagon directly into the house receptacles. In the City of St. Louis there are some three or four thousand retail merchants who formerly purchased all of the oils which they sold at retail to their customers in wooden barrels from the Waters-Pierce Company, or its predecessors, or its competitors in this city, or imported it from far away points, and a fair average of the leakage during such time, say, one barrel of fifty gallons of refined oil or gasoline, remained in the retail grocer's store was very often equal to fifty per cent. of the contents or twenty-five out of the fifty gallons. Since the introduction of tank wagons deliveries from our storage tanks, in our works in St. Louis, not 851 one drop need be wasted. So that the advantages are very great, not only to the dealers and handlers, but to the consumers.

Q. I understand you, then, there is in the ordinary mode of shipment a very great shrinkage in the quantity placed originally in the package to be shipped?

A. When that package is not a metal one. Metal packages entirely do away with shrinkage and evaporation.

Q. Do you know of any of your competitors in the territory of Missouri—and when I say in the territory of Missouri I mean the territory in which you operate—that are equipped as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company is equipped for supplying its trade?

A. None there are or have ever been.

Q. Now, to what do you attribute this large percentage in the volume of oil sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in its Missouri territory?

A. Entirely to the better facilities afforded by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the consumer than competitors could furnish, and to very close attention to the prompt delivery of the best qualities and full measures of oil.

Q. Has the Waters-Pierce Oil Company adopted any trade marks in oil?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company received from the firm of Waters, Pierce & Company, and that firm received from the firm of H. C. Pierce & Company, and that firm from W. H. Cobb & Company, and that firm from J. R. Finlay & Company, the originators in Europe and in this country, and trade markers here, several trade mark brands which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, first and second, have always used and still use.

Q. What is your trade mark brand of best oil?

A. Eupion.

Q. Is that manufactured for your company by the Standard Oil Company?

A. It is in this country, in the United States I mean.

Q. In Mexico it is manufactured by whom?

A. It is manufactured by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company itself.

852 Q. Can you estimate the number of gallons of Eupion oil sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company annually?

A. I have not the figures at hand. I know that because of maintaining a uniform excellence of oil sold under that brand that the percentage of Eupion to other brands of refined oil materially increased each year, and I assume that it is now doing so. I believe that in some instances, perhaps at many points, the sales under the Eupion brand exceed the sales under all other brands.

Q. When the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the defendant in this suit, was organized, I understood you to say that it succeeded by purchase to the plant of the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. It did.

Q. And it has since then confined its operations to building up its business in that territory with the plants that it acquired from the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. It has.

Q. I will ask you whether there has been any understanding expressed or whether the matter has been discussed with respect to the division of territory since that?

A. I have not discussed the question of division of territory with any one since the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized, nor do I know that any other officer or representative of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has done so with any one.

Q. Now, Mr. Pierce, I will get you to state approximately your estimate of the value of the assets and good will of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I should say a fair value is from forty-five to fifty-five millions of dollars.

Q. What is the total amount of stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Four thousand shares.

Q. What is the par value?

853 A. One hundred dollars per share. Four hundred thousand dollars.

Q. What proportion of that stock do you own?

A. Thirty-one and one-half per cent.

Q. Now, what, in your opinion, is the value of the assets, tangible assets, as distinguished from the good will of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I have not examined the books lately or a statement. I think in the neighborhood of twelve millions of dollars.

Q. In addition to the tangible assets you estimated good will. Mr. Pierce, what are the trade marks, what articles have they in trade marks, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in trade marks?

A. The number?

Q. Yes sir.

A. Trade marks upon all kinds of refined oils, lubricating oils, great number of those; greases and other products that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company handles.

Q. Mr. Pierce, my memory may be at fault, my associates think it is, and conceding for the present that it is, I want to ask you, if I have not already done so, whether there has ever been any combination, confederation, understanding, expressed or implied, between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or the Republic Oil Company, or the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, with respect to fixing or maintaining within the State of Missouri, or elsewhere, the prices of the manufactured products of petroleum, or with respect to the quantity of the products of petroleum that should be sold upon the markets in the State of Missouri?

A. There has not.

Q. Or any other Standard Oil interest, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?

A. There has never been any understanding between the 854 Waters-Pierce Oil Company and any Standard Oil Company interest in regard to any of the questions you have propounded.

Judge STEDMAN: What is the next place you have marked?

(Judge Penn indicates the next portion.)

Mr. ALLEN: Is this cross examination?

Judge PENN: Yes, sir, by Mr. Hadley. I expect it would be about the fifteenth or twentieth page of that, the first place you stopped in the cross examination.

Q. At any other time or with any other representative of the Standard Oil interest was there an agreement with you that you, a minority stockholder, should direct and control the affairs of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir, subsequent to that with the same and additional individuals.

Q. Well, name some of them.

A. W. H. Tilford, Silas H. Paine and the various individuals connected with the Standard Oil Company of Ohio and New Jersey, and the various Standard Oil interests as time went on and the extension of business required.

Q. And all these gentlemen agreed that the minority interest in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company should control its operations?

A. Always.

Q. Without any supervision or control of the Standard Oil Company?

A. Absolutely.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, skip several pages.

Q. Have you known of the Standard Oil Company selling any oil to any other wholesaler or jobber in the State of Missouri?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes.

Q. To whom?

855 A. The Republic Oil Company and to various dealers in the city of St. Louis.

Q. What dealers in the city of St. Louis ever bought any oil of the Standard Oil Company besides the Republic Oil Company?

A. George P. Jones & Company, and I presume a great many other dealers in St. Louis.

Q. That would simply be emergency orders?

A. I think not.

Q. Name a man in the city of St. Louis who purchased oil from the Standard Oil Company other than those you have mentioned?

A. I can not answer that.

Q. Mr. Adams became connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company as Secretary, did he not?

A. He became connected with the company, I think, as Secretary, although I do not remember the exact time.

Q. And from that time up to the present has the Standard Oil Company, to your knowledge, had a tank station or office in St. Louis?

A. I know that it has not.

Q. Or anywhere in the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. It has during all of that time maintained a tank station at East St. Louis, which is and has been since 1878 within the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Which company has the territory of East St. Louis?

A. Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. It sells the oil to the consumers there?

A. When it can.

Q. The Standard Oil Company don't sell any, does it?

A. It does.

Q. Are you a competitor of the Standard Oil Company in East St. Louis?

A. Unfortunately, yes.

856 Q. The Standard Oil Company is competing with a company in which it owns a majority of the stock, is that your statement?

A. I don't make the statement. That may be your conclusion, General.

Q. I am asking you. You are familiar with your competitors in the city of St. Louis, are you not?

A. Not personally at the present time.

Q. You were during the time you managed the business?

A. Intimately so.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, skip over a page or two.

Q. You say you get oil of the Standard Oil Company because there is no other place you can get it. Did I understand you correctly?

A. I said that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company purchased the greater part of its supplies of refined oils and petroleum products from the Standard Oil Company because during all or a greater part of the time since the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company was organized it would have been impossible for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the first or second one, to have obtained sufficient supplies of proper quality to meet the trade requirements of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company within the territory in which it operated.

Q. You do not know whether you could have secured the oil, or whether the Waters-Pierce Oil Company could have secured the oil, to supply the trade in its territory from the independents or not?

A. Up to within a few years, since which time the greater portion of all other refineries have been established, I did examine the statistics very thoroughly and positively know that it would not be possible for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to have secured sufficient supplies from that source, but it will be remembered that the multiplicity of refineries has been greater since the production of crude oil commenced in Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory than during the entire previous period.

Q. Why didn't you get all you could from the independent refineries?

857 A. As a rule the oils produced by the independent refineries were of very inferior quality and they were produced in such small quantities by each independent, although the aggregate was considerable, it would have made it very much more expensive for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to have supplied its trade from a great many sources as against the one.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, skip two or three pages.

Q. What is the nearest refinery to your territory in the South-west?

A. What part of the South-west?

Q. South-west part of this State?

A. I should think Sugar Creek.

Q. Neodesha is nearer, is it not?

A. I am not positive as to the distance. It may be.

Q. You have not been actively engaged in the business?

A. I have not been at either place recently and do not recall the exact distance. I do not think there is very much difference, General.

Q. You were speaking of the equipment of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company consisting of tank stations and tank wagons. Aren't other oil companies in the city of St. Louis selling oil that have this same equipment?

A. None.

Q. Doesn't the St. Louis Oil Company have them?

A. The St. Louis Oil Company, I believe, has a station, and has an equipment.

Q. Hasn't it tank wagons?

A. It has tank wagons, but its equipment is not at all equal to those possessed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. It has the same kind of equipment only in smaller size?

A. I am not sure that it is the same kind or a different kind.

Q. It consists of tank stations and tank wagons?

858 A. I believe it consists of one tank station and some tank wagons.

Q. Take in the city of Springfield and Joplin, Mr. Wilhoit has tank wagons and tank stations?

A. I do not know the gentleman, or what he has there, if anything.

Q. Do you know that there are not other companies than those I have mentioned that have tank wagons and tank stations throughout the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I know that tank stations and tank wagons do exist and are operated in competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at many points in the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in fact generally throughout the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the United States, but not in Mexico.

Q. These conditions which you say contributed to the large percentage of the business have not existed since the new company has been in existence?

A. You mean the equipment?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. They have been largely increased and improved. The difference in percentage between former years and now is due almost entirely to the discovery of crude oil in the States of Texas, Louisiana, Kansas and in the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, which has caused a starting up of a great number of small refineries, all of which endeavor to do, and do, a considerable amount of business within the territory in the United States wherever the Waters-Pierce Oil Company operates.

Q. And in the State of Missouri that has contributed to the enlargement of competition, has it?

A. The production of crude oil?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Very largely.

Q. And these tank wagons and tank stations have grown up in the State of Missouri within the last four or five years?

859 A. I do not know to what extent they exist, but I should say, with the exception of the St. Louis Oil Company, they have grown up within the past few years since oil was discovered near by. It was quite a different thing for a competitor to receive his supplies from Parkersburg or Cleveland, or far Eastern points, and bring it here in wooden barrels, and sustain a leakage often as great as fifty per cent, than what it is now to get his supplies from a refinery in the immediate neighborhood; and a competitor can transact business under much more favorable conditions when the source of supply is nearer the point of sales, and with the modern equipments of iron barrels for transportation and storage, than he could in former days. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company at the time it held such a large percentage of the business was practically the only oil industry in this country equipped to store, transport and handle oil in iron packages.

Q. There is Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle?

A. Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle had two and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had hundreds.

Q. In the State of Missouri?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company had hundreds of stations in Missouri of the most perfect and largest character, fully sufficient to supply the entire demand, and Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle had a small one in St. Louis and a much smaller one in Springfield.

Q. But they had the same kind of equipment?

A. No, sir. It was very inferior in every way. They were not at all equipped.

Q. Did you ever see them?

A. I saw those in St. Louis, but not in Springfield. I had a very full description of what they had, because I negotiated for the purchase of their plant there.

Q. At Springfield?

A. At Springfield, in fact purchased the plant there. Con-
860 tinuing that answer, General, if you will allow me, if the people of the State of Missouri in the territory in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company now operates had been obliged to depend upon Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle they would have been in darkness over ninety per cent. of the time.

Q. That is your opinion?

A. That is based upon facts.

Q. The people of Missouri have never had an opportunity to test that question yet.

A. They have had the same opportunity that I had to supply them with oil.

Q. I do not understand?

A. They were free agents. So was I. They could have bought from any one they pleased. I could have sold to any one I pleased.

Q. You could have given the people of Missouri the advantage of these refineries close to the point of distribution, but you did not regard it as expedient?

A. It would have been expensive to the people of Missouri if I had, because with my limited capital, as compared with the Standard Oil Company, I could not have afforded to do so. They have been able to sell to me so that I could re-sell to them.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, the next one we don't want. I think that is all, Judge Penn.

The COURT: Are you through with that testimony, Gentlemen?
Judge STEDMAN: Just one moment until I can see.—That's all.

861 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer the deposition of Wade Hampton. I will state to the Court that a portion of this deposition is covered by an agreement and a portion of it is not, and a portion of it, also, is, to a certain extent, in conflict with the agreement, and we offer that part of the deposition, or will offer it, for the purpose of showing that at the time this deposition was given, which was in October or November of last year, that the facts now admitted show that an effort was made at that time to conceal them, and such portions as are in conflict, we offer for the purpose of showing the effort by Wade Hampton, who is charged as one of the conspirators in the petition, that he made an effort to conceal the facts which are now admitted.

Mr. ODELL: If the Court please, we object to any part of the deposition for the purpose stated by State's counsel in this case, for the reason, in the first place, that it is not shown that Wade Hampton was ever at any time in the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or that he was an agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the defendant in this case. In the next place, we object to it for the reason that these gentlemen themselves took the deposition of the witness; he is their witness; they are not surprised at this time by any statement that he makes in the deposition, and for that reason they can't offer any answer that the witness makes in his deposition for the purpose of either contradicting or impeaching or discrediting this witness. It is wholly immaterial and irrelevant here for the purpose of any conspiracy, or the fact that he was one of the conspirators in this case. He is not a party to this suit, and the general allegation in the petition here that he was one of the conspirators would not make the deposition of the witness material or pertinent to an inquiry of that kind. In the next place, if the witness has evaded or failed to answer any question—any interrogatory that was propounded to him in the interrogatories here, it would have been proper to have made a motion to have suppressed 862 the deposition, and certainly now, by reason of some failure of the witness to answer and by reason of his failure to answer, it is not admissible here for the purpose of showing any concealment by the witness, on the part of the defendant; and we object to it for all of the reasons stated.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: I will state that the stipulation and agreement that we made with counsel contains the provision that either party may use the deposition of Wade Hampton heretofore taken on interrogatories propounded by the State, in the trial of this case, subject to all legal objections as to competency and relevancy. Now, we don't care to offer the deposition to disprove any fact which is admitted in this case, and for that reason I make the statement that the purposes for offering that portion of his deposition which conflicts with the facts which are now admitted, is offered for the purpose of not discrediting the witness or contradicting him in any way, except to show, so far as the facts really go to show, that at that time, in October, 1906, or November, when this deposition was taken—I believe it was in November—that the facts which are now admitted were then denied, or an effort was made to conceal them, in line and with the view to maintain the conspiracy and monopoly that had been established, and in order that it,—the elements of it,—should not be made public and become known; and as was well known, of course, this suit was pending here at that time; this was a witness who was the General Auditor of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, of the Standard Oil Company of New York, of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and of the numerous other of those corporations whose offices were at 26 Broadway, New York. His office was at 26 Broadway, New York, and the deposition will disclose that he audited the books and accounts of all these corporations, and did that up until 1900, also the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company up until 1900; after 1900 they sent auditors who audited, out to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Com-

863 pany, and with instructions to put them on their pay-roll, etc. Now, that is a fact that is now admitted—that they were sent there by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, for the purpost of making an audit of the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for the use and benefit of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the admitted majority stockholder in this corporation. Now, then, last October, when the depositions of these witnesses were being taken and the State was undertaking to establish these facts, the witness Wade Hampton evaded these questions and denied that these auditors which were sent out there were sent there at the instance of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, but specifically said that they were sent there at the request of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Now, we say that it is competent to introduce his answers to those questions for the purpose of showing that he, as one of the conspirators charged in our bill, was doing his part to conceal the relationship existing between the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company organized May 31, 1900, and the relations between such corporations not having been admitted until here about thirty days ago. And we offer it, as I say, for the purpose of showing that an effort was made by this co-conspirator to conceal the true relations existing between these corporations, wherever it contemplates that.

The COURT: Let me see the evidence that you offer. (Mr. Allen hands the deposition to the Court.) Do you offer this entire deposition?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Yes, sir; we expect to read the entire deposition, but there are some parts of the deposition not covered by this agreement; that portion of it, we take it, there could be no objection to, as it is not covered by the agreement. There are some facts testified to that are not covered by the agreement at all.

Mr. ALLEN: A part of it, of course, shows facts that are not 864 covered by this agreement.

The COURT: I understand the objection goes to the entire deposition.

Mr. ODELL: The objection goes to that part of the deposition which they state candidly to the Court is for a certain purpose. Counsel has made a statement to the Court that there is part of the deposition that they offer for a certain purpose. Now, we object to the deposition for any purpose that State's counsel says it is offered for.

Mr. BATTS: We have indicated the point that it is offered for that purpose.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: I suggest, if Your Honor please, that we——

The COURT: If the Court should rule at this time, the record would not show what part is offered and what is objected to.

Mr. ODELL: We have to make our objection.

The COURT: You can renew your objection when that part is offered. As it is presented now, the Court is under the necessity of reading a great deal of matter not necessary.

Mr. Batts: Now, Your Honor, this is the question and answer with reference to which this statement was primarily made. This we do not care to introduce, because that is a fact covered by the agreement.

The Court: The last question and answer?

Mr. Batts: The last question and answer and two or three succeeding ones. I desire to call your attention specifically to what we want to limit it the introduction to. If not proper for that purpose, then we do not care to offer it at all.

The Court: Do you wish to renew the objection?

Mr. Odell: Yes, sir. (Examines deposition.) Before Your Honor rules, we would like to state our objection a little more fully.

The Court: Yes, sir. I will hear you.

Mr. Odell: We desire the record to show that if this tes-
870 timony, commencing with Direct Interrogatory No. 25 and answer thereto, and the subsequent questions and answers of this witness are offered generally, then we have no objection to the testimony; but we do object to the testimony for the purpose that the State seeks to have it limited to in this case. In the first place, it is not shown that the witness was ever at any time an agent of the defendant. Therefore, the defendant can't be bound by the testimony of the witness. In the next place, the State in this case has made this witness its own and can not now undertake, directly or indirectly, for any purpose, to impeach or contradict the witness, and whatever the stated purpose of the State may be in this case, the only effect the testimony could have would be to prejudice the witness before the jury and thereby prejudice the rights of the defendants here by and through one of the State's own witnesses. Now, it is shown that the testimony of this witness was taken some time in October. It is shown by the testimony already offered in evidence here, the testimony of H. C. Pierce, that he had made substantially the same admission that has been made in the agreement and stipulation that has heretofore been offered in evidence. Now, the test with reference to this testimony is as to what issue in this case it tends to prove; if it does not tend to throw light on some issue in the case, as a matter of course the testimony is immaterial and irrelevant, in the first place. In the second place, if it has the effect of prejudicing the witness before the jury for the stated purpose, in fact of prejudicing the defendant before the jury, then a double injury is done the defendant in this case. For the purposes of the trial of this case a written statement and agreement was offered in evidence; it has been admitted here; it is not denied. Now, as a matter of course, in so far as the stipulation and agreement throws no light on this controversy, it isn't in issue. Now, what do they seek to establish here? They seek to establish by a witness who they claim has concealed or evaded some question that this agreement that 871 they have offered in evidence here is not true. It is an indirect attack, in the first place, on the stipulation and agreement that is not controverted, and it seems to us clearly that it can not become an issue here as to whether or not one of their own witnesses has concealed or has failed to state fully the truth, on the one hand, or, on the other, has failed in his knowledge of the particular facts that have been admitted. Now, are we going to be called on to discuss an issue here before the jury as to whether or not this witness had knowledge of the facts that had been admitted and are uncontroverted here? As a matter of course, it may be material to throw light on the issue in this controversy as to whether or not auditors of the Standard Oil Company in fact audited the books of this company. If that be material here, that is already admitted. Then they propose now to go further than that with this witness, and show that this witness either did not have knowledge of that fact, on the one hand, or, on the other, that he has not stated the truth fully about it; so it is immaterial and irrelevant. It is an attack on the stipulation and agreement that is uncontroverted here; it is an indirect effort to assault and attack and impeach and cloud the testimony of their own witness, and in this indirect manner we insist that it can't be done.

The COURT: One of the issues in this case is the purpose for which the Standard Oil Company sent auditors to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and had the books of that company audited. On that issue it is admissible and relevant, it seems to me, to show that when the head auditor of the Standard Oil Company was asked in the Fall of last year whether any auditors had been sent or not, he said they had not been sent, and under the principles announced yesterday in excluding the affidavit of Mr. Pierce, I think that the evidence is admissible. The objection is overruled.

872 Mr. ODELL: We except to the ruling of the Court.

Interrogatory 43. Please state whether or not he represented the Continental Oil Company of Denver, Colorado, during that time, and if he does not represent them at this time?

Answer. No, it is not.

Interrogatory 47. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that it is, then state how long he has had his desk in that room?

Answer. It is not in the room.

Interrogatory 48. Please state whether or not Mr. H. M. Tilford's office at 26 Broadway is on that side of the building at 26 Broadway known as 75 New Street?

Answer. It is on the New Street side of the building.

Interrogatory 49. After May 29th, 1900, to whom were the 875 reports of the audit of the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sent at 26 Broadway?

Answer. I am not positive, but I suppose through Mr. McNall. They were not made to me.

Interrogatory 50. Please state whether or not after the alleged reorganization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, May 29th, 1900, the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were audited by you or under your direction, or by auditors in your employ?

Answer. They were not audited under my direction, but by auditors of mine employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company direct.

Interrogatory 51. Please state whether or not you directed any auditors in your employ to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company subsequent to May 29th, 1900?

Answer. Yes, I know Mr. Gruet. I think he was vice-president of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1901.

(Interrogatory 54 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 55. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that you wrote such a letter as that copy in interrogatory #54, then state why you sent Mr. Conrey to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the general office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and at whose request?

Answer. I sent Mr. Conrey, if this letter is a correct copy, to be employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to audit their 876 books and accounts. Just which officer or agent requested me to send auditors to work for them, I can not now recall.

Interrogatory 56. Please state why you thought it advisable that he should be considered an employé of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. Because he was out of my service entirely. He was under the employ and pay of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 57. Please state what were the reasons which you thought Mr. Gruet would undoubtedly appreciate? What was the significance of that expression?

Answer. The answer above explains. I don't recall any other significance.

Interrogatory 58. Please state whether or not Mr. Hornberger and Mr. Conrey were auditors for the Standard Oil Company, or any Standard Oil Company interest, and in your employ or under your direction, during the periods in which they were sent to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. Mr. Hornberger was in my pay and employ, my personal pay and employ, the time that he audited in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company offices in '99. Mr. Conrey was in the employ and pay of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in 1900, when he audited the accounts in their office.

Interrogatory 59. Why was it necessary that Mr. Conrey be considered an employé of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company instead of in your employ?

Interrogatory 60. After he finished his services with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company did he resume his services with the auditing department of the Standard Oil Company interests under your direction?

Answer. They were sent there and employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the same manner and under the same conditions as Mr. Conrey had been.

Interrogatory 64. Did you write Mr. J. P. Gruet a letter on or about the 7th day of November, 1902, concerning Mr. C. W. Norman, W. H. Henderson and W. J. Higgs?

Answer. I don't remember. It is possible I did.

(Interrogatory 65 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 66. If you state, or if it be a fact, that Messrs. Norman, Henderson and Higgs were auditors employed by you, then at whose instance and for what purpose were they sent to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and to whom did they make their reports after their labors were performed? If answer is made that reports of audit were made to H. C. Pierce, or any other Waters-Pierce Oil Company officer, I ask, was not a copy of such report also made to you?

878 Answer. They were sent by me to be employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to perform similar work and under the same conditions as Mr. Conrey had been. I am not positive as to whom they reported to. Reports were not made to me.

Interrogatory 67. Please state if Messrs. Henderson, Higgs, Norman, Conrey and Hornberger ever audited the books and accounts of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, or any other Standard Oil interest under your direction, and when?

Answer. It is very likely—I can't say when.

(Interrogatories 68, 69 and 70 and answers omitted.)

Interrogatory 71. Do you know Mr. R. B. Backus? How long have you known him, and state whether or not he was ever employed by you as an auditor? During what period of time was he employed by you, if he was so employed? Was he employed by you during the year 1903?

Answer. Yes, I know Mr. Backus. He was one of my auditing staff for a number of years. I can't remember how many years, but he was employed on my force in 1903.

Interrogatory 72. Please state whether or not he was sent by you in November, 1903, to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the general offices of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. I can't recall the exact date he was sent by me to be employed by them. I think in 1903. For the same purpose and under the same conditions as Mr. Conrey had been.

(Interrogatory 73 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 74. Please state whether or not you directed Mr. Backus to report to Mr. Gruet, and that he would be employed to audit the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Interrogatory 76. Please state whether or not in June, 1900, he was engaged in auditing the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under your direction?

Answer. I don't remember about his being there; he was not under my direction if he was.

Interrogatory 77. Please state if you have ever authorized or instructed him at any time to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. I can't remember whether I ever did or not.

Interrogatory 78. Do you know and was there ever in your employ a man named G. M. Fleming? What position did he occupy? Did he audit the books and accounts of the various Standard Oil interests under your direction?

Answer. Yes, I knew him. He was one of my traveling auditors. Yes, he audited under my direction.

Interrogatory 79. Please state whether or not you remember writing a letter bearing date of December 28th, 1903, in reference to auditing the books of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in which Mr. Fleming was instructed to assist Mr. Backus in auditing said books?

(Interrogatory 80 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 81. Please state whether or not Mr. Fleming was sent to St. Louis by yourself or any person under your authority for the purpose of assisting Mr. Backus in auditing the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. He was probably sent under the conditions named.

880 Interrogatory 82. Did you ever have a person in your employ by the name of William Waller? Was he employed by you in the year 1903? Please state what business he was engaged in while employed by you?

Answer. Yes, he was a member of my staff as traveling auditor, and was so employed in the year 1903.

(Interrogatory 83 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 84. Please state whether or not Mr. Waller went to St. Louis in accordance with the advice in that letter?

Answer. I can't remember now whether he went or not. It is possible he did.

Interrogatory 85. Please state whether or not Mr. Waller ever audited any of the books and accounts of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, New York, or any other Standard Oil interests under your direction.

Answer. He very likely did.

Interrogatory 86. Please state whether or not the Standard Oil Company of Indiana has an office at Decatur, Illinois?

Answer. I believe it has.

Interrogatory 87. Please state whether or not Mr. Waller had been there auditing the books of that concern under your direction at the time he was ordered to go to St. Louis?

Answer. I don't remember.

Interrogatory 88. Please state how long Mr. R. B. Backus was in your employ as a traveling auditor, if he was such?

Answer. I can't be positive as to the number of years.

Interrogatory 89. Please state when he severed his connection with your department?

Answer. I think it was in 1904.

Interrogatory 90. Please state, if you know, where he went and what business he became engaged in after he left your em-881 ploy. What is your information upon the subject?

Answer. He resigned from my auditing staff, I understood at the time, to take a position with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in St. Louis. Just what his official position was I don't know.

Interrogatory 91. Please state whether or not he went to St. Louis and accepted employment in the general offices of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and that he is still so employed by that company at this time? State fully all information in your possession upon that question.

Answer. I understood that he accepted a position with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as stated above, I believe in 1904. I am not positive whether he still retains his position with them or not.

Interrogatory 92. Please state whether or not you know Mr. C. T. Griggs? Was he ever in your employ as an auditor? Was he in your employ during the year 1904 as such?

Answer. Yes, Mr. Griggs was a member of my auditing staff in the year 1904.

Interrogatory 93. Please state whether or not in the month of October, 1904, he was sent to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. My recollection is he was employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the year mentioned, for just what work I do not know, as no reports were made to me.

Interrogatory 94. Do you know Mr. D. B. Hunt? Was he ever in your employ, or under your direction as an auditor? Was he employed as such during the year 1904?

Answer. The answer will be the same exactly as that made in relation to Mr. Griggs.

Interrogatory 95. Please state whether or not in the month of October, 1904, he went to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the general offices of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

882 Answer. The answer will be just exactly the same as that referring to Mr. Griggs.

Interrogatory 96. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that Messrs. C. T. Griggs and D. B. Hunt, or either of them, was in your employ as auditors during the year of 1904, and went to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, then state under whose instructions did they proceed there for that purpose?

Answer. I can't answer that positively, but I think they bore letters from Mr. McNall.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: If Your Honor please, including interrogatory 97 and on, we offer that generally, because there is no stipulation covering that part of this deposition. This interrogatory 97 we offer generally.

Interrogatory 97. Please state whether or not a person by the name of Barker was ever employed in your department, and state what his duties were. Did he have his desk in your office?

Answer. Yes. He was employed as a clerk in my office. He performed various duties. Among others, it was part of his duty, prior to May, 1900, to keep the plant record of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. His desk was in my office, but not in my room.

Interrogatory 98. Please state whether or not any reports of any character were made at any time, either before the reorganization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or otherwise, by Waters-Pierce Oil Company to your department, or to Mr. Barker?

Answer. Prior to May, 1900, construction reports were sent to my office, and received and handled by Mr. Barker.

Interrogatory 99. Please state whether or not construction reports of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were sent to your department, or to Mr. Barker in your department, for the information of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or any other Standard Oil interest?

883 Answer. No.

Interrogatory 100. We copy in this interrogatory what purports to be a letter written by you under date of March 28th, 1899, as follows:—

"26 Broadway, Room 800.

Wade Hampton. NEW YORK, March 28th, '99.

Mr. J. P. Gruet, Sec'y Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Missouri.

DEAR SIR: Referring to construction reports for six months ending December 31st, 1898:

In your statements you show a transfer at Athens, Texas, from tanks to buildings $140, which does not appear in construction reports, and which I do not understand.

Construction reports of December 31st/95, including a transfer from Corsicana to Athens of 8 x 27 tank, $340; and reports of June 30th/96, a reduction to Athens for difference in tank transferred, $140; reports of June 30th/96, also show addition to Athens of Tank, $225.55, which includes foundation, $205.00. What does the difference of $20.55 represent? What is the total amount of tanks that you make at Athens? Will you kindly advise and oblige,

Yours truly,

WADE HAMPTON, JR.
B."

Please examine the above copy and state whether or not such a letter was written by yourself, or under your direction?

Answer. Not seeing the original, I can't say anything positive in connection with the alleged letter.

Interrogatory 101. If you have stated, or if it be a face, that it was written by Mr. Barker, then state if he had authority to 884 sign your name to such a letter, and why such reports were made to you?

Answer. He had authority to correspond in relation to construction reports. The plant ledger being kept in my office by Mr. Barker caused the reports to be sent to me.

Interrogatory 102. Please state what disposition was made of the construction reports sent from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to your department, or to Mr. Barker?

Answer. The changes in construction were noted by Mr. Barker in the plant ledger currently, no further disposition was made of the reports.

Interrogatory 103. Please state if Mr. Barker's desk was at any time moved out of your office. If so, to what office was he removed?

Answer. Yes, it was moved out of my office and to Mr. L. D. Clarke's office.

Interrogatory 104. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that he was removed to Mr. Clark's office at 26 Broadway, please state what position Mr. Clark held at that time in connection with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or any of its allied interests?

Answer. Mr. Clarke was, if I recollect correctly, the secretary, assistant secretary, or comptroller, of a number of corporations, the names of all of which I do not remember, but he was, among others, at that time comptroller of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Interrogatory 105. Please state when such transfer was made, if it was so made?

Answer. I don't remember the date.

Interrogatory 106. Please state when the construction reports of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company ceased to be made to your department?

Answer. I think after May, 1900.

Interrogatory 107. Please state whether or not during the time

Mr. Barker was under you, or in your office, if he attended to these construction reports for you?

885 Answer. The correspondence was handled in my name.

Interrogatory 108. We copy in this interrogatory what purports to be a letter written by you under date of September 8th, 1899, as follows:

"26 Broadway, Room 800.

Please read this letter and state whether or not it was written by you, or under your direction?

Answer. Not seeing the original, I couldn't be positive that such a letter was written.

Interrogatory 109. Please state whether or not this matter was transacted through your office?

886 Answer. Possibly.

Interrogatory 110. We copy in this interrogatory the following letter:

Construction Reports.

"ST. LOUIS, MO., Sept. 11th, 1899.

Mr. Wade Hampton, Jr., #26 Broadway, New York.

DEAR SIR: Replying to your favor of the 8th inst., in regard to construction reports June 30th, 1899:

Estimate D522, fire alarm box at Shreveport, La., we will transfer this amt. to expense acct. as you request.

Estimate No. 516, addition to warehouse and repairs on stable at Merida. As the repairs were not done on stable there was no expenditure on this part of the appropriation.

Estimate No. 561, warehouse and moving plant at Jonesboro, the cost of moving tanks, etc., was charged to expense acct. amounting to $58.30. Old tank foundations, pipe, etc., were charged off, amounting to $414.32, making $472.62 against the $500.00, the appropriation for new tank foundations, moving and placing tanks, etc.

The amount of $618.81 you refer to as being a difference between incomplete construction report and as shown on balance sheet covers material on hand for making iron barrels and rebuilding tank wagons. This was included in construction report, as it is on a separate account as shown on balance sheet.

Hoping that the above explanations are satisfactory, I beg to remain,

Yours truly, J. P. GRUET, Sec'y."

Please read this letter and state whether or not you received such a letter from Mr. Gruet?

Answer. I couldn't state positively whether I received such 887 a letter, not seeing the original.

Interrogatory 111. Please state whether or not the balance sheet referred to in said letter was sent to your department?

Answer. Not that I know of.

Interrogatory 112. We copy in this interrogatory what purports to be a letter written by you under date of October 20th, 1899, as follows:

"26 Broadway, Room 800.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20, '99.

Mr. John P. Gruet, Sec'y Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: I beg to advise you that we have compared your statement of plant acct. of Mexico divisions with our records, and make amt. of buildings in Central Mexico division, $46,812.91; and land of Vera Cruz Refinery, $3715.67, instead of $4715.67. Is this correct?

Will you kindly furnish me under date of Dec. 31/99, in addition to the usual recapitulations of plant acct., statement showing amount of buildings, tanks, &c., and total amt. of plant acct. of each station and subdivision, similar to statements rendered for December 31st/97?

The writer spoke to you about this matter when you were here, and was to write you so as to remind you upon your return to St. Louis. I understood it would be convenient to make the statement.

Yours truly,

WADE HAMPTON, JR.
B."

Please examine this letter and state whether or not you wrote same, or whether it was done under your authority?

Answer. I can't be positive, as I do not see the original.

Interrogatory 113. Please state whether or not you have on 888 file in your office copies of the letters which have been set out in these interrogatories? If so, will you please attach copies of same, and mark them for identification?

Answer. I have not got the copies on file.

Interrogatory 114. Do you know Mr. R. P. Tinsley? What position did he occupy at 26 Broadway prior to 1904?

Answer. He was agent for several corporations.

Interrogatory 115. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that he was an agent, please state whether or not he was the agent of the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Atlantic Refining Company, and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or what Standard Oil Company, interest or interests?

Answer. He was agent of the three companies mentioned in the question.

Interrogatory 116. Please state, if you know, whether or not he was sent to St. Louis in 1904 to take a position with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. I don't remember what time he went to St. Louis exactly. I heard that he was an officer of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company some time after he had left New York.

Interrogatory 117. How long did he stay in St. Louis?

Answer. I don't know.

Interrogatory 118. Please state whether or not he afterwards returned to 26 Broadway, and what position he now holds?

Answer. He did not return, as far as I know. I do not know what position he holds at present.

Interrogatory 119. Please state, if you know, who succeeded Mr. R. P. Tinsley as agent of the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Atlantic Refining Company, and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or other Standard Oil Company interests, when Mr. Tinsley left New York?

Answer. H. C. Arnold.

889 Interrogatory 120. If you state, or if it be a fact, that Mr. H. C. Arnold succeeded him as such agent, please state whether he still holds that position?

Answer. I believe not.

Interrogatory 121. Please state what relation exists between the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of New York, and the Atlantic Refining Company?

Answer. Not ever having had access to the records showing ownership of the three companies, I can not answer.

Interrogatory 122. Please state what other auditors in your employ have, since 1900, been sent to St. Louis to audit the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in addition to those heretofore named?

Answer. I can not remember.

Interrogatory 123. Please state, in detail, the names of each corporation, or firm, whose books and accounts are audited by the force under your direction?

Answer. It would be absolutely impossible for me to answer that off-hand.

Interrogatory 124. Please state by whom are you employed to direct the auditing of the various concerns?

Answer. By the boards of directors of the various corporations.

Interrogatory 125. Please state what relation each one of said concerns bears to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?

Answer. Not having had access to the records showing ownership of the various companies, I can not answer.

Interrogatory 126. Please state whether or not Mr. R. H. McNall has since June 1st, 1900, seen any reports to your department purporting to be reports received from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. He has seen nothing from my office.

Interrogatory 127. Please state whether or not you have 890 any stationery in your department belonging to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company on which letters are written for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. I have not.

(Interrogatory 128 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 129. Please state whether or not you send auditors to any other concern outside of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to audit their books and accounts which is not owned or controlled by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey or its allied interests?

Answer. Frequently—yearly.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, we would like to make a motion to strike out the answer of the witness to interrogatory 25, if offered for the purpose of showing concealment on his part. I did not think it was proper until all that testimony was read. I think that the testimony here utterly fails to establish anything of that kind. The whole matter turns upon the construction of these letters. He was asked the question, "Please state whether or not the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of Missouri have ever been audited by you or under your direction?" "Not the present organization," is the answer. The witness admitted time and again that he sent people to St. Louis to examine them, to audit them. The question turns upon whether they were his employés or the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's. These letters show exactly what he intended. Now, it is possible that the jury might place a different construction upon whose employés these men were, but he says that they were employés of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. He does not conceal anything here. It is a question of the meaning of these letters of his. He says that he did not—that is, using himself as the representative of the Standard Oil Company—audit these books. He says in other answers they were audited by those persons who were sent and whose names were placed upon the pay-roll of the Waters-Pierce Oil 891 Company. So I think there has been an unjust imputation cast upon the witness by these gentlemen in regard to this matter. I think they have placed him in an improper light. He has not concealed anything at all. It is purely a question of the construction of these letters. We move that that answer, offered for the purpose of establishing concealment, be stricken out. I do not know how far the answers went. We move to strike out all that related to that. We move to strike out every one that is offered for that purpose. There is no concealment shown at all.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: In connection with that, we want to offer this stipulation and these letters in evidence, in connection with the deposition we have just read.

Judge STEDMAN: I want to call Your Honor's attention to the fact that there is nothing in that stipulation that contradicts what the witness says. (Reading): "The corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and commonly referred to as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which at the time said letters were written and said letters were sent, was the owner of shares of stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, had requested such information as would be revealed by an examination." They were sent. It is shown by the witness himself that he sent them.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: The witness testified in his deposition that he sent them there to be employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, at the request of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Now, this stipulation says they were sent there at the request of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, to audit the books for the purpose of securing such information from such audit as would be desirable and valuable to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, a majority stockholder, and we say his answers, in so far as stated in those depositions, that they were sent there at the request of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to be employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, is probably in conflict with this agreement and stipulation, and we offer them for 892 the purpose of showing the purpose on the part of the witness to conceal the true purpose for which they were sent.

The COURT: Does the deposition say the auditors were sent at the request of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: That is what he has answered in his answer.

The COURT: Turn to that answer.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: "They were sent there and employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the same manner and under the same conditions as Mr. Conrey." "I sent Mr. Conrey, if this letter is a correct copy, to be employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to audit their books and accounts. Just which officer or agent requested me to send such auditors to work for them I can not now recall." Then he says, "Because he was out of my service entirely. He was under the employ and pay of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at that time," and the stipulation says they were sent there by him at the instance of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and we desire to offer this now.

Mr. ODELL: I want to make this suggestion to Your Honor: For the purpose of this trial counsel are not attaching any importance to whether these auditors were sent by the Standard Oil Company or employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Now, to avoid taking a deposition they sit down and for the purpose of a trial make a stipulation and admission of that kind. That stipulation and admission do not tend to prove that the witness has concealed anything.

The COURT: I think it is the province of the jury to say whether there is any conflict between the evidence and the stipulation, and the objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We offer in evidence next the stipulation and letters attached thereto.

893 (Thereupon the stipulation, signed by counsel, was introduced in evidence, as follows):

"It is hereby stipulated and agreed for the purposes of this case only, that the letters attached hereto and marked with the initials 'J. P. L.' and 'J. D. J.', being the initials of Mr. Lightfoot, counsel for the State, and Mr. Johnson, counsel for the defendant, bear the genuine signature of Wade Hampton, said letters being generally designated as follows:

"Letter dated New York, July 7th, '99, addressed to Mr. H. C. Pierce, Pres't Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Missouri, and signed 'Wade Hampton, Jr.', and marked Exhibit 'A'.

"Letter dated New York, February 8, 1901, addressed to Mr. J. P. Gruet, Vice Pres. Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Missouri, and signed 'Wade Hampton' and marked Exhibit 'B'.

"Letter dated New York, November 7th, 1902, addressed to Mr. J. P. Gruet, Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Missouri, signed 'Wade Hampton' and marked Exhibit 'C'.

"Letter dated New York, November 12th, 1902, addressed to Mr. J. P. Gruet, Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Missouri, signed 'Wade Hampton' and marked Exhibit 'D'.

"Letter dated New York, November 24th, 1902, addressed to Mr. J. P. Gruet, V. P. Waters-Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Missouri, signed 'Wade Hampton' and marked Exhibit 'E'.

"Letter dated New York, November 10th, 1903, addressed to 'My dear Mr. Gruet' and signed 'Wade Hampton' and marked Exhibit 'F'.

"It is further stipulated and agreed that said letters were written and the respective persons therein mentioned were sent at the instance of the Standard Oil Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and commonly referred to as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which at the time said letters were written and said parties were sent, was the owner

894 of shares of stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and for the purpose of getting such information as would be revealed by an audit of the books and accounts of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company by the respective parties designated in the respective letters.

"It is further stipulated that the letters made an exhibit to this stipulation may be offered in evidence subject to such legal objections as may be made to them as evidence.

"It is further stipulated that either party may use the deposition of Wade Hampton heretofore taken on interrogatories propounded by the State in the trial of this cause, subject to all legal objections as to competency and relevancy, &c."

Mr. ODELL: We object to the letter of date July 7, 1899, for the reason that it antedates the incorporation of the defendant in this case and the granting of the permit to this company to do business in the State of Texas. For that reason it is immaterial and irrelevant, and does not throw any light upon any legitimate issue in this case against the defendant.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.
Mr. ODELL: We except.

Court adjourned until 9.30 A. M., May 24, 1907.

FRIDAY, May 24, 1907.

Court opens at 9.30 A. M.

Mr. ALLEN: The plaintiff offers in evidence the deposition of MAYWOOD MAXON.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name and age? Where do you reside?

Answer. Maywood Maxon. Age 50 years. Decatur, Illinois.

Interrogatory 2. In what business have you been engaged most of your life?

Answer. Oil business.

Interrogatory 3. With whom was your first employment?

Answer. Cochran & Fearing, reorganized as Cochran, Lyman & Co.

Interrogatory 4. Was the company mentioned by you an oil company? What oil did the company sell?

Answer. Yes. Mostly Standard Oil Company oils, bought of Alex. McDonald & Co., Standard Oil Company selling agents at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Interrogatory 5. Did you know Alexander McDonald? If so, state who he was and his business connections?

Answer. Yes. First as the senior member of the firm of Alex. McDonald & Co., selling agents of the Standard Oil Company, then as president of the Consolidated Tank Line Company, then 900 as president of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.

Interrogatory 6. If you have said that he was a member of the executive committee of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, state where the office of that company was located.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to this answer to the sixth interrogatory, because it is hearsay. The witness shows it is based upon information derived from other people. The last part, as to where the offices are located, may or may not be hearsay. It is the first part we object to.

The COURT. The objection is sustained.

Mr. ALLEN. You do not object to the last part?

Judge STEDMAN. No, sir.

Answer. The executive office of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was at 26 Broadway, New York.

Interrogatory 7. If you have said that Mr. McDonald was President of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, state whether or not that company had a New York office, and where?

Answer. Yes, at 26 Broadway, New York.

Interrogatory 8. If you say it had no New York office, state if it had a representative in New York, and if so, state where he was located.

Answer. See seven.

Interrogatory 9. After you left Cochran-Lyman Company, where did you go, and in what business did you engage?

Answer. To Peoria, Illinois, as salesman for the Peoria Oil Tank Line Company.

Interrogatory 10. If you say you were transferred to Peoria Tank Line Company at Peoria, Illinois, state what connection Mr. McDonald had with that company?

Judge STEDMAN. We object to that answer, to the tenth, because of its immateriality and irrelevancy, showing Mr. McDonald's connection with certain concerns out of the State of Texas, and no connection shown between them and this defendant.

901

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. The Peoria Oil Tank Line Company was owned jointly by Alex. McDonald & Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Colburn, Birks & Co. of Peoria, Illinois. Later Alex. McDonald & Co. secured the entire business.

Interrogatory 11. What oil did that company handle?

Answer. Standard Oil Company's oils.

Interrogatory 12. How long did you stay with that company, and what was your next employment?

Answer. About two years. Next employment was manager of the Iowa Tank Line Company at Davenport, Iowa.

Interrogatory 13. If you say that you were manager of the Iowa Tank Line Company, state what oil you sold as representative of that company?

Judge PENN. Now, we object to the answer of this witness to this question as being irrelevant and immaterial and relating to business wholly outside of the State of Texas.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN. The defendant excepts.

Answer. Standard Oil Company's oils, except turpentine, which was supplied by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of St. Louis, Missouri.

Interrogatory 14. State whether or not Mr. McDonald had any connection with this company?

Answer. Yes. Alex. McDonald & Co. owned the Iowa Tank Line Company. All reports and moneys being sent to them at Cincinnati, Ohio, except Union Tank Line car reports.

Interrogatory 15. What company's oil did you sell as manager of that company?

902 Answer. Standard Oil Company's, except turpentine.

Interrogatory 16. State whether or not you made any reports of the operations of that company to the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway, New York?

Answer. Only reports of the movement of the Union Tank Line cars to H. R. Payne, Sec., 26 Broadway.

Interrogatory 17. Did the Iowa Tank Line Company operate in the State of Missouri?

Answer. Yes, my territory included the city of Trenton, Missouri.

Interrogatory 18. Did you come in contact in that State with the Consolidated Tank Line Company?

Answer. No, they were not allowed to sell at Trenton.

Interrogatory 19. State when you first became acquainted with, or to know, the Consolidated Tank Line Company?

Answer. I first knew the Consolidated Tank Line Company at Hannibal, Missouri, in 1881, and became acquainted with it when it became the owner or successor of the Iowa Tank Line Company about 1885. Do not remember the exact date.

Interrogatory 20. If you have said that you first knew of the Consolidated Tank Line Company when it absorbed the Iowa Tank Line Company, state what connection, if any, you thereafter had with the Consolidated Tank Line Company?

Answer. I was its manager at Davenport, Iowa, until about November 25, 1887, and at Decatur, Illinois, from December 1, 1887, to January 1, 1892.

Interrogatory 21. State whether or not Mr. McDonald had any connection with the Consolidated Tank Line Company?

Answer. He was its president.

(Interrogatories 22 and 23 and answers omitted.)

Interrogatory 24. If you have said that any part of the business of the Consolidated Tank Line Company was taken over by 903 the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, state who was president of that company?

Answer. Alexander McDonald.

Interrogatory 25. When the Consolidated Tank Line Company went into the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and Indiana, state whether or not you continued with either branch of the business? If so, state which.

Answer. Yes, with the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky as manager and special agent at Decatur, Illinois, until December 31st, 1902, and on special duty and leave of absence until March 31st, 1904.

Interrogatory 26. If you have said that you went with the Kentucky branch of it, and was stationed in Illinois, state where your territory extended, and state whether or not it brought you in contact with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory?

Answer. My territory after 1895 extended from Clinton, Illinois, on the North, to Cairo, Illinois, on the South, and came in contact with the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 27. State whether or not there was a dividing line between the territory of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the State of Illinois. If so, state where the line was and how you knew.

Judge PENN. We object to the introduction in evidence of this answer, on the ground that the same is irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case, and relates wholly to business and matters outside of the State of Texas, and prior to the organization of this company.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

Answer. There was from Louisiana, Missouri, to Cairo, Illinois, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company having Missouri West of the Mississippi River, and the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, Illinois East of the River, except parts of Madison and St.
904 Clair Counties, Illinois. I knew the dividing line from the official map furnished me from the general office of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, and was not permitted to sell oils West of the river in Missouri or in Granite City, Madison, Venice, Brooklyn, Belleville and East St. Louis, Illinois, or intermediate points between places named, they being in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory in Illinois; the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky having a storage and shipping depot in East St. Louis under my jurisdiction, but no sales were permitted, all orders or inquiries being referred to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We offer next the deposition of G. J. STEIGERWALD.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, where do you reside and in what business are you engaged?

Answer. My name is G. J. Steigerwald; Cleveland, Ohio; I am engaged in the oil business, with The Fred G. Clark Company.

Interrogatory 2. If you say you are in the oil business, state how long you have been in that business, and state in what territory you operated.

Answer. I am not in the oil business for myself.

Interrogatory 3. What was your first connection with the oil business?

Answer. Clerk for Scofield, Shurmer & Tagle.

Interrogatory 4. If you say it was with Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, state in what place, and for how long it continued?

Answer. At Cleveland, Ohio, from March 4th, 1891, to January, 1901.

Interrogatory 5. With what concern were you next connected?

Answer. Secretary and treasurer of the Scio Refining Company.

Interrogatory 6. If you say you were with the Scio Refining Company, state whether or not this company was connected with 905 Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, and state how long you remained with the Scio Refining Company.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to this inquiry and to the answer for the reason that it relates to corporations not parties to this suit, and relates to transactions not occurring in the State of Texas and transactions transpiring before the alleged violation of the law in this case.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. No. I remained with the Scio Refining Company from January until June 1st, 1901.

Interrogatory 7. With whom were you next connected?

Answer. With the Republic Oil Company.

Interrogatory 8. If you say you took a position with the Republic Oil Company, state where that company was located, and state what position you had with it, and what your duties were.

Answer. Cleveland, Ohio, with distributing branches through the Middle West and lake States. I was purchasing agent and traffic manager, with duties as general assistant to the vice president.

Interrogatory 9. Who was the general manager of that company?

Answer. Walter C. Teagle.

Interrogatory 10. If you say that it was W. C. Teagle, state whether or not he had been connected with the firm of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, and if so, in what capacity.

Answer. No, he was not one of the firm, but employed by them in a general capacity, chiefly supervising the agencies and salesmen.

Interrogatory 11. What position did he occupy with the Republic Oil Company?

Answer. He was vice president and general manager.

Interrogatory 12. When was the Republic Oil Company incorporated?

Answer. June, 1901.

906 Interrogatory 13. State what became of the property of the Scio Refining Company.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to that question, because it is immaterial and irrelevant.

The COURT. What is the materiality of this evidence?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. The Plaintiff has alleged that a great many of these companies were consolidated with other companies, and that the——

Mr. BRADY. The next answer shows the relevancy. I did not know it was here, and it will save time. (Answer shown to the Court.)

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. It was sold to George B. Wilson, of New York.

Interrogatory 14. State whether or not you were familiar with the oil business throughout the Central West prior to the time of the Scio Refining Company going out of business. If so, state whether or not that company and Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle were competitors of the Standard Oil Company.

Answer. I was familiar in a general way. Yes, they were.

Interrogatory 15. What became of the refinery of the Scio Oil Company after its acquisition by the Republic Refining Company?

Judge STEDMAN. We object to that. We object to both the question and the answer, because what became of the refinery of the oil company referred to is immaterial and irrelevant in this case, and relates to a transaction between parties between whom and this defendant no connection is shown.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. The defendant excepts.

Answer. George B. Wilson bought it for The Republic Oil Company, and it was dismantled in the Fall of 1901.

Interrogatory 16. What became of the unfinished products of the Cleveland Refining Company and Scofield, Shurmer &
907 Teagle works at Cleveland, and if you say that arrangements were made with Mr. Cole for the transfer of these products to the Standard Oil Company's works at Cleveland, state what position Mr. Cole at that time occupied.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to both the question and the answer because the matter inquired about and the answer are both immaterial and irrelevant; and further, because the question relates to transactions and persons between whom and this defendant no connection is established.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. They were carded to H. E. Cole, Standard Oil Company's switch. I don't know that he had the title of assistant to the vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, but his duties were such.

Interrogatory 17. Do you know what Mr. Cole is doing now and where he is? If so, state.

Answer. No, I do not know what he is doing or where he is located at present. Since testifying at St. Louis in February, 1906, I have learned that Mr. Cole resigned and severed his connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company as assistant manager in charge of sales for said company in Mexico.

Interrogatory 18. How long did you continue with the Republic Oil Company?

Answer. From June, 1901, until April 15th, 1904.

Interrogatory 19. How long did Walter Teagle continue with the Republic Oil Company at Cleveland, and what position did he occupy during that time?

Answer. From June, 1901, until the first of October, 1903; he may have surrendered the title about September 1st of that year, this title being vice president and general manager.

908 Interrogatory 20. If you have said that he left Cleveland, or if it be the case, state where he went, and in what business he became engaged upon leaving Cleveland?

Answer. He left Cleveland in October, 1903, and was subsequently connected with the Standard Oil Company of New York, being a member of their export trade committee.

Interrogatory 21. If you have stated that he went to New York and became connected with the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway, or if it be a fact, state what was his position there was and is.

Answer. I have answered part of this in the previous interrogatory. His offices were located at 26 Broadway. His position was a member of the foreign and export trade committee, and, as far as I know, he has continually filled this position, and is still so employed.

Interrogatory 22. If you have said that he became a member of the Export Trade Committee of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or the Standard Oil Company's interests located at 26 Broadway, state who and what was the Export Trade Committee.

Answer. The Export Trade Committee consisted of a number of men in charge of the foreign trade of the Standard Oil Company, including practically the entire globe outside of North America.

Interrogatory 23. While the Cleveland Refining Company, the Scio Refining Company and Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle were in existence and in business, state what territory they sold oil in and state whether or not they sold oil in the State of Texas.

Answer. The territory comprised practically the entire United States and parts of Canada, including the State of Texas.

Interrogatory 24. State whether or not within the territory mentioned the firm of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle were comparatively large dealers and sellers of oil, and state whether or not they were in competition with the Standard Oil Company and the 909 Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and state the character of the competition between them.

Answer. In proportion of total sales I should say not very large dealers in the State of Texas, but in the States of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa and adjacent territory they were the Standard's largest and most aggressive competitors, and of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the territory allotted to them, competing in the distribution of oil by establishing branch houses and shipping therefrom in barrels and distributing by tank wagons, the methods generally employed in handling and delivering refined and lubricating oil.

Interrogatory 25. After the Republic Oil Company took over the properties of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, state whether or not there was any change in the matter of competition against the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. For a while three was no decided change in method, because the Republic Oil Company represented themselves as successors to the firms of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, the Cleveland Refining Company and Scio Refining Company, and solicited the same trade supplied by these companies.

Interrogatory 26. If in answer to the preceding question you state that after the Republic Oil Company took over the business of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle the policy of competition against the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was changed after about a year, or if this be the case, then state minutely and in detail just what the change was, and how you knew or became acquainted with the facts.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to this answer as irrelevant and immaterial, and further, upon the ground that the answer is not confined to a statement of facts, but is an argument of the witness, and as such is objectionable. We will also object upon the ground that this answer is based upon hearsay in part, and for that reason 910 should be excluded, and is also based in part upon correspondence which is not produced and which contains the best evidence of its contents.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. After a lapse of a year or thereabouts there came an apparent change in the methods of conducting the business and more restrictions placed around the sales made by the Republic Oil Company, particularly where said sales would affect the business of the Standard Oil Company or the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. In some parts of the territory covered, the Republic Oil Company's salesmen and field managers were not allowed to sell what is known as ordinary and low grade burning oils in towns where the Standard Oil Company enjoyed exclusive tank wagon distribution facilities. In such towns and points they were told to solicit high grade burning oil trade and such lubricating trade as could be secured. These instructions and this policy were directly opposite to those pursued by the old companies, and for a while by their successor, the Republic Oil Company, who solicited all the trade in the territory regardless as to what they were buying or from whom. The Republic Oil Company aimed to supply the trade known as dissatisfied trade formerly supplied by Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, and finally confined their greatest efforts to supplying the trade demanding goods made by independent companies, having no affiliation with the Standard Oil Company, commonly known as the Trust. This trade were prejudiced against trust methods and would buy only independent oils and demand high grade. It was understood that the field managers and salesmen for the Republic Oil Company should not make any decided and aggressive effort to secure trade away from the Standard Oil Company or its known subsidiary companies. I obtained this knowledge through oral instructions, also by correspondence that was handled and seen by me in connection with other matters directly under my supervision.

911 Interrogatory 27. If you have said in answer to the preceding questions, or if it be a fact, that the Republic Oil Company was so managed as to secure the trade that was dissatisfied and did not want to do business with the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and also to supply the demands for high grade oil and that this policy was effected by instructions to agents of the company, state by whom these instructions were given, and state the circumstances under which they were given.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to the answer to that interrogatory on the ground of its immateriality and irrelevancy; and, further, we object to the answer upon the ground that the witness shows that his answer is based in part upon written instructions and in part upon what happened at the meetings which he says he attended. He does not separate the knowledge that was derived from written instructions from the information obtained at the meetings, and inasmuch as it is shown that part of the information came from written instructions, the whole is objectionable. We further object that in so far as the information is predicated upon written instructions the instructions are the best evidence of what they contain, and there is no evidence here of the source from which those instructions emanated that would connect this defendant with them.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. The instructions were given to the field managers and agents by the vice president and general manager of the company, chiefly in person, to some extent by written instructions, and the general policies were discussed and outlined at periodical meetings held in the Republic Oil Company's offices at Cleveland, at which the president of the company, the vice president and general manager and all the field managers were present; practically during the entire session, and during part of the session, the secre-
912 tary and treasurer would be present, and I attended the most important parts of these sessions, so that I would understand the nature of the instructions and intent thereof to enable me to advise and act when these matters arose during the general manager's absence.

Interrogatory 28. To whom and where did the Republic Oil Company make reports as to its business, if at all?

Answer. To C. L. Nichols, at 75 New Street, New York, president of the company.

Interrogatory 29. If you have said in answer to the preceding question that the Republic Oil Company made reports to C. L. Nichols at 75 New Street, New York, state who C. L. Nichols was, and state what relation, if any, 75 New Street, New York, has to 26 Broadway, New York, and state what building had these numbers, and by whom the building was occupied.

Answer. C. L. Nichols was president of the Republic Oil Company, and 75 New Street is known as the back or New Street entrance to the Standard Oil Building at 26 Broadway, which is occupied chiefly by the Standard Oil Company and affiliated companies, including their executive managing committees and their subordinates.

Interrogatory 30. State whether or not you were ever at 26 Broadway and 75 New Street, New York, and if so, state whether or not you there met W. E. Bemis.

Answer. I have been at 26 Broadway and met W. E. Bemis on two different occasions. This also answers the question regarding 75 New Street.

Interrogatory 31. If you state you met W. E. Bemis at 26 Broadway, state who he was and what his business was.

Answer. W. E. Bemis was a member of the export or foreign trade committee of the Standard Oil Company of New York, in charge of their interests in India, China, Japan and Korea.

Interrogatory 32. What was the name of the first president of the Republic Oil Company?

913 Answer. The first president of the Republic Oil Company was George B. Wilson.

Interrogatory 33. If you have stated that the name of the first president of the Republic Oil Company was George B. Wilson, state whether or not you met a genleman by that name at 26 Broadway, and if so, state what position he had there.

Answer. I do not remember of meeting Mr. Wilson at 26 Broadway, and if I did it was at 26 Broadway.

Interrogatory 34. While you were at 26 Broadway, did you see Mr. C. L. Nichols? If so, state where he was located and in whose office.

Answer. I saw Mr. C. L. Nichols at 26 Broadway. He was located in offices occupied by L. J. Drake, Sr., at 26 Broadway.

Interrogatory 35. If in answer to the preceding question you have stated that Mr. C. L. Nichols was in the office of L. J. Drake, state who Mr. Drake was.

Answer. Mr. Drake at that time, which was in the Spring of 1904, was a member of the domestic trade committee of the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 36. If in answer to the preceding question you state that Mr. Drake was a member of the domestic trade committee of the Standard Oil interests located at 26 Broadway, state what this domestic trade committee was, and of whom it was composed.

Answer. The domestic trade committee is directly in charge of the entire sales and trade department and interests of the Standard Oil Company and affiliations. Of the members constituting this committee I only recall the names of Messrs. L. J. Drake, Sr., H. G. Westcott, S. R. King, and I believe a Mr. Tilford.

Interrogatory 37. State whether or not you know of any other connection Mr. L. J. Drake had had with the Standard Oil Company or any company allied to the Standard Oil Company.

914 Answer. Prior to his connection at 26 Broadway Mr. Drake was sales manager of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, with headquarters at Chicago.

Interrogatory 38. If in answer to the preceding questions, or if it be a fact, that Mr. Drake was general sales manager of the Standard Oil Company in Indiana, state what connection, if any, Mr. Nichols had with him when he was acting in that capacity.

Answer. I do not know that there was any connection between Messrs. Drake and Nichols while Mr. Drake was general sales manager of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Interrogatory 39. What was the occasion for the visit you have referred to to New York, and if you say that it was with reference to securing another place with the Standard interests, state what, if anything, was said concerning your assignment to Cincinnati, and state what Standard concern at that place it was that it was suggested that you might be tendered a position with?

Answer. I was summoned to New York relative to a position that would be an improvement over the one I was holding at that time with the Republic Oil Company, and was tendered a position with the Standard Oil Company of New York at Bombay, India, or at Hong Kong. After considering and rejecting these, they suggested and offered to place me as an assistant to the general manager of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, with offices at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Interrogatory 40. When you were with the Republic Oil Company, state whether or not you got oil from Cleveland, Ohio, and if so, state to whom the orders were sent.

Answer. While with the Republic Oil Company we secured a large proportion of oils required from the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, but orders and shipping instructions were always sent to Howard E. Cole, at the Standard Oil Company's offices, 53 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

915 Interrogatory 41. If you have stated that the orders were sent to H. C. Cole, state what position he occupied at that time.

Answer. Mr. Cole's duties were general assistant to the vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

Interrogatory 42. State whether or not the Standard Oil Company owned a refinery at Cleveland at that time.

Answer. The Standard Oil Company at that time owned a refinery at Cleveland.

Interrogatory 43. From whom after the organization of the Republic Oil Company did it get its oil?

Answer. The Republic Oil Company bought some of its supplies from the independent refineries located in Pennsylvania, but chiefly from the various refineries and subsidiary companies of the Standard Oil Company, as follows: Refined oils and lubricating products from the Standard Oil Company of Ohio and works located at Cleveland; from the Solar Refining Company, of Lima, Ohio; from the Atlantic Refining Company, Eclipse Lubricating Oil Works Department of Franklin, Pennsylvania; also from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, whose refinery is located at Whiting, Indiana.

Interrogatory 44. State whether or not there was any change in the refineries from which the Republic secured oil, and if so, state when the change took place, and state what it was.

Answer. The only change that this question would probably refer to is the one of instructions regarding the placing of orders. For a period of about two years the Republic Oil Company were privileged to buy such oils as they desired in the open market, and at the most advantageous terms. These privileges were gradually withdrawn, and finally I had instructions to place all orders for all grades of refined oils, gasoline and lubricating products that were being turned out with the companies mentioned in the preceding answer.

916 Interrogatory 45. State whether or not the Republic Oil Company maintained the stations which had been established by Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle in Waters-Pierce territory.

Answer. For a while all stations formerly owned by the Cleveland Refining Company and Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle were maintained by the Republic Oil Company. When conditions were such that the Standard Oil Company could handle the entire or at least the bulk of the trade in a certain community, several of their smaller stations were closed and moved away. These stations were chiefly located in the territory of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and one of these at Springfield, Mo., was in the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. This particular station was closed by the instruction of the president of the Republic Oil Company, and the equipment moved to Kansas City, Missouri.

Interrogatory 46. Are you acquainted with Mr. Hardcastle? If so, state whether or not he worked for the Republic Oil Company.

Answer. I know Mr. Hardcastle, who was employed by the Republic Oil Company for some months in the capacity of stock clerk.

Interrogatory 47. State from what employment he came, and if he left the Republic, state where he then went.

Answer. Mr. Hardcastle came to the Republic Oil Company from the Standard Oil Company at Albany, New York, and after leaving the Republic Oil Company went back into the employ of the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 48. Were you acquainted with Mr. Hart? If so, state his connection with the Republic Oil Company. State what connection, if any, he had thereafter with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Answer. Yes, I know Mr. J. H. Hart, who came to the Republic Oil Company from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. For several years he was chief clerk in the accounting department of the Republic Oil Company, at Cleveland, Ohio, and subsequently 917 was promoted to the position of traveling auditor for the same company. I do not know of any connection of Mr. Hart with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana after his engagement with the Republic Oil Company.

Interrogatory 49. State whether or not Mr. Hart is still connected with the Standard Oil Company, and if so, state to what work he was transferred from the Republic.

Answer. I have not seen Mr. Hart since the Republic Oil Company has dicontinued business in Ohio and other States, but understand he is now connected with the Standard Oil Company, I do not know whether it is the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, Indiana, or New York.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. We next offer in evidence the deposition of A. H. GARDNER, filed the 24th day of November.

Judge STEDMAN. In order to economize time and not to be making repeated objections, we make a general objection to each and all of the answers of this witness. We make the general objection that each and all of his answers relate to matters outside of the State of Texas, between companies other than the defendant in this case, and in relation to transactions with which this defendant is not shown to have any connection.

The COURT. Are they the companies alleged to be conspirators?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Yes, sir.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name and where do you reside? In what business are you engaged?

Answer. A. H. Gardner, Kansas City, Missouri. Oil business.

Interrogatory 2. If you reside in Kansas City, state how long you have lived there, and state where you lived prior to that time.

Answer. I lived here over fourteen years. Prior to that time Denver, Colorado.

918 Interrogatory 3. If you have said that you resided at Denver, Colorado, or if that be a fact, state what company you were connected with there, if any.

Answer. Continental Oil Company.

Interrogatory 4. If you have stated that you worked with the Continental Oil Company, state whether or not you were familiar with its business, and state where it sold oil.

Answer. Yes, I was familiar with its business. It sold oil in Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Montana, Wyoming.

Interrogatory 5. State whether or not the Continental Oil Company was in competition with the Standard Oil Company, or did business in any territory in which the Standard Oil Company was selling oil, and state whether or not it was in competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or sold in any territory in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sold oil.

Answer. I don't think the Standard Oil Company came in there at all. They were represented by the Continental Oil Company. The Continental Oil Company did not come into competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and did not sell in any territory in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sold oil.

Interrogatory 6. State whether or not the Continental Oil Company made any reports to anybody outside of Denver, and if so, state to whom?

Answer. The Continental Oil Company made reports to H. F. Tilford (I think that was his initials), 26 Broadway, New York.

Interrogatory 7. While you were with the Continental Oil Company, state whether or not the company, or you for the company, received instructions from any one outside of the State of Colorado with reference to the business of the Continental.

Answer. Yes, Mr. Tilford gave me instructions in the 919 office, and also W. T. Jordan, Vice President and Manager of — Continental Oil Company.

Interrogatory 8. If in answer to the two preceding questions you have stated that reports were made to Mr. Tilford in New York and that instructions were received from W. T. Jordan and from Mr. Tilford, both in New York, or if this be a fact, state who Mr. Tilford was and what relation he had with the business, and where his place of business was in New York, and state who Mr. Jordan was, and what relation he had with the business, and where his place of business was.

Answer. Tilford's headquarters were 26 Broadway, New York, and we considered him the representative of the Standard Oil Company. W. T. Jordan was Vice President and Manager of the Continental Oil Company. His residence was Denver, Colorado, and that was also his place of business.

Interrogatory 9. When you came to Kansas City with what oil company were you connected, if with any?

Answer. The National Oil Company.

Interrogatory 10. If you have answered that you went with the National Oil Company, state whether or not that company was in any way connected with the Standard Oil interests.

Answer. No, sir, it is not.

Interrogatory 11. When you came to Kansas City, what oil companies were doing business or selling oil in that State?

Answer. Consolidated Tank Line Company and Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle.

Interrogatory 12. State whether or not your company sold oil in competition with the Consolidated Tank Line Company.

Answer. Yes, sir.

Interrogatory 13. If you have stated that Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle were in business in Kansas City at that time, state how long they continued in business, and state what became of their business.

920 Answer. They continued in business, I should say, until about five years ago. Their business was thereafter handled by the Standard Oil Company under the name of the Republic Oil Company.

Interrogatory 14. State, if you know, who were in charge as managers of the Consolidated Tank Line Company after you came to Kansas City.

Answer. E. P. Pratt, G. W. Mayer, Ed Conklin, W. C. Crenshaw, then G. W. Mayer, back from Detroit.

Interrogatory 15. If you have stated that Mr. Crenshaw and Mr. Pratt were managers of that company during that period, state what position, if you know, Mr. Crenshaw afterwards occupied.

Answer. General Manager of the Standard Oil Company located at Chicago.

Interrogatory 16. State the method of business with reference to competition with the trade on the part of the National Oil Company, Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle and the Standard Oil Company prior to the time that Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle was succeeded by the Republic.

Answer. We were independent companies, each one fighting for the business.

Interrogatory 17. State whether or not any change took place with reference to the matter of competition between the National and the business which had been owned by Schofield, Shurmer & Teagle and to which the Republic had succeeded and the Standard Oil Company after the Republic went into business.

Answer. The Republic was put out by the Standard as a forerunner, to secure our business, by selling at cut prices, when necessary.

Interrogatory 18. State whether or not after the Republic went into business the company represented by you and the Republic engaged in active competition, and if so, state what was done by each company, and state how the conflict was settled and who par-921 ticipated in the negotiations, and what was said by the parties.

Judge STEDMAN. We object to that answer. We have already made a general objection covering all of these answers, but to this one we object specially because it relates exclusively to transactions in other States, and because, further, it relates to transactions between companies other than this defendant; and because, further, these companies are not parties to the suit; and because, further, this defendant is not shown to have had any connection with or knowledge of any of these transactions; and, furthermore, these transactions appear to have occurred prior to the organization of the defendant; and we object generally upon the ground of immateriality and irrelevancy.

The COURT. The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN. We except.

Answer. After the Republic went into business our company was in competition with them and with the Standard. The Republic put out the city tank wagon trade to procure our business by giving of rebates, they to do the dirty work and the Standard to maintain prices, they not soliciting the Standard's trade, but wherever the Standard lost a customer they were notified (that is the Republic), and appeared the next morning on the ground. They could not hold the Standard's customer without they did it with a rebate, until we were forced to sell at a reduced price and a straight price, making it so interesting that the Standard met the prices. Then we went out to the Standard's outside stations, where they were getting about six cents more a gallon for goods, and made them a similar price, making up carloads among the grocerymen. At this stage in the game Mr. Crenshaw appeared on the scene, and promised to adjust matters. He invited me to go with him and see Teagle, the manager of the Republic, which I refused to do. I told him I knew no competitors but the Standard, and they could settle their own difficulties. He made an appointment with me at noon, and 922 stated that he had arranged matters with Teagle, and that there would be no more cutting, that the Republic would maintain prices, that of course they had a lot of contracts out that would not expire for about a couple of months, and they would have to fulfill them. We took lunch at the Baltimore, then he wanted that I should go up to the Coates House and meet Mr. Mayer and Mr. Teagle, but Teagle thought he was not consulted, and had no voice in the matter, and if I would sit down and chat with him and smoke a cigar, possibly he would be pacified. But a week thereafter prices were restored, which was necessary, or do business at a loss.

Interrogatory 19. While you were in business at Kansas City and before the Republic acquired the business of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle, state whether or not the last named concern had a tank station at Springfield, and state whether or not you did business at that city.

Answer. Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle had a station at Springfield. We sold goods there from here.

Interrogatory 20. State whether or not the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was selling oil there, and state whether or not the Consolidated Tank Line Company had a station at that place.

Answer. Waters-Pierce had a station there, but the Consolidated Tank Line Company did not.

Interrogatory 21. What, if anything, was done with the station established by Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle at Springfield after the acquisition of its business by the Standard Oil Company.

Answer. They withdrew; I understand they shipped their belongings to Kansas City.

Interrogatory 22. State whether or not at any point in Missouri, or elsewhere, you have at any time in the conduct of your oil business come in competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company at the same place.

Answer. We never have.

923 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We offer now the deposition of Edward P. Pratt.

Judge STEDMAN: We should like to interpose an objection to the deposition of this witness as a whole, because each and all of his answers relate to events transpiring in other States, and because the occurrences detailed by the witness are between persons other than this defendant, and because this defendant is not shown to have had any connection or knowledge of the occurrences related by the witness, and those persons between whom the transactions are stated to have occurred are not parties to this suit; and upon the general ground of immateriality and irrelevancy.

The COURT: Does the deposition relate to transactions between co-conspirators?

Mr. BRADY: Yes, sir.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name and where do you reside? How long have you lived at your present place of residence? Where did you live prior to coming to Kansas City, and for how long?

Answer. Edward P. Pratt, Kansas City, Missouri. Since 1892. Des Moines, Iowa. I came to Des Moines in 1882.

Interrogatory 2. If you have stated that you have lived at Des Moines, Iowa, before coming to Kansas City, state what business you were engaged in in that city, and if you say you were in the oil business, then state under what name, or for what company.

Answer. I was an officer in the Des Moines Oil Tank Line Company.

Interrogatory 3. If in answer to the preceding question you have said that you were in the oil business under the name of Des Moines Oil Tank Line, state whether or not this was an independent company.

Answer. It was.

Interrogatory 4. State what disposition was made of the Des Moines Oil Tank Line Company.

924 Answer. It was sold to the Consolidated Tank Line Company.

Interrogatory 5. If in answer to the preceding question you have stated that you sold out to the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state what connection that company had with the Standard Oil Company, and state what business you were in after the sale.

Answer. The Consolidated Tank Line Company was a part of the Standard Oil Company. I was manager of the Consolidated Tank Line Company at Des Moines, Iowa, until about March, 1892.

Interrogatory 6. State whether or not the Des Moines Oil Tank Line continued in business after you became connected with the Consolidated Tank Line Company.

Answer. I think it did for about a year.

Interrogatory 7. When you came to Kansas City, what business did you engage in?

Answer. I was manager of the Consolidated Tank Line Company.

Interrogatory 8. If in answer to the preceding question you state you were manager of the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state what territory this company did business in contiguous to Kansas City, and state how far the line of your business extended into the Southern part of Missouri.

Answer. My territory consisted of a part of the State of Kansas and a part of the State of Missouri. The division line crossing the Southern part of the State of Missouri would include the towns of Lamar, Clinton, Sedalia, Moberly, Hannibal.

(Interrogatory 9 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 10. If you have indicated there was a dividing line between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state whether or not the Waters-Pierce Oil Company did business in the territory of the Consolidated Tank Line Company and whether the Consolidated Tank Line Company did business in the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if you 925 state that neither did business in the territory of the other, state why.

Answer. No. It was according to our instructions to confine our business to what was known as our territory.

(Interrogatories 11 and 12 and answers omitted.)

Interrogatory 13. State whether or not your company at Kansas City sent any traveling men down into the territory claimed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and state whether or not you knew of any competition from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the territory claimed by you.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to it, may it please Your Honor, because that is predicated upon the idea of the existence of a territory dividing line, and the testimony on that subject——

Mr. BRADY: We call the attention of Your Honor to the fact that it calls for the territory claimed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, not territory shown by a dividing line.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Answer. No. Our company did not send any traveling men down into the territory claimed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and I knew of no competition in our territory from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 14. How long did your connection with the Consolidated Tank Line Company in Kansas City continue?

Answer. Until November, 1896.

Interrogatory 15. If you have stated that you continued with that company until November, 1896, state the circumstances under which you ceased working for that company.

Answer. I resigned my position.

Interrogatory 16. If you have stated to the last preceding question that the business of the Consolidated Tank Line Company was acquired by the Standard Oil Company, state what Standard Oil Company succeeded to it, and state whether or not you had 926 any connection with the Standard Oil Company thereafter.

Answer. The Consolidated Tank Line Company was succeeded by the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, and afterwards by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. I was manager respectively of each one of the companies in Kansas City, as the changes were made.

Interrogatory 17. State whether or not after the sale of your independent business to the Consolidated Tank Line Company or the Standard Oil Company you had any connection with any Standard Oil Company other than the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, and if in answer to this you state that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana succeeded to the business of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and thereupon you became an employé of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, state whether or not the territory claimed and operated in by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was greater or less than that claimed by the Consolidated Tank Line Company, and if it was in any sense different, state what the difference was.

Answer. My territory as an employe of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was just the same as it was of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and the Consolidated Tank Line Company while I was manager at Kansas City, Missouri.

Interrogatory 18. State whether or not the territory claimed and operated in by the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky was in any sense different from that claimed and operated in by the Consolidated Tank Line Company.

Answer. No, not as far as my territory was concerned.

Interrogatory 19. State whether or not the territory primarily claimed by the Consolidated Tank Line Company and subsequently by the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and finally by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, or any part of it, was at any time operated in by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if you say it was not, state why not.

Answer. It was not, as far as my territory was concerned, 927 on account of instructions received from my superior officers, L. J. Drake, General Manager, J. A. Moffett and Alex. McDonald.

Interrogatory 20. After the Consolidated Tank Line Company was succeeded by the Standard Oil Company of Kansas City, state what changes, if any, were made in the business, in the officers and employes and in the manner of conducting business, and state what changes were made in the business, in the officers and employes and in the general course and conduct of the business after the Standard Oil Company of Indiana succeeded to the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.

Answer. There were no changes after the Consolidated Tank Line Company was succeeded by the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. After the Standard Oil Company of Indiana succeeded to the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky we made our reports to the Chicago office instead of Cincinnati. There was no change as regards the officers and employes as far as my territory was concerned.

Interrogatory 21. During your connection with the business, who was the general manager of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and the Consolidated Tank Line Company, and to whom and to what place did you make your reports?

Answer. During my connection with the business the General Manager of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was L. J. Drake, as far as my territory was concerned. The General Manager of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and of the Consolidated Tank Line Company was the same. As manager of the Consolidated Tank Line Company and of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky I reported to Cincinnati, to the officers of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky at Cincinnati. My reports of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana were directed to the officers at Chicago.

Interrogatory 22. During the time you were manager of the Consolidated Tank Line Company what was the course of busi-928 ness in case an order was received for a shipment of oil, or inquiry was made for the price of oil, from a dealer in Waters-Pierce territory? What was the course of business when you were manager for the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky?—while you were manager of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana?

Answer. Either the order was sent to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis or we made the shipment and reported the sale to the head office at Cincinnati. It was the same while I was manager of both the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the order going to the headquarters of the company either at Chicago or at Cincinnati.

(Interrogatory 23 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 24. While you were manager at Kansas City for either of the three companies, in what cars did you get your shipments?

Answer. Union Tank Line.

Interrogatory 25. State whether or not you made tank car reports, and if so, state to whom they were made and at what place.

Answer. We did. My recollection is that they were made to the general offices at Cincinnati or Chicago, and also to 26 Broadway, New York.

Interrogatory 26. State from what refineries you got your oil during your management, and state to whom the refineries belonged.

Answer. We received shipments from different refineries at Cleveland, Ohio, and Whiting, Indiana, our understanding being that they belonged to the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 27. While you were connected with the business at Kansas City, state whether or not any system was in operation in reference to securing information as to shipments by competitive companies, and if so, state in detail the plan or system of operation, and state the purpose for which the information was received, 929 and what use was made of it?

Judge STEDMAN: We object, Your Honor, to the answer to that question,—first, because it is immaterial and irrelevant; and second, because the occurrences there related by the witness appear to have transpired in other States; and third, because it is not shown that this defendant had any connection with or knowledge of the matters related by the witness.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. We had a system of obtaining information in reference to the receipts by competitors of shipments, and this information was transmitted to our general offices. We obtained this information in different ways by our own employes, by our employes' going to the railroad yards and taking the numbers of the cars, and also through the assistance of the employes of the railroad companies. The purpose of obtaining this information was to keep our general offices informed as to the business of the competitors.

Interrogatory 28. While you were manager of the business at Kansas City, state whether or not you ever did any business in Texas, and if you say you did not, state why not.

Answer. No, because it was not in my territory.

Interrogatory 29. State whether or not during all of your connection with the oil business you have known of Union Tank Line cars being used except by the Standard Oil interests.

Answer. No.

930 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We will next introduce the deposition of Anthony V. Jockel.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we desire to interpose an objection to the deposition of this witness as a whole, upon the ground that the transactions concerning which he testifies occurred wholly without the limits of the State of Texas, and have no reference to any business or transactions of this defendant within the State of Texas.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, where do you reside, and in what business are you engaged?

Answer. Anthony V. Jockel, Brooklyn, New York; bookkeeper and salesman.

Interrogatory 2. State whether or not you have been at any time connected with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and if so, state when and in what capacity.

Answer. From June, 1904, until December 1, 1904; capacity as bookkeeper.

Interrogatory 3. State whether or not you have ever been engaged by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. If so, state the circumstances of your transfer or employment, and state when and where you worked for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Judge STEDMAN: We object, Your Honor, to the answer of the witness beginning with the words "In November," on the ground that it is hearsay,—States what he has been informed.

The COURT: What portion is it you object to?

Judge STEDMAN: I object first to that part of his answer beginning with the words "In November." I object to that sentence first, because it appears—that sentence and the next sentence, because 931 they both appear to be hearsay. Then after that he refers to a letter, which is the best evidence of its contents, and the nonproduction of which is not accounted for.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. Yes. From December, 1904, to February, 1905, at Oklahoma City, O. T. In November, 1904, I was informed by the manager of the Newark branch of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey that my transfer had been requested to some Western agency. About a week after this conversation, or this notification, rather, I was told by Mr. Young, the manager of the Newark branch of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, that Mr. King desired my presence at 26 Broadway the following day. He gave me a letter of introduction to Mr. King, which I presented, and Mr. King in turn introduced me to Mr. R. H. McNall, at 26 Broadway, with whom I made all arrangements regarding my transfer to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. About a week later I left New York for St. Louis, and saw Mr. R. P. Tinsley, whom Mr. McNall had directed me to see before going to Oklahoma City. I remained with Mr. Tinsley about two or three hours making final arrangements, and then left for Oklahoma City.

Interrogatory 4. State whether or not you have ever been in St. Louis, Missouri, in the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state when it was, and how you came there, and the persons whom you saw and conversed with there.

Answer. Yes. In December, 1904, through my instructions to see Mr. Tinsley before proceeding to go to Oklahoma City. While there I saw Mr. Tinsley, Mr. Backus, Mr. Gruet, Mr. C. P. Ackert and Mr. King.

(Interrogatory 5 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 6. State the character of the duties of Mr. King, and if you say that it was auditing for the Waters-Pierce Oil 932 Company, state what part of the audit was performed by him.

Answer. Merely the auditing of all monthly reports which were submitted directly to the St. Louis office.

Interrogatory 7. If you say that Mr. King's duties were with reference to the stock reports of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not you have seen in the auditing department of the Standard Oil Company such reports or like reports.

Answer. Mr. King had nothing whatever to do with the auditing of the stock reports of the Standard Oil Company, and I did not see any report whatever in the St. Louis office which had been submitted by a Standard Oil branch. All reports that I saw in the St. Louis office were rendered by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company branches on forms which were being used by the Standard Oil Company in the East.

Interrogatory 8. If you say that you saw Mr. Tinsley or Mr. Backus in St. Louis, state whether or not these parties had been connected with the business of the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway before that time, and if you say they had, state what was the character of their work for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and state in what particular office at 26 Broadway they were engaged.

Answer. Mr. Tinsley and Mr. Backus were both at 26 Broadway, New York, before going with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis. Mr. Tinsley was the agent in New York who received all reports of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, also all transfers for material delivered by other Standard Oil Companies and to other Standard Oil Companies by the Newark branch of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Backus was with Mr. Tinsley in New York at 26 Broadway. The number of the room I don't remember.

Interrogatory 9. If you say that Mr. Tinsley had before going to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company been at 26 Broadway and had received reports, state from what companies Mr. Tinsley received reports and the character of these reports.

933 Answer. The only company that I know of his receiving reports from was the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the character of these reports being regular monthly stock reports, and other reports which I can't remember just now.

Interrogatory 10. After visiting St. Louis where did you then go, and in what work were you engaged, and under whom did you work?

Answer. After leaving St. Louis I went to Oklahoma City and proceeded to install the Standard Oil reports, or report forms, in the Oklahoma office, Mr. Ebie being at that time in charge of the Oklahoma division.

557

Interrogatory 11. If you have stated that you went to Oklahoma City and were thereafter on the pay-roll of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not you made any reports as to the amount of business done by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and that done by competing companies in your territory.

Answer. Yes. We rendered monthly reports of the amount in gallons of oil sold—or barrels, rather, I should say instead of gallons—by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the Oklahoma division, and the competing companies in the same division; these same reports showing the average increase or decrease in business done throughout the Territory by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the competing companies. And on second thought, I believe we also rendered the total amount of gallons, as near as could be ascertained.

Interrogatory 12. State whether or not before your transfer from 26 Broadway to Oklahoma City you had any conversation with any officers of the Standard Oil Company or the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at 26 Broadway concerning the concealment of your connection with the Standard Oil Company, and if so, state who these persons were, and what their positions were, and state what the conversation was.

Judge STEDMAN: Your Honor, we object now to the answer of the witness because it is hearsay,—relates what was stated to him
934 by Mr. Young. While Mr. Young is shown to have connection with one of the Standard Oil Companies, it does not appear that he had any connection with this defendant, nor does it appear in the communication that he made to the witness he was acting within the scope of his employment or in the discharge of his duties or functions as the manager of that branch of the Newark branch of the Standard Oil Company.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. Mr. Young, the manager of the Newark branch of the Standard Oil Company, told me that after I had left New York I was to forget that I had been with the Standard Oil Company. Mr. McNall, the commercial agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at 26 Broadway, also instructed me not to mention that I had been with the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 13. State what instructions you had, if any, before going to Oklahoma City with reference to declaring that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was in competition with the Standard Oil Company, and if you had such instructions, state by whom they were given.

Answer. The instructions that I received regarding the Waters-Pierce Oil Company being independent of the Standard Oil Company and competitors to them were received by me from Mr. Ebie in Oklahoma City.

Interrogatory 14. From whom or from what companies was the oil and other products sold at Oklahoma City by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company obtained?

Answer. From the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, from the Galena Oil Company—that is all that I can remember now.

Interrogatory 15. State whether or not it all came from the Standard Oil interests and connections.

Answer. As far as I can remember, yes. Some of the oil that came to Oklahoma City was in Waters-Pierce Oil Company 935 tank cars and barrels, and therefore there was no telling where the oil contained in the cars and barrels came from originally.

Interrogatory 16. State what steps, if any, were taken in the conduct of the business at Oklahoma City to conceal the fact that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was handling the products of the Standard Oil Company.

Answer. None other than the removing of the name of the Standard Oil Company from all barrels of lubricating oil and in some few cases gasoline and coal oil before shipment.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer the deposition of HARRY EGBERT PLATT, of the City of New York.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, age, residence and occupation?

Answer. Harry E. Platt; age 24; residence New York City; clerk.

Interrogatory 2. Please state whether or not you were ever employed at 26 Broadway, New York?

Answer. I was.

Interrogatory 3. When did you begin employment at that place?

Answer. In February, I don't know whether it was 1902 or 1903.

Interrogatory 4. What was your first position there? If you state, or if it be a fact, that you was employed as a clerk by the Union Tank Line, then state who was the President and managing officer of that company.

Answer. I was employed by the Union Tank Line as clerk under the jurisdiction of Mr. Cook. My first position was clerk. Mr. W. H. Tilford, president.

Interrogatory 5. Please state whether the officers of that company were located at 26 Broadway?

Answer. They were.

936 Interrogatory 6. Under whose jurisdiction were you when you were in the employ of the Union Tank Line Company?

Answer. Mr. Cook.

Interrogatory 7. Were you afterwards transferred to any other office?

Answer. I was.

Interrogatory 8. If so, state to whose office you were transferred?

Answer. To the office of Mr. W. H. Tilford.

Interrogatory 9. How long did you work for the Union Tank Line Company?

Answer. About four months.

Interrogatory 10. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that you were transferred to some other position, then state how you happened to be so transferred?

Answer. I was notified to report there the following Monday.

Interrogatory 11. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that you were transferred to Mr. Tilford's office, then state by what company you were paid after that time?

Answer. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Interrogatory 12. What was the business of the Union Tank Line Company?

Answer. To transport oil in tank cars.

Interrogatory 13. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that their business was to operate tank cars throughout the United States, please state for what companies they were operated, and whether or not said companies had offices at 26 Broadway and were connected with the business there?

Answer. There were cars assigned to different companies, but whether they had offices there I do not recall, nor what connection there was between the companies.

937 Interrogatory 14. Please state whether or not the Union Tank Line Company furnished or assigned any cars to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of St. Louis for their use in transporting oil in bulk?

Answer. There were cars assigned to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

(Interrogatory 15 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 16. What reports, if any, did you get from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in reference to those cars?

Answer. Reports showing arrival, whether loaded or empty, and when shipped, by what railroads.

(Interrogatory 17 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 18. State fully the nature and character of the reports, and by what companies they were made?

Answer. Reports showing arrival and shipment of tank cars by Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 19. After you was transferred to Mr. Tilford's office, if you were so transferred, were you on the salary list of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?

Answer. I was.

Interrogatory 20. Whose office were you in, Mr. W. H. Tilford's or Mr. H. M. Tilford's?

Answer. In what was known as the outside office, serving them both.

Interrogatory 21. Describe how the offices of W. H. Tilford and H. M. Tilford were situated with reference to each other?

Answer. A small room between them, connecting door.

Interrogatory 22. Did you know a man by the name of R. H. McNall?

Answer. I did.

Interrogatory 23. Where were Mr. McNall's offices?

Answer. Room 1209.

938 Interrogatory 24. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that his office was in the same room as Mr. H. M. Tilford's, please state if their desks were in the same room?

Answer. They were in the same room.

Interrogatory 25. When you were in Mr. Tilford's office what were your duties?

Answer. Clerk.

Interrogatory 26. Did you have any occasion during the time you were in Mr. Tilford's office to see any reports from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company relating to the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. I did.

Interrogatory 5. If in answer to the foregoing interrogatory you state, or if it be a fact, that you were employed in the office of O. C. Burt and E. C. Goodnow, state how long you were employed in their offices, and if you were afterwards transferred to any other department or office.

Interrogatory 10. Please state if you know what department Mr. Bemis was in charge of at 26 Broadway?

Answer. The statistical department.

Interrogatory 11. Please state if you know whether reports of any character were made to the department of which Mr. Bemis was the head?

946 Answer. Reports from all over the world came to Mr. Bemis, that is so far as their work was concerned, wherever they sold oil. That is, they did not come directly to him, they came to his employés in that office.

Interrogatory 12. Please state from what companies or corporations reports were received by Mr. Bemis?

Answer. Well, I have seen reports from the Republic Oil Company, from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and from other companies connected with them throughout the country; in fact, all reports pertaining to their business were sent to Bemis.

Interrogatory 13. Did you know of such a company as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of Missouri?

Answer. I did.

Interrogatory 14. Please state whether or not reports of any character were received at Mr. Bemis' office during the period of time you were employed there, from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. They were.

Interrogatory 15. If in answer to the foregoing interrogatory you have stated, or if it be a fact, that reports were received from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, please state the nature and character of such reports?

Answer. Reports that I noticed were reports, as near as I can recollect, as to their monthly deliveries of oil and different products connected with the business, as well as reports of competitive shipments.

Interrogatory 16. Please state whether or not you received dictation of letters from Mr. Bemis or any other person in authority in his department for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. If so, state the names of the persons who dictated said letters and the positions they held in that department?

947 from a Mr. O'Connor, Mr. Pelouze, regarding the general conduct of the business. Addressed to the heads of the different departments.

Interrogatory 17. If in answer to the foregoing interrogatory you have stated, or if it be a fact, that letters to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were dictated to you, then state about what matters the letters were dictated, and how often such letters were dictated to you?

Answer. Well, it is pretty hard to state how many; sometimes I would have about twenty a week, other times I had about two. They were all sent in to Mr. R. H. McNall to be signed.

Interrogatory 18. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that the letters dictated to you, if any were so dictated, were in reference to the conducting of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, then state whether or not such letters were dictated to you during the entire period of time that you were employed in Mr. Bemis' department.

Answer. They were.

Interrogatory 19. Please explain in detail from what different parties you received such letters; what copies, if any, were made. Who signed them?

Answer. I received letters from Mr. E. T. Wilson, Mr. O'Connor, Mr. Pelouze, and others. They were all signed by Mr. R. H. McNall, who occupied quarters in Mr. H. M. Tilford's department. We always made a carbon copy, but about a month before I left the company they obliterated the name on said carbon copy by placing a piece of paper over the carbon copy.

Interrogatory 20. Please state whether or not the letters you wrote in reference to the conducting of the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were dictated by one or more persons in your office, and signed by some one else?

Answer. They were.

948 Interrogatory 21. Please state what method was pursued in making copies of such letters as you wrote?

Answer. The letters I wrote were sent in to Mr. McNall, who signed them, copied them in his book, and returned them to us to be mailed.

Interrogatory 22. If in answer to the foregoing interrogatory you have stated, or if it be a fact, that one carbon copy of each letter was retained in Mr. Bemis' office and the original was sent elsewhere to be signed, please state to whom the original was sent to be signed?

Answer. R. H. McNall.

Interrogatory 23. Please state whether or not the name of the company to whom the letter was written appeared on the carbon copy retained? If not, by whose direction was the name omitted from the letter?

Answer. A month before I left the company we used to address the different parties to whom we were writing; afterwards in writing the letter we placed a piece of paper over the name, so that it would not show on the carbon, but the name would show on the original letters.

Interrogatory 24. Please state the name or names of the parties in Mr. Bemis' office who dictated letters to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. Mr. O'Connor, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Pelouze, and others.

Interrogatory 25. Did you know Mr. R. H. McNall? Where was his office located?

Answer. His office was in a suite of rooms known as 1209 and 1210; his room was really 1209, it was really one big suite.

Interrogatory 26. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that letters written by you to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were sent to Mr. R. H. McNall to be signed, please state by whose direction they were so sent?

949 Answer. By the direction of the man that wrote them.

Interrogatory 27. Please describe the stationery upon which you wrote letters addressed to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. Stationery was received from Mr. R. H. McNall's office, and the heading on same read Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 28. Please state whether or not you had any letter heads with the name of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company upon them in your office or desk?

Answer. I had them in my desk, all sizes.

Interrogatory 29. If you have stated, or if it be a fact, that the original letters written by you to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were written on the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's letter heads, then state where you obtained such stationery and under whose direction the letters were written on Waters-Pierce Oil Company stationery?

Answer. I obtained the letter heads from Mr. R. H. McNall's office, and I received orders at the time I entered Mr. Bemis' office to address all letters to them dictated by other parties in the office on Waters-Pierce Oil Company stationery. The orders came from everybody connected with that letter-writing, particularly from Mr. Wilson.

Interrogatory 30. If you have not already done so, please state in detail the substance of the letters written by you to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. Why, it was the general conduct of their business, principally competitive shipments, which letters I received from Mr. O'Connor. That means the letters regarding competitive shipments came from Mr. O'Connor.

Interrogatory 31. Please state in detail the character of letters and substance of letters and reports received in your department from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and by whom they were sent to your department.

Answer. I know reports came there, but I can't remember 950 whom they came from, nor the substance of them. I can't remember the names of the parties who sent the letters. J. P. Ackert is one of the parties who sent the letters. I am not sure about the initials, I know it is Ackert—A-c-k-e-r-t, as nearly as I can remember.

Interrogatory 32. Please state whether or not letters were dictated to you in that department addressed to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Republic Oil Company, the Atlantic Refining Company, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Continental Oil Company of Denver, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Oil Company of New York and the Standard Oil Company of Chicago?

Answer. I have written to Cleveland, yes. Yes as to the Republic Oil Company; yes as to the Atlantic Refining Company; as to Standard Oil Company of Indiana, I can't remember. Yes as to the Continental Oil Company of Denver. As to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, I used to address them in the building. As to the Standard Oil Company of New York, of course. As to the Standard Oil Company of Chicago, I don't know them, they were not in my time.

Interrogatory 33. Please state whether or not letters and reports were received in your department from the different companies mentioned in the foregoing interrogatory.

Answer. They were, that is with the exception of that Chicago, I don't know anything about that.

At 12.35 P. M. Court adjourned until 2.30 P. M.

951 Court opened at 2.30 P. M.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We now offer the deposition of Francis D. Carley, of White Plains, New York. We offer a portion of the deposition; there are some portions of it we do not offer.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, where do you live, and what is your business?

Answer. Francis D. Carley. White Plains, N. Y. Dealer in securities.

Interrogatory 2. State whether or not you have ever been in the oil business, and if so, state where and when, and state what firms or companies you were connected with.

Answer. Was in the oil business, as near as I can remember, from 1865 to about 1884. Was connected first with the firm of Chess, Carley & Co. Afterward with the corporation of Chess, Carley & Co., both of Louisville, Kentucky; and was also interested for a few years in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, of St. Louis, Mo.

Interrogatory 3. State whether or not you were engaged in the business of refining and selling the products of petroleum, and if so, in what States.

Answer. Was engaged in the business of refining and selling petroleum in Kentucky, but as far as I remember the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of St. Louis did not engage in refining. Its business was that of a dealer..

Interrogatory 4. State whether or not you have ever sold oil in the States of Missouri and Texas, and state whether or not you discontinued the business of selling oil in those States.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we wish to interpose the objection that the testimony of this witness relates to occurrences antedating many years the formation of the defendant in this 952 case, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and that these matters to which he testifies have no direct or immediate connection with the subject-matter of this litigation.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. I was engaged in selling oil in Texas, but except as one interested in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, I do not remember to have sold oil in Missouri. And I did discontinue the business of selling oil in Texas, except as interested in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 5. If you have said that you were engaged in the sale of oil in Missouri and Texas, state how you conducted that business, and if you say you owned or operated a tank line, state by what name the tank line was known, and if you say that you have discontinued the business, state the circumstances under which it was discontinued.

Answer. When I say that I was engaged in selling oil in Texas, I mean that the corporation of Chess, Carley & Company was selling oil in Texas. The business was conducted at first by direct shipments of oil from Louisville, Kentucky, generally by way of Galveston, afterwards in tank cars from Cleveland, Ohio, over the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad. When I bought the tank cars for this purpose they were called the M. K. & T. Tank Line, and as I remember it the tanks were mounted on the cars of the M. K. & T. road, or at least part of them. I discontinued the business by the tank cars aforesaid and joined with Waters, Pierce & Company in the formation of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as it seemed more advantageous to distribute oil in Texas from St. Louis as a distributing center.

Interrogatory 6. If you have said that you sold the M. K. & T. Tank Line, state to whom you sold, and state whether or not you took stock in any company in payment for the tank line, and if so, in what company?

953 Judge STEDMAN: We object to that for the reason that the transaction occurred long before the formation of this defendant corporation, and also for the reason that the transaction occurred long before the enactment of the anti-trust laws under which this prosecution is conducted.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. I suppose it should be called a sale or an exchange, which I made in parting with the M. K. & T. Tank Line and taking stock therefor in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 7. If you have answered that you sold the tank line to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not thereafter the tank line ceased to do business in Texas.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that, Your Honor, for the same reason.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Answer. The corporation of Chess, Carley & Company ceased to ship oil by means of those tank cars.

Interrogatory 8. Were you a member of or did you hold stock in the Chess-Carley Company, and if so, state whether you had any official position in that company, or had anything to do with its management?

Answer. I did own stock and was its President and had much to do with its management.

Interrogatory 9. State whether or not the Chess-Carley Company took stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state why, and the circumstances under which it participated in the organization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. I can not state positively whether I held the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in my name or not, but I think 954 I did, because I am quite confident that I bought the M. K. & T. tank cars personally, although I have not looked this matter over for probably twenty years, and have only thought of it when once before I was asked a similar question in New York. Through my transfer of the M. K. & T. tank line I received stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and became a director of that corporation. Since answering the above, I feel more positive that I owned the stock individually.

Interrogatory 10. State whether or not you ever owned individually any stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state to whom you sold this stock, if you sold it, and state with whom you negotiated for the sale of the stock, if you negotiated with any one.

State where the parties were with whom you negotiated for the sale of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company stock.

Answer. I do not remember who bought the Waters-Pierce Oil Company stock, but I do remember meeting some one in the building owned by the Standard Oil Company, and my recollection is that W. P. Thompson, who was another director of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, introduced me to the buyer or brought about the interview.

Interrogatory 11. What corporation, if any, succeeded to the Chess-Carley Company, or to the business of the Chess-Carley Company?

Answer. I think the corporation was called the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.

Interrogatory 12. State whether or not during the time the Chess-Carley Company was owner of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, W. D. Thompson, Horace A. Hutchins and the trustees of the Standard Oil Trust also owned stock in that company, and state whether any one of them was an officer in that company.

Answer. I do not know to what extent W. P. Thompson and Horace Hutchins owned stock, but I remember them as directors in attendance at the meetings. I do not know whether the Standard Oil Trustees owned stock or not, or at least do not remember.

955 Interrogatory 13. What was the business of H. A. Hutchins at that time, and where was he located?

Answer. He was located in Cleveland, and had charge of the selling department of the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, we don't offer 14, 15 and 16.

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we desire at this time to offer the remainder of the testimony of this witness.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We do not object to his offering it, Your Honor, but we don't like to have our proceedings interrupted here.

Judge PENN: It is very short, Your Honor, and we think the jury will understand the testimony of this witness better if we put in the balance at this time.

Mr. ALLEN: We object to one part of the testimony they desire to offer, as being in direct violation of the agreement we have made. We wish to make the further objection, if the Court please, to the introduction of this, because it was not crossed by the defendant.

Judge PENN: I would like to know just what part of it, is it, you object to.

Mr. ALLEN: Well, we object to the introduction of any of it.

Mr. BRADY: 15 and 16 are the answers we object to.

Judge PENN: With reference to the last objection made, Your Honor, we think the rule, whether this was crossed or not, is that wherever one party offers one part of a document or statement the balance of it is admissible at the instance of the other party, especially whenever it is necessary to shed light on what has been introduced.

The COURT: If it relates to the same subject as that which is in evidence, it is.

Judge PENN: Well, Judge Stedman, if you will read the questions we will offer them in regular order.

Interrogatory 14. State whether or not after the sale of the 956 M. K. & T. Tank Line the Chess-Carley Company did any business in Texas, and if not, state why not.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Answer. It did not do much business in Texas, in fact almost no business, because the business could not be handled advantageously by way of Louisville, Kentucky, and I thought my interests in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company would compensate me for giving up the strained effort to do business in that State.

(Nos. 15 and 16 excluded on objection by plaintiff.)

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer in evidence the deposition of W. N. Davis, who resides in Kansas City.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, and where do you live, and in what business are you and have you been?

Answer. William N. Davis. Kansas City, Missouri. Manufacture and sale of lubricating oils and other products of petroleum, crude oils.

Interrogatory 2. With what oil company are you now connected, if any, and how long have you been connected with that company?

Answer. The Keystone Oil Company of Kansas City and Interocean Oil Company of Chicago. About nine years.

Judge STEDMAN: Your Honor, we wish to interpose the objection to the deposition of this witness in its entirety, for the reason that it relates to transactions between companies other than this defendant, to which this defendant was in no wise a party; and further, that the transactions detailed by the witness transpired in other States; and further, upon the general ground of immateriality.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

Interrogatory 3. Before making your present connection,
957 with what company were you connected?

Answer. The Interstate Oil Company, Kansas City, Missouri.

Interrogatory 4. If in answer to the last question you have said that you were connected with the Interstate Oil Company, state how long you were connected with it, and state what territory the company operated in.

Answer. From the inception of the company until I disposed of my stock in about 1897. There was no prescribed territory for the Interstate Oil Company to operate in. We got business all over the world.

Interrogatory 5. State what companies you came in competition with in Missouri.

Answer. Standard Oil Company, Republic Oil Company, Waters-Pierce Oil Company, National Oil Company, and all smaller companies.

Interrogatory 6. If you say that you met the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company in Missouri, state whether or not you ever met both companies in the same place or territory.

Answer. Never.

Interrogatory 7. State whether or not you have ever met in any other State than Missouri both the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company in competition with you at the same place.

Answer. No, sir, never.

Interrogatory 8. Prior to the time you became connected with the Interstate Oil Company, state whether or not you had any connection with the Standard Oil Company. If so, state what the connection was, and how long it continued, and state what name it was operated under at that place and time.

Answer. I was connected with the Consolidated Tank Line Company as manager of Kansas City and contributory territory. To the best of my knowledge this Tank Line Company was the 958 Standard Oil Company. To the best of my recollection, I was connected with the company for seven years.

Interrogatory 9. State to whom you made your reports while connected with the Standard Oil Company or the Consolidated Tank Line Company, and at what place.

Answer. To the Consolidated Tank Line Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, which was the general headquarters of that company. I also made reports to Silas H. Payne, 26 Broadway, New York, with regard to lubricating oils, when requested to do so.

Interrogatory 10. If you have stated that you made reports to Silas H. Payne at 26 Broadway, New York, or if that be the case, state who S. H. Payne was and his connection with the Standard Oil Company?

Answer. To the best of my recollection, he was an officer of the Standard Oil Company, and looked after the lubricating oil department.

Interrogatory 11. State whether or not you knew Alex. McDonald; if so, state what connection, if any, he had with the Consolidated Tank Line Company, and state where he is, and what his business is at this time, if you know.

Answer. I knew Mr. McDonald, who was president of the Consolidated Tank Line Company at the time of my connection with that company. The last I knew he was a resident of New York City and an officer of the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 12. Did you know Frank Rockefeller? If so, state what connection he had with the Consolidated Tank Line Company.

Answer. I knew Mr. Rockefeller while he was connected in some capacity with the Consolidated Tank Line Company. I do not recollect the nature of his connection.

Interrogatory 13. During your connection with the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state from whom that company received its oil, and state the location and ownership of the refineries from which oil was received.

959 Answer. My orders for oil were sent to Cincinnati, and were filled from there.

Interrogatory 14. State whether or not the Consolidated Tank Line Company was permitted to sell oil all over the State of Missouri; if not, state what portion of the State it sold oil in, and state whether or not it sold oil in the balance of the State.

Answer. There was a line drawn; my recollection is that all territory West of the M. K. & T. railway was reserved for the Consolidated Tank Line Company, and territory East belonged to Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 15. What instructions, if any, did you give traveling men with reference to the division of territory in Missouri, and state why these instructions were given.

Answer. I never permitted traveling men to seek patronage in territory reserved for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in order to save any conflict between the two companies.

Interrogatory 16. State whether or not there was ever at any time any controversy about the territory within which the Consolidated Tank Line Company could operate and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company could operate, and if so, state the part taken by you in the controversy, and state the result thereof, and how it was determined.

Answer. I never recollect any, with the exception of some controversy at Joplin, Missouri, where I had established a station, and which afterwards was turned over to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 17. While you were with the Consolidated Tank Line Company, state what plan was used by that concern to ascertain shipments of oil by competitors, and state what use was made of the knowledge thus acquired.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that answer, because it is immaterial and irrelevant; and further, because what he or his company did can not be visited upon this defendant, this defendant not being shown to have had any connection with what they did in conducting their business, especially as the witness has just testified that his company and this defendant did not operate in the same territory.

960

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. We employed or used one of our employés to visit the freight platform of the various roads in Kansas City and take the names from barrels emanating from competitors, showing the consignee. Our traveling men in the territory where barrels were destined were notified and instructed to visit such consignees and endeavor, even if a cut in price was necessary, in order to secure their future business, to make such a cut.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer in evidence the deposition of WILLIAM A. MORGAN, who resides in the city of Sedalia, Missouri.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name and where do you reside? How long have you resided there? Where did you live prior to that time?

Judge STEDMAN: Before any of the answers are read, we desire to make the objection that the matters concerning which this witness testifies occurred wholly in the State of Missouri, and therefore the laws of Texas not operating extra-territorially, can not affect these transactions. It is suggested to me by associate counsel that these transactions occurred prior to the organization of this defendant, and prior to the enactment of the laws under which this prosecution is conducted.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Answer. My name is William A. Morgan. I reside in Se-
961 dalia, Pettis County, Missouri, and have resided in Sedalia, Pettis County, Missouri, for the last three years. Prior to that time I lived in Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas.

Interrogatory 2. State whether or not you have ever been connected with the Standard Oil Company; state when the connection began, and how long it continued, and the character of your employment.

Answer. I have been connected with the Standard Oil Company. My connection with the Standard Oil Company began on or about December 1st, 1898, and continued until October 18th, 1900. The character of my employment was traveling salesman and local station agent at Sedalia, Missouri.

Interrogatory 3. If you answer that you were traveling salesman for the Standard Oil Company, state the territory within which you traveled, and if you say that you afterwards became manager of the station at Sedalia, state what territory you had in that capacity.

Answer. While acting as traveling salesman for the Standard Oil Company, the territory within which I traveled was Sheridan, Carroll, Randolph, Howard, Pettis, Cooper and Benton Counties, all said counties being in the State of Missouri. While I was local Station Agent at Sedalia, my territory was the city of Sedalia, and local points close to Sedalia, being all the towns in Pettis, Benton and Cooper Counties.

Interrogatory 4. Under whom did you act under the Kansas City jurisdiction? And if you say that it was G. W. Mayer, state what his position was at that time.

Answer. Under the Kansas City jurisdiction, I acted under G. W. Mayer, whose position at that time was that of Manager at Kansas City, and had jurisdiction over all traveling salesmen and Station Agents for the Standard Oil Company in the Kansas City jurisdiction.

Interrogatory 5. When you were traveling salesman for the Standard Oil Company, did you ever come in competition with the 962 Waters-Pierce Oil Company? After you were stationed at Sedalia were you in competition there with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. When I was traveling salesman for the Standard Oil Company, I never came in competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. After I was stationed at Sedalia, I was never in competition with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 6. What was your territorial limit in operating from Sedalia, and what were your instructions as to going beyond that point, and by whom were the instructions given, and state whether or not you ever on any occasion sold oil outside of this territory, and if so, state why you so sold, and what was the result of your sale?

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we interpose an objection to that part of the answer of this witness in which he testifies to instructions given gim by G. W. Mayer, for the reason that no instructions that Mayer gave could affect this defendant, with which he had no connection.

Mr. BRADY: He was a traveling salesman of the Standard Oil Company, and Mayer was the general manager.

The COURT: What is the number of the question?

Mr. BRADY: It is No. 6.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: No. 4 shows who Mayer was.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Answer. In operating from Sedalia my territorial limit was Pettis, Benton and Cooper Counties and as far South into Hickory County as Cross Timbers, also Howard, Randolph and Sheridan Counties. I was instructed not to go outside of this territory. The instructions were given by G. W. Mayer, Manager at Kansas City. On one or two occasions I went outside of this territory and sold oil, and I was reprimanded by the management at Kansas City for going 963 into Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory.

Interrogatory 7. What action, if any, was taken by Mr. Mayer with reference to sales made by you outside of the territory assigned to you, and what statements did he make, if any, with reference to the character of the territory beyond your line within which you had by mistake made sales?

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we interpose the same objection to this answer that we did to the last preceding answer.

The COURT: Because of the statement of Mayer?

Judge STEDMAN: Yes, sir.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. Mr. Mayer stated to me that I would get no credit for sales made outside of the territory assigned to me, as the said territory belonged to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 8. If you have stated that Mr. Mayer told you that the part of the territory in which you had made sales was the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory, state if you know the line recognized as the boundary line between the territory of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company's territory, and state how you acquired information concerning this line.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to the answer to the eighth interrogatory, because it appears that the facts concerning which the witness testifies are not within his knowledge, but were derived from other sources, and the testimony is therefore hearsay.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We will state, if Your Honor please, that we have not made any objections heretofore—I mean we have not urged this point, but I now call attention to it, that we have given defendant notice to produce all maps, writings and documents of every kind showing any division line between the Standard Oil Company 964 and its allied interests, and the defendant has failed to offer such maps, documents, etc., and we offer that as secondary evidence.

Judge STEDMAN: I have never heard or understood that secondary evidence will take the place of hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is that it is hearsay?

Judge STEDMAN: That it is derived from other sources than his own knowledge, and is hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. I learned through my instructions from the management at Kansas City that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory was the territory lying East of the East line of Cooper County and the East line of Howard County and the East line of Benton County and the South-east line of St. Clair County and all South of St. Clair County and all South of Benton County and all South of Cooper County with the exception of Cross Timbers, Northern part of Hickory County. The Waters-Pierce territory takes in practically everything in South-east and South-west Missouri and Central Missouri, up as far as the lines I have mentioned. The rest of the territory in Missouri belonged to the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 9. While you were traveling salesman for the Standard Oil Company or in charge of the station at Sedalia, do you know of any orders being received for oil from points in what was recognized as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory, and if so, state what disposition was made of these orders.

Answer. I know of no orders being received for oil from points in what was recognized as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory at the time that I was traveling salesman of the Standard Oil Company or in charge of the station at Sedalia.

Interrogatory 10. State whether or not you received orders
965 from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company that had been sent in by merchants located inside of the Standard Oil Company's territory.

Answer. Not that I have any recollection of.

Interrogatory 11. When you were salesman for the Standard Oil Company, did you within your territory at any time come in contact with competition from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Answer. I did not.

Interrogatory 12. Are you still working for the Standard Oil Company? If not, when did your employment by them cease, and in what business have you since been engaged?

Answer. I am not still working for the Standard Oil Company. My employment by them ceased October 18, 1900. Practically speaking, I have been selling oil since my connection with the Standard Oil Company ceased, for about five years. Practically speaking, I have been in the oil business ever since.

Interrogatory 13. If you say that you have been selling oil since you left the Standard Oil Company, state whether or not you have met any competition from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the territory designated as the Standard Oil Company's territory while you were with that concern, or any competition from the Standard Oil Company in the territory that was designated as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's during the time you were in the employ of the Standard Oil Company.

Answer. While selling oil for other companies since I left the Standard Oil Company, I have never met any competition from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the territory designated as the Standard Oil Company's territory while I was with that concern. Nor have I met with any competition from the Standard Oil Company in what was designated as the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory during the time I was in the employment of the Standard Oil Company.

966 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer in evidence the deposition of H. R. KNOLLENBERG, of the city of St. Louis, Missouri.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name and residence, and in what business are you engaged?

Answer. Herman R. Knollenberg. I am residing at 844 N. Kings-highway, just at present; will be there until the first of December, after that I will be living in Illinois. I am in the oil business. I think I will be there.

Interrogatory 2. State whether or not you ever had any connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, what period such connection covered, and the character of your business?

Answer. I did. Well, I can't tell you just the year, but I think it was from 1893 to the latter part of 1898 or 1899; I don't remember just what time it was—either '98 or '99. Traveling salesman.

Interrogatory 3. If you have stated that you were traveling salesman for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state what territory you worked.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, I would like to interpose an objection to all of the testimony of this witness from this time on, for the reason that it appears that the matters concerning which he testifies all happened before the formation of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and before the enactment of the laws under which this suit is being prosecuted, and further, because the transactions to which he testified occurred without the limits of the State of Texas, and are not cognizable by the courts of Texas.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. Well, the way I worked, part of the time I worked in Illinois and part of the time I worked in Missouri. When 967 I was in Illinois I covered territory that I had formerly covered when I was with the Vacuum Oil Company of Rochester.

Interrogatory 4. Within the territory in which you traveled, did you ever meet any competition from the Standard Oil Company?

Answer. No, sir.

Interrogatory 5. State if you ever found or saw in your territory any representative of the Standard Oil Company.

Answer. Not in Missouri—in Illinois I frequently would meet Standard Oil men.

Interrogatory 6. Did you have any knowledge of the division of the territory between the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state what your information was, and from whom you acquired it?

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we object to all of the answer of the witness to No. 6, for the reason that said interrogatory is leading and suggests to the witness the answer desired, and for the reason, further, that said interrogatory assumes that there was a division of the territory between the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company—a fact to which witness has not testified.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Answer. The only information—the information that I had came to me from the fact that I was told not to go beyond certain limits in Missouri in soliciting business, and my restrictions were made by Mr. A. A. Lazar, who at that time was the Manager of the Missouri division of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Letters were given to me by Mr. Lazar from customers in the Missouri division who had written to the Standard Oil Company for prices. When those inquiries were made by customers of the Waters-Pierce Oil 968 Company, the letters were generally sent to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company divisions and the salesman's attention was called to it and he was supposed to go there and see what trouble there was and adjust it and return them as customers so it would not get to any outside concern—so they would not give their patronage to any outside concern. I received not what you might call absolute knowledge of the fact, only as it was given to me by the Manager of the division, he telling me what parts of Missouri the Waters-Pierce company did business and the portions in which they did not do business; and at one time he showed me by a map of Missouri, which was hanging on the wall, about the limits of the territory of each company. That's about all, I guess.

Interrogatory 10. Under what character of contract were you working for the Vacuum Oil Company, and if you say you were working under a yearly contract, state whether or not you worked out the year, and if you did not, state for whom you began to work before the end of the year, and state the circumstances — you left the Vacuum Oil Company?

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that upon the ground of immateriality and irrelevancy, and further, because the matter testified about occurred long before the creation of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company and long before the enactment of the statutes under which this suit is being prosecuted.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. I remember one morning, Mr. E. J. Sugru, who at that time was the manager of this district for the Vacuum Oil Company, of Rochester, N. Y.—one morning, while we were all sitting in the office, a gentleman came in, presented their credentials and proceeded immediately to check up the Vacuum Oil Company. That evening or the next morning, was told by Mr. Sugru that the 969 business would be transferred to the Standard Oil Company.

I had a yearly contract with the Vacuum Oil Company of Rochester, N. Y., which had eight or ten months of unexpired time. There was nothing said to me about working out my unexpired contract, but my services were simply transferred to Waters-Pierce Oil Company—they afterwards dividing my time as they saw fit, soliciting trade in Illinois and Missouri.

Interrogatory 11. If in answer to the preceding question you state that you had a yearly contract with the Vacuum Oil Company, but that the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company began marketing Vacuum oils and that you were transferred to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state when this transfer took place, and state what your instructions were as to the balance of your contract period.

Answer. Well, as near as I can remember, the transfer took place in April, 1893, to the best of my knowledge and belief, and the books, papers and everything that was in the office of the Vacuum Oil Company was transferred to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, who had at that time offices in the Odd Fellows Building. Nothing was said to me at that time about the balance on my contract, but I continued to work and did as I was told covering territory to which I was assigned from time to time. My salary checks always came from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 12. After the Vacuum Oil Company quit business, state where you worked, and state by whom your salary was paid, and state whether or not it was according to the contract made with the Vacuum Oil Company.

Answer. Well, after the Vacuum Oil Company was absorbed by the Standard Oil Company I continued working for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, they from time to time assigning me to territory in Illinois covered by the Standard Oil Company, and in which I solicited business while I was employed by the Vacuum 970 Oil Company. My salary came to me regularly in checks from the Missouri division of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, having at no time received any compensation directly from the Standard Oil Company.

Interrogatory 13. If in answer to the preceding question you have said that you worked in both Missouri and Illinois, or if that be the case, state to whom you made reports of business done in Illinois, and state to whom reports were made as to the remainder of the business done by you.

Answer. When I made trips in Illinois soliciting business my daily reports were sent to the Standard Oil Company's office at East St. Louis, Illinois. When I solicited business in Missouri, the reports were sent to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 14. How did you acquire information of the transfer of the Vacuum Oil Company to the Standard Oil Company and Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that, because it appears that the witness was informed by somebody else of this transfer, and is merely relating or detailing hearsay.

The COURT: The objection to the answer to the fourteenth interrogatory is sustained to all of the answer except the first two sentences.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Answer. The first information that I had of that, as I said before, was given to me by Mr. E. J. Sugru, who at that time was the district manager of the Vacuum Oil Company, and after going with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company I was told to continue soliciting the class of trade that I had solicited when I worked for the Vacuum Oil Company.

(Interrogatory 15 and answer omitted.)

Interrogatory 16. State whether or not any of the other employés of the Vacuum Oil Company became connected with the 971 Standard Oil Company or the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if so, state who they were.

Answer. I can't say that I know from my own personal knowledge, I did not meet any of the men who had formerly traveled for the Vacuum Oil Company until several years after the transfer had been made and do not remember of having ever asked the gentlemen whether or not they had been retained by the Standard interests. The men who worked for the Vacuum Oil Company that traveled in the territory adjoining mine I very seldom met, only when they would come to the city and I would meet them in the office of the Vacuum Oil Company. To the best of my knowledge and belief, I was the only one who was retained by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to work in the territory which I had formerly covered while employed by the Vacuum Oil Company.

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer the evidence of T. R. HOPKINS.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to this testimony as a whole on the ground that the witness' testimony refers to matters occurring without the limits of the State of Texas, in other States, and having no connection with the matters involved in this suit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, where do you live, and in what business are you engaged? Have you ever been connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company? If so, at what place, during what period and in what capacity?

Answer. My name is T. R. Hopkins. I live in Lawrence County, Missouri. I am engaged in farming. I was connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in the capacity of Agent, at Seneca, Missouri, Joplin, Missouri, Webb City, Missouri, and Pierce City, Missouri, from 1887 to 1903.

972 Interrogatory 2. If you say that you were an employé of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state under whom you worked?

Answer. I worked under A. M. Finlay, A. H. Lasar, and C. L. Ackert.

Interrogatory 3. If in answer to the last question you say that you worked under A. M. Finlay, state what his position was, and if you say that you subsequently worked under A. A. Lasar and C. L. ——, state the positions respectively held by them.

Answer. They were Managers of the Missouri division of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Interrogatory 4. State whether or not you recall the circumstance of the company getting into some character of controversy with the State of Texas about 1900, state what, if anything, occurred about that time with reference to the discharge and reinstallment of employés, and what action concerning this matter was then taken.

Answer. I remember the controversy with the State of Texas. I received a letter discharging me, and in same mail I received a letter hiring me over again.

Interrogatory 5. If in answer to the last interrogatory you state that you were discharged and were re-employed, state how long between your discharge and your re-employment, and state whether or not you were checked up when you were discharged, and state what change took place in your business, and in the duties performed by you, as the result of the discharge and re-employment.

Answer. In same mail. Was not checked up. No change took place in my business, nor in my duties, as a result of the discharge and re-employment.

Interrogatory 6. State what change in your office was made, and what change, if any, in the stationery used by you, in the form or manner of carrying on business. State if you used the same 973 tanks after as before your discharge and re-employment, and had the same customers, and if you made any change in your books. Did you open a new set of books with your local customers, or did the accounts continue without any interruption?

Answer. None at the time. But in a short time I received a rubber stamp and pad, and I stamped on letter heads, "Incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri in 1900."

Interrogatory 7. State specifically what changes were made as the result of this discharge and re-employment.

Answer. None at all.

Interrogatory 8. If you have stated that you were located at Webb City, Missouri, at any time during your employment by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not you met any competition there from the Standard Oil Company?

Answer. None.

Interrogatory 9. How close was Webb City from the Kansas line? State whether or not you sold any oil over the line in Kansas, and if you say you did not sell any oil over there, state by whom sales of oil were made in Kansas, and state why you did not make sales there.

Answer. Webb City is about sixteen miles from the Kansas line. I did not sell any oil over the line in Kansas, because I was instructed to not invade the Standard's territory. The Standard Oil Company sold oil over there.

Interrogatory 10. State whether or not at any time during your connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company you met the Standard Oil Company in competition in the sale of oil.

Answer. No, I did not.

Interrogatory 11. During the period that you worked for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not you had any occasion to, and did, ask for any instructions or directions as to whether you should sell oil outside of the Waters-Pierce Oil 974 Company's territory, and if so, state of whom you sought the instructions and directions you received.

Answer. I had occasion in two instances to ask for instructions as to selling oil outside of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's territory, but I did not ask for them. I sold once outside of the territory, but was told by Mr. Lasar, Manager, to not do so any more.

Interrogatory 12. If in answer to the foregoing question you have answered that while you were at Seneca application was made to you for the purchase of a barrel of oil by some one outside of your territory and you asked Mr. Lasar about it, state what instructions he gave you concerning the matter, and state if he gave the reasons for his instructions and what those reasons as given were?

Answer. I do not remember about receiving an application for a barrel of oil while in Seneca, by some one outside of my territory, but I do remember while in Seneca that Mr. Lasar told me very emphatically to not sell any oil in the Standard's territory, for if the Standard Company found it out, we would have to make up the difference between what we were selling at and what the Standard was selling at.

Interrogatory 13. State whether or not you knew the territory claimed respectively by the Standard Oil Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and if you do know, state how you got the information, and state where the line between the two territories run.

Answer. I knew at the time I was in the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, but I do not now remember just where the lines run. I got the information from a map of the Missouri division of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company that Mr. Lasar showed me. I had no occasion to use it, except the South-west part of Missouri, where I was located, and a portion of the Indian Territory. The only line I know positively about now is the State line between Missouri and Kansas.

975 Interrogatory 14. State whether or not during the time you were connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company you had to meet competition from the Standard Oil Company within your territory.

Answer. No.

Interrogatory 15. Were you familiar with the price of oil in Carthage, Joplin, Webb City and Springfield as compared with the prices within your territory? If so, state what the prices were as compared with each other.

Judge STEDMAN: We interpose an objection to this answer upon the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. While in Pierce City, our prices were always from one and a half to three cents higher than prices in Carthage, Joplin, Webb City and Springfield.

Interrogatory 16. If in answer to the preceding question you have stated that the price in the contiguous territory was less than in your territory, state the reason for this difference, and state how you know the reason therefor.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to that because it is immaterial and irrelevant.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. They had competition. I know this, because I visited the dealers in those places, and also, Mr. Ackert told me the same thing.

Interrogatory 17. If in answer to the preceding question you have said that you talked with one of the officers of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company with reference to the matter of prices, state who said officer was, and what was said by him with reference to the matter.

976 Judge STEDMAN: We object to this answer for the same reason, that it is immaterial and irrelevant and does not tend to establish any issue in this case, in that the fact that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company met competition at certain places and did not have to meet competition at other places does not tend to establish either the alleged fact of its admission under improper circumstances into Texas, or the alleged fact of its being a party to a pool, trust, or combination.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Answer. Manager Ackert. He said the reason my prices were higher was because I had no competition in my territory.

Interrogatory 18. State whether or not you ever received any orders for oil while you were agent for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company from merchants in the territory recognized as the Standard Oil Company's territory.

Answer. Yes.

Interrogatory 19. If in answer to the preceding question you say that you did receive such orders, state whether or not you filled them, and if not, state what was done with them, and why, and if you say that you were acting under instructions in what you did, state from whom the instructions emanated.

Answer. I did receive such orders, but I did not fill them, except in one instance. I forwarded the orders to the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis, who sent them to the Standard Oil Company. I did this because I was instructed to do so, by Managers Ackert and Lasar. They told me to not fill any orders from the Standard's territory.

Interrogatory 20. State whether or not while working for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company you received any orders that had been sent from your territory to the Standard Oil Company, and if 977 so, state through what agency you received these orders. If you recall any special instance of such an order, state who made it and by whom it was forwarded to you, and what you did with reference to it.

Answer. Yes. J. R. Williams of Monett, Missouri, sent an order to the Standard Oil Company at Kansas City, Missouri. It was forwarded to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis, who sent it to me, and I filled the order.

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the questions to and answers of Robert H. McNall.

(Thereupon the deposition of Robert H. McNall, taken in New York City, was read.)

ROBERT H. MCNALL, called as a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. LIGHTFOOT:

Q. What is your name?
A. Robert H. McNall.
Q. Where do you live, Mr. McNall?
A. Greenwich, Connecticut.
Q. Are you in business in New York?
A. I am.
Q. How long have you been in business here?
A. Something over twenty years—about twenty-two years, I think.
Q. What kind of business are you in?
A. Oil business.
Q. Where is your office?
A. 26 Broadway.
Q. New York?
A. New York City.

Q. Has your office been located at that point during the 978 twenty years you have been in business here?

A. Well, I have been in that building for that time—part of the time I was in the rear of it.

Q. Who did you begin with?
A. The Pratt Manufacturing Company.
Q. How long did you work with them?
A. About ten years.

Q. Then what company did you go with?

A. Well, I might explain: A part of that time the name of the company was changed; it was the Pratt Manufacturing Company, and afterwards the Standard Oil Company, Pratt Works.

Q. Afterwards changed its name to the Standard Oil Company, Pratt Works?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was that—about when?

992 I don't know what you mean by "construction reports."

Q. Well, a report showing the construction of buildings and the erection of tank stations and the equipment of plants and so on, made or in course of construction by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Did you receive any such reports as that?

A. I don't know of any specific cases; I don't remember.

A. No, I may have spoken to others.
Q. Who did you speak to about it?
A. When such a report would be received, and in going over it, I might find out from others what a certain position was paying at some other points, and in that way, that would be information that I was trying to get at.
Q. I don't understand that. Explain it a little more fully.

A. When such a report was received, I would go over it carefully, and I might have to send information to other places, what a certain place was paying.

Q. From whom?

998 A. From any of my friends.

Q. Can't you name any one of them that you ever sought such information from?

Q. Did you ever show it to Mr. W. H. Tilford?

A. I don't remember.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. McNall, to refresh your memory, if it was not the usual custom, and if you did not carry out the policy of submitting that report of salaries to other parties at 26 Broadway, and they were either approved or rejected, and you made a report on it to St. Louis?

A. No.

Q. You say that you never reported to the St. Louis office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company any report on a salary list as submitted by them at all? Did you ever have any correspondence about it?

A. I think I have had correspondence about it; I can not recall it.

Q. What character of correspondence did you have, Mr. McNall, with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, concerning the salaries paid to their officers?

A. I don't remember any particular correspondence in regard to it.

Q. These barreling and marketing reports, what did you do with them?

A. Filed them in my office.

Q. Did you show them to anybody?

A. Other people may have seen them; I can't tell.

Q. How did they see them? Would they come to your office and inspect these files, or would you exhibit them to them?

A. They may have seen them on my desk after going over them, and while I was going over them, or they might have seen them on the files.

Q. Did you object to anybody there in the office inspecting the reports that you received there from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I don't know of any cases where they did.

Q. But you did show them those reports occasionally?

A. Yes, as business required.

Q. I will ask you if any letters were written in any of those departments there, say Mr. Bemis's office or Mr. Bedford's office or Mr. Silas H. Paine's office or any of those men connected there at 26 Broadway, and sent to your office to be signed by you for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. There were letters, I believe, in other offices besides my own.

Q. For the Waters-Pierce Company?

A. Addressed to the Waters-Pierce Company.

Q. Well, did you sign those letters, Mr. McNall?

A. I did.

Q. On what kind of stationery were they written?

A. On my own.

Q. On the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's stationery?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you supply those departments with your stationery?

A. I did.

1000 Q. And what character of letters would they write?

A. There were only two offices that did that to my knowledge at the time.

Q. What two offices were they?

A. The lubricating oil and the purchasing of supplies.

Q. The lubricating oil department and the purchase of supplies department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was in charge of the Lubricating Oil Department?

A. I can not say who was in charge of the Lubricating Oil Department.

Q. But you know, as a matter of fact, that letters were written in that department and sent to your office and addressed to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, at my request.

Q. Yes, and you signed the letters?

A. Yes.

Q. Why were the letters not signed in those two departments?

A. It was information sent to me in regard to certain matters which I had to take up with the Lubricating Oil Department or Purchasing Department and I asked them if they had any objection to my making their replies instead of their writing to me and I in turn writing it, and they very kindly did that in some cases.

Q. After that you received letters from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for those departments that were addressed to you, and you afterwards sent them to those departments?

A. In some cases, yes, sir.

Q. Did you send any letters or correspondence by you and addressed by you to any of the officers or departments at 26 Broadway?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what letters and correspondence did you send, Mr. McNall?

1001 A. Some letters regarding lubricating oil and some letters regarding the purchase of supplies.

Q. Please state whether or not the Waters-Pierce Oil Company conducted all of their correspondence with parties at 26 Broadway through you by correspondence addressed to you?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, they conducted a great deal of it that way, did they not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How often did you receive letters, Mr. McNall, for distribution in those offices there at 26 Broadway?

A. I never received letters for distribution.

Q. Well, that you did distribute?

A. Frequently.

Q. Well, about how often?

A. I think there was something in every mail.

Q. And you said that in two of those offices that you recall your stationery was provided and they addressed their communications to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and sent the letters to your office to be signed by you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you did sign them and conduct the correspondence between those offices and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in your name; is that a fact?

A. I signed those letters.

Q. Why didn't they sign them, Mr. McNall?

A. It was information that was asked of me.

Q. Well, you received it from those departments, did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, to what business matters did that correspondence relate?

A. As far as lubricating oil was concerned, mostly in regard 1002 to orders—orders for shipment.

Q. Shipment where?

A. Shipments from points where they were receiving their supplies; their orders were placed with me, and then some question would arise as to the shipment.

Q. And those letters were sent to you and you sent them on to the departments?

A. I did in some cases.

Q. Well, I will ask you to refresh your memory, Mr. McNall, if you didn't write a letter to the St. Louis office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and direct them to make a carbon copy of the letters that they wrote to you, so that you might facilitate matters in sending the letters to the various departments there?

A. I don't remember the letters, but I received carbon copies.

Q. Of all the letters that you received?

A. Not all.

Q. What proportion, now, of the letters that you received were there carbon copies enclosed?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, what is your best judgment about it, Mr. McNall? Approximate it.

A. Well, if I approximate it, I might say half, but I am not sure that that is correct.

Q. Well, your judgment is that you received carbon copies of about half of the letters that you received from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, what did you do with the carbon copies?

A. Those that required information from other points I forwarded them and asked them to make a reply.

1003 Q. What do you mean by "other points"?

A. Well, if it was in regard to lubricating oil matters I would send it down to the Lubricating Oil Department, and get their reply.

Q. In the same building?

A. Yes.

Q. Mention some other instances?

A. Supplies, the same way.

Q. Did you send them to the supply department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, suppose it was about barreling and market reports?

A. I don't remember ever receiving such.

Q. Suppose it concerned salaries?

A. I don't remember ever receiving any about salaries.

Q. Well, about the dividends or cash payments?

A. I don't remember receiving any with any of those papers.

Q. Did they report to you the result of the business of Mexico also?

A. You mean the total sales?

Q. Yes.

A. I think that was included.

Q. The same character of reports concerning the business in the United States?

A. Similar reports.

Q. Similar reports were made about the Mexican business also?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you purchase your supplies of lubricating oils from?

A. Of the lubricating oil office.

Q. Of the Standard Oil Company?

A. I assume it was of the Standard Oil Company.

Q. It was located in the same building?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did you purchase your supplies of refined oil from?

1004 A. I don't remember purchasing any refined oil.

Q. Did you not state that orders for refined oil were sent to you?

A. Only occasionally.

Q. Where did you purchase that from whenever it was sent to you?

A. I think I remember occasional orders for refined oil, but I don't know where they were placed. I did buy some from the Export Department, I think; I am not clear.

Q. Did you ever buy any from any of the refineries in Texas?

A. No, I don't think I ever bought any from refineries in Texas.

Q. Did you buy it from the refinery at Whiting, Indiana?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, Mr. McNall, these letters that were written in the other departments that you have referred to, did they have any marks on them for identification, showing where they originated, or who wrote them?

A. When they came to my office?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, I think not.

Q. Did you put any on them yourself, showing where the letter originated?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, how would you mark them for identification?

A. The letters were not marked—I would like to correct that previous statement.

(Next to the last question repeated.)

A. Where the letter originated, they were not marked for that purpose.

Q. For what reason were they marked?

A. To show where I obtained my information.

Q. How would you mark those letters?

A. How?

Q. How?—yes.

A. With the initials of the party that was known, or the 1005 initials of the party from whom I got it or the office from which I got it.

Q. Now, give us an illustration, Mr. McNall.

A. On lubricating oil matters, information that I received from the office where Mr. Silas H. Paine is, I would mark it S. H. P.

Q. Where would you mark it?

A. In the upper left hand corner.

Q. Would you put the initials S. H. P. on the upper left hand corner of the letter and forward the letter then to the St. Louis office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You would sign it yourself and forward the letter there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would that convey any information to the St. Louis office, those initials that you put on the upper left hand corner there?

A. I think they would know from that from whom I obtained the information.

Q. They would know from those initials from whom you obtained that information?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what is the initials of some of those that you put on letters that you can recall now?

A. S. H. P.

Q. Who did that stand for?

A. Silas H. Paine.

Q. Well, some others, now—give us some other illustrations.

A. Regarding the supplies, T. H. W.

Q. Who would that stand for?

A. T. H. Wheeler.

Q. Now, state some other examples, if you can recollect any?
A. There may have been others; I don't recall them.
Q. Well, now refresh your memory, have you ever placed W. E. B. on the corner of any letter?
1006 A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you know of anybody that W. E. B. would stand for there?
A. W. E. Bemis.
Q. How about H. M. T.?
A. That would be H. M. Tilford.
Q. Did you ever place his initials on a letter?
A. I don't remember; I may have.
Q. How about C. E. B.?
A. C. E. B., if I placed that on a letter, would be for C. E. Bedford.
Q. And W. H. T. would be for who?
A. Those are the initials of W. H. Tilford.
Q. And so it is your custom that when a letter was written in either one of those departments giving the information that you desired, that you would place the initials of the head of that department on the upper left hand corner and then sign the letter yourself and send it to the St. Louis office?
A. No, it covered only such information; I may have written the letter myself.
Q. But you have stated that you did receive letters written in the other departments?
A. Yes, with reference to lubricating oil business.
Q. Now, you have stated, Mr. McNall, that these letters conveyed the information that you had requested. I will ask you if you did receive letters from those departments or some departments or offices in 26 Broadway addressed to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in which they asked for information from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company through you?
A. There may have been such letters.
Q. What is your recollection of it?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you say there may have been such letters?
1007 A. I don't remember.
Q. Didn't you frequently receive requests for certain information from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company by the different officers and companies located at 26 Broadway?
A. I was occasionally asked questions of people located there.
Q. Did you receive letters asking for that information?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you receive statements of accounts that were due to any of the companies at 26 Broadway by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I don't remember such.
Q. Well, I ask you to refresh your memory whether or not the Atlantic Refining Company or the Standard Oil Company of New York notified you when there was anything due them from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for oils and supplies bought?
A. I don't remember; they may have done so.

Q. Was it your custom to write letters to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company notifying them of the balances due any company located at 26 Broadway and request them——

A. (Interrupting:) I would, if I received such information.

Q. Did they render their bills to you?

A. No.

Q. You didn't keep any accounts, then, in your office at all?

A. No.

(Evening Session.)

Prices on Invoices for Marine Oils.

NEW YORK, 6th February, 1903.

J. P. Gruet, Esq., Sec'y W. P. O. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: Replying to your favor of the 3rd inst., in regard to your custom in billing Lubricating Oils by memorandum only to the Marine Oil Department, would say that this is true where the delivery is for contract oil, such as Marine Engine Oil and Marine Cylinder Oil, wherever other oils are delivered they should be billed at a price which will allow the Marine Oil Department 5 per cent. and still bill it to their customer at your market price at point of delivery. In other words, at the market price less 5 per cent., but the Marine Oil Department would prefer a net price.

Crude Scale Wax. Minimum Selling Prices.

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 24, 1904.

Mr. S. Johnson, St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: I suggest that your minimum selling prices on 1015 Crude Scale Wax, from this date until further advised, be as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 105 | Melting Point ..... | 5 cents | per pound. |
| 117/119 | " (White or Yellow)... | 5¼c. | " " |
| 124/126 | " ..... | 5¼c. | " " |

These prices to be F. O. B. Cleveland, Whiting or New York, with freight added to destination, in less than carload lots, or delivered to all points East of the Mississippi River, if taken in full carload quantities. For delivery West of the Mississippi add excess freight.

While my suggestion is that your minimum prices be as above, at the same time, I do not want you to try to get anything above these prices, if by doing so any business is jeopardized.

On all orders received after this date, the billing price to you will be one-half cent below the above schedule.

Respectfully,

R. H. McNALL.

P. S.—For carload lots the above minimums can be applied as f. o. b. St. Louis.

Monthly Report Deliveries of Paraffine and Lub'g Oils and Average Prices Realized.

J. P. Gruet, Sec'y Waters Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: I have mailed you, under separate cover, blank reports
15-L. Commencing with July 1, 1902, it is desired that you
1016 should send the writer a monthly statement, showing the total deliveries of Paraffine and Lubricating Oil, Wax,

Greases, etc., and the average prices realized on same. This report to take the place of any statement that you have been rendering, showing the average prices, and also to be rendered in place of your monthly report form 5-L, showing your total deliveries of Lub'g Oils, etc. In arriving at the average price, you should in all cases reduce the price to a bulk basis. In reducing the price obtained for shipments in bbls. to a bulk basis, please deduct from the prices realized the average cost per gallon of the barrel prepared and ready for shipment.

In reducing case oil to a bulk basis, please deduct from the prices realized the average cost per gallon including, of course, the cans, cases, faucets, etc. In regard to the bottles and small can specialty goods, it will be necessary for you to obtain an average cost, per gallon, for the cans, bottles, and the cost for filling and shipping same for each kind of package, and then deduct this average from the price, to reduce to a bulk basis. In all cases, the prices realized should be net f. o. b. in bulk refinery. The cost for freight, lighterage cartage, and other expenses of shipping or delivering to be deducted.

It has been impossible for me to have these forms prepared and this matter satisfactorily arranged earlier, but I am very anxious to have you commence rendering these reports, if possible, for the month of July and trust that you will be able to do so.

Kindly acknowledge receipt and oblige.

DEAR SIR: Some time ago you wrote me that the Sells & Downs Circus, exhibiting at Texas points, had in their possession an iron barrel, marked S. O. Co., Seattle, No. 3167. Leaky Union Tank Line Tank Car No. 4630, Cairo, Ill.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 20th, 1902.

A. M. Finlay, Esq., V. P. Waters Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of a communication from Mr. C. T. Collings stating that Union Tank Line Tank Car No. 4630, containing Stove Gasoline, shipped from Whiting, Ind., to Pine Bluff for your account, was damaged near Cairo, Ill., and the tank being in a leaky condition was unloaded at the station of the Standard Oil Co. at Cairo.

In regard to billing the contents of this tank car to the Standard Oil Co., they state that you have charged them 7.93¢ per gallon. I write to inquire if you should not have charged them your cost price, F. O. B. Whiting, plus freight to Cairo, which, I understand, is 11¢ per hundred.

If my understanding is correct, will you kindly correct your invoice to the Standard Oil Co., Cincinnati, advising me at the same time of price charged and how it is arrived at, and oblige, Cash Sales Adjustment Account.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1902.

J. P. Gruet, V. P. Waters Pierce Oil Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: It has been suggested that it would be desirable to maintain at the Main Stations a Ledger Account entitled 'Cash Sales Adjustment Account' to take care of errors in cash sales. At the present errors in Cash Sales are being taken care of in the manner provided for by Item # 51 in the Resolutions, which reads as follows:

Item 5—Error in Cash Sales: We recommend that the following method be pursued to correct errors in Cash Sales. The Correct amount of Cash Sales should be passed through Sales Sheet and actual cash receipts entered on Cash Report and the amount of Cash 'over' or 'short' be carried as a memorandum until such error can be corrected by next settlement.

Enclosed herewith proposed Circular Letter which I submit to you for your careful consideration.

Please advise me whether or not you favor keeping the separate account as outlined.

Semi-annual Statement # 3.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1902.

J. P. Gruet, Esq., Sect. W. P. O. Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your letter of the 13th inst., enclosing me semi-annual Statement # 3 showing total sales and results of the business in United States territory for year 1901.

In looking over this statement I notice your sales of Fuel Oil show you only made a profit of $9946, or 3¢ per barrel. If you should sustain any loss on account of bad debts on any of your fuel oil sales it would practically reduce the profit on this class of 1025 business to very little, if anything.

I also notice in your Naval Stores Dept. that you have your sales as being 100,678 barrels, on which you made a gross profit of $279.18. You also show this as your net earnings, no expense being charged against it. As a matter of information will you please let me know if the sales referred to above represent the rosin which you are selling for account of the Shotter Co. If this is so, then am I to understand you only made a gross profit of $279.18 in selling the 100,678 barrels of rosin?

A. It refers to an account.

Q. What accounts?

A. Goods purchased by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. In whose favor are those accounts?
A. Well, it is an indebtedness of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. To whom?
A. To Walter Jennings, Agent, I believe.
Q. Is the account in his name as agent?
A. I don't know; I should think it was.
Q. Why are you requesting checks sent? This letter doesn't show—I beg your pardon; I thought it didn't. Did you buy these goods that are represented by this invoice, or this statement?
A. I don't know.
1040 Q. Well, why did you put in here that these statements, if they were purchased from Walter Jennings, why did you put in here, "Showing the balance due us of $479.28"?
A. That was the statement showing a credit balance.
Q. A credit balance to whom?
A. Who ever it says in this letter.
Q. The letter says, "Referring to our statement of January account mailed you"—this is addressed to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company—"mailed you February 11th, showing balance due us of $479.28, from which we deduct your invoice, the Waters-Pierce oil invoice, January 31, $155.95, balance due us $323.33." That was a balance due to Walter Jennings, Agent?
A. Walter Jennings, Agent.
Q. Why do you say it is due us if you are representing the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I don't remember.
Mr. ALLEN: Now, on page 54.
Judge PENN: With reference to what exhibit?
Mr. ALLEN: Well, it's the last exhibit. It begins in the middle of the page, "By Mr. Allen," is the way it is headed.
Q. We have here a letter dated "New York, August 20, 1900," addressed to J. P. Gruet, Esq., Vice President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, purporting to be signed by H. M. Tilford, with the initials "R. H. M." Please examine that and see if you can identify that as having been written by you. Is that signature of Mr. Tilford in your handwriting (handing witness paper)?
A. It is in my handwriting.
Q. Did you write the letter, or did Mr. Tilford write it and give it to you to sign?
A. I must have written this letter.
Q. Have you any independent recollection of the letter,
1041 writing it, or anything why you signed Mr. Tilford's name to it instead of your own?
A. It was undoubtedly signed by oversight on my part.
Q. You were so accustomed to signing Mr. Tilford's name, per you, that you——
A. (Interrupting.) I had signed letters for him; yes, I had signed letters in his name, and undoubtedly this was an oversight.
Q. Were you signing letters in his name at that time?
A. I think it is likely that I should have; I don't remember.
Q. Isn't it a fact that you were signing a great many letters in his name at that time?

A. I signed some letters in his name.

Q. And you were so in the habit, you say, of signing them, that you unconsciously signed his signature instead of your own?

A. I might have signed his name just prior to that to some other letter, and it was an oversight my signing that.

Mr. ALLEN: We now offer the cross examination of Mr. McNall by Judge Priest, counsel for the defendant, on page 60.

Judge PENN: Mr. Allen, couldn't you read both the questions and answers, so we could have the benefit of a copy?

Mr. ALLEN: All right.

(Mr. Allen read both the questions and answers.)

Q. Mr. McNall, you have stated in your examination in chief that you were employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company from about the first of April, 1900, until 1906, as agent at the city of New York; that some months after you entered upon that employment you were given the title of Commercial Agent; is that a true summary of your statement?

A. With the exception of the dates, Judge. You said April first.

Q. From about the first of April?

A. It was in the year 1900.

Q. Yes, the early part of 1900. Was the title of Commer-
1042 cial Agent understood by you to be in any wise definitive of the duties which you were to perform?

A. No, I didn't understand that it was.

Q. It was simply an official designation without attaching to it any particular signification?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You discharged such duties as were requested of you in addition to the general line of duties that you understood would be attached to your functions here at New York?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had any other agent or official representative in New York during that period?

A. I do not think they had.

Q. What, in dollars, approximately, was the amount of transactions conducted by you in New York for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company annually?

A. A very large amount; I should say several hundred thousand dollars.

Q. And generally all of the correspondence of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company concerning its business dealings and intercourse in the East was conducted through you for purposes of convenience?

A. So I understand.

Q. You know of no other than yourself?

A. I do not.

Q. The period of your employment was quite an active one and involved a great many dealings of different characters for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and a great deal of correspondence with the home office at St. Louis; is that true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Prior to being called as a witness you had no knowledge either from the plaintiff or the defendant in this case as to what facts 1043 you would be interrogated, did you?

A. No, sir.

Q. So that necessarily you couldn't recall the details of transactions at this distant period from the occurrence of many of them?

A. I could not.

Q. A great many supplies were purchased by you for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in New York and the vicinity of New York?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. A great deal of export business was done by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company from New York to the Republic of Mexico, was it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That consisted of the purchase of raw materials, machinery, and all of the incidents of an equipped refinery being conducted by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the Republic of Mexico?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make large purchases of tin and of crude petroleum for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I did.

Q. Now, will you describe the formula requisite in the exportation of merchandise or material from New York or other ports in the United States to the City of Mexico?

A. After the purchase, Judge?

Q. After the purchase.

A. Certified invoices had to be obtained, bills of lading, gross and net weights, freight arrangements had to be made. It was necessary to collect the goods in New York City if shipped from out of town and see that they were delivered at a specified time to the exporting vessel.

Q. And did all of these consignments require the signature of the Mexican Consul here?

A. Yes, sir.

1044 Q. You know in a general way that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey—by that I mean the Standard Oil Company organized under the laws of New Jersey—does a large manufacturing business in petroleum and its products and by-products?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, so far as you know, manufacture any products from petroleum or refined petroleum in the United States?

A. As I understand it they did not.

Q. A great many of the purchases made by you were made from different manufacturing interests in the East and in the vicinity of New York?

A. They were.

Q. You have been shown and identified about 37 letters written by you. They cover a date, I think, from 1902 to 1905, inclusive, one being dated as early as August 20, 1900. Now, in your opinion, are the letters thus exhibited to you a mere fraction of the correspondence conducted by you with the officers of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at its home office in St. Louis?

A. Yes, a small part.

Q. In one of these letters you refer to a Mr. Van Beuren. For the purpose of specifically directing your attention to that subject I submit to you a letter dated January 24, 1905, entitled "Changes in Mexico Salaries." Who was Mr. Van Beuren and what relation did you understand he bore to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I don't know who Mr. Van Beuren was, but I understood he was largely interested in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

Q. You know Mr. Van Beuren personally?

A. Yes, I knew him personally.

Q. And you understood he was largely interested as a shareholder in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

1045 Q. Did you understand early in your connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey held a stock interest—by that I mean shares of stock—in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I thought they were interested in the company.

Q. Now, I will ask you whether it is not true that the most of those letters which were written by you, without specifically enumerating them, making inquiries as to the business affairs, the cash, the statement of salaries, statement of improvements, and all questions of that kind, were not inquiries which you were asked to make as the Eastern representative of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in the interest of the shareholders of that company, either Mr. Van Beuren or the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And those inquiries were made as a matter of course assuming that the home office at St. Louis if they were improper would not answer them, and if they were proper would answer them?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. ALLEN: Well, we don't offer the next question and the answer.

Q. From what source did you receive the orders for the purchase and shipment of supplies, and so forth?

A. From Mr. C. M. Adams, mostly, of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis.

Q. I want to call your attention to a letter, New York, June 16, 1902, addressed to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, St. Louis, in which you say, "We enclose herewith itemized statement of my account with balance in our favor of $557.38. Will you kindly remit checks as follows." Now, I ask you if you know how the pronoun "our" came into that letter?

1046 A. I believe that this letter was written from a memorandum received by me from one of the accounting officers in the building, and the memorandum was probably turned over by me to my stenographer to write the request for remittance, and I think he must have copied the memorandum just as he received it.

Q. Now, is there attached to that letter a copy of the account referred to?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that shows that the account was in favor of whom?
A. Walter Jennings, Agent.
Q. Were you ever employed by Walter Jennings, Agent?
A. No, sir.
Q. Did you purchase any goods from Walter Jennings, Agent, for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I purchased goods covered by this statement.
Q. Well, many times, didn't you, besides——?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. And you never inquired and don't know for whom Walter Jennings was agent?
A. No, sir.
Q. (Continued) Did you?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you know now for whom he was agent at that time?
A. I do not.
Q. The purchases which you made of Walter Jennings simply ran in his name as agent?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Without disclosing for whom he was agent?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you don't know for whom he was agent?
A. I don't.

Q. And you were never employed by Mr. Jennings at that 1047 time, or during the period that you were employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. No, sir.
Q. Never at any time, in fact?
A. Never.
Q. Now, while I am on that proposition, I want to ask whether during the time you were employed as commercial agent by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company you received any salary from any one else?
A. I did not.
Q. I call your attention now to a letter dated New York, March 24, 1904, addressed by you to Mr. S. Johnson, the one marked Exhibit 8 to your deposition in chief, and ask you from whom you purchased the crude scale wax referred to in that communication, if your memory is refreshed by reference to this communication, or by your general course of business?
A. (Looks at letter.) It was purchased, I think, through a lubricating office in the building.
Q. From the manufacturer?
A. Not from the manufacturer, No.
Q. And was this a memorandum which you originated, or which was in the form of a communication to you, in turn transmitted by you to Mr. Johnson?
A. It was a communication received by me, as I remember.
Q. And for the purpose of economy in time you had it transcribed and sent to Mr. Stephen Johnson at St. Louis?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. You can't state at this time, in view of the large number of your business transactions, the particularities of any one of the matters referred to in the correspondence which has been exhibited to you?

A. I can not.

Mr. ALLEN: Redirect examination, by Mr. Lightfoot:

Q. I believe, Mr. McNall, that you stated in your direct ex-
1048 amination that since you severed your connection with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in May, 1906, that you have been employed in the export department of the Standard Oil Company of New York, at 26 Broadway?

A. The export business.

Q. In the export business. Well, who for?

A. For the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Q. Now, you spoke a moment ago, in answer to a question by Judge Priest, about purchasing the crude scale wax mentioned in your letter marked Exhibit 8, from a lubricating department in the building?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The lubricating department of what company did you purchase that —?

A. I don't know what companies the lubricating office represented.

Q. Well, you do know that it represents more than one company located at 26 Broadway, do you not?

A. I think it represented more than one company.

Q. Well, now, what is your information about what companies it does represent? Not all of them—I don't suppose you could give them all—but those of them that you know of that it does represent?

A. I know that part of the goods I purchased from them was shipped from different points.

Q. What points?

A. Whiting, Indiana, and from New York City.

Q. Any of them from Neodesha, Kansas?

A. No, I don't remember any.

Q. Any of them from Beaumont, Texas?

A. No, I don't remember any.

Q. Well, from what other points do you remember that goods were shipped that you purchased from the lubricating department at 26 Broadway?

A. I don't think there were other points; I don't recall them.

Q. Any from Franklin, Pennsylvania?

A. I couldn't say.

1049 Q. Well, now, what is your information about the companies doing business through the lubricating department at 26 Broadway? What companies? The Standard Oil Company of New York?

A. Well, I have no information on that point, Mr. Lightfoot.

Q. None whatever?

A. I have none at all as to who is represented there, or as to who that department represents.

Q. It is right there in the building, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. They have had that department there during the entire time that you have been employed there, have they not?

A. I couldn't say during the entire time; during the time I was employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. You knew there was such a department there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is Mr. S. H. Payne—Silas H. Payne—connected with that department, the lubricating department?

A. He is in that office.

Q. He is at the head of that department, is he not?

A. I understand that he is.

Q. Well, now, you say that this letter just referred to was copied from a memorandum that was sent from that office?

A. Is that correct?

A. As near as my recollection serves.

Q. When did you ascertain that fact? Since you were examined here?

A. Since I saw that letter.

Q. Well, how did you get that letter? Did you see the memorandum?

A. No.

Q. Well, how did you get the information that it was copied from the memorandum—this letter marked Exhibit 8, relating to crude scale wax—how did you get the information that the letter 1050 was copied from the memorandum sent to you from the lubricating department?

A. It is simply a recollection, Mr. Lightfoot.

Q. Well, you just remember that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you that memorandum now?

A. No.

Q. Have you seen it since you had this letter?

A. No.

Q. Were you instructed by Mr. Payne to make these suggestions to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company concerning these goods?

A. I wasn't instructed by him, no.

Q. Well, who were you instructed by to make these recommendations?

A. The only instructions I received were from the home office, and any letters or memoranda of that kind I would forward to the home office.

Q. And this has "S. H. P." in the corner, and that indicates that the contents of that letter were sent to you by Mr. Payne, does it not?

A. Yes, sir, from that office.

Q. How did you transact your business with that office, Mr. McNall? If you wanted lubricating oils for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company would you make a requisition on the lubricating department there for such lubricating oils as you wanted?

A. For such lubricating oils as the home office ordered.

Q. You would make requisitions to that department for them?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, then, was any of these goods that you made requisition on the lubricating department for supplied to you by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?
A. I don't remember.
1051 Q. You don't remember whether they were or not?
A. No, sir.
Q. Were any of them supplied to you by the Standard Oil Company of New York, or any refinery owned by them or controlled by them?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was any of them supplied to you by the Atlantic Refining Company?
A. I don't remember any specific case.
Q. Any of them supplied by the Standard Oil Company, Pratt Works?
A. I don't remember, Mr. Lightfoot.
Q. You don't remember what companies, then?
A. No, sir.
Q. (Continuing:) Supplied the orders that you filled with the lubricating oil department?
A. No, sir.
Q. Now, then, if you received an order for marine oil to be delivered to vessels at any port in Texas, where would you file that requisition?
A. If the order came from the home office I would file it with the marine oil department in the building.
Q. At 26 Broadway?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. They have such a department there?
A. There is an office there—marine oil office.
Q. And these oils would be furnished you, would they?
A. They would be furnished.
Q. Who by?
A. I don't remember who they would be furnished by. I think the marine oil department invoiced the goods, as far as my memory serves.
Q. Well, now, you did receive such orders during the time that you were there for marine oils, did you not?
A. I believe I did.
Q. And they were shipped to the defendant in Texas?
1052 A. Yes.
Q. Well, now, then, Mr. C. E. Bedford, is he connected with the marine oil department?
A. Who? Initials, please?
Q. C. E. Bedford.
A. Yes, sir. I believe he is.
Q. What position does he hold there?
A. I don't know, but I think he is head of that office.

Q. Well, now, what companies are connected or do business through the marine oil department at 26 Broadway?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey does or not?

A. I do not know.

Q. You don't know any of the companies?

A. No, sir.

Q. You have never inquired?

A. No, sir.

Q. You know Mr. C. E. Bedford personally, do you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never asked him what companies were connected with the marine oil department?

A. No.

Q. Now, did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company have any contracts with any vessels touching at the ports in Texas for delivery of marine oil to them?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever see any such contract?

A. I don't remember ever having seen any.

Q. Now, in the course of your business with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, what did they do with sales or invoices made to 1053 vessels at the Texas ports, in case they delivered to that vessel marine oils? Did they make any report of it to you?

A. Yes, I occasionally received such report.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. McNall, that they delivered to vessels touching Texas ports marine oils where the Standard Oil Company had contracts with such steamers for oils? What is your answer to the question, Mr. McNall?

A. I believe the Waters-Pierce Oil Company did deliver occasional oils to the steamers for account of the marine oil department.

Q. Now, in such cases, Mr. McNall, where the Waters-Pierce Oil Company made deliveries to vessels at Texas ports for the account of the marine oil department of the Standard, they would render a statement to the marine oil department, would they not?

A. They would.

Q. And what action would the marine oil department take reference to such statements—with reference to credits for those deliveries?

A. As I remember it, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company would bill the marine office for such goods delivered.

Q. Then what would the marine department do?

A. Well, I don't know; I suppose they would bill their customer.

Q. They would collect the bill from the customer to whom the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had made the delivery?

A. I presume so.

Q. And then give the Waters-Pierce Oil Company credit for the value of the goods delivered?

A. As I remember it.

Q. Now, has the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey an office at 26 Broadway, Mr. McNall, or a representative there?

A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know whether they have an office there or not?
1054 A. No, I do not.
Q. What companies have offices there that you know of, or representatives?
A. Well, I don't know, Mr. Lightfoot.
Q. How long have you been in the building, Mr. McNall?
A. I have been there a good many years.
Q. How many stories is there to it?
A. There are about fifteen.
Q. How many employes inhabit that building, approximately?
A. Perhaps five hundred; I don't know, maybe a thousand.
Q. Do you know of any concern domiciled in that building that is not connected with some of the Standard Oil Companies?
A. Yes.
Q. What concern is that?
A. Jessup & Lamont.
Q. What kind of business are they in?
A. Stock brokers, I believe.
Q. What floor are they on?
A. I couldn't remember that, either.
Q. Do you know of anybody else?
A. There are others, but I can't recall them just at present.
Q. You don't know whether the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has an office there or not, you say?
A. No, sir.
Q. Well, how about the Standard Oil Company of New York?
A. I think they have an office there.
Q. Well, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana?
A. I know of no such office.
Q. Of Kentucky?
A. I know of no such office.
Q. Did you ever examine the telephone book there to see 1055 what companies were reached through the Standard Oil Company number?
A. No.
Q. Now, Mr. McNall, you say that you were employed by Mr. Pierce?
A. Yes.
Q. To act as commercial agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Yes.
Q. I ask you if Mr. H. C. Pierce has not an office in New York at 25 Broad Street?
A. I believe he has in the Broad Exchange building.
Q. Have you ever been in his office?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long has he had that office there?
A. Something over a year, I think.
Q. Hasn't it been longer than a year? How much longer than a year? Hasn't he had an office there during the time that you have been employed as commercial agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I don't know that he has.

Q. Now, you stated in your cross examination that you made large purchases of tin and crude petroleum for export to Mexico. From whom did you purchase that tin?

A. From an office in the building.

Q. At 26 Broadway?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, from what office did you purchase it?

A. The office of Mr. H. A. McGee.

Q. What department is it generally called?

A. I don't think it is designated as a department.

Q. The supply department?

A. No; he simply has an office there.

Q. Well, what manufacturing company produces that tin?

A. Some of it is produced in this country, and some abroad.

1056 Q. Some of it produced where?

A. Some in this country and some abroad.

Q. I mean by what companies?

A. I think the American Tin Plate Company in this country.

Q. Is he the representative of the American Tin Plate Company or of the Standard Oil Company?

A. The Standard Oil Company, I think.

Q. Which one of the Standard Oil Companies does Mr. McGee represent?

A. I don't know.

Q. Now, you purchased supplies of crude petroleum to be exported to Mexico for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom did you purchase the crude petroleum?

A. From the Atlantic Refining Company at Philadelphia.

Q. Did it have an office in the building?

A. It had a representative in the building.

Q. Who was the representative in the building of the Atlantic Refining Company?

A. I think Mr. F. D. Ash, as I remember.

Q. Mr. F. D. Ash was the agent of the Atlantic Refining Company, and when you received requisitions for crude petroleum you filed all such requisitions with Mr. Ash, did you not?

A. With Mr. Ash.

Q. Did you ever buy any crude petroleum for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company from any other concern?

A. I don't remember buying any from any other concern.

Q. Did you ever ask for any quotations from any other producing company?

A. No, I don't remember of having done so.

Q. You are now in the export business, you say, connected with that department?

1057 A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that department fully equipped to look after the exportation of oils to different countries?

A. Yes.

Q. Does it attend to those details in all of its shipments abroad, seeing about getting the bills of lading approved by the consul, and attending to all of the details necessary to the shipment of oils and other products of petroleum to foreign countries?

A. I believe they do.

Q. They look after those details there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I believe that you said, Mr. McNall, in your cross-examination, that you looked after those details connected with the export business for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company have any other representative here in New York at that time during the period of time that you were employed by them?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did you personally take the bills of lading to the Mexican Consul to get his approval of them?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you personally look after all the details incident to the exportation of goods purchased for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Many of them.

Q. Who attended to the matters, then, that you did not attend to in connection with the exportation of oils and supplies?

A. The parties furnishing the oil furnished the shipping documents.

Q. And so attended to all the details necessary?

A. It was customary.

Q. You say it is customary for the companies you pur-

1058 chased these supplies from to look after these details, is it not?

A. Some of the details.

Q. Well, what details is it they don't look after?

A. The custom-house work they can't look after—the custom-house entries; the collection of draw back; the arrangement from the steamer lines.

Q. What fees do you pay on export goods to Mexico?

A. There aren't many fees on export goods, but there are custom-house entries covering export goods.

Q. It is merely a manifest of the goods to be shipped out, is it not?

A. No, they are draw back entries.

Q. What do you mean by draw back entries, Mr. McNall?

A. The government repays a portion of the duties on tin plate when the same is exported in the shape of tin cans.

Q. Now, you testified a while ago about this letter here of January 24, 1905, marked Exhibit number 3, relating to changes in Mexican salaries. You stated in this letter, "I have been over this matter with Mr. Van Beuren, and as I telegraphed you to-day, he agrees with your suggestion that these changes be made as effective as of January 1st." You stated that you knew at that time that Mr. Van Beuren was connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in some way, or was a stockholder in it?

A. I thought he was.

Q. And you also thought that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey had an interest in it?

A. Yes.

Q. At whose request did you submit this salary list to Mr. Van Beuren?

A. I don't know as I was requested by any one.

Q. Was the salary list sent to you?

A. Yes, sir, it was sent to me.

Q. Did any one request you to submit it to him?

1059 A. I do not remember that they did.

Q. What was the purpose of submitting the salary list to him?

A. I submitted other matters to Mr. Van Beuren.

Q. I understand, but I want to know about the salary list.

A. I thought he ought to know what was proposed, and I have his suggestions in regard to them.

Q. And have his approval of it?

A. Approval or suggestions.

Q. Did he approve the salary list that was submitted to him?

A. I believe he did from that letter.

Mr. ALLEN: There is a correction there that he makes—I don't know whether it shows in that copy or not, Judge. I read it just as he corrected it.

Judge STEDMAN: There is nothing shown here.

Mr. ALLEN: "Did he approve the salary list that was submitted to him? Answer—I believe he did from that letter." You will see he has initialed it and struck out the "don't." This is the original, you understand.

Q. Did he ever offer any objections to any lists that you submitted to him?

A. I don't remember that he did.

Q. Did you ever submit any of these salary lists to the Standard Oil Company or any of its representatives during the time you were there?

A. No.

Q. You don't know what Mr. Van Beuren did with the letter?

A. I do not.

Q. You don't know whether Mr. Van Beuren submitted it to any of the officers of the Standard Oil Company?

A. I do not.

Q. Now, I will refer you to a letter about which you testified in your cross examination concerning an account with Walter 1060 Jennings, Agent, at 26 Broadway, marked Exhibit number 30. I believe you identified that account, did you not, Mr. McNall?

A. I identified the letter.

Q. This account, the balance due on it, shows to be $557.38, does it not, Mr. McNall?

A. Yes.

Q. And it is attached to a letter in which you say, "We enclose herewith itemized statement of May account with balance in our favor of $557.38, for which kindly remit checks as follows: In favor of Atlantic Refining Company, $470.90; and in favor of the Standard Oil Company of New York, $86.48." Now, I will ask you to examine that and say whether or not that letter does not refer to the particular account that is attached to it?

A. I think that it does.

Q. Now, then, you bought goods from Walter Jennings, did you not, for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I bought goods from offices in the building that may have been invoiced from Walter Jennings, Agent.

Q. Now, then, did you write a letter here to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in which you asked them to remit checks to the Atlantic Refining Company for $470.90, and to the Standard Oil Company of New York for $86.48, to cover an account made with Walter Jennings? Explain how that is, Mr. McNall, that Mr. Jennings—this account with Walter Jennings should be paid to the Standard Oil Company of New York and the Atlantic Refining Company?

A. I believe that Mr. Walter Jennings was agent for the two companies covered by that letter, and that the accounting department requested payment, as requested in that letter.

Q. And you so directed the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to make payment in accordance with that understanding?

A. Yes, sir.

1061 Q. Now, then, this letter was written June 16, 1902. You stated to Judge Priest that, in explanation of the word "our" in this letter, that that was evidently copied from a memorandum. Have you the memorandum, Mr. McNall, that that was copied from?

A. No.

Q. Have you seen this memorandum since this letter was exhibited to you, two days ago?

A. I have not.

Q. Then upon what do you base the judgment that that was copied from a memorandum?

A. Simply from what occurred occasionally, as I remember now.

Q. Well, state what that occurrence was?

A. Occasionally I would receive a memorandum from some accounting department, requesting payment of an account or enclosing a statement of an account, and when so received I transmitted them to the home office.

Q. Well, did you transmit that memorandum in this case?

A. I presume I did.

Q. Now, since exhibiting to you these letters two days ago, you have gone over them all carefully, have you, Mr. McNall?

A. I have read them, yes.

Q. Have you had any consultation with the counsel for the defendant here concerning these letters?

A. No.

Q. You have not talked with him at all about it during the last two days?

A. No.

Q. Now, when you received the requisitions for these goods covered in this invoice, shown in this invoice, with whom did you file the order?

A. I don't remember, Mr. Lightfoot.

1062 Q. Look at the invoices; it says "star transfer." What is meant by "star transfer?"

A. I don't know.

Q. What is meant by "Scranton?"

A. I don't know what that means.

Q. Is that goods shipped from some other point?

A. It is possible, but I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember who you filed the order with?

A. No, I do not remember who I filed those orders with.

Q. Now, such accounts as these were rendered monthly to you, were they not, Mr. McNall?

A. No.

Q. How often?

A. Only occasionally; I do not remember of receiving but very few.

Q. Now, the crude scale wax that was referred to in the letter a little while ago, you say that was purchased from the lubricating department in the building?

A. Yes.

Q. The lubricating department of the Standard Oil Company?

A. Well, it is a lubricating department; I don't know who they represent.

Q. You knew all the time that you were connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company as its commercial agent at 26 Broadway, that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was a stockholder in that concern, did you not, Mr. McNall?

A. I did not know it; I had the impression they were interested in it.

Q. Well, that was your information, was it not?

A. Yes, my information.

1063 Q. Now, then, when did you find out, Mr. McNall, that Mr. Van Beuren was a stockholder and interested in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I don't remember.

Q. How did you find it out?

A. I don't remember that.

Q. Did Mr. Van Beuren tell you so himself or Mr. Pierce?

A. I can not say.

Q. Where did you meet Mr. Van Beuren when you submitted these different matters to him?

A. He called at the office.

Q. He called at your office?

A. Yes.

Q. How often did he call at your office?

A. Occasionally; I don't remember how often.

Q. Well, just approximate it.
A. I could not even approximate it, Mr. Lightfoot.
Q. What relation is Mr. Van Beuren to Mr. John D. Archbold?
A. I have heard that he was his son-in-law.
Q. Mr. Archbold, he has an office at 26 Broadway, does he not?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What company is he connected with there?
A. I don't know.
Q. Have you any information on it at all?
A. I have no information.
Q. What business is he in there?
A. He is connected with the oil business.
Q. I will ask you if that is not the fact, that he is one of the higher officials of the organization at 26 Broadway?
A. I believe he is.

"Judge PRIEST: What organization do you mean?
"Mr. LIGHTFOOT: I can not be more specific. If the witness will give me a little more definite information, I will try to be more specific."

1064 Q. You don't know what company he is connected with or what companies?
A. No, I do not.
Q. When did you learn, Mr. McNall, that Mr. Van Beuren was a stockholder in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I don't remember.
Q. When did you learn that the stock held in his name was owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?
A. I never knew it.
Q. Did you ever hear that?
A. I think I saw something about it in a newspaper.
Q. Have you heard some of the officers or people at 26 Broadway say anything about it?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you ever hear Mr. Pierce say anything about it?
A. I don't remember ever having heard him say anything about it.
Q. Then, how did you know that he was a stockholder at all?
A. I learned it from some source.
Q. Don't you know what source you learned it from?
A. I don't remember now.
Q. Well, how long did you continue to transact business for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company with Mr. Van Beuren?
A. Up to the time, I think, that I left their employ.
Q. Well, now, when did you commence?
A. That I can not say.
Q. To refresh your memory, I will ask you if it was not during the year 1904, some time during the year 1904?
A. It may have been.
Q. You had conferences and businesses with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the other stockholder of the Waters-Pierce

Oil Company, did you not, during the time you were employed there?

A. I don't remember any conferences; I may have been 1065 asked questions by some of the representatives.

Q. What representatives of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey asked questions and asked for information?

A. I don't know who the men are connected with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey's organization.

Q. You knew which ones asked you questions, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Which ones asked you questions?

A. I have been asked questions by Mr. H. M. Tilford, and possibly others.

Q. And Mr. W. H. Tilford?

A. I don't remember of his ever asking me anything.

Q. Did you ever submit any reports or letters to Mr. W. H. Tilford received from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I don't remember of ever having done so.

Q. Well, to whom did you submit these letters and reports, Mr. McNall?

A. I did not submit letters and reports to any one.

Q. When information was desired by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, to whom did you apply for it?

A. Well, whatever information they wanted, I would obtain from parties who I thought could give it.

Q. Well, name some of the parties now that you were in the habit of asking information from?

A. I have asked for information from Silas H. Paine and Mr. H. M. Tilford and the supply department.

Q. Well, who is at the head of that?

A. I don't really know who is at the head of it.

Q. Well, who was at the head of it?

A. I understand it was Mr. T. H. Wheeler, but I am not positive of that, that he is at the head of that department.

Q. Did you ever ask for any information from Mr. H. A. Hutchins?

1066 A. No, I think not.

Q. He has an office at 26 Broadway, has he not?

A. I believe he has.

Q. Has Mr. Rockefeller an office there, John D. Rockefeller?

A. I think not.

Q. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has he an office there?

A. I think he has; I see him occasionally.

Q. I will get you to look at this telephone directory here, Mr. McNall (handing witness book); it is a telephone directory of the telephone system of New York, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it the one in general use at this time or has been during this year?

A. It purports to be.

Q. What date has it?

A. February 1st, 1907.

Mr. ALLEN: There is another correction there. It was put down first "January," and then changed to "February."

Q. I will get you to look at that and call off the concerns there and departments that can be reached by telephone at 26 Broadway that are listed under the head of the Standard Oil Company of New York. Just call off that list.

A. (Reading:) Lighterage department; supply department; O. T. Waring; fuel oil department; Acme Works; freight department; James G. Newcomb, Agent; Bergenport Chemical Works; Thompson & Bedford Department; Oswego Works; wick department; naphtha department; stationery department; J. D. Rockefeller, Cashier; Philip Ruprecht, and James Smith.

Q. Now, that also shows that all of those officers are located at 26 Broadway, does it not?

A. Yes, sir, I should say it did.

1067 (By Judge PRIEST:)

Q. It shows there the departments of the Standard Oil Company of New York that have a common telephone?

A. Yes, sir.

(By Mr. LIGHTFOOT:)

Q. Mr. McNall, do you know Mr. H. M. Flagler?
A. Slightly.
Q. Has he an office at 26 Broadway?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know Mr. G. F. Vilas?
A. I don't know him.
Q. You don't know any Mr. Vilas?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you know Mr. Charles T. White?
A. Yes, sir, I know Mr. Charles T. White.
Q. Has he an office at 26 Broadway?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What business is he in there?
A. Transfer clerk, I think.

(By Mr. ALLEN:)

Q. You mean stock transfer clerk?
A. Yes, sir.

(By Mr. LIGHTFOOT:)

Q. And transfers the stocks of these various corporations?
A. The stock of the Standard Oil Company.
Q. Is he not Secretary of the Standard Oil Company of New York?
A. I don't know what companies he may be connected with.
Q. Now, the Continental Oil Company referred to in your direct examination as the Continental Oil Company of Denver, is that the company organized under the laws of the State of Iowa?
A. I believe it is.

Q. With its principal office at Denver, Colorado?
1068 A. Business office, yes.
Q. Has the Standard Oil Company of Ohio a representative at 26 Broadway?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. Mr. H. H. Rogers, did you know him?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Has he an office at 26 Broadway?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. W. H. Tilford?
A. Yes.
Q. He has an office there?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. H. M. Tilford?
A. Yes, sir, he has an office at 26 Broadway.
Q. Mr. Silas H. Paine, he has an office there, you have already testified?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And John D. Archbold, he has an office there?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who are the general attorneys for the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway?
A. I don't know; I understand Mr. M. F. Elliott is.
Q. How long has he been there?
A. I don't know how long, Mr. Lightfoot; a number of years.
Q. Since 1900?
A. I think so.
Q. Do you know Mr. S. C. T. Dodd?
A. I knew Mr. Dodd.
Q. He is dead now, isn't he?
A. Yes, sir.
1069 Q. He had an office also at 26 Broadway?
A. Yes.
Q. What position did he hold?
A. I understand he was attorney for the Standard Oil Company.

Mr. ALLEN: We don't offer the next two questions on page—third page from the last—by Judge Priest, two questions by Judge Priest, and the objection follows by myself.

Q. And is it a fact that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company charged for oil furnished the ships at the request of the Standard Oil Company of New York its current prices for the sale of oil at that place?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And charged that to the Standard Oil Company of New York and bills were forwarded against the Standard Oil Company of New York?
A. I understand that is so.

(By Mr. LIGHTFOOT:)

Q. Did you have any information about what the current prices of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for marine oils delivered at the ports in Texas were, Mr. McNall?

A. I don't remember that I did.

Q. Well, then, how did you know that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company charged those steamers or the Standard Oil Company their current prices for oil delivered to steamers?

A. The Standard Oil Company of New York charged the current——

Q. (Interrupting.) No, I said, how did you know that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company charged the Standard Oil Company of New York their current prices for marine oils delivered to steamers at Galveston, if you don't know what their current prices for marine oil were at those ports?

A. I believe I so instructed them to at one time.

Q. You so instructed them to—— (Last question repeated.)

A. I believe I so instructed them to, at one time. (Pausing.) Requested them to, instead of instructed.

1070

Q. What did you request them?

A. As I remember it, I asked them to make deliveries of marine oils to vessels and bill those deliveries to the Standard Oil Company of New York, Marine Department, at their current prices; I think I have a recollection of doing that.

Q. Now, I will ask you to refresh your memory, if that don't refer to contract oils, oils for which the Standard Oil Company of New York had contracts with vessels touching at those ports?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. I will ask you, then, if they had any instructions with reference to illuminating oils for delivery to steamboats—I mean, to vessels at Texas ports?

A. I think I requested them to follow a similar custom in billing.

Q. Then, it is your recollection that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had instructions to deliver all oils to vessels touching at ports there for the account of the Standard Oil Company of New York, is that true?

A. Not on all oils.

Q. For which oils, then?

A. For oils which the marine oil department ordered from them.

Q. They would be delivered before the marine oil department would order them, wouldn't they?

A. If we received instructions that a vessel was coming there before she arrived at a port in Texas, they would be requested to deliver anything to that vessel that she might require and charge if to the marine oil department.

Q. Now, suppose that the vessels reached there before you knew it and needed oil, what would be the custom then?

A. As I understand it, they would sell the oil to the ships and collect the money for it.

1071

Q. And not bill it out to the Standard Oil Company?

A. No.

Q. And on all oils delivered to them?

A. On all oils delivered to a ship, and not ordered of the Standard Oil Company, Marine Department, they would bill to the ship and collect the money from the ship.

Mr. ALLEN: There is a correction there that he initials, also.

Q. Have you any knowledge of any such transaction ever taking place, Mr. McNall?

A. I have a general business idea that that took place.

Q. By whom were you informed of such transactions that they did take place?

A. It came out in correspondence with the home office.

(By Judge PRIEST:)

Q. The home office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, you mean?

A. The home office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Judge STEDMAN: We offer the third page from the last of McNall's deposition, two questions propounded by Judge Priest and answered by the witness.

Q. I only want to call your attention to one fact in connection with your re-examination in chief. You spoke of the Waters-Pierce furnishing to the Standard Oil Company of New York some oil at ports in Texas?

A. Yes.

Q. You said that that was a sale by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to the Standard Oil Company of New York. It having no oil in Texas and doing no business there, it requested the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to furnish to ships that might touch at certain ports and charge to it?

1072 Mr. ALLEN: To that question and answer we object as being leading and suggestive, and calling for a conclusion and not the facts, and states the information of the witness,—the same objection that was made at the time.

Judge STEDMAN: In response to that objection of counsel, I will say that witness was called by the other side, and this is cross examination by the counsel for the defendant in the case. Furthermore, as to the nature of the answer, I do not think it is subject to the criticism that it is merely a conclusion of the witness. They are facts that he relates.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

A. Those are the facts.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, plaintiff next offers in evidence the agreement attached to the petition of plaintiff and marked Exhibit "C". It is an agreement made and entered into in the city of Cleveland, Ohio, on the 5th day of October, 1894, by and between the Eagle Refining Company and others, and A. W. Clem of the city of Dallas, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, and then the additions and acceptances thereto.

Judge STEDMAN: We desire to offer the objection to the document proposed to be placed in evidence, (1) that those documents were executed long anterior to the creation of this defendant, and long anterior to the enactment of the statute under which this suit is being prosecuted; (2) because the testimony offered is immaterial and irrelevant, and does not tend to establish any issue in this case; and (3) because those documents evidence an executed contract and can not be introduced in evidence in this case as affecting the matters to which this suit relates. Those documents evidence a contract that was consummated long prior to the organization of this defendant, and long prior to the enactment of these 1073 laws, and being an executed contract it can not be maintained that that matter was continued in effect by the parties; and, further, that those matters were adjudicated in the prior Waters-Pierce Oil Company case in this court, as set up in our answer.

Mr. ALLEN: The contract was dated the 5th day of October, 1894. It is an agreement that these parties named as parties of the second part would not for a period of fifteen years do certain things. (Reads from contract.) A part of the consideration, as is shown, for that agreement is the employing of one A. W. Clem, who is a party to the instrument, as manager to conduct and carry on this business, and the agreement we shall offer in connection with it shows that this contract was carried out, and we propose to show that the present corporation carried out this contract for four years after it was organized.

The COURT: What do you mean by "carrying it out?"

Mr. ALLEN: By paying Clem the sums of money called for in the contract, after that time keeping him on a salary, and letting him run the business in the name of the Eagle Refining Company in accordance with the agreement here stated. I do not know whether Your Honor is familiar with all the details of this contract or not, but there are several details, among them being one that Clem shall continue as manager of the business.

The COURT: Do you propose to show that the defendant managed and controlled the business of the Eagle Refining Company in Texas under the name of the Eagle Refining Company subsequent to May 31, 1900?

Mr. ALLEN: Yes, sir, until 1904, we propose. Now, here is that part that I wish to call Your Honor's attention to. "This memorandum of agreement, made and entered into this 5th day of October, 1894, by and between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and A. W. Clem"——

Judge STEDMAN: We prefer for the gentleman not to read 1074 that in the presence of the jury.

The COURT: It has all been read to the jury as a part of the pleadings.

Mr. ALLEN: We say this is all one transaction, and this is a memorandum we offer in connection with it, based upon the same consideration, that the first party has employed and by these presents does employ, etc. (reading from contract).

Judge STEDMAN: We desire to add specifically the objection to the arrangement with Mr. Clem, that it is shown by the document that the arrangement expired within two years after it was made in 1894. Therefore, it was an executed contract in 1897. That is in addition to the other objections.

Mr. ALLEN: The acceptance,—this is in the shape of a letter to W. H. K. Rose, General Manager of the Eagle Refining Company.

We propose to show that they carried out—that there was a transfer, and, of course, so far as the property was transferred that became an executed contract, but we propose also to show that they continued the business under the name of the Eagle Refining Company, ostensibly as an independent concern, in accordance with this agreement and in accordance with the provisions they kept Clem on the pay-roll, and continued to pay him, and continued to carry it on and conduct the business just as they had been doing theretofore, until 1904,—the present company.

The COURT: What was the date of the former suit, or what was the issue with reference to this contract?

Mr. ALLEN: Of that I am not advised. That is a matter of defense, however, as far as that is concerned.

The COURT: Ordinarily it would, but in that case the judgment is a record of this Court, and the Court judicially, but not personally, knows.

Mr. ALLEN: That judgment in that case was rendered in 1075 1897, but just what issue was made about this I am not personally familiar.

Judge PENN: That was withdrawn from the jury by the instruction of the Court, the jury instructed that that was not a violation of the law, and that issue was withdrawn. The matter is reported in full in the 44th Southwestern Reporter.

The COURT: Admitting it was withdrawn by the charge of the Court, I do not know what violation of the law was charged and predicated on this agreement.

Judge PENN: Our recollection is that the entering into of this agreement was a violation of the anti-trust law.

Mr. ALLEN: We admit that, that it was that the entering into of this agreement was a violation of the anti-trust law, and that the Court held that it was not, but still that would not affect the cause of action as we allege it in this case. The courts have repeatedly held that the Legislature may, after a contract has been made, provide that the carrying out of a contract of that nature may be a violation of the law, where it is a continuing contract and calls for something to be done in the future by the parties; that if they carry out the provisions of that contract thereafter, that then it becomes an offense, just as the Supreme Court of the State held in the case of the State against the American Express Company, that went up from this Court, went off on demurrer in Your Honor's Court. They held there, Your Honor will remember, that all of the contracts that were set up as violations of the law were executed prior to the passage of this anti-trust case. We charge that they continued to carry out those contracts. They might have been perfectly valid at the time they were entered into.

The COURT: There is no necessity of arguing that. Most of the evidence that has been admitted in this case has been admitted on that theory.

1076 Mr. ALLEN: That is all we are contending for. We expect to show that these exclusive features of the contract were carried out by this corporation after its formation in 1900, and which was then in violation of the law that went into effect on the first day of January, 1900. Of course, we are claiming no penalties back of that time, back of May 31, 1900, but we propose to show they continued to carry out this contract up until 1904, when by mutual consent it was abrogated.

The COURT: What was the date of the judgment in the prior case?

Mr. ALLEN: 1897, three years before the passage of any anti-trust act that made it a violation of the law. That was under the law of 1889.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: The defendant excepts.

(Thereupon the said agreement between the Eagle Refining Company and A. W. Clem and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, dated the 5th day of October, 1894, was introduced in evidence.)

Mr. ALLEN: In connection with that, we offer in evidence an agreement signed by counsel, as follows:

"It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the counsel in this cause that the agreement signed and entered into by the Eagle Refining Company, S. S. Drake, President, S. S. Drake, A. G. Carpenter, W. A. Smith, William H. K. Rose and A. W. Clem, on the 5th day of October, 1894, and the memorandum of agreement dated St. Louis, Missouri, September 13, 1894, and signed by H. C. Pierce, President, and William H. K. Rose, and the acceptance signed by W. A. Smith, Secretary, dated Cleveland, Ohio, October 1, 1894, and the memorandum of agreement made and entered into in the city of St. Louis on the 5th day of October, 1894, and signed 1077 by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, by H. C. Pierce, Pt., and A. W. Clem, all of which are attached to plaintiff's first amended original petition in this cause and marked Exhibit C, are true copies of each of said documents and may be offered in evidence in this cause with the same force and effect as if they were originals and properly proven up.

"It is further stipulated and agreed that the said agreements and contracts were executed and carried out; that if the defendant shall produce the originals of said documents, as set forth in Exhibit C as aforesaid, upon the trial of said cause, said originals may be substituted in lieu of said copies, and this stipulation and said orignal documents or this stipulation and the copies herein agreed to, in the event defendant does not so produce said originals, shall be offered in evidence in said cause subject to all legal objections that may be offered against the originals if the same were introduced."

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer a portion of the deposition of S. K. Wheeler. I am going to read the first two or three questions of the direct examination simply to identify Mr. Wheeler, show who he is, and then the other is on page 14 of his examination.

S. K. WHEELER, being produced and sworn on behalf of the Defendant, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. JOHNSON:

Q. What is your age?
A. 40.
Q. What is your occupation?
A. Assistant General Manager of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, then, you can begin the Cross Examination, beginning on page 14 of his testimony. We offer, I think it is all of that cross examination, practically speaking.

Q. You were employed, you say, as general representative 1078 of the company from November, 1903, to June, 1905. During that period, how often did you visit the important cities in Texas?
A. Generally, as a general proposition only once.
Q. Only once during the entire time?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What were your duties as the general representative in regard to the important cities in Texas?
A. I had authority to extend bulk deliveries, to points where they had not been making them before, and authorizing improvements in the plants.
Q. What were your duties with reference to giving instructions to the managers of the divisions, at that time?
A. I had authority to instruct them in relation to the conduct of our business.
Q. Did you give them instructions at that time as to what prices they should sell at?
A. No, sir.
Q. You had nothing to do with that, at all, at that time?
A. No, sir.
Q. Well, did you have any authority as to instructing them as to what representatives they should employ, in their departments?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How often during that time had you visited San Antonio, in your capacity as general representative of the company?
A. I think twice.
Q. How often did you visit Dallas during that time, as a representative of the company?
A. Probably three times.
Q. Do you know Mr. Roy Campbell, at San Antonio?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. During that time, or the times that you were there, what was he doing?
1079 A. He was—I don't know what his employment was at that time.
Q. Did you come in contact with him?
A. No, sir, I did not know him at that time.
Q. Well, did you at any time as a representative of the company know who he was?

A. Not at that time I did not.
Q. Well, at any time?
A. I have, though, recently.
Q. Who is he? What connection has he with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or did he have at any time?
A. Of my own personal knowledge, I don't know that he ever had any connection with it.
Q. What is your information? Why did you hesitate?
A. Well, that is very vague. I am not trying to evade the question. My information is very vague. Officially or otherwise I had nothing to do with Mr. Campbell.
Q. You say you were the general representative of the company, with authority to say—govern the employment of the men, at these different places. Don't you know, Mr. Wheeler, that he was in the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company during a portion of this time?
A. I believe he was.
Q. Operating ostensibly as an independent dealer, being paid by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Now, that is only hearsay with me.
Q. Well, what is your information on that? You were Assistant Manager part of the time, and the general representative part of the time?
A. During the time I was general representative and visited San Antonio I knew nothing whatever—I was not acquainted with Roy Campbell.
Q. Well, as Assistant Manager, then?
A. I am under the impression that he was an employé of the company.
Q. Do you know under what sort of contract? Did you
1080 ever see the contract?
A. No, sir.
Q. Have you had any information as to what sort of a contract it was?
A. No, sir.
Q. Why did you have him employed ostensibly as an independent concern, and paying him a salary or commission by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know?
A. No, sir.
Q. You had nothing to do with that employment?
A. No, sir.
Q. You only know that it is a fact, but you don't know the basis of it or what the original agreement was?
A. No, sir.
Q. Now, do you know Mr. A. W. Clem, at Dallas?
A. No, sir.
Q. Did you ever hear of him?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what connection he had at any time with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of his having any connection with it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know anything about the Eagle Refining Company, at Dallas?

A. Only by name.

Q. Did you ever visit or go to see that company when you were there as the representative of the company?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any information about it whatever?

A. No, sir.

1081 Q. Why not? Why didn't you?

A. Well, it was a matter that I knew nothing about. I know nothing about it; I had no occasion to visit the Eagle Refining Company, or any other company, except our own.

Q. You did not know that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company owned it and was operating it until recently?

A. No, sir.

Q. You knew nothing about that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, as general representative of the company up to June, 1905, did you have anything to do with the furnishing of prices to the different division managers?

A. No, sir.

Q. You had nothing to do with that until you got to the General Manager's office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is the General Manager?

A. C. P. Ackert.

Q. How long has he been General Manager, do you know?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. When did your connection begin with the company?

A. In May, 1902.

Q. Whose supervision was you under?

A. I was under the supervision of Mr. E. M. Tolliver.

Q. E. M. Tolliver at Houston?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were in that employ only a short time?

A. Yes, comparatively speaking.

Q. When you went into the employ in November, 1903, whose supervision were you under?

A. C. P. Ackert.

1082 Q. He was General Manager at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Afterwards, in June, you came to St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And made your headquarters here?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As the Assistant General Manager?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To Mr. Ackert?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And C. P. Ackert is now General Manager?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And has been ever since your second connection with the company?
A. Ever since my first connection, he has been General Manager.
Q. I understood you to say that you did not know that he was General Manager?
A. I say I don't know how long he has been General Manager.
Q. Then he was General Manager since you first went with the company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. Ackert is the man that during this time that you speak of, as General Manager, has promulgated the prices at which oils of different kinds should be sold by the agents in Texas?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. At different points?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where is Mr. Ackert?
A. You mean at the present time?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. He is in Houston.
Q. Do you know—how long has he been there?
1083 A. I think he reached there yesterday morning.
Q. His headquarters are here?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long has he been away?
A. He left last Thursday afternoon.
Q. Do you know when he will return?
A. No, sir, I do not.
Q. During his absence who has charge of his department?
A. I have charge of it.
Q. Have you in your custody and control any documents, books, or record of any sort that shows the prices at which the different kinds of oils were sold at the different points in Texas for the years 1900 and 1907,—down to this time, inclusive?
A. I think so.
Q. Will you——
A. It will take some time to go back to 1900. I believe we have them, though.
Q. Will you produce the records? What is it in the shape of—a memorandum, book, or what?
A. When the manager is instructed as to the selling prices, he issues a schedule which goes to the local agent, and the carbon copy of that schedule comes to this office and is part of our files. And then——
Q. Where does that come from?
A. From the division headquarters.
Q. Well, the General Manager, I understood, promulgated those prices?
A. No, the Manager promulgates it to the agent.

653

Q. Well——

A. The General Manager instructs the Manager.

Q. Well, the General Manager promulgates the prices in the first instant, doesn't he?

A. Yes, sir.

1084 Q. How does he do that?

A. By letter or telegraph.

Q. By letter? Now, what record do you make at the time of the promulgation of those prices, of what prices are promulgated?

A. A carbon copy is kept of any change that is made in the prices, and that carbon copy is retained up till the revised schedule is received.

Q. Now, those carbon copies—you make no permanent record of it, then?

A. The revised schedules are sent here and kept in the files, and then the old schedule is filed away.

Q. The whole schedule is filed away? No permanent record in a book or anything of that sort is made of the different changes in prices?

A. Well, we have a record of changes that have been made, but I don't think that record goes back any earlier than 1904.

Q. Is that in the shape of a permanent record?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In book form?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that show the various prices at which you sold the various kinds of oils at different points in Texas during the years 1904, 1905, 1906 and 1907 up to the present time?

A. Yes, but they only show the refined oil and gasoline.

Q. The refined oil and gasoline?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not make it to cover the lubricating oils and greases, or anything of that sort?

A. No permanent record, no, sir.

Q. Now, the record that you speak of, does that show the various schedules which were promulgated during the year?

A. Every time there is a change in the schedule it is noted 1085 in the book.

Q. It is noted in that book?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce that record book before the Commissioner so that it may be examined by the counsel for the State, or furnish a copy or abstract from it, showing the different prices at which the oils have been sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company during these years, 1904, '5, '6 and '7 up to the present time, at the different points in Texas?

"Mr. JOHNSON: This is a matter that the witness has no control over. We object to it, further, as being a matter for counsel to determine whether papers will be produced or not. Also, it is the duty of counsel for the State, if they want any such records produced, to give notice under the statutes for its production."

Q. I understood you to say that that record was under your control as Acting General Manager, during the absence of Mr. Ackert?

A. It is a part of the office record.

Q. Part of the office records of which you are the head of it during his absence. Is that not a fact?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is in your control, then?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. We have heretofore notified the President of your company, Mr. Wheeler, to produce for our examination all books and records. Now, then, we notify you at this time, as being the head of the department, who has the care, custody and control of the book, to produce it for our examination. And we request you to produce it here, so that we may go over it and get from it such detailed information as you testify it contains.

"Mr. JOHNSON: We object to that. The witness is not required to say what he will or what he will not do. That is under the control of counsel,—not the witness. If the State wants those 1086 papers produced, the statute prescribes the mode in which it should be done. This is not pertinent to this inquiry,—at least so far as this witness is concerned."

Q. What do you say about that, Witness? Will you or will you not produce that record as asked for? I say, what do you say about it? Will you or will you not produce that record for examination?

A. I refuse to produce it.

Q. You stated that prices are promulgated from the General Manager's department to the division managers. Who furnishes those prices to him, do you know of your own knowledge?

A. To the General Manager?

Q. Yes.

A. The General Manager, in consultation with other officials, determines the price.

Q. Is that based upon hearsay, or actual knowledge?

A. It is based on reports and recommendations from the local managers, the division managers.

Q. Well, none of the officers, then, of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, except the managers, have anything to do with fixing the prices?

A. The General Manager, you mean?

Q. I mean the General Manager. None of the officers here?

A. Oh, yes, I say the General Manager, in consultation with other officers of the company.

Q. They fix the prices?

A. They fix the prices.

Q. And the General Manager promulgates them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, that is the way I understood it. Now, did you ever participate yourself in those consultations?

A. Yes, sir, in the absence of the General Manager.

Q. Upon what are those prices based? What consider-1087 ations enter into your consultation upon which you base the prices?

A. The change in the price is determined by the local conditions. If other oil companies make a lower selling price than we have been maintaining, and we find it necessary to meet that price, to protect our business, that price is met.

Q. In other words, changes of prices are almost always affected by competition from other companies, aren't they?

A. In a great many instances, yes, sir.

Q. Well, what other consideration influences you besides competition in lowering prices? What other consideration? Is that the only one? Why do you hesitate about answering that question, Mr. Wheeler? You say you participated in these consultations and know what was said and done there?

A. There are a great many instances where the prices are regulated,—either advanced or lowered,—without the influence of competition.

Q. Well, of course, in those instances then what causes the raising or lowering of this price? Why do you do that?

A. Well, it is done through the judgment of the officers, as to what the proper price should be.

Q. Well, but you consult about that, and some reason is given for it, isn't there, in this consultation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the reason, then? What reasons are given, when that is done?

A. The reason may be that it is considered that the price in itself is higher than it should be. It may be——

Q. Now, then, name one place, one time, one price, that you lowered, when it did not come from competition?

A. I could not do that from memory.

Q. Well, can you by refreshing your memory?

1088 A. I think I can.

Q. Give us a memorandum of that, can you?

A. I think I could.

Q. Will you do that when you are excused here temporarily?

A. I will.

Q. Now, did the cost of the commodity have any effect at all upon your fixing or changing the price?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What effect does that have?

A. The cost of the commodity usually forms a very large basis as to what the selling price will be.

Q. Isn't that, aside from competition, the principal ground for changing the price?

A. Yes, I should say it was.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the purchase of oils? Is that in your jurisdiction? I mean oils that you sell?

A. No, sir.

Q. What department is that in? Who is at the head of that department? I suppose your department is the one that distributes and sells the oil?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Yours is the Sales Department, as a matter of fact?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, when you want certain oils, of any kind, shipped to any point in Texas, how do you get it shipped there?
A. The order is placed at the refinery, where the supply comes from.
Q. Who places it there?
A. It is placed there by Mr. Finlay, the Vice President.
Q. Placed there by Mr. Finlay. You have nothing to do with that part of it?
A. No, sir.
1089 Q. You make requisitions upon Mr. Finlay, stating where you want the oil, and the kind you want, and the quantity, and then he acts?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you have nothing to do with the purchase of it, or where it shall come from?
A. No, sir.
Q. How long has Mr. Finlay had charge of that part of it?
A. I think for several years.

(Redirect examination by Mr. JOHNSON:)

Q. Isn't it a fact that when the refinery prices are lowered the selling price by the company is lowered?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. When the refinery prices are increased or advanced, the company advances its selling price?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. In Texas?
A. Yes, sir.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. And then there is—enumerate the others?
A. Well, the Eagle Refining Company, about three years, the Lone Star Oil Company for several years, the Oriental Oil Company for several years, and the Southwestern for several years.
Q. What facilities have those different companies for handling oils and supplying the trade in Texas?
A. Do you want me to describe it in detail?
Q. Yes, in a general way, I don't want to go too much in detail.
A. The Eagle Refining Company have a few agencies in Texas, where they carry refined oil in bulk.
Q. Do you know how many, Mr. Wheeler?
A. No, sir, I don't—probably not over six or eight.

1090 (Recross-examination, by Mr. ALLEN.)

Q. Mr. Wheeler, what kinds of oil do you sell in Texas of the refined oils to the trade? What brands? What do you call them?
A. The best oil is called Eupion.
Q. What other?
A. The second grade is called Brilliant.

Q. What is meant by Prime White or Water White?
A. Prime White is practically synonymous with Brilliant, and Water White is an intermediate grade between Brilliant and Eupion.
Q. And what is S. W.? What does that stand for?
A. S. W. is also synonymous with Brilliant.
Q. Now, you speak of an oil as 120 flash or 150 flash?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What do you mean by those terms?
A. The flashing point of an oil is determined by the degree of heat to which you can heat the oil when it will form a gas that will flash with a match.
Q. In other words, that represents a degree of temperature that the oil will stand before it will ignite from heat?
A. Before it will light, yes, sir.
Q. Now, what flash is the oil that you sell in Missouri, the ordinary burning oil?
A. That is 150 fire test.
Q. What is that you sell in Texas?
A. There is a difference of about 20 degrees between flash and fire. The flash is just where the gas will ignite and then go out, and the fire test is where the gas is formed so that the flame is continuous.
Q. So that it will ignite the whole bulk?
A. Yes, sir, and it continues to burn. Usually there is a difference of close on to 20 degrees between the flashing point and the firing point.
1091 Q. What is the oil that is sold in Texas as to the flash and fire test?
A. It is about 112 flash, that would make about 132 fire.
Q. It is 112 flash which would make about 132 fire?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And in Missouri it is 150——
A. Fire. It would be about 130 flash.
Q. The reason for making that difference is that there is a law in Missouri prescribing the fire test?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And there is none in Texas?
A. No, sir.

Mr. ALLEN: Clay Arthur Pierce, examination beginning at the beginning, page 195, a witness produced by the defendant and examined by Mr. Johnson, and we offer his direct examination also.

Q. State your name in full, please?
A. Clay Arthur Pierce.
Q. Your age?
A. 33.
Q. Your residence?
A. No. 40 Vandeventer Place, St. Louis, Missouri.
Q. Your occupation?
A. President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. How long have you been President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Since June, 1905.

Q. Since that time you have actively discharged the duties of President of the company?

A. I have.

Q. And managed and controlled its affairs as far as a 1092 President can manage and control?

A. Yes, sir.

(Objected to as leading and suggestive.)

Q. Well, what have been your duties as President of the company since your election?

A. I have been the executive head of the company, to manage its business affairs, all details connected therewith, and to take final executive action on all business of any nature pertaining to the company.

Q. Who did you succeed as President of the company?

A. Mr. Andrew M. Finlay.

Q. You were employed by the company before you were made its President, were you?

A. I was first employed by the company in the Spring of 1898 as Assistant Treasurer.

Q. That was the old firm, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. The old firm, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. I was re-employed as Assistant Treasurer by the new company organized in 1900 and continued as Assistant Treasurer until June, 1905, when I was elected President. Just two months previous to that time, however, I was made Acting President, and I occupied that position for two months.

Q. What were your duties as Assistant Treasurer? What duties did you perform?

A. I performed such duties as would naturally fall to the position of Assistant Treasurer in the Treasurer's Department, and in addition I sat on the Executive Committee as Secretary of that committee, and a member of the committee from the time of its formation until the committee was disbanded.

Q. When was the Executive Committee organized?

A. If I remember correctly, it was organized in 1900. I am not sure as to the date.

1093 Q. And it existed down to what time?

A. Until the Fall of 1904, I believe.

Q. What have you had to do since the organization of the Executive Committee with the fixing of prices at which the company sells its commodities in the State of Texas?

A. Since the organization of the Executive Committee I have been actively one of usually three who have determined or fixed the selling prices in the State of Texas.

Q. Who were the other members of that committee? I mean who were the other parties—not the Executive Committee, but who were the other parties that acted with you or that you acted with in fixing prices of sales of oil in Texas and other commodities?

A. The entire Executive Committee while it was in session acted finally upon the fixing of prices of a sub-committee, composed of Andrew M. Finlay, then President, C. P. Ackert, General Manager, and myself as Assistant Treasurer, examined schedules which were exhibited to the Executive Committee for their final approval with our recommendation.

(Portion omitted.)

(Cross-examination by Mr. ALLEN:)

Q. Where the order or requisition for supplies were ordered to be sent from the refinery of the Standard Oil Company at Whiting, Indiana, where is that order sent?

A. Direct to Whiting, Indiana.

Q. And is that true of the Atlantic Refining Company also?

A. It is true of the Atlantic, and the Sugar Creek, and all the other refineries. I presume you are acquainted with them.

Q. How about the Security Oil Company at Beaumont?

A. Sent direct to the Security Company at Beaumont.

Q. Do you have any oils of any consequence shipped to you from Whiting, Indiana, or Sugar Creek or Neodesha to Texas?

1094 A. We have sent a small amount of Northern gasoline from the three refineries to Texas, because of the inability of the Southern refineries to meet the supply.

Q. That is gasoline?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But the bulk of the supplies are received from the Corsicana refinery and the Security Oil Company at Beaumont for Texas sales?

A. For Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Indian Territory and the Southern part of Arkansas, we purchase what we can from the Gulf Refinery and Texas Refinery Company as they are able to supply.

Q. Are they Standard Oil refineries?

A. I knew nothing about that.

Q. You have no information of those two?

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Mr. Pierce, do you know anything about the so-called division of territory heretofore testified about by your father, H. Clay Pierce, based upon the original agreement made by the Standard Oil Company, giving to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company the territory that includes Texas?

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. You know nothing about the original agreement?

A. Nothing whatever.

Q. What do you know about its practical workings since you have been connected as an officer and an active officer of the company so far as the observation of that territory is concerned?

A. I know nothing whatever about the practical workings of any agreement such as you speak of. I know of course that we sell oil in such territory where we are equipped to handle it and sell it, and that there is other territory that we do not sell it.

Q. You know, of course, your father has heretofore testified in the case, of what was originally the agreement or understanding 1095 that was had as to that territory?

A. That I don't know absolutely. I did not read Mr.

Pierce's testimony, throughout, and I was not present all the time at the trial.

Q. Has any question of that sort come up since you have been a member of the Executive Committee, Advisory Board, or President of the company, about a violation of that stipulation, expressed or implied, for adjustment?

A. On our part?

Q. On the part of either the Waters-Pierce Oil Company or the Standard Oil Company or its interests?

A. You mean has any question arisen between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company?

A. Yes, that has been the subject of discussion by the Executive Committee or the Advisory Board or any other officer, with you as the executive head?

"Mr. JOHNSON: We object to that unless it is in respect to any part of the State of Texas.

"Mr. ALLEN: Of course, I will limit it to that."

A. None has arisen during the time that I was a member of the Executive Committee or since then regarding the State of Texas that I know of.

Q. Now, what portions of the United States does the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and has it during your connection with it, done business? In what portion?

A. In the Southern half of the State of Missouri, in a portion of the State of Illinois immediately East of the Mississippi River, and St. Louis, in all of Arkansas, in all of Texas, in all of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, in a portion of Louisiana West of the Mississippi River, and in all of the Republic of Mexico.

Q. And all of Louisiana West of the Mississippi River, or only a portion of it?

1096 A. Practically all. I think there is a small portion down in the extreme Southwest of the Mississippi River in which we do not operate. That is a very poor part of the country down there, deltas, etc. We never operate in that portion of the country.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact, and isn't it your information as the executive head of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and as member of its Executive Committee during its existence, and as a member of the Advisory Board, that questions have arisen about the territories in Texas? To refresh your memory, isn't it the custom daily almost of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to supply to customers at Texas ports oils for which they have contracts with the Standard Oil Company?

"Mr. JOHNSON: That is, contracts between steamers and the Standard Oil Company?

"Mr. ALLEN: Between steamers and the Standard Oil Company."

A. I am not entirely informed on that. I know that the Standard has certain contracts with steamship lines.

Q. That makes Texas ports?

A. That makes Texas ports, and that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company furnishes supplies to them when requested, and it is furnished to them on the Standard Oil Company's account.

Q. And charged to whom?

A. To the Standard Oil Company.

Q. Who says how much shall be charged on this sort of a transaction?

A. The Lubricating Department of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Don't you know that you charge your ordinary market prices where under ordinary instances and in most instances five per cent. is added for the Marine Department of the Standard Oil Company as their part of it?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Well, what is your information on that?

A. The Marine Department is a small branch of the 1097 business.

Q. Well, that is a department of the Standard Oil Company that has all these contracts, isn't it?

A. That is a department of itself.

Q. Whether for the Marine Department or any other department of the Standard Oil Company, you collect a certain price, whatever it may be, five or ten, or whatever it is, you know that there is a per cent. collected in addition to the market price, do you not?

A. I do not know that.

Q. What is your information about it?

A. I have none.

Q. You don't know what those charges are, what the basis of the charges are?

A. I know in a general way, yes, sir. The Marine Department of our business is a very small part of it.

Q. I am not talking of that.

A. The Lubricating Department is understood to handle it without supervision of any of the other departments. That is one of the few branches of business handled direct under the management of the Lubricating Department. He is, so far as I know, authorized to charge oil sold to steamers for account of the Standard Company his existing Prices for such oils at the point at which they are delivered. Beyond that I don't know.

Q. He is authorized by who to do that?

A. By myself.

Q. The Executive Committee during its existence, and the Advisory Board does not fix the price at which he shall furnish oils to the steamers?

A. No, it does not.

Q. Who is the Manager of the Lubricating Department?

A. Mr. Harris.

Q. How long has he been such manager?

1098 A. Several months. I think he was made Manager in the Fall of 1906.

Q. Mr. Stephen Johnson was the Manager before him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was for many years?

A. For many years, twenty-eight years, I think, or thirty.

Q. You say you don't know just what arrangement there is, then, about charging for the benefit of the Standard Oil Company a commission or whatever it is in addition to that price, for their benefit?

A. I know of no arrangement dictated by the Standard Oil Company at which we charge lubricating prices for their benefit.

Q. I am not asking about lubricating prices.

A. Well, any prices.

Q. I am speaking especially with reference to the oils furnished vessels touching ports in Texas.

A. I know nothing, absolutely nothing, of any such arrangement.

Q. Do you know of the Central Coal & Coke Company, a corporation that runs a lot of saw mills down in East Texas?

A. I know of it, yes, sir.

Q. Don't you know that they have a contract with the Standard Oil Company, made with the Kansas City branch, the corporation being located at Kansas City?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. By which the Standard Oil Company is to furnish all the oils of certain kinds, especially lubricating oils, that they may desire in their business trade in Texas, and in the territory in Louisiana in which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company does business, wherever they have a saw mill or other plant that demands oils, that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company furnishes those oils to them and charges them against the Standard Oil Company?

A. You are speaking of a contract which the Standard Oil Company has at present with the Central Coal & Coke Company at Neome and Parsons, Louisiana?

1099 Q. Yes, sir.

A. I don't know of their having any such contract at present.

Q. Or recently?

A. They may have had one in the past.

Q. Didn't you furnish oils on requisitions of that sort and get paid from the Standard Oil Company for doing so?

A. We have done it.

Q. And what prices did you charge?

A. So far as I know, we have charged our regular prices that we would ordinarily charge for such oils, based upon the delivery.

Q. You didn't charge the contract prices, then, at which the Standard had agreed to sell them? To refresh your memory, isn't it a fact that you did furnish for the prices at which the Standard Oil Company had agreed or contracted to furnish those people for the different grades of oils which you yourself furnished them at those points?

A. I want to be entirely clear and answer your question directly. The Standard Oil Company when they desired us to make such deliveries as you speak of would inform us that they had a customer at such a point, naming it, at which point they desired to sell that customer certain oils, naming the oils, and they would tell us that the customer was willing to pay such and such prices, naming the prices which presumably the customer had made with the Standard Oil Company under a blanket contract.

Q. You just assume that?

A. I have to, because I don't know. If the prices were agreeable to us we accepted them, and if not we replied to the Standard Company naming the prices at which we would supply those oils, and then if the Standard Company accepted the prices we supplied them on behalf of the Standard Company.

1100 Q. You charged them direct?

A. Yes, sir, but the Standard did not dictate the prices at which we would supply the oils.

Q. Now, this concern that I have been speaking of, have you any approximate knowledge of the business that was done with them in the territory, and what it is, in a general way?

A. No, we supply them at Neome and Parsons, Louisiana, and the business was the average business done by a plant of that kind.

Q. How about our saw mills in East Texas that operate along in what is known as Waters-Pierce Oil Company territory?

A. I think we supply them at one point in East Texas; I am not sure of that.

Q. In what is known as the Kansas City Southern?

A. Well, we may have supplied them, but I am not entirely sure of that.

Q. You don't remember the number of places in East Texas now?

A. I do not. No, I don't recall any name in East Texas. If there was an order from there we probably supplied it.

Q. What was the custom with reference to orders that were received by you from customers in what is known or what has been known as Standard Oil territory, if a personal customer would write to you for prices and you were not doing business in that territory?—what did you do with those orders?

A. We did one of two things. We either quoted the customer F. O. B. our St. Louis supply sheet, which was practically the only thing we could do if we were going to sell him, or we turned the order over to the Standard Company out of courtesy, because they operated in the territory and we did not.

Q. And they did the same thing on orders that went to them?

A. So far as I know. Occasionally they did not. Sometimes they shipped the oil requested by customers in the territory in which we operated direct to the customer, presumably the 1101 parties selling it, that would be our nearest supply point, the same as we did.

Q. Did you ever hear of their doing that in Texas?

A. I think I have.

Q. At what point?

A. I think at El Paso.

Q. Have you any way of refreshing your memory or giving any actual information about that?

A. I have, decidedly. Not here at present, but I have memoranda.

Q. That is what I mean.

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Will you try and get that information?
A. I will.
Q. Is your memory now distinct as to that? I don't care about the dates.
A. No, it is not.
Q. I wish you would ascertain that at adjourning time.
A. I will endeavor to do so.

(Redirect examination by Mr. JOHNSON:)

Q. Vessels touch there at Galveston which have contracts with the Standard Oil Company at New York for supplies of marine oils that a vessel requires from time to time?
A. They do.
Q. Now, do you know of any regular arrangement or understanding, or is there a regular arrangement and understanding between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company with respect to supplying vessels of that kind with oil at Galveston?
A. None that I know of.
Q. Is it done by special letter or request?
A. It is done in each case relating to any separate steamship line by special letter requesting us to supply certain steamers with 1102 marine oils at certain prices for account of the Standard Company at prices which we name for our marine oils. That is my knowledge.
Q. And the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sells its oil to the Standard Oil Company instead of to the steamships?
A. Exactly, and delivers them to the steamships.
Q. And makes its invoice or bill to the Standard Oil Company for the oils supplied?
A. That is correct, to the Standard Oil Company.
Q. And the Standard Oil Company pays the transportation for the oils thus supplied?
A. That is right.
Q. As to the prices, you say you don't know how those prices are fixed?
A. I know less clearly regarding the marine oil prices than any other detail of the business, as to prices.
Q. Now, how about sales of oils supplied like in the case mentioned of the Central Coal & Coke Company?
A. That is the sale of oils to the Standard Oil Company, that delivery to a customer in our territory who has a contract with the Standard Oil Company under which the Standard Oil Company desires to make such deliveries.
Q. The Standard Oil Company in a case of that kind would write to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company asking them to quote it its prices, the prices at which it would supply oils to a customer at a certain point, say in Missouri, of certain enumerated oils?
A. The exact procedure, I think, is for the Standard to write the Waters-Pierce Company today that they have a customer under contract or otherwise at a certain point, and wish to deliver certain oils, specifying them, to that customer, on their contract, if it is a contract and the customer requires delivery at specified prices, and is the Waters-Pierce Oil Company willing to make delivery of those 1103 oils at those prices. If we are willing to deliver at those prices, we tell them so, and if not we tell the Standard Company at what prices we will deliver those oils, and the Standard Company either rejects or accepts the price. I would like to amend my first testimony to this extent. I recollect now, these letters do not pass through my hands unless I ask for them. If the Standard writes us saying that they have a customer at such a point under contract and would like us to quote prices and we quote in reply to the letter and they wish to get the prices that they can, and make us a proposition and we conclude to accept their price, we tell them so, and if not we tell them what prices we will accept, and it is a free proposition between the Standard and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

(At this point a recess was had until 2 P. M.)

Q. Have you the memoranda that you were to get before we adjourned?

A. You wanted to know the date that R. P. Tinsley was elected Vice President. That was April 28th, 1904. You also wanted to know the date that he resigned. That was June 22nd, 1905. You asked the date that Mr. A. M. Finlay was elected President. That was the 18th of February, 1904. He also served until June 22nd, 1905, as President.

Q. When were you made President, at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember as a matter of fact when it was that Mr. Tinsley came to the home office and assumed the duties of Vice President?

A. It was April, 1904.

Q. And when did he leave the home office entirely?

A. He left the home office very nearly the end of April, 1905; it was the last few days.

Q. And he left here for good, finally, before he tendered his resignation as Vice President of the company?

1104 A. Very nearly two months before he tendered his resignation.

Q. Mr. Pierce, from the time that you have been connected with the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in the different capacities which you mentioned, what has been Mr. H. C. Pierce's connection with the company?

A. He was President up to February, 1904, and since that date he has been Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Q. And what supervision or control has he exercised over the management of the business of the company while you have been connected with it?

A. Such matters as I have found advisable to refer to him for final decision, he has passed upon and advised me, and his decision in the matter has been final, and it was handled in accordance with his ideas entirely.

Q. That has been while you have been Vice President?
A. Yes, sir, while I have been Vice President.
Q. How was it before that?
A. The same procedure was followed by Mr. Andrew M. Finlay, as far as I recall, and in addition Mr. Pierce received copies of the minutes of the Executive Committee, and controlled the company through action taken there.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. You say after that date, and until Mr. Tinsley left here, you don't know how the prices were fixed?
A. I do not.
Q. During that time you yourself had no voice in the fixing of the prices?
A. None whatever.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. From the time the company was organized in 1900 down to the time that Mr. Tinsley came to St. Louis to take the 1105 position of Vice President, who was it that directed and carried out the general business policy of the company?
A. Mr. H. C. Pierce.
Q. Mr. H. C. Pierce?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Through the officers of the company, of course?
A. Through the officers of the company.
Q. Who was it after Mr. Tinsley left here?
A. Mr. H. C. Pierce.
Q. During the time Mr. Tinsley was here as Vice President, Mr. Andrew M. Finlay was the President and executive head of the company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. Andrew M. Finlay is a brother-in-law of H. C. Pierce, is he not?
A. Mrs. Pierce was his sister.
Q. Your mother was Andrew M. Finlay's sister?
A. My mother was Andrew M. Finlay's sister, yes, sir.
Q. Now, you speak of reports and information being given to the Standard Oil people, the Standard Oil Company of 26 Broadway, New York. Why were those reports—why was that information given, as you have understood it?
A. I have understood, without knowing, except through the testimony as it was presented through the Missouri case, that the Standard Oil Company owned about two-thirds of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and as such owner I have always understood that the Standard Oil Company had the right to ask for such statements as a two-thirds stockholder or a majority stockholder would be entitled to, and for that reason statements were sent to them at their request.
Q. Have you refreshed your memory in regard to the manner in which deliveries were made by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for marine oils, etc., on account of the Standard Oil Company, 1106 and also in connection with contracts similar to the one that existed between the Central Coal & Coke Company and the Standard Oil Company?

A. I have. I recalled this morning more or less indefinitely regarding the marine oil prices, because that was a detail merely of the business. In general they were fixed by the Lubricating Department upon instructions from myself. It was some time back and I don't specifically recall that. I have since looked that up. I find in December—December 6th, 1905, if I recollect correctly—I have a copy of a letter in my book which I wrote the Controller's Department, fixing the price of marine oils, which price ever since has been the price at which they have been billed.

Q. When was it you wrote that letter?

A. May I refer to the copy?

Q. Yes, to refresh your memory.

A. I think it was December 6th, 1905. (After reference to paper:) Yes, it was. That is correct.

Q. Who was the letter addressed to?

A. To the Controller at that time of the company.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. Now, go on and state, your memory being refreshed, just how the matter is handled, and has been handled, since you wrote that letter?

A. After I wrote that letter?

Q. Yes.

A. The Lubricating Department received requisitions from time to time from the Standard Oil Company's Marine Department, to deliver to certain vessels certain marine oils. This was only at Galveston; that is the only point at which we handled marine oils,—Galveston, Texas. They would state when the vessels would be lying at the port and the amount of oil that they would need. Those were vessels that the Standard Oil Company had contracts for the sale of marine oils to. We would make deliveries there through our Lubricating Department of the oils requested, and bill those oils
1107 against the Standard Oil Company, at the prices which I have named in this letter, which I have subsequently adjusted from time to time, the Standard Oil Company paying us in accordance.

Q. Then the matter of the price at which you delivered those oils is fixed by agreement between you and the Standard Oil Company? That is, you supplied the oil to the Standard Oil Company?

A. Yes. But those prices are not fixed by the agreement. The agreement is that we will supply the oil at the prices which we adjust from time to time here.

Q. You have nothing to do, then, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company has nothing to do with the price that the Standard Oil Company charges the vessels?

A. Nothing whatever; we don't even know what price they are charging. That is a matter between the Standard Oil Company and the company that had this contract.

Q. You don't know anything about the terms of the contract as between the Standard Oil Company and the vessel owner?
A. Nothing at all.

(Recross-examination by Mr. ALLEN:)

Q. Did you investigate to find out whether you could learn anything definite about the El Paso matter?
A. I did, Mr. Allen. I was mistaken in that. I did not find any evidence of a delivery of oil to El Paso, such as was mentioned.
Q. Now, in stating that Mr. H. C. Pierce controlled the policy of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company during the time you have been connected with it, of course you mean all the time excepting during the time that Mr. Tinsley was assuming—assumed control?
A. I do.

At 12.45 P. M. Court adjourned until 2.30 P. M.

1108 Court opens at 2.30 P. M.

Mr. ALLEN: We next offer in evidence the cross-examination of Mr. ANDREW M. FINLAY.

(Cross-examination by Mr. ALLEN:)

Q. Mr. Finlay, from the time of the organization of the new company in May, 1900, up to April, 1904—or '5, was it?—that you were President?
A. Up to June, 1905.
Q. June, 1905. Mr. Tinsley came here in April, 1904, I believe?
A. I think that is about the time.
Q. And left the following April, was it, or May?
A. No, I think it was the last of May, or the first of June. I think it was probably the very last day of May, the last days of May.
Q. He resigned his office as Vice President in June, at the June meeting?
A. Yes. He left suddenly. I did not see him at all, after I got back from Europe.

"It is agreed, in connection with the testimony of this witness, the suit of the State of Missouri against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was filed on the 29th of March, 1905."

Q. Now, to refresh your memory, you stated that you knew when Mr. Tinsley left St. Louis. Isn't it the fact that he left when you were away?
A. I was in the city when he left.
Q. Had you returned from Europe then?
A. I had. I was out at my house. I did not feel like coming down to the office at that time.
Q. And your impression is that it was the latter part of May that he left the city?
A. I think so.
Q. Do you know where he is now?
1109 A. I do not know where he is.
Q. Have you any information about it?

A. Not a bit.

Q. While you were President of the company, up to the time that Mr. Tinsley came here and undertook to run the company, what were your duties with reference to handling the requisitions for supplies of oil to be sold by the company? That is, if one of your Division Managers in Texas, for example, should make a requisition on the General Manager for certain supplies to be delivered at points in Texas, did you have anything to do with that?

A. Yes, the freights would play a part in that.

Q. I am not asking about that, but the order itself—would it come through your hands, through your department?

A. At that time?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't think it did at that time; I am not clear. It has changed from time to time. Sometimes it would come into Mr. Ackert's room. At present it is coming into my room now.

Q. I am asking about it originally. Who orders those supplies, and who did during this time?

A. They are placed by Mr. Adams' Department.

Q. They were during that time?

A. I think they were.

Q. Were they transmitted by your department to his department, or by Mr. Ackert's department to his department?

A. I think by Mr. Ackert's department.

Q. You did not handle them?

A. I don't think I did at the time.

Q. Do you know anything of your own personal knowledge of how they were placed?

A. I have never seen—well, I have seen the forms used in Mr. Adams' office.

1110 Q. I mean where they were sent to,—requisitions made by the division officers, the officers of this company. Suppose a Division Manager in Texas wanted a supply of oils for any part of Texas, to go to points in Texas,—he would make a requisition upon the General Manager, and that requisition would then be approved, would it not—or disapproved? And if it was approved, it went to Mr. Adams' department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then Mr. Adams, what did he do with it?

A. He would have an order made out on the regular form of order, with the number.

Q. Where would he send the order?

A. If it was for oil to be shipped from St. Louis, it would go from his office to our works here.

Q. Suppose that it was from the Corsicana refinery, or the refinery at Whiting, Indiana, where would it go?

A. If it was from Whiting, Indiana, it would go to Mr. E. Bogardus.

Q. Where?

A. Chicago.

Q. If it was from Corsicana, a Corsicana refinery, wouldn't it go to the same place?

A. At that time?
Q. Yes, at that time?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. It would also go to E. Bogardus?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who determined—this is what I want to get at—who determined the points from which the shipments should be made—the Waters-Pierce Oil Company or the Standard Oil Company?
A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company, by all means. Dependent on the cost of the oil and on the cost of the transportation.

Q. And you sent your orders in to Mr. Bogardus, and you 1111 designated where they should be shipped from?

A. We decided before the order was forwarded where it should be shipped.
Q. And instructed Mr. Bogardus whether you wanted them shipped from Whiting or Corsicana?
A. Corsicana, or from Beaumont.
Q. The Security Company?
A. No, sir, not the Security Company.
Q. You did not send orders to him for the Security?
A. No, sir.
Q. Where were they sent?
A. They were not in existence at that time.
Q. When did they come into existence? Were they not organized in 1901? Well, I want to get at it in a general way. After they were organized, and you began buying from them, did not requisitions also come to Mr. Bogardus?
A. No, sir.
Q. They were sent direct to the company—to New York?
A. They were sent—they always have been sent direct from here to our agent in Beaumont, or Sawyer, and he would in turn place it with the refinery.
Q. With the Security Company?
A. Yes, or the Gulf Company, or the Texas Company, whoever it was.
Q. Now, these orders—you purchased the great bulk of your supplies for Texas and elsewhere from the Standard Oil Company, or its interests, of course? That is, the Corsicana refinery, or the refinery at Whiting, or Sugar Creek or Neodesha, Kansas, or these places known as the Standard Oil Company's places?
A. That is correct, the bulk of them.

Q. You don't know whether the Gulf or Texas Company is 1112 operated by the Standard or not?

A. No, sir, I do not.
Q. Now, in placing these orders, did you get quotations from these different refineries or the Standard, in place of placing the order, or did they quote you the prices from time to time and you simply placed the orders then, based on those quotations?
A. They quote us the prices at which they will sell us the oils at the different refineries that we would place the orders with for shipment from, depending on the freight rates as to where we would tell them to make the shipments from, or which refinery we would tell them to make it from.

Q. I understood you to say that Mr. Stephen Johnson was Manager of the Lubricating Department at one time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is Mr. Horn in his department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This department that was formerly his?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are Mr. Horn's initials?

A. E. S., I think.

Q. Do you know his handwriting?

A. I think I do, yes, sir.

Q. That "'Lubricating Department"—in whose handwriting is that, in your opinion? That is Mr. Horn's writing, isn't it?

A. To me it looks like Ed. Horn's, yes.

Q. And this is his stamp upon that letter?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is that the character of quotation that you usually got from the Standard people, when they were quoting you the full list of prices—of course, I understand from time to time you got 1113 quotations for the small quantities, or rather the small number of grades of oils—two or three grades perhaps?

"Mr. JOHNSON: I want you to identify that paper that you have handed the witness, which he is testifying from now.

"Mr. ALLEN: Yes, I will."

Q. Do you know Mr. McNall's handwriting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have received a great many letters from him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is signed by Mr. McNall, isn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, attached to it is a list of a great number of kinds of different oils, and the prices quoted, is there not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what I am getting at, is that the ordinary way they had of advising you of what the prices were, when they gave you a general price list, during the time Mr. McNall was Commercial Agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company? Those things were usually transmitted through you, were they not?

A. Not always. The prices that I referred to as receiving myself were on refined oils and gasolines, principally; these appertain to lubricating oils—and were taken up in the Lubricating Department, of the business.

Q. All that pertained to the lubricating oils usually came to you?

A. The refined and the gasoline came to me.

Q. Through Mr. McNall?

A. Not always through Mr. McNall.

Q. But they usually came to you either through Mr. McNall or direct from the refineries?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the lubricating oils and things of that sort went to 1114 Mr. Stephen Johnson?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was head of that department?

A. The Manager of the Lubricating Department.

"Mr. JOHNSON: Won't you indicate that letter, so as to identify it?

"Mr. ALLEN: We offer in evidence the letter dated June 15th, 1904, addressed to Mr. S. Johnson, and signed by Mr. R. H. McNall. Also the list thereto attached, being the letter identified by the witness, and signed by Mr. McNall, marked by the Commissioner 'Plaintiff's Exhibit No. Z.'"

"Mr. JOHNSON: We object to the introduction of the three legal sized sheets attached to the letter, because there is nothing to indicate that they are a part of the letter or referred to in the letter."

Q. Now, Mr. Finlay, during the time that the Executive Committee of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company existed you were a member of that Committee, were you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did that Committee fix prices at which you would sell oils and other commodities in the State of Texas, or who did fix prices?

A. They were passed on by the General Manager's office, by myself. Recommendations made to the Committee.

Q. And then if approved by the Committee they were promulgated by the General Manager, were they not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take part, either as General Manager or as President or as a member of the Executive Committee, in the consultations about the fixing of those prices?

A. When I was present.

Q. Well, you were President of the Company?

A. I say, when I was present in the meetings; I may not 1115 always have been in the meetings.

Q. You attended them pretty regular, didn't you?

A. Yes, when I was here I did.

Q. Upon what did you base your prices? What did you take into consideration in fixing prices?

A. The cost.

Q. The cost of what?

A. The cost of oils that might be under discussion, freight, and local conditions, cost of marketing, handling and everything that pertained to the cost of the oil before it is marketed.

Q. What do you mean by "local conditions"?

A. There are points where we may make delivery by tank wagon, we may make delivery by iron barrels, or by cans, and we may make delivery at the warehouse.

Q. Oh, of course, they are details. I mean in general. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Finlay, that in fixing your prices that the two prime factors in fixing prices for localities were, first, the cost of the products, and second, competition, whether or not you had competition at that point?

A. Not altogether? There may be jobbing centers.

Q. Well, that would be competition?

A. That is what I say.

Q. Those are the two prime factors. Of course, there are other conditions, local conditions that would enter into it, but the two prime factors in fixing prices, of course, would be the cost to you, including the freights and markets, and the original refinery costs, and whether or not you had competition at the points?

A. Just exactly as any competitor would fix his prices or any wholesale house in any line of business.

Q. Exactly, and that is the way that those things are fixed?

A. Yes, sir.

1116 Q. Those are the two prime factors that you take into consideration in fixing the prices?

A. The cost, competition and local conditions.

Q. Now, do you have any sort of supervision or control of the Lubricating Department as to what prices they shall sell oils?

A. The Lubricating Department handles its own business.

Q. You have nothing to do with the fixing of the prices in the Lubricating Department?

A. Not at that time. They fixed them in that Department.

Q. Isn't it the fact that very many of the oils and commodities that were sold by the Lubricating Department were fixed absolutely by the Standard Oil people in advance?

A. No, sir.

Q. That is not true?

A. That is not true.

Q. Didn't Mr. Silas H. Payne, who is at the head of the Lubricating Department of the Standard Oil Company, at No. 26 Broadway, fix absolutely the prices at which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company would sell all of their trade mark brands, what are known as the trade mark brands?

A. I am not posted as to that. I didn't know that Mr. Silas H. Payne had any correspondence with——

Q. Look at the left hand corner of the letter there, the Lubricating Department, and see what initials are up there in the left hand corner, very small letters?

A. I will have to get on my glasses for that. That is S. H. P. up there.

Q. Yes. Do you know anything about the methods or procedure by which Mr. McNall would get his information that he communicated to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Nothing whatever.

1117 Q. Don't you know that it was the fact and that Mr. McNall has so testified, that he got information from the different Departments of the Standard Oil Company at No. 26 Broadway and that the letters written—he would write the letters upon the stationery of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and in the left hand corner would put or have put the initials of the persons from whom he got the information?

A. Only from what you are telling me now.

Q. You never investigated that to know anything about that?

A. No, sir.

Q. So what I am telling you now is news to you?

A. I don't know a thing about that except what you have told me here.

Q. Well, did you learn anything of that sort when you were President of the company?

A. No, sir.

Q. While McNall was Commercial Agent under you?

A. No, sir, these letters went direct to the Lubricating Department.

Q. Who employed McNall?

A. Mr. H. C. Pierce.

Q. Did you supervise or instruct him at all?

A. Mr. Pierce when he employed Mr. McNall told me to give McNall information that he asked for and to address him there as our Commercial Agent.

Q. Mr. Pierce instructed you as he has testified heretofore, as he did all the other heads of departments here, to give McNall, as the representative of the Standard Oil Company, any information or reports that he desired?

A. As the representative of the Standard Oil Company?

Q. Yes, that is what Mr. Pierce has testified.

A. He didn't say that to me.

"Mr. JOHNSON: I object to that question as assuming that that is the testimony.

1118 "Mr. ALLEN: I am only stating to him what Mr. Pierce has testified to.

"Mr. JOHNSON: It is not proper to predicate a question to this witness on what another witness may have testified to. You could ask the witness as to the specific facts, but not in a hypothetical way, and a way that the question is framed.

"Mr. ODELL: And in addition to that, he has stated that he was not present at the time that Mr. Pierce testified, and of his own knowledge he does not know what he testified to.

"Mr. ALLEN: Is that a fact?

"Mr. ODELL: Were you present when Mr. Pierce testified?"

A. I was not. I never heard one word of his testimony anywhere with reference to this case.

Q. Do you know anything about the purpose of having Mr. McNall appointed Commercial Agent?

A. Mr. McNall?

Q. Yes, Mr. McNall?

A. Mr. Pierce employed McNall, but I know nothing more than what I was told to do, by him, or by Mr. Johnson for Mr. Pierce, to address any correspondence with reference to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to McNall, who had been appointed as Commercial Agent in New York.

Q. You were President of the company?

A. Yes, sir. Mr. Pierce was a very large stockholder.

Q. The Standard Oil Company owned twice as much stock as he did, didn't they, at that time?

A. If Standard Oil owned it at that time.
Q. Well, you don't know whether it did?
A. I don't know who owned the stock. The certificate book will show that.
Q. All that you know, then, about McNall's employment is what Mr. Pierce communicated to you?
1119 A. That is all.
Q. Were you ever there during the time of his employment?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. As a representative of the company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you see Mr. McNall?
A. I saw Mr. McNall.
Q. Did you discuss matters with him at that time?
A. Well, I have seen him principally when I was on my vacation going up to Maine, stopped there on my way back.
Q. He was in Mr. H. M. Tilford's office?
A. H. M. Tilford was formerly a director of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company—that is, the old company.
Q. And was at the time it went out of business in 1900?
A. I believe he was at that time. I know he was at one time.
Q. Mr. Tilford requested you on one or more occasions, did he not, to come to New York and talk over the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company with him and others at No. 26 Broadway after its organization in 1900?
A. I think Mr. Tilford asked me.
Q. How many times did you go in response to those requests?
A. I remember once passing through New York from Kennebuck Port, Maine, going down to New York and stopping on the way home.
Q. How many times do you remember of going in response to those requests that he made?
A. I don't recollect more than that one time, in answer to him.
Q. You were there at other times, dropped in incidentally?
A. Not very often.
Q. Now, what phases of the business did you discuss with Mr. Tilford?
A. My talk on that particular occasion was with Mr.
1120 McNall.
Q. Well, I understood you to say that McNall and Tilford were in the same room?
A. Tilford was in the same room, but I had but very little talk with McNall.
Q. Was he present at your conversation with McNall?
A. No, sir, he was in and out of the room. Matters pertaining to the business I took up with McNall. He had statements sent to him from this office that Mr. Pierce requested should be sent, anything that he asked for, and he would discuss with me different matters.
Q. What sort of statements?
A. Statements with reference to sales of oil in iron barrels, maybe the question of where we would buy the iron barrels, whether in the East, or Detroit, or here in St. Louis. Those were matters of detail that would come up.

Q. Would you give any instructions to McNall about buying supplies for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as to where he would buy them, or where he should buy them?

A. Such orders as we placed with McNall we generally knew where we were going to get the supplies.

Q. Where would you know you were going to get them?

A. Mr. Adams would know.

Q. You said you would know?

A. I would know if anything pertaining to refined oil or gasoline, but very few of those orders were going to McNall.

Q. Where would you know that you were going to get them if you placed them with him?

A. From shipments we placed from him, for instance, from Galveston we would have a quotation quoting refined oil from the Eastern refinery f. o. b. at point of shipment, possibly at Galveston or Mexico.

Q. Don't you know that McNall did not buy any refined oils of any sort upon orders of that kind except from the Standard 1121 Oil Company or some of its interests? Didn't you know it at the time that these orders were placed with him, that it was bought from them?

A. Not necessarily, for I would not pass on all the bills.

Q. Well, the ones that you knew about. Of course, some of them would not go through your department.

A. There was very little of the refined oil or gasoline that was bought in that way.

Q. I don't care whether little or much. Didn't you know that all these orders that were placed, that they were going to be placed with the Standard Oil Company or its interests?

A. I did not know it if they were going to be, nor did I know that they were.

Q. Well, what did you mean by your statement that you know where they would be placed at the time you sent the orders?

A. Following up a quotation, if we had a quotation of a shipment from New York, that quotation would be from a certain interest or company. It would be maybe the Bayonne refinery. The bills never came to me. That would go into the other Department. I never would see them, but Mr. Adams would.

Q. I understand. The Bayonne refinery is a Standard Oil refinery in New Jersey, isn't it?

A. I believe so, I don't know except what I see in the papers.

Q. I don't want, Mr. Finlay, to be unfair with you or anything of that sort. All that I want is the facts, and of course, if you don't know, that is all right, and if you do know, say so, and we will get along very rapidly. The point is this: Can you give me a single instance of orders that were ever placed with McNall for refined oils of any kind that were not supplied by the Standard Oil Company or some of its allied companies?

A. I don't know its allied companies, therefore I couldn't answer the question.

1122 Q. What is your information about it?

A. I have no information on that.

Q. You have no information about any of its allied companies?

A. I don't know a thing about them only what I have seen in the papers and what I picked up from hearsay and from supposition; nobody has ever told me what companies the Standard control.

Q. And you made no inquiries about it?

A. I made no inquiries about it.

Q. Did you ever give any instructions to McNall about who he should buy from?

A. Mr. Adams' Department placed the orders with McNall.

Q. You placed no orders with him at all?

A. Not with Mr. McNall.

Q. Now, how long have you been connected with the Executive Department, the home office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

"Mr. JOHNSON: You mean the present company?

"Mr. ALLEN: Both of them."

A. For 18 or 19 years; that is, in different positions.

Q. The old company ceased to do business in 1900, in May, didn't it, and a new company was organized in May, 1900, was it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What position did you occupy with the old company for a period of a few years before its going out of business?

A. Only a few months.

Q. Well, for a few months?

A. I was President.

Q. Well, before that time?

A. I have been Vice President.

Q. How long?

A. Oh, ten or twelve years.

Q. Were you connected during all this time with the Sales

1123 Department or what Department?

A. The Traffic and Sales Department. There were others that I had something to say about.

Q. You were principally connected with those two departments?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In your connection with the Traffic and Sales Departments did you become familiar with your representatives in different localities and the territory in which you were marketing oil and commodities that were being sold and manufactured for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Not after 1900, only with the Managers. I ceased to cover the small stations after I was made Vice President.

Q. What were your duties as Vice President?

A. Traffic, general supervision of the business including the construction of equipment, and prices, fixing the prices, fixing the salaries of the employés, and others.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the supervision of agents, either in an advisory or actual capacity?

A. Not with agents. We never came in contact with agents.
Q. With the Division Managers?
A. We came in contact with the Division Managers, yes, sir.
Q. Do you know Mr. LeRoy Campbell of San Antonio?
A. Well, I met him.
Q. Do you know anything about a contract that was made with him by which his business was purchased at San Antonio?
A. I know of a contract made by a brother of mine, the same initials as mine, made for the company.
Q. It was made for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. When was that contract made, about?
A. Why, I should judge about twelve or fifteen years ago.
Q. It was made by the old company?
1124 A. Yes, sir.
Q. After the organization of the new company how long did Mr. Campbell continue in the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at San Antonio?
A. After the new company?
Q. Yes, how long was he in the employ of it?
A. I can not recall unless I would refer back.
Q. Well, about how long?
A. I have no recollection.
Q. Do you know whether a day, or a year, or three years?
A. It may have been a year, or it may have been three years. I couldn't tell.
Q. Well, it was a considerable period of time?
A. I may be wrong as to when my brother first entered into an agreement of some sort with Mr. Campbell. It may not have been as long as 12 years; may not have been more than 10 years. I don't remember how long.

"Mr. JOHNSON: The contract was made in 1894 and Mr. Campbell was discharged by the new company in 1904."

A. Well, then, I didn't miss it very much.
Q. Mr. Campbell was conducting the oil business at San Antonio on a small scale, was he not?
A. My recollection of Mr. Campbell was that he was in the grain or commission business in connection with the retail oil business.
Q. Yes, retailing oil on a small scale?
A. That is as I recollect it.
Q. At San Antonio?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company bought him out, did they not, and put him on a salary or commission?
A. I think it was a salary.
1125 "Mr. JOHNSON: Which company?
"Mr. ALLEN: The old Waters-Pierce Company."

Q. That was in 1894?
A. In 1894.

Q. Six years before it went out of business?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. After the new company was organized it continued Mr. Campbell in its employ under that contract, did it not?
A. I believe so.
Q. And paid him his salary under that contract?
A. I believe so.
Q. Up until about 1904?
A. Yes, sir, at the time that he wanted to go out.
Q. Well, he was discharged, or quit, did he?
A. Well, I think it was mutual. It was a mutual agreement.
Q. Do you know Mr. Clem, at Dallas, the Eagle Refining Company?
A. Well, yes, sir, I knew him years ago.
Q. Do you know anything about the contract that was made with the Eagle Refining Company? I don't mean the details, but in a general way?
A. Mr. H. C. Pierce knows about that.
Q. Personally he made the contract?
A. I think he did.
Q. And you as connected with the executive department of the company, did you ever have anything to do with the carrying out of that contract to pay Mr. Clem a salary?
A. No, sir, I did not.
Q. You do know that for some years after the reorganization of this company——
A. He was the agent.
1126 Q. They continued to pay him a salary to operate the Eagle Refining Company?
A. I think as agent, yes, sir.
Q. The Eagle Refining Company ceased to do business in 1904, didn't it?
A. Yes, sir, as well as I remember.
Q. Mr. Clem ceased to be in the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company about that time?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The Eagle Refining Company was engaged in selling oils at Dallas, Texas, was it not, originally?
A. Well, Dallas and tributary territory. That was their headquarters.
Q. Do you know anything about its operations after it was purchased by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company as to how it was run or operated?
A. That was handled under—I think it was my brother.
Q. You know personally nothing about the handling of it?
A. No, sir, I have no knowledge of the details.
Q. Mr. Finlay, as a matter of fact when the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company ceased to do business in May, 1900, and the new company began to do business about the 31st of May, 1900, there was practically no change in the business, except in some officers of the company, was there, of the two concerns?

A. You mean their method of handling the business?

Q. Yes, and the employés, and the territory in which they operated?

A. I think the employés were all discharged, and——

Q. They were discharged by the old company, and in the same mail were employed by the new company?

A. That is a legal proposition that I have nothing to do with.

Q. You were the President. Didn't you write the letters?

A. Mr. Pierce and Mr. Johnson handled that.

1127 Q. But you were President of the old company at that time that it went out of existence?

A. I presume letters were sent out that way.

Q. Didn't you send letters under your signature discharging those employés, and don't you know that Pierce sent a letter at the same time employing them in the same capacity and for the same salary in the new company?

A. I think that is correct.

Q. Now, the territory continued to be the same in which business was done, did it not?

A. So far as I remember, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know or did you ever hear Mr. Pierce say what the territory was of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for the handling and retailing of oil?

A. The wholesaling of oil?

Q. I mean the selling of oils, the commodities of the company?

A. When I first came to St. Louis I was superintendent of divisions, and there were statements which showed the towns in each division where they were doing business, and that is all that I had to guide me.

Q. Didn't you have a map in the office which showed the towns?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Did you ever see any map of that sort?

A. I have a recollection of seeing a map, but I couldn't remember the lines of the map.

Q. Oh, I don't ask you for the lines. Don't you know that there was a map?

A. There was one.

Q. They kept a map showing the divisions of the territory?

A. I think in Missouri division office there was.

Q. Everybody connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Com-

1128 pany, that is, the manager's department, knew that the whole of Texas was in the Waters-Pierce territory, of course, and there was no necessity for having lines?

A. Yes, sir, that is a fact. I never saw any map with reference to Texas.

Q. Of course. This map was with reference to Missouri; and did you have one with reference to Louisiana, also?

A. I don't remember of ever seeing such a map.

Q. Well, it is a fact that you did not do business East of the Mississippi in Louisiana. It was only West of the Mississippi in Louisiana?

A. That is true, I think. We did do business away back beyond up to ten miles somewhere up along the river.

Q. Yes. Now, all of these territorial lines continued to be observed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company after the new company was organized the same as the old one, did it not?

A. I don't know of any change.

Q. Well, of course you were connected with that company as its President and would have known if there had been any change?

A. I think I would have known it.

Q. You never agreed or instructed any change to me made?

A. No, sir.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. I believe that you stated that you had nothing to do with the practical workings of the lubricating department—that is, as to the filling of orders?

A. I have more now than I used to.

Q. I mean up to the time that Tinsley left?

A. No.

(Redirect examination by Mr. JOHNSON:)

1129 Q. Mr. Finlay, when Mr. McNall was first employed by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company he had his office at No. 26 Broadway, New York City, did he?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Established his office there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All communications were addressed to him at that number?

A. Yes. sir.

Q. Do you know when the change was made from 26 Broadway to 75 New Street?

A. I don't recollect the date.

Q. In 1904, was it?

A. I think it was about that time.

Q. Did you or the company have anything to do with the change, or know anything about it?

A. No, except a request from Mr. McNall to address all mail to him in the future to 75 New Street.

Q. Don't you recollect, Mr. Finlay, when you received that letter from Mr. McNall, that you referred that to the General Counsel of the company, who advised against any such change being made?

A. I remember that.

Q. You advised Mr. McNall of the decision of the General Counsel of the company, did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Notwithstanding that, Mr. McNall insisted on having his mail addressed to that number?

A. Yes sir.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. Since you testified, Mr. Finlay, have you refreshed your memory as to the manner in which quotations or information was given to the company from time to time as to the changes in prices, 1130 refinery prices, on refined oil and petroleum?

A. I was thinking over that last night. I recollect, of course, those quotations which I got out of the file this morning.

Q. You have read the letters over, have you, that you referred to?

A. I just glanced at them, to see that they were in the nature of what I was looking for,—quotations from the S. O. Company at Chicago, for the price of oils, and gasolines, to be delivered to us as we might call for them, at the different refineries specified in the quotations.

Q. Just state generally, now, who the quotations were received from, in a general way, and how they came?

A. They were—on refined oils and gasolines and naphtha, they were received by me from Mr. W. P. Cowen, who is Vice President of the Standard Oil Company in Chicago, and the Gulf Refining Company—I think that was addressed to Mr. Ackert, and the Security is addressed to me, I think. I don't recollect that exactly. You have it there.

Q. Well, speaking generally of the method in which quotations were made?

A. They were received in writing from the different parties.

Q. Announcing any change in the refinery or wholesale prices of oils sold to the company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they were received from others besides the Standard Oil Company of Indiana or the Gulf Refining Company?

A. From the Texas Company at Beaumont, and the Security Oil Company, at Beaumont.

Q. Any others?

A. I have not looked for any others, because they only referred to——

Q. Do you recollect, now, any occasion that you received quotations from other companies, other than these?

1131 A. No, I received quotations from Mr. McNall, of the export New York prices.

Q. Those were export prices on crude oil?

A. Yes, and refined oils, too. We had very little to do with the cost of crude—very few shipments of that nature from New York.

Q. Those were refined oils?

A. Refined oils—gasoline.

Q. What were the shipments mostly from New York or Philadelphia, or any Eastern point? What were the shipments mostly? What was the character of the oil?

A. Crude oil, from Philadelphia, was the largest,—to Mexico.

(Recross-examination by Mr. ALLEN:)

Q. I also have here, Mr. Finlay, a telegram dated Chicago, 8-25-'06, addressed to you as V. P. of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, at St. Louis, Missouri, and signed by W. P. Cowen, reading: "We can not make any reduction in the prices V. M. and P. Naphtha." Can you explain that?

A. That evidently was in answer to a request from me for a reduction on the prices.

Q. The price that they had quoted to you on those grades?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, these purport to be original letters, as testified by you; they are original letters in your possession received by you in the regular course of mail?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. ALLEN: In connection with this deposition we offer in evidence the letter as being written by McNall, has the initials "S. H. P." on the left hand corner, general price-list, and is stamped, "Received June 18, 1904. Answered E. S. H." It is addressed, "Mr.
1132 S. Johnson, St. Louis, Mo." The price list is also read in part, and all considered in evidence.

Judge STEDMAN: Was a copy of that attached to the letter you introduced before?

Mr. ALLEN: No. This letter was not introduced before. I am introducing it now. This is the letter that has just been proved up.

Judge STEDMAN: There is nothing there to make it appear that the list that you are reading was the list that accompanied McNall's letter.

Mr. ALLEN: Of course, it is only proved up in that way. I identified this letter by Mr. Horn as being received by him, and I identified then the list, all this memoranda on the list, as being made in his department.

Judge STEDMAN: Then we insist on our objection that there is nothing showing that that list is the schedule of prices referred to in McNall's letter.

Mr. ALLEN: In order to get at it at this time, because I want to introduce it, I will introduce that part of Mr. Horn's deposition in regard to it. It is on page 317 of this deposition.

(Portion of deposition of E. S. HORN:)

Q. I wish you would examine this letter and see if you have ever seen it before. That letter is dated New York, June 15, 1904, addressed to Mr. S. Johnson, St. Louis, Mo., and purports to be signed by R. H. McNall, and is marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit Z, cross examination of A. M. Finlay." Whose handwriting is that memoranda there, "Lubricating oil", in?

A. Mr. Coombs'.

Q. In your department?

A. He was at that time, yes, sir.

Q. Now, there is a stamp on it, "Received June 18, 1904.
1133 Answered E. S. H." Whose stamp is that?

A. That is mine.

Q. "E. S. H." are your initials?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember that letter and that price list?

A. I do not recollect it.

Q. Examine the price list, especially the extreme left hand margin, the memoranda in red ink. Tell me in whose handwriting that is.

A. That is one of the clerks upstairs.

Q. In the office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does that indicate to your mind?

A. That indicates a change of price.

Q. That was checked by the clerk in your department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have no independent recollection of that particular list?

A. No, sir.

Q. And the memoranda you recognize as being in the handwriting of one of the clerks in your department—that is, the department with which you are connected?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it indicates that the decline was checked. All declines are checked, are they not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is true of all three of the sheets, is it not? I am speaking of the notations in red ink?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. JOHNSON:) When were those check-marks put on there? When were the prices reduced that those check-marks indicate?

A. I do not think there was any change in the selling 1134 price.

Q. You mean those check-marks indicate——

A. The selling price to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and this price here in the circular, the red ink price, is the difference between the former cost and what this made it.

Q. That is, it is a change in the price previous to the receipt of the circular that the company had been paying the refinery for those oils?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. ALLEN: Now, that is the testimony that we offer in connection with the letter and the circular.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, we still insist on our objection, that there is not anything showing that the price list offered in evidence is the schedule referred to in the McNall letter. This witness says he does not remember it.

Mr. ALLEN: It does not make any difference whether it accompanied the McNall letter or not. We prove that up as having been a circular letter, as having been received by them and checked over by a clerk in the department to indicate the decline, and whether it is the identical letter spoken of there is immaterial. We prove that they received it and acted on it, and he testifies to that fact, and testifies to the handwriting on each page.

Judge STEDMAN: Further, there is nothing to indicate when that price list was issued.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

The COURT: What is the date of that letter?

Mr. ALLEN: The date of the letter is June 15th, and the price list is dated June 14th.

(Thereupon the letter and price list were introduced in evidence.)

1135 Mr. ALLEN: We now read Stephen Johnson's testimony, beginning with Direct Examination, page 268.

(Direct examination by Mr. JOHNSON:)

Q. What is your name?
A. Stephen Johnson?
Q. What is your age?
A. 71 years.
Q. What is your residence?
A. St. Louis, Missouri.
Q. What is your occupation?
A. I am out of business now.
Q. How long have you been out of business?
A. Since October last year.
Q. What was your employment up to that time?
A. I was Manager of the Lubricating Department of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. You have been associated with Mr. H. C. Pierce a great many years in the oil business, have you not?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You were with him prior to the organization of the first Waters-Pierce Oil Company in May, 1878?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You became connected with that company when it was organized?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And remained with it until it was dissolved?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. In what capacity? What position was it you held with the company?
A. In the first place I was city salesman.
Q. You took charge of the Lubricating Department?

1136 A. I took charge of the Lubricating Department very soon after the company was organized, I think.

Q. And continued as Manager of that department in the old company down to the time of its dissolution?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. When the new company was organized you took charge of the Lubricating Department as Manager of it?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And continued in that position down to last October?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. By the Lubricating Department you mean the department which had charge of the sales of lubricating oils, as distinguished from the refined oils and other products of the company that they dealt in?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew of Mr. McNall and the connection that he had with the company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the year 1904?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Silas H. Payne, too, didn't you?

A. I did, yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what company he was with during March, 1904?

A. Mr. Payne?

Q. Yes.

A. I suppose he was representing the Lubricating Department of the Standard Oil Company.

Q. I show you a copy of a letter dated March 24th, 1904, addressed to Mr. S. Johnson, signed R. H. McNall, the original of which is attested by Mr. F. H. Sanborn, Special Commissioner appointed to take depositions in this case, and is endorsed by Mr. Sanborn "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 8, F. H. S.," the original letter being made an exhibit to the deposition of R. H. McNall taken in 1137 New York City. Read the copy of this letter through, and see whether you can recollect ever having received the original of that letter. (Paper handed to witness for inspection.)

"Mr. JOHNSON: Mr. Allen, have you the original of that letter here?

"Mr. ALLEN: No, sir. That is attached to Mr. McNall's deposition,—the original of that.

"Mr. JOHNSON: And that has been——

"Mr. ALLEN: That has been forwarded to Austin.

"Mr. JOHNSON: By the Commissioner?

"Mr. ALLEN: By the Commissioner, yes, sir.

"Mr. JOHNSON: With Mr. McNall's deposition?

"Mr. ALLEN: With Mr. McNall's deposition, yes, sir. Do you want to identify this as having been received by him?

"Mr. JOHNSON: Well, I asked him whether he could recollect having received such a letter."

A. I don't think I ever saw that letter.

Q. What makes you think so?

A. In March, 1904, I was absent from the city. I am very sure about that. I went to California, and I did not return to St. Louis until the 15th of April.

Q. You were absent during the entire month of March, 1904?

A. Yes, I left on the 14th or 15th of February of that year and was in California until I returned here on the 14th, I think, of April.

Q. At that time did you have an assistant in your department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was it?

A. Mr. E. S. Horn. I see that he has initialed the letter, also.

Q. Was he in charge of the Lubricating Department during your absence?

A. He looked after the correspondence and the prices.

Q. Well, did he attend—did he handle the inside business 1138 in connection with you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. If a letter was received during your absence, it was opened and read by Mr. Horn?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. If any action was taken on it, it was taken by him?

A. Yes, sir.

(Cross-examination by Mr. ALLEN:)

Q. What relation are you to Mr. H. C. Pierce?

A. I am a brother-in-law. I married his sister.

Q. I will ask you to examine this letter, which is Plaintiff's Exhibit Z, to the cross examination of Mr. A. M. Finlay, marked F. H. S., being attached to the deposition of Mr. A. M. Finlay, taken before Special Commissioner F. H. Sanborn, and ask you to carefully examine that letter and also the price lists attached thereto, and call your particular attention to the memoranda in red ink on the left hand side of this price list, and also a memorandum on the face of the letter in pencil, "Lubricating Department", and I will ask you if you recognize whose handwriting either of those memoranda are in?

A. You mean just under the date here, where it says "Lubricating oil"?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know whose handwriting that is.

Q. To refresh your memory, isn't that Mr. Horn's—Mr. E. S. Horn?

A. I don't know. I could not swear that that is his writing.

Q. All right. Now, you say that Mr. Horn was your assistant in the Lubricating Department, and looks after the mails, especially during your absence, and the prices and the things of that sort. What was the custom in the department about the date of this letter, when letters were received, as to whether or not they were stamped "Received" by anybody, or I will get you to tell me
1139 whether you recognize that stamp which is on there, "Received"?

A. I would recognize that as Mr. Horn's stamp.

Q. That was a stamp that was customary for him to put on mail that he handled?

A. Yes, sir.

(Portion omitted.)

Q. You don't know whose handwriting that is?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Johnson, who furnished you the prices at which the lubricating oils should be sold? Who gave you those prices? Did you personally fix the prices at which—or did some one else furnish them to you?

A. I almost always fixed them myself.

Q. Did you handle any lubricating oils of the Standard Oil Company which were known as trade mark brands?

A. Some.

Q. To what extent?

A. Well, quite a large extent.

Q. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company manufactures lubricating oils, does it not?

A. Yes, some kinds.

Q. Do you manufacture all grades, or just certain grades?

A. We manufacture certain grades.

Q. And you bought certain grades of the manufactured products of the Standard Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, those grades of the manufactured product that were furnished you by the Standard Oil Company for sale, or bought by you from them for sale, known as trade mark brands, isn't it the fact that invariably Mr. Silas H. Payne, who was at the head of the Lubricating Department, as you say, of the Standard Oil 1140 Company, gave you the prices at which those particular brands should be sold?

A. No, sir, I think not.

Q. Well, you say you think not. Don't you know that that was the fact—that he did that invariably. And that they came in the shape of letters, either from him direct or from Mr. McNall, Commercial Agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at New York?

A. There may have been some of the trade mark brands that had minimum prices.

Q. Well, of course, they did not have maximum prices for them?

A. Minimum——

Q. Well, what prices?

A. Minimum cost price of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and we would not go below that, usually. Those were prices that we would name for the minimum even price, on that.

Q. The minimum even price would be named for certain particular brands, at times?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And isn't it a fact, Mr. Johnson, that you invariably conformed to those prices, to avoid any friction with the Standard Oil Company, in having several prices?

A. Well, we did not conform to their prices unless it was consistent with our ideas of the profits that we could make on the oils.

Q. Oh, I do not mean invariably, but I am talking now about the special instances that you mention.

A. They might suggest prices, and if they were agreeable to our ideas we would adopt them.

Q. What do you mean by "agreeable"?

A. Depending upon the conditions and whether we were able to hold the trade on their prices, or whether it would be necessary to go below those prices in order to get it; we would do that.

1141 Q. What do you mean by minimum prices that were fixed? Maximum prices were never quoted to you by them, were they?

A. No, sir, I think not.

Q. Only minimum prices?

A. It was the minimum cost price that we could get.

Q. What do you mean by the cost price?

A. What it would cost us, in buying from the Standard Oil Company.

Q. Well, you would know what the quotations would be. Did you make requisitions for those supplies yourself, or did some other department of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company make them?

A. The Lubricating Department made them always.

Q. Your department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Made them always?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, that is the price, then, that was quoted to you—you say they quoted the minimum price, and not the maximum?

A. There was a price that they would not sell—those things were not sold below that. Sometimes they would also furnish prices on those goods; sometimes they would advance their cost price to us on those goods.

Q. But I am speaking about the selling price—the selling price that you should sell those trade mark brands at. In special instances didn't Mr. Payne write to you, either directly or through Mr. McNall, that in special instances the following should be the minimum selling prices, just like this letter, a copy of which was shown you by Colonel Johnson, appearing to be stamped by E. S. H., in which he quotes the minimum selling prices, but not the minimum cost price of certain kinds of oil,—isn't it a fact that that was frequently done by Mr. Payne, either directly or through Mr. McNall, as to these special grades of oil?

1142 (Objected to, as calling for the contents of written documents.)

A. That is, that he would write to us to suggest minimum prices?

Q. Minimum selling prices, yes, sir, as he did in the letter which you have just read that was shown you by Colonel Johnson?

A. I think he did. That letter would indicate that.

Q. That letter would indicate that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you say, of course, as a general thing you promulgated the prices yourself from your department, without suggestions from them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, as to the bulk of the business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, upon what did you base the prices of the different lubricating oil or other products sold by your department? That is, what did you take into consideration in fixing the price?

A. We would take the cost of the oil and the freight to the point where we would sell it, naturally, and a profit that was warranted, in order to compete with other dealers.

Q. Well, to make it plain, when you fixed a price yourself, were not the prime factors that you took into consideration the cost to you—that is, which included the freight and competition. Those two things controlled practically the fixing of prices?

A. The prices we made in different localities.

(Redirect examination by Mr. JOHNSON.)

Q. What are the trade mark brands of oil handled by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company—that is, the ones purchased from the Standard Oil Company?

A. There are a number of brands of cylinder oil and engine oil.

Q. Are they all products of the Galena Signal Oil Company?

A. No, No, they are goods that are supplied that bear the Standard Oil Company's brand and label; supposed to be trade mark brands, I suppose. Whether they were ever trade marked or 1143 not, I don't know. They were put out under the brand of the Standard Oil Company.

Q. And sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under those brands?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sell any lubricating oils under its own brands?

A. It did.

Q. The bulk of the lubricating oil handled and sold by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were sold to the railroads, were they not?

A. A large proportion of them, yes, sir.

Q. What other trade did they sell lubricating oils to? What was called the smokestack trade?

A. The consuming trade—stationary engines, smokestack trade.

Q. Factory and mills?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Establishments of that kind?

A. Yes, used in stationary engines, usually.

Q. Now, Mr. Johnson, you stated that you always fixed the prices at which you sold the lubricating oils to the general trade. Go on and explain what you mean by that.

A. That was fixed in the Lubricating Department; if it was not fixed by me, it was fixed by somebody who was representing me there.

Q. There was never any understanding or agreement as between you and your assistants and the Standard Oil Company at all regarding prices at which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was to sell or did sell the lubricating oils?

A. No, sir.

Q. You never acted upon or accepted suggestions, as a finality, to fix these prices, from suggestions made by Mr. Payne to Mr. McNall, or by Mr. McNall?

(Objected to as leading and suggestive.)

1144 Q. I mean you acted on your own judgment in regard to the fixing of prices, even though suggestions were made to you by Mr. Payne or Mr. McNall?

A. Well, if it was consistent, we acted upon their advice; where it was not, we used our own judgment in obtaining the business.

Q. What do you mean by "if it was consistent?"

A. If the Standard Company suggested it we might do it, but——

Q. If other conditions justified it?

A. That is it.

Q. Then, you were influenced by other conditions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was determined by other conditions?

A. Yes.

Q. Competition and the price at which competitors were selling the same kind of oil?

A. Yes, sir.

(Objected to as leading and suggestive, and as being the testimony of counsel.)

Q. Well, state upon what basis you fixed the price of these trade mark brands of oil which you sold?

A. Well, we would take the cost of the oil to us here, and add the freight to it, and would make a price to the consumer, the party that we wanted to sell to—our customer.

Q. You would add the profit to be realized by the company to that? Would that have anything to do with fixing the price that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company would sell it?

A. We always undertook to get a profit over and above the cost laid down. That was not limited to any amount, because the competition came in, and we would sometimes sell below our regular price, because it was necessary on account of competition.

Q. Well, that entered into it, however—you figured that 1145 the company should realize a profit on those oils?

A. Certainly.

Q. The price at which the competitors were selling the same oils would enter into the determination of the selling price, did it not?

A. It did, yes, sir.

Q. Who determined that point, in fixing the price?

A. It was determined by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, by the Lubricating Department.

Q. Always done that way, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not it is a fact that finally you or the Lubricating Department determined the selling price of these trade mark brands of oil, taking into consideration the matters that you have mentioned?

A. I considered that we did.

Q. Is it not a fact that you did so?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. That that was done?

A. Yes, that is a fact. The prices were actually made by us.

Q. The lubricating oils sold and supplied by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to railroads were generally under contracts to the roads?

A. Always, almost, yes, sir.

Q. What different kinds of oils did you obtain from the Galena Signal Oil Works, or Galena Signal Oil Company—what is the style of the concern?

A. Galena Signal Oil Company. They sold oil, valve oil and oil known as——

Q. The question is, what supplies of oils did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company get from the Galena Signal Oil Company?

A. What brands?

Q. Yes.

1146 A. Perfection Valve Oil and Galena Engine Oil and Galena Car Oil and Perfection Signal Oil.

Q. Any others?

A. I think those were the only brands. There may have been others, but we never handled but very little of it anyway—there was Galena Coach Oil, but there never was but very little of that; that was one of their brands.

Q. Are any of those what you call or designate trade mark brands?

A. Yes, they were considered trade mark brands; whether they were trade marked or not, or patented, I don't know. They were supplied only by that company, under the brands, I think.

Q. Are any of the lubricating oils set out in the list attached to Mr. McNall's letter to you of June 15th, 1904, which is marked Plaintiff's Exhibit Z to the cross examination of A. M. Finlay, the Galena Signal Oil Company's oils you have mentioned?

A. I don't discover any of those oils on here.

Q. Are all the oils enumerated on that list so called trade mark oils?

A. In this list?

Q. Of the Standard Oil Company?

A. I don't think they are. They are oils named there—Mineral Seal, for instance, is an oil that I think is sold by other parties.

Q. How about the others? Look it through and see.

A. Those are all Standard Oil Company's brands.

Q. You mean by that trade mark brands—what you have designated as trade mark oils?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. (Mr. ALLEN:) You, during the time that you were connected with the Lubricating Department, had contracts and under those contracts furnished lubricating oils to most of the railroads in Texas, did you not?

A. Yes, sir, most of them.

1147 Q. And many other institutions and industries in Texas?

A. Yes, we shipped oils to Texas points to our different representatives, and they distributed them through there.

Thereupon Court adjourned until 9.30 A. M. Monday, May 27, 1907.

MONDAY, May 27, 1907.

Court opened at 9.30 A. M., and thereupon adjourned until 2.30 P. M.

Court opened at 2.30 P. M.

ROYER CAMPBELL, a witness for the Plaintiff, having been sworn by the Court, testified as follows:

Examination by Mr. LIGHTFOOT:

Q. Your name Royer Campbell?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where do you live, Mr. Campbell?
A. San Antonio.
Q. How long have you lived in San Antonio?
A. Nearly fourteen years.
Q. About fourteen years?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What business are you now engaged in, Mr. Campbell?
A. At the present moment I am shipping the onion crop of the Texas growers.
Q. Shipping the onion crop for the Texas growers?
A. Yes, sir.
1148 Q. That is, do you buy the crop, or are you agent——

Mr. ODELL: Well we object to that, Your Honor. It is immaterial here whether he buys or under what arrangement.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. Just state what your business is, Mr. Campbell?
A. I am working for a corporation composed of the onion growers.
Q. Onion growers of——
A. Of South Texas.
Q. South Texas?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Well, are you in any other business?
A. Yes, sir, I have a couple of farms that I—I don't do any work on the farms myself, but I farm them.
Q. You are running a couple of farms that you own?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, how long have you been engaged in that business, Mr. Campbell?
A. About—oh, I could not say definitely; several years.
Q. How long have you been representing the onion growers?
A. Two years.
Q. Two years?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, then, when you first came to San Antonio what year was it?
A. Fall of 1893.
Q. Fall of 1893. What business did you engage in after you came to San Antonio?
A. Coal oil.

Q. Coal oil business?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where?
A. San Antonio.
1149 Q. Coal oil business?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where?
A. San Antonio.
Q. What kind of business were you in—jobbing business or retail business?
A. Retail, in the beginning.
Q. In the beginning. Who did you sell to—merchants there?
A. No, sir, consumers.
Q. Sold to the consumers?
A. Exclusively.
Q. What was the name of the business that you established there?
A. Under the name of—it was an unincorporated company; under the name of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company.
Q. Your business was called the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who owned that business?
A. I did.
Q. You were the only member of the firm?
A. Not in the beginning, no, sir; about four months I had a partner, then I bought him out.
Q. You bought him out?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Then you owned it exclusively?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, what equipment did the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company have in the city of San Antonio at that time for the handling of oil?
A. Three tank wagons and the necessary tools and fixtures.
Q. Own any storage tanks?
A. Not in the beginning.
Q. Well, when did you establish your storage tanks?
1150 A. I think about the first of March, or I will say, in the Spring of 1904—I mean 1894.
Q. 1894?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Well, now, then, after that time, after the Spring of 1894, and on up until, say, the first of October, 1894, what equipment did you have at that time for handling the oil business in San Antonio?
A. Well, I had the same equipment that I had up to March first, or about that time, and in addition to that I had two storage tanks of ten thousand gallons capacity each.
Q. Now, along about that time how much business were you doing in the city of San Antonio?—what was the volume of your business?
A. I think in September, 1904—1894—I did a business of nearly eight thousand gallons.
Q. For that month?

A. Yes, sir, during that month. I will say, to be safe, seven thousand.

Q. Now, did you have any competition from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company up to that time, Mr. Campbell?

A. Considerable.

Q. Well, just state now to the jury what competition you had up until the first of October, 1894, from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Well, in the beginning I bought oil of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, their tank station at San Antonio, and re-sold it to the consumers. I don't remember definitely whether I got an inside price or not—I don't believe I did at that time.

Q. Well, how long did you continue buying from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Up to the time that my tank cars with their contents arrived in San Antonio.

Q. Well, when was that?

1151 A. On or about March first, 1894.

Q. On or about March first, 1894?

A. I might be mistaken several weeks.

Q. Well, just in the neighborhood?

A. I will say the Spring of '94.

Q. Well, then, up until the Spring of 1894, you think, you bought your supplies from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and re-sold to the consumer?

A. Bought all my supplies up to that time, or up to the time of the arrival of my tanks, with the exception of two or three cars of oil that I brought in when I started in the oil business in San Antonio; I brought that oil in in barrels.

Q. Well, now, at the time you started in the oil business what price was the Waters-Pierce Oil Company obtaining for oils in San Antonio?

A. You mean right from the beginning?

Judge PENN: We object to that, Your Honor, as irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Well, he says he don't remember.

Q. Now, then, I will ask you at the time you received—you quit buying oil from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company what was the price that was being obtained for oil at that place?

Judge PENN: We object to that as irrelevant and immaterial.

The COURT: What is the purpose of the evidence?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: The purpose of it, if Your Honor please, is to show that after he quit buying oil from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and undertook to secure it from outside concerns, and did secure it that way, that they immediately cut the price about half in two and commenced to try to destroy his business there, and in a very strong way, and then we want to show that that warfare continued up until October first, 1894, and then the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, in order to get rid of this competition there, bought this concern

1152 out and entered into a contract, which we are going to introduce later—show that they had a monopoly of the business as long as he was buying from them, but when he quit buying from them they started this warfare, and then in order to re-establish the monopoly they bought him out.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge PENN: Defendant excepts.

Q. Now, then, do you remember about what prices were being obtained for oil, Mr. Campbell, up to the time that you received your first shipments of oil from other concerns?

A. Yes, sir, within a cent or two.

Q. Well, just state it as nearly as you can.

A. I would say seventeen cents per gallon, wholesale.

Q. That's the prices that were being obtained there?

A. Yes, sir, I think I was paying seventeen cents; I might have been paying sixteen—not less than sixteen.

Q. To the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, then, when did you receive—you say about the Spring of '94 you received your first shipment from other concerns?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, where did you get that oil, do you remember?

A. Yes, sir; Independent Oil Company, or Works, Oil City, Pennsylvania.

Q. How much did you get from them, your first shipment?

A. About eighteen thousand gallons—no, about sixteen thousand.

Q. How did it come—in a tank car?

A. I bought two storage tanks in Alliance, Ohio, of ten thousand gallons capacity each, shipped them to Oil City on tank-cars, one tank on each car. I had those tanks half filled with gasoline and they were shipped to me as tank-cars. Along with these two 1153 tanks I had a regular tank-car shipped filled with coal oil. When they got to San Antonio I braced up the car and pumped the oil out of one tank into the other, and in that way saved the freight on the empty tanks.

Q. Now, how soon after the arrival of that oil did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company make any change in their price?

A. Next day—the same day.

Q. The same day that that oil arrived, what change did they make?

A. I think they dropped—the first drop was about from sixteen or seventeen to twelve, then it finally reached a level of eight to ten cents.

Q. Eight to ten cents per gallon?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did any competition or warfare continue between you and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company after that?

A. Very vigorous one for me.

Q. How long?

A. Until the first of October, 1894.

Q. Now, then, I will ask you what character of warfare and competition did the Waters-Pierce Oil Company carry on with you after that time—just state what they did.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we object to that as irrelevant and immaterial and not tending to establish any issue in this case. We further object because it appears that the testimony sought to be elicited relates to transactions that transpired in the year 1894, anterior to the incorporation of the present Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and also prior to the enactment of the anti-trust act of 1899 and the act of 1903, under which this suit is being maintained.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: To which we except.

Q. Now, just state to the jury, Mr. Campbell, what the 1154 Waters-Pierce Oil Company did during that time, from the time you received this independent oil until the first of October, 1894—what methods they pursued or employed?

A. Well, the most potent one was the reduction in the price.

Q. Well, did they carry on the competition?

A. Yes, they established what they called the Consumers' Oil Company and made Mr. Schunke—I think that's his name, anyway, he is a brother-in-law of Louis Fries, who was agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at that time—manager of this company. They followed my wagons around town and solicited apparently the business that I was thriving on more vigorously than they did to get other business. They went so far as to solicit business at my own house, they didn't know where I lived, and tried to sell my wife oil, and told her how much superior it was and that I wouldn't last but a short time, anyway, and then the price——

Mr. ODELL: Now, were you present when they were telling your wife that?

A. No, sir.

Mr. ODELL: Then we object, as hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. Well, they followed your wagons around and solicited the trade that you had been supplying?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not they solicited business that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was supplying?

A. I do not.

Q. Now, what prices did they fix in following you around to the customers that you had?

A. I can't remember those figures definitely, but I would say ten cents to consumers. At the same time the Waters-Pierce Oil 1155 Company was selling to dealers at eight, and if they were selling at ten cents at the time, the Consumers' Oil Company sold at twelve, or two cents a gallon more to consumers than the Waters-Pierce Oil Company were selling to the wholesale trade or jobbing trade.

Q. Now, what was the difference in the price which the Consumers' Oil Company was making and the price you were making?

A. About four cents a gallon. I never cut my price below fourteen cents to the consumer, and I think it was twelve or eleven cents to the dealer. I commenced selling the dealers then, when the fight was on.

Q. You commenced selling the dealers also?

A. Yes, sir, I did, whoever I could induce to buy.

Q. Well, was it a well known fact, Mr. Campbell, in San Antonio at that time that you were engaged in warfare with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Consumers' Oil Company?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, because it calls for the opinion or conclusion of the witness, Your Honor, rather than the statement of a fact, and it is leading and suggestive.

Judge STEDMAN: We object to it, further, that it appears to be a matter of competition between Mr. Campbell and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. He was cutting their price and they were cutting his price, which all the anti-trust laws even contemplate as perfectly legitimate. He retaliated by doing the same thing in reference to their customers, and it does not throw any light upon the issues in this case.

The COURT: That objection goes to the weight of the evidence, but the other objection is sustained.

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell, to what extent was this rivalry between your company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Consumers' Oil Company known in San Antonio, if you know?

Mr. ODELL: Any knowledge he gained, Your Honor, is 1156 hearsay as to us. He could not get it from any other source, and unless he imparted the knowledge he had to an agent of the company, we object to it for that reason.

The COURT: What is the question?

(The last question was read.)

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. Well, that's a pretty hard question for me to answer. Of course, it was a very interesting proposition to me, and I don't know whether other people were interested in it to any great extent or not.

Q. Well, were you enabled to get any higher prices for your oil there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, why was that, if you know?

Mr. ODELL: Well, we object to that, Your Honor. It is hearsay as to the defendant and prejudicial to their rights, as to the private reason or information that he had that was unknown and undisclosed to the defendant in the case.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Read the question.

(The question was read.)

A. Well, I claimed at that time, and I think that I was right, that I was selling better oil than they were, and there was a natural tendency, I think——

The COURT: Do you expect to prove prejudice against the defendant?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Well, Your Honor, the purpose of the testimony is to show that at that time it was known that he was an independent oil dealer there and that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was trying to crush him out in his business, and that a good many people patronized him and paid him these higher prices by reason of the fact that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had enjoyed a monopoly prior to that time.

1157 The COURT: The objection will be sustained.

Q. Now, then, do you know who owned the Consumers' Oil Company, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. ODELL: Of your own knowledge?—if the Court will permit the preliminary question.

A. I would like to ask the Judge how far I can say that my own knowledge extended in that case.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Louis Fries, agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, during the time—that time—with reference to the ownership of the Consumers' Oil Company?

A. Yes, I will say I did; we were friends.

Q. What position, now, did Mr. Fries occupy and hold at that time?

A. He was Local Manager at that time.

Q. Of what?

A. He was Local Manager in the '90's of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Well, was he Local Manager at the time you were talking to him?

A. Yes.

Q. At San Antonio, of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I can't remember now definitely just when Mr. Fries was changed from Local Manager to Division Manager, but it was about that time.

Q. Well, was he at that time an agent and officer of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. He was either agent at San Antonio or the manager of the division.

Q. At the time you had the conversation with him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, just state what he said to you about the ownership of the Consumers' Oil Company?

Mr. ODELL: Now, we object to any statement the witness may make as to the conversation had with Louis Fries, whose relation with the company is shown by the testimony to be uncertain. If a local agent of the company, it is not shown that it was within 1158 the scope of his authority to represent the company or to bind the company by any statement that he might make. If either local agent of the company or division manager of the company, it is not shown that he was acting in such capacity or authority with reference to the company as to know the details of the company's business, or to be in a position to know the truth of the matters about which it is claimed that he spoke; and, in addition to that, we object to it, for the reason that it is remote—shown to be many years prior to the organization of the present company.

The COURT: The objection that the agency of Mr. Fries is not shown to be such that he could bind the company by his statement as to who owned it is sustained.

Q. Well, now, what are the facts, then——

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we ask the Court to exclude the statement that the witness made a little while ago to the effect that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company established the Consumers' Oil Company in San Antonio and ran it in opposition there. It now appears from his testimony that that was hearsay only with him.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Well, we would like to ask a few more questions concerning Mr. Fries.

The COURT: Very well. You may do so.

Q. Now, you say, Mr. Fries was the local agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at San Antonio during that time or before that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, what were his duties there as local agent?

A. I suppose to conduct the affairs of the business.

Mr. ODELL: Well, we object to it as a supposition and speculative.

Q. Did he conduct the affairs of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Market its oil?

A. Yes, sir.

1159 Q. Well, was he in charge there, selling oil in San Antonio?

Mr. ODELL: Your Honor, we object to the question as leading—not desiring to be technical, however, or take up the time of the Court.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. Well, just state as nearly as you can, Mr. Campbell, about what you know Mr. Fries did in San Antonio as representative of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, just as nearly as you can, everything that you know that he did there?

A. Well, he directed employés, managed the office, and everything in connection with the duties of a manager or local agent. I don't know just what his duties were.

Q. Well, under what circumstances, now, did he talk to you with reference to this Consumers' Oil Company?—how did it come up?

Mr. ODELL: Well, we object, Your Honor, to how the conversation came up between the witness here and the party named, Louis Fries, because it is clearly shown that the capacity in which Louis Fries was serving the company was that of local agent, having no reference to or connection with any official act for the company or of the company, and can not bind the company in the absence of authority.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. Now, in what connection did it come up, Mr. Campbell, the conversation you had with him?

A. Mr. Fries desired to eliminate trouble for himself I was causing the Waters-Pierce Oil Company there at that time.

Q. You mean for himself how?

A. As manager or local agent.

Q. Did it refer to the company's business there?

A. Certainly.

Mr. ODELL: We object, because it is leading.

Q. Well, go ahead and state what he said to you in that conversation?

1160 Mr. ODELL: Well, we object to it because it is hearsay, and for the same reasons that have been heretofore urged, Your Honor.

Q. Well, did it occur in the course of a business transaction between you and Mr. Fries, or socially?

A. We had no business transactions at that time.

Q. Well, was it with reference to any business transaction?

Mr. ODELL: We object to it because it is leading. Your Honor, the witness is an intelligent witness.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. Now, just state, Mr. Campbell, how it came up—just go ahead and state the conversation between you and Mr. Fries.

A. Well,——

Judge PENN: If the Court please, we understand the Court has excluded the statement of Mr. Fries because it is not shown to be in the scope of his authority as agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

The COURT: I understand this is an effort to show his authority.

Judge PENN: Counsel has asked him to state what Mr. Fries said, and to that we renew our objection.

Judge STEDMAN: I will submit to Your Honor—of course, Your Honor is familiar with the rule—that agency can not be established by what a person says.

Mr. ODELL: I would like for the Stenographer to read the question to the Court.

(The last question was read.)

The COURT: Mr. Sheriff, retire the jury.

(The jury retired.)

The COURT: Now, Gentlemen, I would like to know what you expect to prove.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We want to show, if Your Honor please, that he had a conversation with Mr. Fries, local agent of the Waters-

1161 Pierce Oil Company, in which they discussed conditions between them there with reference to this competition, in which

Mr. Fries, agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, told this witness that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company owned the Consumers' Oil Company and had established it there to take care of him—to try to break him down and run him out of business there. That's the object of the testimony, and that that condition continued up until October first, 1894, and these conversations led up to the buying out——

The COURT: The Court has already ruled that you could not show that unless you show a connection between Fries and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company that would make it admissible against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We propose to show that it came up about the competition and finally resulted in the sale—negotiations started with Fries resulted in a sale to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of his business, and that the negotiations started there at that time, and that it was during those negotiations that these facts developed, and that Fries took up the question with him and that it resulted in the sale to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Mr. BRADY: Just one further question—there is one further proposition we expect to show by this witness: That at this very conversation he is asked about, with reference to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company business in San Antonio, in the course of that business and in pursuance of his duties Mr. Fries went to Mr. Campbell and stated to him that they were going to drive him out of business and put him out of business, and had this Consumers' Oil Company there for that purpose, and that this conversation arose after he had stated to him that they had this company for that purpose, to put him out of business and to drive out competition. Now, of course the conversation with him comes in very closely connected with the statement to him that it was in the course of his business. He came to 1162 Mr. Campbell and told him that this company was out in the field and that they were the owners of this company, and Mr. Campbell at that very time was—Mr. Fries at that time was engaged in marketing the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's oil in San Antonio in competition with Mr. Campbell, in charge as their local manager and agent at San Antonio, and that in pursuance of a design for the company's benefit and to get rid of competition which was bothering the company, in the course of that business, he goes to Mr. Campbell and tells him, "One of the agencies we have employed to put you out of business is the Consumers' Oil Company, and it's about time we were coming to terms," or something along that line. We want to show that from those negotiations they finally purchased Mr. Campbell's plant, and it was consummated through the agency of the Consumers' Oil Company, which Mr. Fries informed him was one of the agencies employed by the company to put him out of business. Now, we contend that that was certainly in the course of his business as agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and it seems to us it is as binding as would be a statement from the president of the company.

The COURT: Do you expect to show that the transfer of the property to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was done through Fries?

Mr. BRADY: No, sir, the negotiations were, but that one of the officers came down from St. Louis, Mr. Naudain, and made the formal transfer, but that Mr. Fries negotiated with him from time to time.

Mr. ODELL: Now, if you will hear us just a moment, Your Honor. The purpose for which these gentlemen say they propose to offer this testimony illustrates the vice of it. The gist and the substance of the testimony they now seek from this witness is that Louis Fries, who was at that time local agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in San Antonio, made to him a statement that the Consumers' Oil Company was owned by the Standard—by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. It is not pretended that Louis Fries was a director 1163 of the company—that he was anything more than a local agent of the company, the presumption that may be given to his duties as a local agent of the company being to sell and deliver the products of the company at San Antonio, a thousand miles away from the company's home office. Now, it is not shown in this case, even, as to whether or not Mr. Fries was an agent on commission and that he himself might have a pecuniary profit in the business which he was carrying on, and that he might have the greatest personal motive for making the statement to this witness, whether the statement be true or false. Therefore, they expect to prove here by the hearsay declaration of this local agent in San Antonio, who, so far as acting in the course of the company's business is concerned, had no more authority, no more right, and no more knowledge of the matters about which he talked than a driver for the company had. It would be on the same theory as one of the drivers of the wagons going about detailing hearsay and other information about his employer—a thing that he could not know anything about by reason of the scope of his employment—powers that he derived by virtue of his agency. Now, the admissibility of this testimony must, it seems to us, be tested by that rule—the scope and the powers of his agency to secure information—to bind the company by any statements that he made, and the only development from this testimony is that this man was merely the local agent, having no knowledge of what the officers of the company were doing—not claimed to have established this other oil company himself, the Consumers' Oil Company—not claimed to have organized it or been present or had any connection with it in the world—merely hearsay testimony, such as a railroad agent might make about the I. & G. N. railroad being owned by some other railroad in Chicago or San Francisco or New York—a general statement such as he might gather from the newspapers, and it would be on the same principle to undertake to bind his company, when he was merely the local agent of the 1164 concern, as to bind this company by the declarations of a local agent as to what company owned it, and on that ground, why, we object to it.

Mr. ALLEN: We make this suggestion, if Your Honor please: That this witness has already disclosed that Mr. Fries was in exclusive charge of the sale of oil in that territory. Now, whatever agencies were committed to his care for the purpose of marketing oil for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, whether it was under the name of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company or Consumers' Oil Company or something else, certainly came within the scope of his authority. This witness testified he was local agent there and in exclusive charge of the sale of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's oil, and certainly it is directly in line with the scope of his duties, and the further fact that his own brother-in-law was in charge of this particular concern that they called the Consumers' Oil Company—not a corporation, it is not developed that it was a corporation, but that it was one of the vehicles by which the Waters-Pierce Oil Company marketed oil.

The COURT: Being local agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at San Antonio, it came, I presume, within the scope of his duties to meet and overcome competition. A declaration made while doing that, that he was doing it through the instrumentality of another company, would be a statement within the scope of his duties. The objection is overruled. Recall the jury, Mr. Sheriff.

Mr. ODELL: Well, we except, Your Honor.

(The jury returned.)

Q. Now, you say Mr. Fries was local agent—or was the agent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at San Antonio?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not you ever had any conversation with him with respect to the Consumers' Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

1165 Q. Where was that conversation?

A. San Antonio.

Q. Whereabouts in San Antonio?

A. Oh, that's—I couldn't state.

Q. You could not state?

A. No, sir, I don't remember.

Q. Well, now, state what conversation you had with reference to the Consumers' Oil Company?

A. We had many conversations. We were bitter business enemies during the week, but on Sunday we would usually go fishing or hunting together. Mr. Fries was agent for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and my personal friend——

Mr. ODELL: I wish you would talk a little louder, Mr. Campbell please, sir.

A. Yes, sir. While he never made definite propositions to me, he was constantly urging me to make them a proposition, to the company or to signify my willingness to accept one from them.

Q. What kind of proposition do you have reference to?

A. To sell out—to quit.

Q. To quit business—to sell out to him personally, or to whom?

A. To the company.

Q. What company?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company. Mr. A. M. Finlay did the same thing.

Q. Who is Mr. A. M. Finlay?

A. At that time he was manager—I don't remember just his title, but he was manager of divisions, I think, in St. Louis.

Q. Of what?
A. Of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. Now, I will get you to state whether or not Mr.—just state the conversation or any conversations that you may have had 1166 with Mr. Fries relating to the Consumers' Oil Company, and who owned it?

Mr. ODELL: We make the same objection, Your Honor.
The COURT: The objection is overruled.
Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. I can't recall the exact words that passed between Mr. Fries and myself, because there was hardly a day passed that we didn't discuss the situation.
Q. Well, just the substance of what was said about it.
A. Well, the substance of it was, I neither had the nerve nor the money to withstand the competition that I was going up against.
Q. Well, did he explain that competition?
A. Oh, yes, by word and by action he explained it.
Q. Well, now, how did he explain it?—what character of competition did he have reference to, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, because it calls for the conclusion of the witness, rather than what was said.
The COURT: The witness will have to state, either exactly or in substance, what was said.

Q. You don't have to state the exact words, Mr. Campbell, just state the substance of the conversation with reference to the Consumers' Oil Company.
A. All right, sir. Mr. Fries told me, not once, but repeatedly, that the Consumers' Oil Company would drive me out of business. Mr. A. M. Finlay told me the same thing—Mr. Arthur M. Finlay.
Q. You say he was manager of divisions at St. Louis?
A. Yes, sir, I think that was his title at that time.
Q. Did you ever make any terms with them?
A. Sir?
Q. Did you ever make them any proposition about your business?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. When did you make the proposition, and to whom?
1167 A. First to Mr. Fries, and he referred the matter to Arthur M. Finlay in Galveston by wire. Let me go back and correct my statement a moment ago. Arthur M. Finlay was not manager of divisions in St. Louis at that time, he was manager of a division with headquarters at Galveston.

Judge STEDMAN: Now, Your Honor, we object to the introduction in evidence of anything that Arthur M. Finlay may have said, in view of his circumscribed authority, as anything he may have said is not shown to be in the scope of his agency.
The COURT: The objection is sustained. You will disregard what this witness said that Arthur M. Finlay said, Gentlemen of the Jury.

Q. Well, did you sell our your business?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did you sell it out to?
A. To the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. When did you sell it?
A. The contract was made and signed some time in September, 1894, and the transfer was made October first, 1894.
Q. Well, do you mean by "the contract" that the final contract was made then?
A. Yes, sir, a temporary arrangement was made between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and myself some time in September, 1894.
Q. I will get you to look at that, Mr. Campbell (handing witness paper), and see if you recognize it?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is that your signature to that document?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, state when that agreement there was entered into?
A. Some time in September, 1894; at least, a short while prior to October first; it may have been in August, but I think it was in September.
1168 Q. Now, then, you afterwards entered into a contract with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, is that true?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, I will get you to look at that document and see whether or not that is your signature (handing witness another paper)?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is that the original contract entered into between you and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. On the first day of October, 1894?
A. Yes, sir.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, if Your Honor please, we offer these instruments in evidence.

Mr. ODELL: Let's see it. (Paper handed to Mr. Odell.) Now, do I understand that you offer both?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: I am going to offer both.

Mr. ODELL: If the Court please, we object to both of these agreements—that is, to the paper styled "Synopsis of agreement between Mr. Roy Campbell, of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company, San Antonio, Texas, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company," and the contract of date October first, 1894, for the following reasons: Both the agreement and contract were entered into by a company not the defendant in this case, and entered into some six years before the organization of this company and the securing of a permit for it to do business in Texas, Wherefore these two instruments are immaterial and irrelevant and throw no light on any issue in this case and are remote as tending to throw any light on any legitimate issue in the case; and for the further reason that they were both entered into prior to the enactment of the anti-trust law of 1889 as well as of 1903—1899, and 1903; and for the further reason that at the time they were entered into they came within the law and were 1169 not in violation of either the law or good business morals at the time they were entered into, and are calculated to prejudice the rights of the defendant here, as being offered as a circumstance to show that they were in violation of the present laws that were enacted years after they were entered into.

Judge STEDMAN: One moment, Your Honor. We further object because there was no law in Texas inhibiting the buying of the plant of competitors and good will prior to the enactment of the anti-trust law of 1903, which was passed many years after the alleged execution of this agreement and contract; and further, because the preliminary agreement, called the "Synopsis", appears to have been merged in the written instrument called the contract of October first, 1894.

The COURT: Let's see the papers. (Papers handed to the Court.) What is your allegation with reference to this matter?

(Mr. Lightfoot inspects the petition.)

Mr. BRADY: While he is looking that up, we have undertaken to give the assurance to Your Honor before that we expect to show that this contract was carried out by the new company.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: "That in pursuance and furtherance of the conspiracies hereinbefore alleged, and for the purpose of creating and maintaining a monopoly in the business of refining and selling of refined oils and all the products of petroleum, and for the purpose of destroying all competition between the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and all other persons, firms, and corporations doing business in the State of Texas in competition with said Waters-Pierce Oil Company, plaintiff says that the Waters-Pierce Oil Company hereinbefore referred to bought out competing businesses, doing business in the State of Texas in competition with said Waters-Pierce Oil Company, and did maintain at a number of points oil-selling concerns apparently in opposition to it, in this, to-wit: That the Waters-Pierce Oil Company for the purposes aforesaid in the year 1896 bought out the business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and of 1170 one Roy Campbell, doing business in the city of San Antonio and elsewhere in the State of Texas, and entered into contracts and agreements with said Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and said Roy Campbell whereby said Texas Oil and Gasoline Company was thereafter operated under said name as a competing concern of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, aforesaid; that it was so operated by said Waters-Pierce Oil Company until May 29th, 1900; that upon the reorganization and incorporation of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, defendant, on May 29th, 1900, it acquired the said business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and continued to operate it under that name, and for the purposes aforesaid, and from that time down until the present time, and in all things ratified and enforced said contracts and agreements and maintained them in full force and effect as aforesaid." I believe that is substantially the allegation.

The COURT: The objection will be overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except, Your Honor.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: It is agreed that these originals be read in the record and the originals be returned to the defendant. I will introduce the synopsis of agreement. I will read it to you, Gentlemen. (Reads Synopsis of Agreement, as follows:)

Synopsis of Agreement between Mr. Roy Campbell of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company, San Antonio, Texas, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company:

The undersigned agrees to sell out his entire business, including storage tanks, oil and gasoline contained therein, or in cars on the track, barrels, cases and bulk, empty wood barrels, pipes and fixtures, three wagons, two teams of ponies, two double sets of harness, office furniture, and other articles used in connection with said business—to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at cost, or invoice, prices.

The Waters-Pierce Oil Company agrees to pay cash, as soon
1171 as transfer is completed, for all of the above; and, in consideration thereof, and also a certain sum of money to be paid for the good-will of the Texas Oil & Gasoline Company, by the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as agreed upon, I, the undersigned, agree to enter the employ of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at a salary of $ Ninety per month and to continue the Texas Oil & Gasoline Company's business in San Antonio locally, as long as they think necessary, under their direction, and for their account.

Further, I agree not to re-enter the oil or gasoline business at any time in the future, without the consent of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company; it being understood that within six months I get a permanent position, as long as service is satisfactory, with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at some point suitable to my health, for $125.00 per month.

After the transfer of my property to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, all transactions of my business are to be accounted for to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the same to be owned exclusively by them, without reserve; they to assume all expenses of conducting same.

(Signed) R. CAMPBELL.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, I will ask the witness a question or two about this before I introduce it.

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell, you say that on October first you executed that contract with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I see section 2 there of that has some scratches or some marks over it. Will you please state by whom those scratches were made there or when that occurred, as nearly as you can recollect it?

A. Well, I have never seen this copy or this original or duplicate, whatever you might call it since I signed it until now; this 1172 contract was issued in duplicate.

Q. In duplicate?

A. Yes, sir and I have a copy with this paragraph 2.

Q. Well, was that scratched out when you signed it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, do you know when that was scratched out?

A. I could not tell the definite date, but——

Q. Well, as nearly as you can tell. Has anything ever happened to call it to your mind?

A. Yes, sir, it was some time after I had been—received notice from St. Louis that I had been discharged, that the Waters-Pierce

Oil Company had gone out of business, and in that mail or the next mail I received a circular advising me that my services would be continued at the same salary as before; it was some time after that.

Q. Well, what year was that in?

A. I think 1901.

Q. Now, then, do you know what time the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company dissolved?

A. No, sir, I could not tell you.

Q. You don't know the exact date?

A. No; if I had thought about that question being asked I could have told it.

Q. Well, anyhow, do you recall the circumstance, do you or not, of the old Waters-Pierce Oil Company going out of business?

A. Yes, sir, I remember it.

Q. Well, do you recall the circumstance of the new Waters-Pierce Oil Company being reorganized?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, you say you received a letter there the same day or in the next mail. Who was that from?—from the new com-

1173 pany or the old company—the last company, or the old company?

A. The last letter was received from the new company.

Q. Telling you that you would be continued in the employ of this concern?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the same salary?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right, now. Now, measuring time by that event, was it before or afterwards that anything was eliminated from that contract?

A. After.

Q. Well, now, could you approximate how long after?

A. No, sir, I could not.

Q. Whether it was a month or six months or a year?

A. No, sir, I couldn't tell the time.

Q. Well, can you give any idea at all, whether it was the same day or week?

A. No, sir, it was not the same day. Some time elapsed. That letter was received by me from—letter referring to the scratching of this contract was written, I am sure, by Arthur M. Finlay, and if I am mistaken at all about the dates, which I am sure I was not—(interrupted).

Q. Well, now, what were the instructions you received in that letter?

A. To take my contract to Louis Fries, who would—oh, well, it amounts to scratching out one of the paragraphs, I guess.

Q. Well, is that the paragraph.

A. Yes, sir, that's the paragraph.

Q. Did you take your contract to him?

A. Yes, sir, we were together when that was erased in my copy.

Q. Well, now, was there any consideration paid to you for eliminating that, Mr. Campbell?

1174 A. No, sir.

Q. Did you pay them anything to be released from the obligation of that paragraph?

A. No, sir.

Q. They simply instructed you to do that, and you carried out their instructions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was after the reorganization.

(No answer.)

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, we offer this contract in evidence, and it is agreed that it may be read in the record and the original returned to the defendant. (Reads contract, as follows:)

Mr. Royer Campbell's Agreement.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Oct. 1, 1894.

To the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, St. Louis, Mo.

1st. I, Royer Campbell, hereby agree and bind myself that in consideration of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's paying to me the actual cost value, according to invoices, bills of sale, &c., in my possession, of merchandise on hand, also certain iron tanks and other appurtenances which I am now using at San Antonio, Texas, in connection with the petroleum and other business I am now engaged in, and the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) for the good will of my said business, I will sell and transfer all of my said business, merchandise, iron tanks, appurtenances &c., to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at its convenience on or after this date.

2d. I Royer Campbell, agree and bind myself that during the term of fifteen years from this date I will not directly or indirectly transact any business in petroleum or other oils and goods handled by the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. in the States of Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana West of the Mississippi River, and Texas, the Indian and Oklahoma Territories, and the Republic of Mexico.

(This paragraph erased by lines drawn through same.)

1175

3d. I, Royer Campbell, agree that if the Waters-Pierce Oil Company so desire, I will continue my present business at San Antonio or other points in the State of Texas, for its account and under its direction, until June 1, 1895, and as much longer as may be mutually agreed upon, and that I will accept as salary for my services in conducting the said business the sum of ninety dollars ($90.00) per month for a period of six months from October 1st, 1894, to March 31st, 1895, it being understood that my salary is to be one hundred & twenty-five dollars ($125.00) per month from the 1st day of April, 1895, and that I shall be located at some point suitable to my health and be given a permanent position so long as my service is satisfactory, and I further agree that if the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. desires me to do so before or after June 1, 1895, I will serve it in any capacity it may desire, provided such service would not be detrimental to my health, at any point in the territories mentioned in Section 2d, and if for any reason I do not desire to do so the Waters-Pierce Oil Company shall not be obliged to continue me in its services.

(Signed) ROYER CAMPBELL.

Witness for the Waters-Pierce Oil Co.:
H. NAUDAIN.

(During the reading of the foregoing instrument the following objection was made by defendant's counsel:)

Mr. ODELL: Now, Mr. Lightfoot, are you reading the second paragraph?

1176 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Yes, sir.

Mr. ODELL: If the Court please, we object to the reading of the second paragraph of the contract, for the reason that it is no part of the contract; it was mutually agreed, as testified to by the witness, that it should be erased and constitute no part of the contract, and having been erased, we insist that it is now no part of the contract and is inadmissible for any purpose.

(The document was handed to the Court for inspection.)

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Now, before the Court rules on it, I would like to state that we expect to show by this witness also that there was no change in the business whatever; that it continued from that time on up until 1904. The witness has already testified that that was not eliminated until after 1900, and after this new company was reorganized, and that some little time afterwards—he is unable to locate the date—and we think that it would be admissible to show that up until that time that that part of the contract was carried out and observed as between the parties after the reorganization of the new company until he received a request from the defendant to have that eliminated from his contract.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except, Your Honor.

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell, what took place after you executed this contract?

A. The transfer was made and money was paid to me.

Q. The money called for in this contract was paid to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, what did you transfer?

A. Everything I had.

Q. Everything you had, you transferred it to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

1177 A. Yes, sir, everything I had pertaining to the oil business—I didn't have much more.

Q. Well, did you continue business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, now, in what name was that business conducted?

A. Texas Oil and Gasoline Company.

Q. Texas Oil and Gasoline Company. Where did you get your supplies from that time, Mr. Campbell?

A. I made requisition on St. Louis for my supplies.

Q. Well, to whom at St. Louis?
A. I forget right now who was the manager at St. Louis at that time.
Q. Manager of who?
A. Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. Well, do you state that you made your requisitions to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Yes, sir—yes, sir.
Q. At St. Louis?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Well, who sent the oils to you?
A. Evidently they did. We never received any oil in W. P. O. Co. Tanks.
Q. Well, now, in what kind of tanks did you receive it?
A. International Oil Works.
Q. Well, do you know what the International Oil Works was?
A. No, sir.
Q. Where were the goods shipped from—do you know where they were shipped from?
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Well, how long, now, did you receive it from the International Oil Works?
1178 A. Why, for several years. Then I commenced to get oil from—making the same kind of requisitions on the Waters-Pierce Oil Company in St. Louis, I would get oil from Corsicana.
Q. Get oil from Corsicana?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Well, now, in what kind of tank-cars would you get oil from Corsicana?
A. Union tanks—Union Tank Line, I believe, it is called.
Q. Any other kind?
A. No, they never sent me any Waters-Pierce Oil Company tanks or any other kind—if they did, I don't remember it.
Q. Well, I will ask you whether or not during the time that you were running the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company whether or not there was ever a Waters-Pierce Oil Company tank-car filled with oil set on your side-track?
A. Yes, sir, there was once; I don't remember whether there was one or two.
Q. Well, what became of that?
A. It was pulled away—they never unloaded it.
Q. Well, what happened to it?—just state to the jury what happened to that tank?
A. We notified the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's office and it was immediately taken away.
Q. Well, had you ordered oil before that?
A. Yes, I had orders in all the time. I could not state specifically whether this car was set in on an order or not; I don't know.
Q. But it was set in on your track?
A. I do know that we didn't unload it.
Q. Why didn't you unload it?
A. Well,——

1179 Mr. ODELL: Well, we object to the reason he may have had, Your Honor, for not unloading it—unknown to the company.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. Well, did you have any instructions with reference to that matter, Mr. Campbell?

A. The matter of unloading that particular tank-car?

Q. No, any tank-car.

A. No, I was to unload tank cars that were set over there.

Q. Well, did you have any instructions with reference to that particular tank-car, then?

A. No.

Q. About unloading it?

A. No, no—it was pulled away as soon as I gave notice that there was a Waters-Pierce tank there.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Campbell, after 1900, after the company was reorganized, how did you run that business after that time?

A. The same as before.

Q. Was there any change in your business whatever by reason of the reorganization?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, because it calls for the opinion and conclusion of the witness, Your Honor.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. No change.

Q. No change?

A. Oh, I believe—yes, I will say there was a change. We put up a little sign on our stable, "Waters-Pierce Oil Company."

Q. On your stable?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was your stable situated?

1180 A. It was located out on the S. A. & A. P. railroad track, about nearly a mile from the center of town.

Q. Well, now, did you change the name of the company that was doing business?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have the name of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company on your tank wagons?

A. Yes, sir, stationery and everything else.

Q. How was your stationery?

A. Texas Oil and Gasoline Company.

Q. Texas Oil and Gasoline Company. Well, did you continue to run business in that name afterwards?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. How long, now, did you continue to run it in that name?

A. I think until the first of March, 1904.

Q. Well, did you put any sign up on your office?

A. No, sir.

Mr. ODELL: We object to the question as being leading.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Well, I beg your pardon. I don't care to lead the witness.

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell, from 1894 up until the old company went out of existence in 1900, did you make reports to any one?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Of your business? Who did you make them to?
A. J. P. Gruet, C. M. Adams, Arthur M. Finlay, occasionally A. M. Finlay, and the auditor at that time—I forget his name.
Q. Did you make any to Mr. C. P. Ackert?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Well, now, what positions did those men hold, or what were their connections?
1181 A. Mr. Adams was treasurer.
Q. Of what?
A. Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. Well, were all of these gentlemen that you named connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where were their offices?
A. St. Louis, Missouri.
Q. St. Louis, Missouri?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, then, how often did you make reports to the St. Louis office of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Daily to J. P. Gruet.
Q. Daily to J. P. Gruet?
A. And wrote by letter, I will say frequently, maybe two or three times a month to A. M. Finlay, and later when he was succeeded by Mr. Ackert, C. P. Ackert.
Q. Well, did you make any reports outside of daily reports?
A. Yes, sir, I sent all trial balances at the end of each month and twice a month I sent in vouchers for expenditures and remitted to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company money that I had left on hand each month after the expenses were paid.
Q. Now, then, after the expenses were paid for running the business, all the money that you had on hand at the end of the month you reported that and sent it to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. In round figures, yes, sir; I never kept any surplus at San Antonio.
Q. Now, what were those reports about, Mr. Campbell?
A. Number of gallons of oil that were sold daily, oil and gasoline; generally those reports were to Mr. Gruet, the secretary, and a general report of the condition of the business and competition—1182 a report such as any employé would render his superior.
Q. Now, then, about competition, what did the reports about competition include?
A. Well, for a while we didn't have any; of course, everything sailed easy then.
Q. You mean you didn't have any reports?
A. No, we always had reports, but no competition. When competition would drop in I was supposed to line it up the best I could and make report——

Q. Now, what do you mean by "lining" it up?

A. Tell St. Louis all I knew about it, who they sold to and what they got—a general line of information for the St. Louis office.

Q. Well, state what you did, now, with reference to keeping track of any competition at that point?

A. Well, as an example, I remember at one time the Southern Pacific received a car of lubricating oil for distribution by one of the transfer companies in San Antonio. Mr. Fries called me up and told me there was a car of oil at the Sunset depot consigned to M. Cantu, and for me to investigate it. Well, neither of us knew M. Cantu. I went down to the depot and looked at it, and "M. Cantu" was "in car to" the Merchants' Transfer Company, and the man that was sent by Mr. Fries thought "in car to" meant "M. Cantu". I immediately put a man on a bicycle to trace the floats, and I reported to Mr. Fries how many cans and barrels and half barrels were delivered to the different people.

Q. Delivered to different people in San Antonio?

A. Yes, sir, some of them got away from us—we couldn't keep up.

Q. Well, the consignor too?

A. No, sir, we didn't know anything about the consignor—it was the consignee we were after.

Q. Well, what further action was taken with reference to 1183 matters of that kind?

A. I don't know; that was as far as I went.

Q. Well, did you take any steps to see the merchants or purchasers of oil?

A. No, sir, in that particular instance—I didn't handle lubricating oil at all. My duties were done when I made my report to Mr. Fries.

Q. Well, now, how about other oils that were delivered there?

A. Well, light oils, coal oil and gasoline, when we would find one of the fold straying away patronizing competition we would get after him. If he had some grievance against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, I would go after him—it didn't make any difference which one of us got him.

Q. Why didn't it?

A. Well, we were all the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Now, how long did the Consumers' Oil Company continue in busin ss after the Waters-Pierce Oil Company bought you out?

A. I could not say definitely, but not long.

Q. Well, about how long?—just estimate it as best you can.

A. Well, I will say four months.

Q. Well, do you know what became of its stock?

A. Yes, sir, it was taken—they didn't carry any stock; they only had wagons and horses and——

Q. Well, what became of its equipment?

A. That was all turned back to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. And then you and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company conducted business there between you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Well, do you know from whom the Consumers' Oil Company got all its oils during the time it was in business?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. From whom?
1184 A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. Do you know whether or not it handled any of their other products?
A. Stoves only.
Q. Well, what do you mean by "stoves"?
A. Coal oil stoves.
Q. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company sold coal oil stoves?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And the Consumers' Oil Company also handled them?
A. Yes, sir; I am not sure but they tackled gasoline stoves too at that time—it was anything to whip me.
Q. Now, how long, Mr. Campbell, did you continue that business there?
A. Until the first of March, I think it was, 1904.
Q. Was there ever any change in the business or the method of doing business from 1894 up until March first, 1904?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, because it is leading and suggestive and calls for the opinion and conclusion of the witness.
The Cou[illegible]. The objection that it is leading is sustained.

Q. Well, what difference, now, if any, took place in the method of conducting business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company from 1894 up until March first, 1904?
A. None whatever.
Q. None whatever?
A. No, sir, none that I can recall now.
Q. Now, then, you say you made daily reports and semi-monthly reports and monthly reports to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. What character of stationery did you use?
A. My daily reports—St. Louis had blanks printed headed, I think, either "R. Campbell Division" or "San Antonio"—it was "R. Campbell Division", I am sure. We used blank stationery for our monthly reports; we ruled them up ourselves; no blanks were ever sent to us.
1185 Q. Now, what character of envelopes did you send those in?
A. Blanks.
Q. Blank?
A. Yes, sir, always blank.
Q. Was there anything on the envelope to indicate from whom the letters were?
A. No, sir.
Q. Why was that?
A. On instructions from St. Louis.
Q. Well, what were those instructions?

A. To use blank envelopes.

Q. Well, was that the case at both ends?

A. Oh, yes, sir; yes, I recall no instance where I ever received an envelope with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's name on it from St. Louis.

Q. Do you recall any instance where you ever sent them a letter with your name on it, or the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?

A. No, sir, very careful about it.

Q. Now, what was the purpose of that, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, because it calls for a conclusion, Your Honor. It is not shown that it was known by the company. If he had instructions, it's the best evidence.

The COURT: Unless he had some instructions from St. Louis stating what the purpose was——

Mr. ALLEN: He has already testified that he had instructions, Your Honor.

The COURT: He testified that he was instructed from the St. Louis office to do this, but unless those instructions stated why it should be done he can not state it.

Q. Well, I will ask you whether or not you did receive any instructions as to why you should send your correspondence in blank envelopes?

1186 A. It was not necessary.

Q. You say it was not necessary?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, then, Mr. Campbell, I will ask you if you had any competition or the Waters-Pierce Oil Company had any competition during the time that you ran the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now, what character of competition did you have?

A. Well, we had a man by the name of Eckols, Sam G. Eckols, representing George Rice of Marietta, Ohio, some oil company, and later on John Locke of San Antonio put in a storage outfit—storage tank.

Q. Any other that you can recall?

A. Oh, in the territory and in San Antonio we were constantly being bothered by competition.

Q. Well, now, was there any competition after 1900?

A. Oh, yes, sir.

Q. Well, which competition was that?

A. Locke.

Q. Now, was there any before 1900?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, what competition was that?

A. Well, that was George Rice of Marietta, Ohio.

Q. Well, now, what did you do, if anything, with reference to meeting that competition—the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?

A. Called on the trade that was leaving the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and leaving—not buying from me; after I sold out, you know, and some time before, when I was in the oil business myself, I sold to the dealers as well as to the consumers.

Q. Yes.

A. And when a dealer would show an inclination to leave
1187 either one of us we would get after him; in some instances we paid rebates to hold the trade.

Q. In some instances you paid rebates to hold the trade?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, what do you mean by "rebates"?

A. Well we collected the full price for coal oil when we delivered it, and at the end of the month we would turn—the man to whom we sold would turn in a voucher for a cent or whatever it would be per gallon, and send the voucher in to St. Louis for credit.

Q. Now, how long did that continue, that course of business?

A. That continued, I think, up until probably nineteen hundred—probably some time in 1903. I think all the rebates were cut out when I was discharged.

Q. You think they were all cut out when you were discharged?

A. Yes; I could have told definitely if I had thought about bringing an old book that I have in San Antonio, but I wasn't particularly interested——

Q. Well, it did continue up to that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, how many instances of that kind can you recall?

A. Well, I recall one that lasted a long time.

Q. Which one was that?

A. C. Horan & Company.

Q. C. Horan & Company?

A. H-o-r-a-n, Horan & Company, yes, sir.

Q. Did you give him any rebates after the new company was organized?

A. Yes, sir, he got rebates after that.

Q. How often?

A. Every month. There would be an interim perhaps of a few months—prices of oil might get down to where we couldn't 1188 stand a rebate, and then we would cut it out.

Q. Now, state the course of business of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company during the time you ran it with reference to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. I don't understand that question.

Q. The question is, state what was the course of dealing by the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company with reference to the settled trade of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company after you sold out?

A. Oh, well, we didn't look after their regular customers; we were to look after the disgruntled fellows.

Q. Well, did you solicit their regular customers.

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you undertake to sell them oil?

A. My men might have done that to make a showing, but not under my instructions; they were instructed to sell an average of so much a day, and they might have sold to some Waters-Pierce Oil Company customers in order to increase their sales.

Q. Well, do you know whether they did or not.

A. Yes, sir, I would say they did, but not much.

Q. Who got the benefit of that—what company?
A. The Texas Oil and Gasoline Company got the credit, but the money went to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.
Q. Well, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company got the real benefit?
A. Yes, sir, they got the money.
Q. Now, you say your business was to look after the disgruntled trade. What do you mean by the "disgruntled trade"?
A. Anti-trust shouters.
Q. You mean people who were opposed to trading with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, or the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?
A. No, they thought I was all right. (Laughing.)
1189 Q. Well, why did they think that, do you know?

Mr. ODELL: We object to why they thought that, Your Honor, because it calls for his conclusion and opinion.
The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. What do you mean by that, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, because the objection has been sustained.
The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell, I will ask you what the course of business was with reference to keeping track of competitive shipments to that point by the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?
A. Well, monthly or every two weeks, or as often as I would gather information in regard to what the independent dealers were doing, I would furnish the information to Mr. Fries, who would compile statistics on it, and I gathered and got up my information as to outside business from spying on the railroads and gathering information in that way. Then each tank-car that came to town for competition would be noted. For instance, when Locke was getting oil, I had my instructions to my driver in that end of town to go by there every day and never miss a day and note whether there was any tank-cars, suspicious looking tanks, down there, and if there was a tank being pumped or one opposite his storage tanks, to take the number of it and report it to me, and I in turn turned it over to Mr. Fries, then Mr. Fries would figure how much—see for six months how much oil that Locke had received in that time. Then there were various methods of getting at how much he had on hand.
Q. Well, what were those?

Mr. ODELL: Well, we object to any further inquiry about the methods resorted to by the defendants to secure information with reference to competitive concerns, because it was no violation of the law for any legitimate concern to secure such information 1190 with reference to the business of their competitors. It is wholly immaterial and irrelevant in this inquiry and can serve no purpose but to prejudice the jury.
The COURT: What is the purpose of this evidence?
Mr. LIGHTFOOT: The purpose of it, if Your Honor please, is: Mr. Fries—we expect to show that these reports were constantly made to the St. Louis office. We have shown heretofore that these reports were made to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and these reports were interchanged, and it influenced business considerably in this territory, and the vigilance in keeping track of the competitive shipments, making him more energetic to wipe out competition and to establish this monopoly in the State of Texas by getting track of this testimony—I mean this information—and where the cars came from, they were enabled to pursue the objects of this concern here and to destroy business as far as possible. The information was used for a good many purposes in that way. It was for the purpose of keeping defendant advised and harassing competition that they had and destroying it.

The COURT: What provision of the anti-trust law does that violate?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Well, it would have effect, I think, in several provisions there. You take the rebates, now, that the witness has testified to. By keeping track of these shipments and of his customers and the general plan and manner in which they operated there it enabled them to finally secure business from those people, and by giving these rebates, in that connection, why, they were enabled to secure business of these merchants from the competitors of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company, and we think that that character and that method of business is an agreement on the part of this concern in violation of several sections of the anti-trust law, to-wit, it would have the effect of lessening competition, of enabling them to fix prices, and in fact to destroy competition—absolutely destroying it between them.

1191 The COURT: Agreement between whom?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: Between the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company. The question I asked was what he did with this information that he got in that way, and he says he reported it to Mr. Fries. Now, I want to show that Mr. Fries compiled these statistics and that his standing with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was predicated largely upon his ability to destroy competition there—the vigilance that he exerted in keeping track of competitive oils was for that purpose—and also that by getting all this information they were enabled absolutely to keep track of all the competition that existed at that point, and by a system of rebates and other things destroy the business of their competitors at that point and complete the monopoly which we have alleged that that method of trading that concern brought about.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except to the ruling of the Court.

Q. Now, read that last question.

(The Stenographer read the last question, together with the latter portion of the answer preceding it.)

Q. Now, what were those various methods that you had of securing this information.

A. Well, covering a period of six months, we would keep track of the number of tank-cars unloaded by the competition, and then we would measure what they had in their tanks.

Q. Well, how would you do that?

A. Well, we could tell the way they sweat—certain kind of weather they will sweat. We knew how much they held, and we could by measurement—we knew what they would originally hold if they were full, you know, and then we could tell within a few hundred gallons of how much they held by the sweat or the leaks.

1192 Q. Well, then, what did you do with that information?

A. Oh, that was all given to Mr. Fries, and he compiled it himself. I didn't furnish it all.

Q. Now, what did he do with the statistics that he compiled there?

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't have any information as to what he did with it?

A. He never told me what he did with it.

Q. Well, did you ever make any reports to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis or any of its officers?

A. Oh, I never turned in any statistics. My business was to turn those in to Mr. Fries. I made suggestions with reference to the raising or lowering of prices. If I saw we could put prices up, I would suggest it. I was more often suggesting putting them down, though, because it was easier to sell oil.

Q. Well, now, Mr. Campbell, I will get you to state what the price of oil was after you sold out to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?—did it advance or go down after that?

A. Oh, it did both. I remember—it must have been in '95, maybe in the early part of '96, we had the wholesale price of oil up to twenty-two cents a gallon and gasoline was twenty-five, something like that—wouldn't miss it a cent or two cents; that was for bulk oil—no container.

Q. Now, what was it just before you sold out to them?

A. They sold at eight cents. Mine cost me six and three-quarters.

Q. Now, immediately after you sold out to them was there any change?—if so, what was it?

A. Oh, not immediately; I won't say next day, but soon there was.

Q. Well, about how long?—just estimate it as nearly as you can.

A. Well, I can remember it somewhat from the roars I had from my customers. It was, I will say, within a month.

1193 Q. Well, now, what change was made, if any?

A. Why, an advance.

Q. Well, do you remember how much?

A. No, not definitely.

Q. Well, approximate it?

A. Oh, perhaps the first advance was two cents.

Q. Well, what was the next one?

A. It kept on stairstepping it up; I don't remember just what the advances were.

Q. Now, in 1896 it reached what point, you say?

A. Well, the highest point I remember of ever selling oil, I think, was in 1896. It was twenty-two cents for oil and twenty-four for gasoline, or twenty for oil and twenty-two for gasoline.

Q. Now, was there any competition between the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company after you sold out?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did it go down after that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How came it to go down?

A. Competition, of course—or perhaps the inclination of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company to sell it cheap.

Q. Well, now, after 1900, and before Mr. Locke put in his plant there, do you have any recollection, independent recollection, of what prices you were getting then?

A. No, sir, nothing more than I have stated. I don't remember even what year Mr. Locke came in, and I don't remember when he went out.

Q. Well, now, I will ask you what regulated the prices, Mr. Campbell, of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at San Antonio?

A. Instructions from St. Louis. Mr. Fries never gave me
1194 instructions at what price to sell, except in one or two instances, and I don't remember the circumstances in those two cases. We always got our instructions from St. Louis. I was not under Mr. Fries, understand; I was entirely independent of Mr. Fries, and I was instructed in the beginning not to go to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company office, but Fries and I being good friends, I used to go anyhow.

Q. Why were you instructed not to go in there?

A. I don't know.

Mr. ODELL: I object to that, Your Honor, as calling for the conclusion of the witness.

The COURT: Well, he says he don't know.

Q. Well, go ahead, Mr. Campbell.

A. I am through.

Q. Now, what was the difference, Mr. Campbell, in your prices and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's prices to the trade after they took you over?

A. Well, most of the time we were the same. Some of the time I was lower, a little lower.

Q. What caused that?

Mr. ODELL: Well, we object to that, because it calls for his conclusion, Your Honor.

Q. If you know?

Mr. ODELL: And we ask that he be required to state the facts.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. There were certain disgruntled fellows in the trade at San Antonio that we had to take care of—chronic kickers.

Q. Now, you stated you made reports there. You say your instructions with reference to prices were received from St. Louis also?

A. Yes, sir.

1195 Q. Now, what would you do when you thought it necessary to reduce prices or to increase them?

A. Oh, I had all my correspondence with St. Louis, and Fries and I would talk it over.

Q. Well, would you make request of them for authority to reduce the price or advance it?

Mr. ODELL: We object as leading, Your Honor.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. Well, now, what did you do with reference to that, Mr. Campbell, when you wanted to make a change in the price?

A. I was constantly giving information and offering suggestions to St. Louis, and if the business was not going properly and we were not keeping up our—selling our full quota of oil at the usual prices——

Q. Now, upon what would you base your reductions?

A. Well, sometimes they were due to natural causes; hot weather in the Summer, long Summers, would reduce sales of oil; electric light company got after us and put in cheap electric heating apparatus that reduced prices, reduced the quantity sold, and also the groceries would get to cutting prices; they would sell oil, for instance, for five cents a can or one cent a gallon profit in order to make a leader of it, and it would raise Cain with our business—reduced my gallonage down to a point where the expense account and profit were about equal as far as I could tell.

Q. Well, now, from where did you receive all your instructions and from whom as to the changes you made in your prices?

A. Always the manager.

Q. Manager of who?

A. In the beginning it was Arthur Finlay at Galveston. Soon after I sold out, Arthur Finlay was removed to St. Louis and made manager of divisions, I believe, and I continued to report to 1196 Arthur Finlay until Mr. Charles P. Ackert was appointed or elected his successor, and up to the time I was discharged I reported to Mr. Ackert in such matters.

Q. Now, I will ask you what company all these gentlemen you have mentioned were connected with?

A. The Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

Q. Now, you say you ran on until March 31st, 1904?

A. March first or 31st.

Q. Well, how came you to quit?

A. They stopped my pay.

Q. Well, what became of the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company?

A. It was turned over to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, lock, stock and barrel.

Q. Well, did it continue to operate if after that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Well, what became of it, then?

A. It went out of business; I collected up the debts and sent them to St. Louis and it was wound up.

Q. Wound up. Now, how far was your office from the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's office in San Antonio?

A. Prior to the establishing of division headquarters in San Antonio, it was—oh, I would say three quarters of a mile.

Q. Now, at the time your business was taken over?

A. The same distance, but in the interim——

Q. Now, what equipment did you have after 1900?
A. Same as I had before.
Q. Yes, but I would like for you to state it.
A. I had just two tank wagons; we had strong competition, I forget who made it, I think it was Locke, and they had taken one of my tank wagons away, I turned it back to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, one of the original three I had, I was only running two, and competition got pretty stiff and they sent me one from some place, and put that on and ran three tanks, and I turned all that stuff back to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company when——
1197
Q. How many drivers did you have employed?
A. Two at times and three at others.
Q. How many men did you keep employed in your office?
A. None constantly; I had a man to keep books at night, for which I paid him a nominal salary.
Q. Now, did you pay any taxes on the property there?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Before 1900 and after 1900?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, in whose name were the taxes paid?
A. I would have to refer to the tax receipts; I don't know whether it was Royer Campbell or the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company, but I think the Texas Oil and Gasoline Company.
Q. Well, was the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's name disclosed in any way in connection with those taxes?
A. No, sir.
Q. And that continued after 1900 the same as before 1900?
A. Yes, sir.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: I believe that's all.

Cross-examination.

By Mr. ODELL:

Q. How long had you been in the oil business up to 1894, Mr. Campbell?
A. Just a few months—October, I think, '93.
Q. You commenced business in San Antonio, did you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long did you continue in business before selling out to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
1198
A. I think from September—no, from October to—of '93—until the first of October, '94.
Q. Well, about a year?
A. Yes, sir, approximately a year.
Q. Was there any other company doing business there at that time except the Waters-Pierce Oil Company and your company?
A. When I first started the oil business in San Antonio I believe the Rocky Mountain Oil Company had a station there, I am quite sure they did, but soon after I started they quit; they might not have had it in operation when I commenced, and it might have lasted two or three or four months after that.

Q. Do you know how long they continued in business there?

A. Who?

Q. The Rocky Mountain Oil Company?

A. No, sir, but I think about two years from the time they commenced.

Q. Now, what did you say oil was worth when you went into the business?

A. Either sixteen or seventeen cents.

Q. Is that to the dealer or consumer?

A. Dealer.

Q. It got down to eight or ten cents, I believe you say?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was a time in 1896 when it got up to about twenty cents a gallon?

A. I said '96 or '97, somewhere along there.

Q. Well, that was for a very brief period of time, wasn't it?

A. Not very long, I believe.

Q. Well, you know it was a short time?

A. No, I don't know it, but I think it was a short time.

Q. Now, when did this man you say, Locke—is that the name of the man you have been talking about?

1199 A. Yes, sir, J. Locke.

Q. When did he go into the oil business there?

A. I think some time after—oh, he had been in the oil business for years there, in this way: He would ship his oil in in barrels and distribute it around to the trade in barrels. Some time, I think, immediately after 1900 or during the year 1900 he put up some storage tanks and did business that way and shipped his oil in in tank-cars.

Q. Generally, though, he had been in the oil business there for many years?

A. Yes, sir, but he didn't do much business until he put his tanks in.

Q. Well, I am not asking you how much business he did, but he had been in business for many years?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, your company, was it incorporated or not?

A. No, sir.

Q. Any one associated in the company with you?

A. For a while, yes, sir, I think about four or five months from the beginning.

Q. This contract, you heard it read, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Paragraph two, that was erased, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir. On my duplicate it is scratched a little different from this—lines are drawn through as the writing runs.

Q. Well, it was the intention to erase paragraph two?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was with your consent?

A. I did that under instructions.
Q. Well, you consented to it, didn't you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You don't remember when that was?
1200 A. Some time in 1900 or 1901.
Q. Well, now, wasn't it in 1900?
A. I could not tell you definitely.
Q. In April, 1900?
A. No, I could not get down to those details; I don't remember; unfortunately, I lost all my—my papers and documents that I saved for ten years last Fall.
Q. Well, who do you say spoke to you about erasing that paragraph in the contract?
A. I received a letter of instructions from St. Louis to carry this contract to Mr. Fries.
Q. Well, you did it?
A. I did so and he erased it in my presence, or I did so, I don't remember.
Q. Now, where were you at the time—in San Antonio?
A. In his office in San Antonio, if I remember correctly.
Q. Now, you carried the contract to Mr. Fries immediately after you received the instructions?
A. Oh, the same day, I presume.
Q. The same day. Do you remember whether you went to his office, or whether it was done at your office?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was it?
A. His office—I am quite satisfied it was.
Q. Well, now, have you a distinct recollection of that?
A. Well, my impression, sir, would lead me to say that I have. I might be mistaken.
Q. Who do you think you received this letter from?
A. Arthur Finlay, I think I received it from Arthur Finlay.
1201 Q. Well, now, isn't it a fact that Fries received the letter and showed it to you?
A. Well, that might be.
Q. Very well.
A. I won't say definitely; I am under the impression, however, that I received a letter to carry this contract to Mr. Fries for these erasures.
Q. Yes, but you won't be certain about that?
A. No, sir, I would not say; I feel reluctant to say that it didn't happen that way, and I am under the impression that it happened as I have stated, a while ago, that I received a letter, and Mr. Fries did also about the same time.
Q. You spoke about the reorganization of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. When was it reorganized?
A. I don't remember, sir.
Q. Do you remember what year it was?
A. No, I don't know that; I think, however, it was in 1900.

Q. But you are not even certain about that?
A. Well, pretty certain, yes, sir.
Q. How do you fix the time when you changed the contract with reference to the time of the reorganization?
A. By the receipt of my discharge and another letter hiring me over again.
Q. Well, now, about how long before or after the receipt of your discharge and hiring you over again was it that you changed the contract?
A. I think that question was asked me once by the State.
Q. Well, I am asking it.
A. And I said that I thought it was—well, I was rather indefinite, but I would say it was afterwards, and I still am just as indefinite on that point.
Q. Would you say about how long afterwards?
1202 A. No, sir, within six months.
Q. Well, can you undertake to say that that contract was changed after the reorganization of this company?
A. I have already given that as my impression.
Q. Well, do you just give it as an impression?
A. I could not do otherwise, because I have said that I could not definitely mention or name the date when the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was reorganized, but I am quite certain that the erasure was made after I received my discharge and also my reinstatement; I base it on that.
Q. Yes, on that circumstance alone, do you?
A. Yes, sir—not the date of the reorganization of the company.
Q. Now, who wrote this contract?
A. H. Naudain.
Q. Well, the other one, who wrote it?
A. Arthur M. Finlay—the first one, the Synopsis of Contract?
Q. Yes.
A. Arthur M. Finlay.
Q. They were both written in San Antonio?
A. No, sir.
Q. Where?
A. The Synopsis was written in Galveston.
Q. Well, the contract, where was it written?
A. San Antonio.
Q. You kept a copy of it?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Have you it now?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Had it all these years in San Antonio?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The agreement between you and Finlay and Naudain, that was embodied in the contract?
1203 A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, after the contract was executed you delivered to the Waters-Pierce Oil Company the property of your company and you continued in the service of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under that contract?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you sometimes sold oil cheaper than the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You sent your requisitions to St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir, always under their instructions; I never had authority to raise or lower prices half a cent a gallon.

Q. In other words, they told you what they wanted their oil sold for?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It belonged to them?

A. Yes, sir; there was no discretion left to me at all with regard to raising or lowering prices.

Q. They gave you instructions from St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you followed them?

A. Yes, sir, to the letter.

Q. Now, you say you gave rebates to some one in San Antonio?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What year was that?

A. I think up to within a year and a half or two years of the closing out of the business.

Q. Well, was it then about 1902?

A. Yes, sir, I think so.

Q. Now, who was it you gave those rebates to?

A. C. Horan & Company.

Q. What business are they in?

1204 A. They are general merchandisers.

Q. Wholesalers?

A. No, sir, they are retailers, and they have a sort of a railroad supply—supply section houses with material.

Q. They are very large dealers in oil, ain't they?

A. Well, I would not say they are very large, but they are good customers, bang up—not the biggest in town, but they rank along there—used to.

Q. You gave them rebates of half a cent or quarter of a cent?

A. Never run as little as a quarter—half to a cent, or something like that. They would turn them in to our drivers as cash, on the 31st or first or second, figure up their rebate due them and they would turn in their voucher, and he would turn it in to me as cash—they would use it as part payment.

Q. The driver would turn it in to Horan & Company?

A. No, sir, Horan would turn in the voucher to him, and he would accept it as cash and turn it in to me.

Q. But you had many different drivers?

A. Yes, sir; for a long time I used to pay those rebates myself.

Q. You had, first and last, I guess, fifteen to twenty different drivers?

A. No, sir, I will say I had ten.

Q. All right. The drivers knew what it was for?
A. Oh, yes; they didn't for a long time.
Q. Well, they did get the information?
A. Yes, sir, naturally they would.
Q. Well, now, about when did the drivers get the information as to what those vouchers were for?
A. About the time the Waters-Pierce Oil Company sign was put up on my warehouse.

1205 Q. Well, when was that?
A. Some time in 1900 or 1901.
Q. Yes. Well, now, wasn't it in 1900, Mr. Campbell?
A. I don't remember.
Q. It was about the time of the reorganization, wasn't it?
A. Yes, sir, about the same time that the cancellation of that paragraph occurred.
Q. All right. Then, on your warehouse you put up a sign, "Waters-Pierce Oil Company"?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. To give notice to the world that the warehouse was the property of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company?
A. Yes, sir—and we put it up under the eaves where nobody could see it.
Q. Where nobody could see it?
A. Except they went in our yard they could not see it, no, sir.
Q. Well, when they got in your yard they could see it?
A. We didn't allow them in there—we had a high fence there.
Q. Allowed nobody in there?
A. Nobody but interested parties.
Q. Who do you mean by "interested parties"?
A. Drivers and employés.
Q. Who put the sign up?
A. One of the drivers.
Q. Who told him to?
A. I did.
Q. Was that the only sign you had anywhere?
A. Yes, sir, only one reading "Waters-Pierce Oil Company."
Q. Who was present when the sign was put up?
A. John Rothner.

1206 Q. Were you there?
A. No, I don't think I was.
Q. You gave instructions where to put it?
A. That sign was shipped from St. Louis.
Q. All right. You gave instructions where to put it?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you get instructions from any one about it?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who from?
A. From some St. Louis official; I think it was Arthur Finlay.
Q. In writing?
A. Sure; yes, sir.
Q. That you lost?
A. Yes, sir; I lost all the papers.

Q. Now, when did you leave the service of the company?
A. Either the first of March or the first of April, 1904.
Q. March, 1904?
A. March or April, 1904.
Q. When did you sue the company?
A. Last year some time—don't remember just the month.
Q. 1906?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You waited about two years after you were discharged?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know J. P. Gruet?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. When did you get acquainted with him personally?
A. About ten years ago.
Q. When did you see him the last time?
1207 A. During the Bailey investigation.
Q. When did you see him with reference to bringing this suit against the company?
A. Never saw him with reference—about the suit.
Q. Didn't you talk to him about the suit?
A. I brought it before I saw him.
Q. Didn't you talk to him about it before?
A. I think I did afterwards.
Q. Didn't you write to him about it before?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You are certain of that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he write to you about it?
A. If he did, he was mighty guarded in what he said. I don't remember; I think he did.
Q. You think he did? Now, don't you remember he did?
A. No, I don't know that he did. I know this, that I felt more or less disgruntled at him because he didn't write, and jacked him up about it when he came to San Antonio during the Bailey Investigation.
Q. Because he didn't write, you say?
A. Yes, sir; I don't think he ever did answer, except to say that he expected to be in Texas soon and would talk to me then.
Q. Did you have any understanding with him about furnishing testimony in your suit?
A. No, sir; I tell you I filed my suit before I saw Mr. Gruet.
Q. Yes, sir; but hadn't you heard from Mr. Gruet?
A. I had not.
Q. But didn't you have an understanding with him about furnishing testimony?
A. No, sir, most positively not.
1208 Q. Mr. Campbell, did you go to St. Louis to see Gruet?
A. No, I didn't go to see Mr. Gruet; happened to see him while I was there—saw him in his office.
Q. Yes. When was that?
A. I was trying to locate the month; it has been about a year ago; no, it is over—a little over a year ago, or a little less, because I never leave this country at this time of the year; that must have been in the Winter, about two years ago this coming Winter.

Q. When was it with reference to the time your suit was brought?

A. Before.

Q. Did you see Hurley in St. Louis?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are his initials?

A. I don't know.

Q. Talked to him about the case, didn't you?

A. He was listening.

Q. Knew Gruet had been secretary of the company?

A. Me?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Oh, yes—yes, sir.

Q. Did you know at that time that he had a contract for a part of the penalties in this case?

A. I did not.

Q. When did you get that information?

A. Saw it in the newspapers.

Q. Didn't Gruet tell you about it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you arrange to testify in this case, and Gruet in your case?

1209 A. Most positively not.

Q. Didn't he talk to you about testifying in this case, coming here to Austin?

A. I happened to meet Mr. Gruet in Austin; I don't remember just when it was, but I was over here, if I remember correctly, as a witness before the Railroad Commission and Mr. Gruet was in the Driskill Hotel; and the way I happened to meet Mr. Lightfoot, Mr. Gruet took me over and introduced me to him.

Q. Mr. Campbell, didn't he talk to you about testifying in this case?

A. Why, naturally, we discussed it.

Q. Didn't he directly solicit your testimony in this case, and promise to help you in your suit in San Antonio?

A. If you cut that right in two, yes, sir. He didn't promise to help me in my suit in San Antonio, and I never asked him to. I took his deposition. Had no arrangement whatever for the exchange of testimony—none whatever.

Q. Now, you said a minute ago for me to cut it in two. What was it you wanted cut out?

A. I wanted the latter part cut out.

Q. That he solicited your——

A. No, you couldn't use that word; that's too strong. He didn't solicit my——

Q. Well, what did he say about it, Mr. Campbell?

A. I think he said, "You would be a valuable witness"—referring to me—"in the prosecution of the State in this ouster case." I can't remember. If there is anything direct or definite you want and will state it, I will answer it.

Q. Did he tell you he was interested in this case and wanted your testimony?

A. No.

1210 Q. Didn't he tell you he was interested in it?

A. No, I don't think he did that. I quizzed him to find out if he had any other motive than—than just a grievance against the company, and I couldn't get anything out of him, and I never knew what the motive was until I read in the papers that came out in the recent investigation that he was interested in a part of the penalties.

Q. Now, was it after that that he took you around to see Mr. Lightfoot?

A. After I read this in the papers?

Q. Oh, no.

A. Well, what?

Q. After you had this conversation with him.

A. It was the same day.

Q. Then he asked you to come around and see Mr. Lightfoot?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was about how long ago?

A. I don't remember that; I think it was last Fall some time, wasn't it? I think it was last Fall.

Q. Wasn't it before the suit was brought?

A. Before my suit?

Q. No, this suit.

A. I don't know when this suit was brought. Tell me the date and I can come closer to it. Would Mr. Gruet's deposition be taken before the suit was brought, or after? Then I can answer.

Q. Ordinarily taken after a suit was brought.

A. Then I saw him after the suit was brought, because he signed the deposition the day I was with him.

Q. Now, didn't he write you to come to St. Louis and see him before bringing your suit?

A. Mr. Gruet and I never had any correspondence amounting to anything in regard to my suit?

1211 Q. Now, Mr. Campbell, didn't Gruet write you to come to St. Louis before you went there, or telegraph you?

A. In other words, for me to come—he sent for me, and that's the reason I went to St. Louis?

Q. Now, that's what I am getting at.

A. No, sir, he did not. No.

Q. Didn't he write to you, though?

A. To come to St. Louis?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir.

Q. Telegraph you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't Hurley write you?

A. No, sir. I think I saw Gruet when I was on my way to Ohio to visit my father, who was sick, and it was on my way coming back. Naturally, I wouldn't stop longer than necessary going up.

Q. Now, after seeing Gruet and Hurley in St. Louis, you returned to San Antonio and brought suit?

A. No, I didn't right away.

Q. Well, a few days?

A. Well, a few weeks, I guess.

Q. Well, a few weeks?

A. Now, I couldn't say whether I had brought that suit before. Yes, sir, it was, I think it was after that.

Q. Now, didn't you bring the suit as the result of the conversation you had with Gruet and Hurley in St. Louis?

A. No.

Q. You say that you didn't talk to him about bringing this suit there? Didn't Gruet advise you there in St. Louis, Mr. Campbell, to bring this San Antonio suit?

1212 A. No, I don't think he did. If I had known it was going to be this important I would have remembered all these details.

Q. I didn't understand what you said about the importance.

A. I said if I thought it was going to be this important and that I would have been on the stand to testify, I would have made mental or written notes and given you definite dates, but I can't do it now.

Q. All right. Now, you were entirely friendly with the company and wanted re-employment up to the time you saw Gruet in St. Louis?

A. No, my feet got cold on the company before that.

Q. How long before?

A. Some time.

Q. Now, for two years or more you wanted to be re-employed?

A. No, not two years.

Q. Well, a year and a half?

A. I made over ten thousand dollars last year and didn't want any Waters-Pierce job.

Q. Out of selling onions?

A. No, not only onions; out of selling wheat and watermelons and the general run of my business.

Q. Then, for at least a year you were friendly and wanted re-employment?

A. Very friendly, and wanted re-employment.

Q. No grievance?

A. Yes, had a grievance, but didn't have it right away. When they fired me I wanted it then.

Q. Didn't get a grievance right away?

A. Yes, that was my grievance,—for not getting re-employment after firing me. I was figuring on going to Mexico for them. That's one reason I didn't file suit right away.

Q. What reason?

1213 A. I figured on getting a good job in Mexico. They are dissatisfied down there and all mixed up, and I thought they needed a good man and figured on it.

Q. But they didn't think they needed you?

A. No, they didn't think they needed me; some of them did, I learned later on, but my alleged friend C. L. Ackert didn't.

Q. And they are getting along all right without you?
A. Yes, sir, and I am getting along all right without them.
Q. I want to get back to this sign a minute. About this sign,—what instructions did they give you about this sign?
A. Put it up on the warehouse.

Mr. ODELL: That's all.
Mr. LIGHTFOOT: That's all, Mr. Campbell.

1214 Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer a portion of the deposition of H. J. COHN.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, residence and business?
Answer. H. J. Cohn,—residence, 4156 McPherson, St. Louis; business, oil salesman.
Interrogatory No. 2. State whether or not you ever had any connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company. If so, state when it began, how long it continued, and the character of your employment.
Answer. I can't give you those dates except by referring to—I was connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, off and on, for about ten years,—I filled various positions, from office-boy to division auditor and salesman.
Interrogatory 3. State whether or not you have worked for the Waters Pierce Oil Company in St. Louis. If so, state the time covered by your employment there, and state under whom you worked.
Answer. I have—I worked from April, 1900, until September 30, 1902; I worked under Mr. C. L. Ackert.
Interrogatory 4. If you have said that you worked under Mr. Ackert, state what his connection with the Waters Pierce Oil Company was, and state what you did under him.
Answer. I first worked under him when he was assistant manager of the Missouri Division, and he was later made manager for Missouri division. I was division auditor and salesman in Missouri under him.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: There is no No. 5. There is a typographical error here. The next Interrogatory is No. 6; it skips from 4 to 6.

Interrogatory 6. Were you familiar with the territory in which the Waters Pierce Oil Company did business? If so, state how you became familiar with it, and state what it was.
1215 Answer. I was. The territory was bounded by Moberly, Missouri, on the west and an imaginary line was drawn south, which took in Joplin and Carthage on the south.
Interrogatory 7. During the time you were with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not the Standard Oil Company sold oil in the territory you have designated as Waters Pierce territory.
Answer. They did not.
Interrogatory 8. During the time you were connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, state whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company sold, or undertook to sell, any oil outside of the territory designated by you as Waters Pierce territory.
Answer. To my knowledge, they did not.

(Interrogatory 9 and answer were omitted.)

Interrogatory 10. During the time that you were connected with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, state whether you had any knowledge of the firm of Scofield, Shurmer & Teagle. If so, state what became of the business of that firm.

Answer. I knew of them, in a business way, as being a strictly independent oil company and they were absorbed by the Republic Oil Company, who took over plants at St. Louis and Springfield, which were the only plants I came in contact with.

(Interrogatories 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, and answers, were omitted.)

Interrogatory 17. Please state whether or not during the time you were employed by the Waters Pierce Oil Company you were ever stationed in Texas; if so, where were you stationed, how long did you remain in Texas, and what was the nature and character of the duties you performed in Texas for the Waters Pierce Oil Company?

1216 Answer. I was stationed at Marshall, Texas, for a period of about eight years, filling positions from office-boy to salesman and division auditor.

Interrogatory 18. If in answer to the foregoing question you have stated, or if it be a fact, that you were stationed at Marshall, Texas, then state whether or not you have any information as to the source from which the Waters Pierce Oil Company obtained its supplies for use in Texas.

Answer. At that time it received the greater part of its supplies from the Standard Oil Company refinery at Whiting, Indiana, and a refinery at Corsicana, Texas, in addition to receiving its railroad oil, which originally came from the Galena Signal Oil Company, at Franklin, Pennsylvania; these railroad oils were sometimes loaded with other oils in mixed car-lots from St. Louis.

Interrogatory 19. What kind of a station did the Waters Pierce Oil Company have at Marshall? Please state whether or not it was a division point for any territory; if so, what territory was embraced in that division, and whether or not the requisitions for supplies from local stations in its territory were handled through that office.

Answer. At Marshall they had division headquarters for the East Texas and Louisiana division. It was a division point and controlled quite a large number of stations in eastern Texas, and all of north Louisiana and part of southern Louisiana, almost as far south as Morgan City; and bounded on the east by the Mississippi river. And all requisitions were sent to Marshall for all supplies for all stations in the east Texas and Louisiana division.

Interrogatory 20. Please state whether or not during the time you were located in Texas you represented the Waters Pierce Oil Company in the capacity of traveling salesman; if so, in 1217 what territory did you travel.

Answer. In the east Texas and Louisiana division.

(Interrogatory 21 and answer were omitted.)

Interrogatory 22. Please state whether or not while representing the Waters Pierce Oil Company in Texas you ever met in competition or otherwise any representative of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, or the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, or the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, or the Standard Oil Company of New York, or the Continental Oil Company of Denver, or the Standard Oil Company of Chicago, or the Standard Oil Company of Baltimore, or the Republic Oil Company of Ohio.

Answer. I did not.

Interrogatory 23. Please state whether or not while you were employed by the Waters Pierce Oil Company in Texas, the Corsicana Refining Company of Corsicana, Texas, or the Security Oil Company of Beaumont, Texas, sold any oil to the retail trade in your territory in competition with the Waters Pierce Oil Company.

Answer. To my knowledge they did not.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: That's all we care to offer of that.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: We next offer a portion of the deposition of H. C. ARNOLD.

Interrogatory 1. What is your name, what is your business, and where do you reside?

Answer. H. C. Arnold; accountant; New York City.

Interrogatory 2. If you say you are an accountant, state by whom you are employed, and where your office is.

Answer. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; 26 Broadway, New York City.

1218 Interrogatory 3. How long have you been an accountant for the Standard Oil Company?

Answer. Two years.

Interrogatory 4. Before that time, what did you do?

Answer. I was assistant in the same department.

Interrogatory 5. If you say that you were an assistant accountant, state to whom you were an assistant.

Answer. R. P. Tinsley.

Interrogatory 6. If you have said, or if it be a fact, that you are an accountant and were formerly an assistant accountant for the Standard Oil Company, state what Standard Oil Company you are connected with, and if you have connections with more than one company, state each of them.

Answer. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Oil Company of New York, the Atlantic Refining Company.

Interrogatory 7. State specifically and in detail your present duties, and state specifically the companies for which you are doing accounting, and define the duties performed by you with reference to each company.

Answer. Well, I am the accountant, receiving reports of sales. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Oil Company of New York, the Atlantic Refining Company. My duties are as stated in the former answer. Receiving the sales.

Interrogatory 8. Do you in your capacity of employment by the Standard Oil Company or otherwise know of the Waters Pierce Oil Company?

—. Yes, in a general way.

Interrogatory 9. Do you know R. H. McNall? If so, state how long you have known him, and what position he had when you first knew him.

Answer. Yes, I know him, about 25 years. A general clerk, I should say.

1219 Interrogatory 10. If you say he was connected with the Pratt Works, state whether or not this concern was connected with the Standard Oil Company.

Answer. It was Charles Pratt and Company at that time. It was not connected with the Standard Oil Company at that time.

(Interrogatories 11, 12 and 13, and answers were omitted.)

Interrogatory 14. Do you know a Mr. King, whose office is in 26 Broadway? If so, what is his position, and state if you have any business relations with him.

Answer. Yes. I don't know that he has any official position. My business relations with him,—I furnish him with reports of sales.

Interrogatory 15. If you have said that you make up figures for or furnish statements to Mr. King, or if it be the fact, then state what these figures and statements are with reference to, and if you say they are for sales, then state what company or companies they are sales of.

Answer. Well, they are reports of sales and of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

(Interrogatory 16 and answer were omitted).

Interrogatory 17. State whether or not you are acquainted with R. P. Tinsley.

Answer. Yes.

Interrogatory 18. Where did he reside in October, 1904, and with what company was he connected?

Answer. New York City; Standard Oil Company of New York.

Interrogatory 19. I copy a letter, purporting to be signed by you and addressed to R. P. Tinsley at St. Louis. State whether or not this letter was signed and sent by you, and explain what cor-

1220 respondence was referred to in the last two paragraphs of the letter, and explain the transaction referred to in the second paragraph of

"DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge your personal favor of the 8th inst., and note with very much gratification the statement you make with regard to Mr. Preston's services while with you. We are very glad to hear that he will soon be with us again, and while we have not heard from him direct as to his movements, we suppose he will leave on or about the 12th.

As per recent correspondence, please find enclosed a charge for the two-tank wagon sales records sent you in September, which kindly pass to our credit.

If there are any copies of letters, circulars, etc., that you still desire, please let us know and we shall be pleased to favor you.

Yours truly,

(Signed) H. C. ARNOLD."

Encl. 1.

Judge STEDMAN: May it please Your Honor, we object to the interrogation concerning that letter and the witness's answer in respect thereto, for the reason that there is no date given and we are unable to tell whether it had anything to do with this matter or not.

Mr. BRADY: If the Court please,—we suggest that in a former interrogatory, namely, Interrogatory 3, in answer to that interrogatory he says that he has been in the employ of this company for two years, and, of course, it must have been within that time, as it was done by him.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Judge STEDMAN: We except.

1221 Answer. Yes, this letter was signed and sent by me. Well, the answer to that is the recent correspondence was in connection with the book referrel to in the question, and with regard to letters he asked for, that was for instructions as to an accounting office. The phrase "tank wagon sales records" are blank books only. That was a bill for those two books.

Interrogatory 20. State whether or not it was your custom when you were sent books and records to the Waters Pierce Oil Company in Missouri, to make a charge against that company.

Answer. We did not send any books, except blank books, and no records. We rendered a bil to that company for those two books. We sent no books or records.

Interrogatory 21. What was the reason or occasion for sending books and records to the Waters Pierce Oil Company at St. Louis?

Answer. We did not send any.

Interrogatory 22. In writing letters to R. P. Tinsley with reference to sales and with regard to books and records which you charged to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, state in what capacity you were acting, and in what department of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Answer. We did not write—I did not write to Mr. R. P. Tinsley about sales and books and records. I did write about blank books only.

Interrogatory 23. Explain the first paragraph of your letter heretofore copied to Mr. Tinsley concerning Mr. Preston.

Answer. Mr. Preston was there to assist in straightening out accounting matters, in which he is considered an expert.

Interrogatory 24. State whether or not you sent Mr. Preston to Mr. Tinsley; and if so, state for what purpose Mr. Preston was sent, and in what capacity.

Answer. I sent Mr. Preston there, and the answer to the 1222 previous question answers that question. His capacity was statistical.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT: That's all we offer of that.

The COURT: We will adjourn until half past nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

TUESDAY, May 28, 1907.

Court opened at 9.30 a. m.

A. W. CLEM, a witness for the Plaintiff, testified as follows:

(Examination by Mr. BRADY:)

Q. What is your name, please?
A. A. W. Clem.
Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Clem?
A. Dallas.
Q. How long have you lived in Dallas?
A. About seventeen years.
Q. How long?
A. Seventeen years.
Q. Seventeen years. What business are you engaged in at Dallas, Mr. Clem?
A. Oil business.
Q. At the present you are?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Well, for whom are you working, if anybody, or are you in the business for yourself?
A. I am in the business for myself now.

1223 Q. What character of business are you doing, with reference to whether it is supplying the trade or supplying consumers?
A. At present?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I am supplying the trade.
Q. I will ask you to state, Mr. Clem, whether or not you were in the oil business at Dallas about the year 1890?
A. I began the oil business, I think, in '90,—1890.
Q. In what name did you do business there at that time?
A. In the name of the Eagle Refining Company.
Q. State whether or not there was a concern by that name in Cleveland, Ohio.
A. There was; it was a corporation, at Cleveland, Ohio.
Q. I will ask you whether or not you know that that concern was affiliated with the Standard Oil Company or the Waters Pierce Oil Company at that time?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that for the reason that the inquiry is directed to the year 1890,—ten years before the organization of this company, and is about matters not shown to be acquiesced in by the defendant in this case, and therefore is prejudicial.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. Why, I was always of the opinion——

Mr. ODELL: Now, we object to his stating what was his opinion——

The COURT: The question is whether you know.

Q. In 1890?

A. Well, I can't,—I actually couldn't answer that; I do not know.

Q. Well, you don't know. All right. Will you state what equipment you had in Dallas for the supplying of the trade in 1890 and up until 1894?

1224 A. We had storage tanks and iron barrel delivery; I don't think we had any tank wagons at the time.

Q. How many storage tanks did you have?

A. We had three.

Q. The capacity of those tanks, please.

A. They held about 6,000 gallons each.

Q. The iron barrel trade, about what did that amount to?

Mr. ODELL: We object to this testimony as being wholly irrelevant and immaterial, in detailing by the witness his business in 1890, or 1894, six years before the organization of this company. It is an inquiry that could throw no possible light on this case, as to whether the business was a large or a small one, or whether he was a large or small dealer, or the capacity to do business.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. About what was the extent of your iron barrel trade?

A. You mean the amount of iron barrels?

Q. Yes.

A. We did practically the bulk of our business in iron barrels; we were shipping about 40,000 barrels a month.

Q. Including your shipment sales?

A. Yes, sir, we did some.

Q. Now, where did you get your supply of oil?

A. Well, it was shipped us from the Eagle Refining Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. I would send my orders to them and it would come to me part of the time from there, and then they had a little refinery at Lima, Ohio, but they discontinued that, I think, and began shipping us then from Toledo, Ohio, from the Craig Oil Company and S. Y. Ramage, of Oil City, Pennsylvania.

1225 Q. These supplies came on requisition through Cleveland, from Cleveland, Oil City,——

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What character of shipments did they make; tank-cars or otherwise?

A. It was come in tank cars practically——

Q. What character of tank cars; whose tank cars?

A. They had their own tank cars, but sometimes they would come in outside cars. S. Y. Ramage would ship us in his cars, may be——

Q. Now, what territory did you operate in, and in what counties? In what territory did you supply the trade from Dallas?

A. Well, I covered pretty much the whole State of Texas, but, of course, I was limited to a small area around Dallas; in car-load business, though, I would ship oil in car-loads to all towns in the Indian Territory, and I would do quite a local business. I would ship iron barrels to Pecos or Midland, out on the Midland road, and Ada, New Mexico,—I believe they call it Carlsbad now.

Q. State whether or not you did any business out at Seymour.

A. Well, I remember putting in a carload of oil at Seymour.

Q. Now, I will ask you, Mr. Clem, to state at what prices you were selling oil at at Seymour?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, Your Honor, as being immaterial and irrelevant,—the prices he was selling oil at at Seymour or wlse-where. It throws no light on anything in this case; it is a manner of conducting his business unknown to the defendant, not acquiesced in by the defendant or in any manner illustrating the method of the defendant's doing business at that time.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. At what prices were you selling this oil at Seymour?

1226 A. Well, I went to Seymour, working car-load lot business, and putting in a carload there and shipping it direct from the refinery——

Q. Well, at what price?

A. I sold it in car-lots at 16¢, delivered.

Q. Was the Waters Pierce Oil Company selling any oil at Seymour at that time?

A. They were selling all the oil there at the time.

Q. Now, what experience did you have at Seymour with reference to prices with the Waters Pierce Oil Company oil? In what year were you selling this oil at Seymour?

A. It was in 1891, as well as I remember.

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, Your Honor, because it is shown to be nine years before the organization of this company, and is immaterial and irrelevant.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. You say you think it was in the year 1891?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, the question I asked you was, What experience you had with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in person, in competition, as to prices at Seymour when you put that oil in?

A. Well, I was informed by the railroad agent at Seymour,——

Mr. ODELL: We object to what the railroad agent told him, as being hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. You need not state what the railroad agent told you. You should tell what happened with reference to prices.

A. Well, I went up to make the delivery of the car, and I found that most of my merchants refused to take the oil they had bought; I made this car up from various merchants, in fact, all the merchants in the town.

1227 Mr. ODELL: We object to that your Honor, and ask that the answer of the witness be excluded, because it suggests the independent action of merchants made in the absence of the defendant, and an act that——

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. Well, what did you find about these merchants when you came to deliver the oil?

A. Well, the merchants, practically all, refused to take the oil. One merchant, he was retailing oil at 15¢, a cent less than they had paid me for their oil, and they refused to take the oil unless I would meet competition.

Q. Well, did you meet the competition?

A. Well, I had ten barrels of oil consigned in that car, and I told them I would give them a barrel a piece of that oil, if they would meet competition with it.

Q. Well, did you dispose of your car there or not?

A. Why, some of the merchants afterwards taken their oil, and some of it I stored, and some leaked out—a good deal of it did.

Q. Now, of the competition you spoke of, whose competition was that, Mr. Clem?

A. Well, the Waters Pierce Oil Company was selling the oil to the merchants.

Q Q. What cut did they make in the prices that you were to reach; what minimum did it reach?

A. Five cents a gallon.

Q. What was the price of their oil at the time you brought that oil into Seymour?

A. They were charging the merchants 35¢ for Eupion, so I was told by the merchants.

1228 Mr. ODELL: We object to the statement that he was told by the merchants.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. What price did you find prevailing there at the time you were there with the car of oil? The Eupion Oil,—what prices were prevailing?

A. At the time I went to make the delivery?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Fifteen cents—that was the retail——

Q. Well, when you went there to take the orders,—what price did you find prevailing?

A. Thirty-five cents a gallon, wholesale.

Q. And what was the minimum price the oil reached there?

A. Five cents.

Q. Dropped to five cents. Did you do any more business at Seymour?

A. Never tried.

Q. That was your last experience at Seymour?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, what per cent. of the business, Mr. Clem, was the Waters Pierce Oil Company doing, including your business, at the time they took over your plant in 1894; if they did so?

A. After they taken over my business?
Q. Yes; about what per cent. of the business did they do in that territory?
A. Well, including my business, which they had bought out, they were doing all the business in my territory.
Q. Did they have any competition there at all?
A. None at that time.
Q. Do you remember what price was prevailing in 1894, when they took over your plant; I mean contemporaneously with it,—within a few days of it?
1229 A. Why, the price in Dallas was nine and a half cents a gallon for Pennsylvania Water White.
Q. Do you remember the price of Eupion at that time?
A. About the same.
Q. What change, if any, in the way of advance or reduction of prices at the time your plant was taken over by the Waters Pierce Oil Company, took place?

Mr. ODELL: We object, for the reason that it is shown that the inquiry is directed at methods prevailing in 1894, six years prior to the organization of this company, and for many years prior to the enactment of the anti-trust act of 1899 or of 1903, under which this suit was brought.
The COURT: The objection is overruled.
Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. Well, prices advanced after that.
Q. Now, to what extent did they advance from nine and one half cents, then prevailing?
A. They went up to about twenty-two cents, on the basis of Eupion, that is gradually,——
Q. Now, what space of time intervened during which that rise was accomplished, from nine and one half cents to twenty-two cents?
A. What space of time?
Q. Yes.
A. As well as I can remember, it was four or five months.
Q. It was a gradual rise, you say?
A. Gradual rise; about a cent at the time.
Q. Now, state to the Jury, if, during that four or five months—what competition, if any, prevailed in Dallas and that territory, against the Waters Pierce Oil Company after their purchase of your plant?
1230 A. No competition that I know of; the Waters Pierce Oil company and the Eagle Refining Company were the only ones doing business there.
Q. When they absorbed your plant, there was no competition left?
A. No competition.
Q. How long was it before any competition came into Dallas, after your plant was absorbed?
A. It may have been a year or two years.
Q. I will ask you whether or not the price of 22¢ per gallon prevailed during that year or two, or not?

A. Well, of course, prices gradually came down a little after competition began to move around.

Q. Well, I mean before the competition came in; during the year before the competition came, how did they range as to prices?

Q. As well as I remember,—I don't think there was any decline. I think it got up to 17¢ and 22¢,—17 for Brilliant and 22 for Eupion.

Q. There is a difference of five cents a gallon in those two oils to the trade?

A. They make about that, yes.

Q. Now I will ask you to state whether or not your plant, from the years 1890 to 1894, constituted any considerable competition to the Waters Pierce Oil Company, or not?

Judge PENN: We object to that as calling for a conclusion of the witness, Your Honor. We think if the testimony is admissible, he should be required to state the facts.

The COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. Well, about what per cent. of the business did you do, as compared with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, in Dallas and surrounding territory, during those four years?

1231 A. Well, of course, I don't know exactly the percentage. You take the oil business as a whole, I couldn't figure out what per cent. I did in that territory.

Q. Well, can you approximate it?

A. Well, I should think about three per cent. would be a fair average; three or four per cent.

Q. Well, you were the only active competitor they had at that time?

A. Well, when was that?

Q. Between 1890 and 1894?

A. Yes, sir; I was the only active competitor they had in that territory.

Q. Did you have an office and plant there, or not?

A. Yes, I had an office, plant and warehouse.

Q. Warehouse, or not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just describe your equipment to the Jury; about what you had and the number of employees, and your expenses per month during those four years.

A. Well, I had three storage tanks, of about eighteen or twenty thousand capacity; I had about 350 iron barrels; I had a couple of wagons; myself, a bookkeeper and two drivers.

Q. Did you have a regular bookkeeper employed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Gave your personal attention to the business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And had two drivers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you pay office rent, or not, or did you own the property?

A. Well, it was on leased property; I paid ten dollars a month on the leased property.

1232 Q. Ten dollars a month on the leased property?
A. I put the building on it—a two-story, 40x50, iron-clad, with a gravel roof.
Q. That was put on after you rented the unimproved property?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What was the value of your property after the improvements were put on, Mr. Clem?
A. Why, $25.00 per month, I suppose.
Q. Now, I will ask you to state to the Jury, whether after the purchase of your plant by the Waters Pierce Oil Company, the Eagle Refining Company's business was transacted at the same place, or whether the equipment was moved over to the Waters Pierce Company's oil plant, and the office rent saved there, or whether you performed the business at the same old place?
A. I performed the business at the same old place.
Q. Did you keep your two drivers?
A. Yes. Now, one of those men acted part of the time as driver and part of the time as warehouseman.
Q. Did they remain in your employ?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did the bookkeeper remain?
A. Yes, sir, I always kept the bookkeeper.
Q. How many years did you remain with the Waters Pierce Oil Company, running the Eagle Refining plant?
A. About nine years; from 1894 to 1904.
Q. This warehouse and office equipment was kept at the same old place during that time?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I will ask you to state where this plant was,—whether in the heart of the city or an isolated place?
1233 A. Well, at the time I built this plant, it was a kind of an isolated place, but it grew to be rather public property, or has grown at least at this time, to very public property.
Q. Well, where was it situated?
A. Why, it was located in what we call South Dallas, near Katy, near the Katy and the Dallas Rapid Transit terminal——
Q. Well, how close to any creeks or streams?
A. Well, it was like on a creek, that is, a branch, with a big bluff to it.
Q. Like on a branch?
A. Branch, yes.
Q. Was the front or the back fronting that creek?
A. Well, the warehouse fronted out on the level, but the back of it fronted on the creek; it was built on the edge of a bank.
Q. How many years did that remain a rather isolated place?
A. Well, that—really up to some three or four years ago, it was practically isolated.
Q. When they got up the 150,000 Club?
A. Yes.
Q. Well, now, Mr. Clem, you say that you were in business there four years under the name of Eagle Refining Company for yourself.

I will ask you to state whether you knew the manager of the Waters Pierce Oil Company during those four years.

A. Yes, I knew him.

Q. Who was he?

A. Mr. Grice was manager at that time.

Q. Did you know C. W. Cahoon?

A. I didn't know Mr. Cahoon at the time; I wasn't personally acquainted with him, you might say.

Q. Did you know whether he was in the employ of the office at that time?

1234 A. No, I don't know; it occurs to me that he came there about that time.

Q. Now, I wish you would state to the Jury what methods the Waters Pierce Oil Company employed in meeting your competition during the four years that you were in business for yourself, and what conversations you had with Mr. Grice, the substance of the conversations you had with Mr. Grice, in reference to your business,—the general conduct of the Waters Pierce Oil Company towards your competition.

Mr. ODELL: We object, Your Honor, to this particular question, for the reason, in addition to those heretofore given, that it calls for conversations with a local agent of the company at Dallas, who is not shown to be in such a position of authority with reference to the company as that he was authorized to bind the company or prejudice the company by any statement, that he might make, and that it is hearsay as to the defendant, for the reason that he occupied no such official position with reference to the company as that he might prejudice or bind it by his statements.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Judge PENN: We wish it to be understood, Your Honor, I think it is covered by the previous rulings,—that we are objecting to all testimony of Mr. Clem with reference to transactions prior to the organization of the present company,—as being irrelevant and immaterial to any issue in this case, as occurring before the enactment of the present anti-trust laws, or the act of 1899, and on the ground that this company could not be bound by anything done by a former company, and that the acts are not shown to be unlawful. We consider, and so understand Your Honor, that our previous objections have covered this as to this testimony, but we wish it now to affirmatively appear in the record that all of these objections 1235 were made to this testimony.

The COURT: You may have your bill so showing.

Mr. BRADY: Please read the question, Mr. Stenographer. (Question was re-read).

A. Well, of course, to begin, I will state that their manner of competition is generally known——

Q. Well, Mr. Clem, we prefer instead of what the generally known methods are, just what your experience was.

Mr. ODELL: We ask that the answer be excluded?

The COURT: What is the answer you want excluded?

Mr. BRADY: I think he was just leading up to his answer.

The COURT (to witness): The question, Mr. Clem, is—what character of competition you met with there, and what conversations you had with the manager of the Waters Pierce Oil Company on the subject of competition?

A. Well, I understand, and I am going to answer. Well, when I first began the oil business in Dallas, I began by shipping carloads into Texas; the first carload I sold was in Dallas. The merchants there were paying 23 cents for Eupion and 17 for Brilliant in bulk, and they were paying 2.40, or 24 cents a gallon in 2-5 cases for Brilliant, and 37½ cents a gallon in 2-5 cases for Eupion. Now, I made up a carload of oil with some two or three merchants in Dallas. I think I charged them, delivered there in wood barrels, about 17 cents a barrel——

Mr. ODELL: Please state the year.

A. That was in 1890, I think, because it was the first carload I sold. Well, I then went down to Terrell, and the merchants were paying there about the same price. I put in a carload, and came back to Dallas. That night I went to McKinney and put in a car; and I had, I suppose, some 15 or 20 carloads on the road here at one time. For instance, at the little town of Lancaster, 16
1236 miles from Dallas, I put in a carload to one man, M. B. Johnson. He told me he would take a car if I would not sell anybody else in the town. Then when Mr. Johnson's oil arrived, as well as at other places, why the Waters Pierce Oil Company's agent went out there and made arrangements with the other merchants to retail oil at ten cents a gallon, and they retailed it as long as Mr. Johnson had any. That was about the condition at Lancaster; and it was about like it at other places, whenever the oil arrived.

Mr. ODELL: We object to that as the conclusion of the witness, and not a statement of facts.

The WITNESS: It was no conclusion at all, because I would be out there and see the merchants selling it at ten cents a gallon, when my oil arrived. That was about the condition, you know, wherever I put in a carload of oil. The carload business soon played out, from the fact that the merchants were afraid to buy——

Mr. ODELL: Now, we object to that as being a conclusion and hearsay.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. I then put in storage tanks and iron barrel equipments and localed my oil out to various merchants where I had been putting in carloads; but the carload business didn't last long.

Q. Now, give your experience with reference to the iron-barrel business, which succeeded the carload business.

A. Well, whenever I put in iron-barrel shipments, of course, they would keep track of them; they had men to look after every barrel I shipped out.

Mr. ODELL: Your Honor, we object to that and ask that it be excluded, because it is evident the answer of the witness is hearsay and is a conclusion and opinion, rather than the statement of any fact.

1237 The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

Q. Well, what became of your iron-barrel business, what effect did it have?

A. Why, the prices were reduced; in fact, the prices came all to pieces when I began selling oil, and we never did get prices back to where they were, where there was any profit in the oil business.

Q. Now, the prices that were made in competition with you,—reduced down all to pieces; what effect did it have on your profits and your business as a going concern?

Mr. ODELL: We object to that, Your Honor, because the effect that it had on his profits is not a subject of material inquiry, and calls for the conclusion and opinion of the witness; as to whether he made a profit, does not indicate as to whether or not the Waters Pierce Oil Company made a profit.

The COURT: The objection is overruled.

Mr. ODELL: We except.

A. Why, it cut my profit down, as a matter of course. Where I was really entitled to three cents a gallon on oil, why a great many places I would sell as low as a cent a gallon—fifty cents a barrel—profit; even in some cases for less.

Q. Well, state whether or not you had occasion to sell at a loss at places, or not.

A. I had opportunity to sell at a loss, but I don't remember that I ever sold at a loss.

Q. Well, what was the result, as to whether or not you got the business?

A. I pegged out.

Q. Did you get the business?

A. No, I quit it.
